Retired University Professor:

Advance Planning Is Key To Successful Retirement

Who, in 1952, could have foreseen today's ballooning inflation and its effect on the cost of living and the problems now facing retired Americans on fixed incomes?

The answer, of course, is nobody — including 75 year old Isabel McKinnel Lyons, a five year resident of one of Florida's "continuing care" retirement homes who was a 48 year old university professor in 1952. "Somehow," she says, "you don't worry about getting old until you start getting there — and that's a mistake!"

Lyons avoided that mistake. She realized early on that the decision to move from one's home, which once housed a family through its formative years, is certainly one of the most dramatic decisions of a lifetime, and one that should not be made without extensive research. She debated such questions as: "Can I afford to keep up with the rising cost of home ownership? Do I still need the amount of space I once did? Is the climate becoming harder to deal with? What happens if I become seriously ill?"

Convinced that a retirement home was the answer for her, she researched, wrote letters and visited many homes while assembling an in-depth file of retirement facilities around the United States. Attracted by the climate of Florida, she soon learned that the increasing popularity of retirement homes in central and southern Florida had already put these locations out of her reach, with entrance fees up to $50,000 and long waiting lists of applicants.

On the other hand, she discovered that retirement homes in northern Florida cities not usually regarded as retirement cities — Pensacola, Tallahassee and Jacksonville — came much closer to fitting her needs and budget.

Her final choice, the Jacksonville Regency House, is a high rise continuing care facility operated by the Presbyterian Homes of the Synod of Florida, the largest nonprofit provider of continuing care facilities in the state.

Isabel McKinnel Lyons

"The one thing I was sure of was that I was not ready for a rocking chair!" she says. "I wanted to have time to study and do things I didn't have time to do before I retired. In my new home I'm close to cultural events and shopping and, because I no longer need to cook or keep house, I have complete freedom to enjoy these interests. Most important, 'continuing care' means that there are complete facilities and professional staff here to take care of my medical needs, when necessary."

Between 8,000 and 15,000 persons over the age of 60 move to Florida each month. For many, who are finding rising costs and availability a problem — even though they have planned financially for retirement — northern Florida just might make their Florida retirement dreams a happy reality.

For information about continuing care homes and retirement opportunities in northern Florida, write: Administrator, Jacksonville Regency House, 33 West Adams Street, Jacksonville, FL 32202.

Ideas For A Holiday Gifts List

by Michael Cross

When you compose a holiday gifts list this year, be sure to consider the many possibilities in consumer electronics.

Electronic watches and hand-held calculators are excellent gifts. Some of the newer digital readout watches display the date and day of the week at the same time they are showing the hour, minute and second. World time zones also are shown on some new models. New calculators offer built-in time keeping functions, with the time and date shown on the same digital readout where the mathematical calculations appear.

The radio offers a truly personal gift. The radio/cassette model has become a best seller, and clock radios have a number of features and conveniences, such as a built-in calculator and programmable station setting. Some portable radios now tune-in television station sound or weather stations. Multi-band radios enable listeners to dial around the world.

High fidelity equipment appeals to just about everyone. Check out audio compact systems, components and car stereo. You'll be astounded at the quality of the sound.

Compact systems may be easier on your budget and will save you the task of selecting and setting up hi-fi components. However, from the range of products and prices, components offer the most flexible way to build a total sound system.

Then the television screen is increasingly becoming an all-purpose video display. The video cassette recorder/player enables the viewer to play pre-recorded shows on the screen or, to record off the air television programs for viewing at your convenience. Additional pre-recorded programming can be viewed on the television screen as the new videodisc is introduced city by city. The new home computers and video games also are displayed on the TV screen.

Television viewing, averaging over six and a half hours a day, is enhanced by TV sets that offer outstanding reliability and new features. Electronic tuning has led to greater interest in remote controls and touch-tabs which switch you direct to preferred stations. A few new models program your TV viewing for days ahead, and others can tune-in cable TV channels. Many TV manufacturers are concentrating on improved sound such as more or larger speakers.

The large screen console remains the favorite for the living room where the new projection or wide-screen model is beginning to appear. And for people on the go, there are portable models galore, especially in black and white TV, which also provides many gift choices.

Above all, it's important to note the "value" in consumer electronics. They're real inflation fighters. Prices of these products have barely moved during the past 12 years, while the Consumer Price Index for all products more than doubled.

The Recipe Box from Kellogg's

Marshmallow Treats Holiday House

Create a bit of holiday magic for your home with a gaily decorated Marshmallow Treats House. Just make two pans of everyone's favorite Marshmallow Treats, cut out and assemble the house, and add miniature decorations — peppermint shrubs, gum drop door knob, licorice windows. The result is a holiday treat for everyone.

Preparing the Treats

Prepare one 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan of Marshmallow Treats using the following:

- ¼ cup margarine or butter
- 1 package (10 oz., about 40) regular marshmallows
- 5 cups Kellogg's® Rice Krispies® cereal

Prepare one 15½ x 10½ x 1-inch pan of Marshmallow Treats using the following:

- ½ cup margarine or butter
- 1 package (16 oz., about 60) regular marshmallows
- 10 cups Kellogg's Rice Krispies cereal

Melt margarine in large saucepan over low heat. Add marshmallows and stir until completely melted. Cook over low heat 3 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add cereal. Stir until well coated. Using buttered spatula or waxed paper, press mixture evenly into buttered pan. Cool completely. Let stand 8 hours or overnight.

NOTE: Remember that 1 cup of Rice Krispies cereal weighs about 1 ounce. So a 6-oz. package of Rice Krispies cereal will contain about 6 cups. Best results are obtained when using fresh marshmallows.

Cutting Out The House

Using the measurements shown in Fig. 1, cut out patterns from paper or cardboard for each piece of the house. Then lay the patterns over the 15½ x 10½ x 1-inch pan of Treats and cut around them. Remove pieces from the pan and place on waxed paper.

Decorating The House

Prepare Icing:

- 2 egg whites
- 2½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar
- Assorted candies for decorating

In small bowl of electric mixer, beat egg whites until foamy and slightly thickened. Add sugar, ½ cup at a time, beating after each addition. Beat on medium speed for 5 minutes until a stiff icing is formed. Using the icing as "glue," decorate the front, back and sides of the house with assorted candies. Allow to dry completely.

Assembling The House

Remove, in one piece, the Marshmallow Treats from the 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. This will serve as the base for the house. Set on heavy cardboard or a tray.

Assemble the house, using icing to cement the decorated walls together. (see Figs. 2 and 3) Prepare more of the above icing if needed.

Ice peaks of both end walls. Fold an 8½ x 11-inch piece of colored cardboard in half crosswise. Place the cardboard over the peaks to form roof. Hold in place until icing sets.

Ice the chimney sections together. Place in position on roof using icing to anchor it. Hold in place until icing sets.

Cover roof with icing using a spatula or pastry bag. Swirl surface to look like snow. With leftover icing, add "snowdrifts" around base of house. Add angel hair or evergreen boughs to complete the holiday scene.

ELECTRONIC CARDTROL
What Is It?
How would you like to be able to put gas into your vehicle and never have to step inside a station? You wouldn't have to wait in line at a busy station to have your transaction recorded. You could come and go night or day seven days a week as you please.
We are putting in an ELECTRONIC CARDTROL system which will work like the systems you see in banks. You will have a card with a special number that will activate the pump you want. No one else can use your card unless you authorize it. You will receive a statement at the end of each month showing what you owe.
In order for you to get this kind of service you must come into our office to apply for a plastic card and you must have approved credit with Consumers. (This system will only be available at the downtown station.)

Toy Business Growth Aided By Computers

When tots start thumbing through toy catalogues and writing lists for Santa, Christmas can't be far away.

Interestingly, we take it for granted when we go to market to buy a fine toy that it will be on the shelf. Yet, being able to get just the right toy—especially around Christmas, when just about everyone else in the world has the same idea—is a tribute to American ingenuity, and, increasingly, to technology.

The real early birds may begin their Christmas shopping in September. But by that time, manufacturers have probably had their production in high gear for some time. They have to anticipate which toys will be most popular, produce enough, and see that stores' orders are filled.

Toy companies increasingly rely on computers to effect these complex tasks. The nation's largest manufacturer of toys for infants and preschool youngsters, Fisher-Price Toys, a division of the Quaker Oats Company, for instance, recently installed a new Sperry Univac computer to process orders, order parts, keep track of inventory, ship materials, bill customers—and pay their own bills.

Their new computer not only helps assure that when you and thousands of others shop for Christmas, the toys you want will be waiting. The computer's efficiency also helps keep manufacturing prices down.

Computers aren't child's play, but child's play may be a computer's business!

Although any time is the right time to give children toys, 60 percent of all toys are sold in the last three months of the year.

Cancel Shows' Solar Fair

Spokesmen for the University experiment station and extension service announced that commercial manufacturers had not responded in sufficient numbers to hold the major Red River Valley winter shows space open for a solar fair.

A direct mailing to over 350 manufacturers and distributors of solar equipment resulted in only six space reservations in two months. Spokesmen said, "We would have gone ahead with as few as 20 exhibitors, but we have evidently misunderstood the market plans of the solar industry."

U.S. farmers planted nearly 80 million acres in corn this year. Other feed grains (oats, barley, sorghum), occupy another 37.7 million acres, according to Sperry New Holland.

Between 1900 and 1972, weather extremes caused agricultural productivity to rise or drop from its normal level in one out of every three years, according to Sperry New Holland.

CRAFTY IDEAS

GIFTS: MAKE THEM BY HAND

Crafts have enjoyed a popularity boom in recent years as Americans take greater interest in exploring and rediscovering their heritage. And the holidays are when interest peaks, because nothing shows you care more than a handmade gift.

Such crafts as wood carving and weaving met the practical needs of early pioneers. Today they're valued by novices as well as skilled artisans who realize how therapeutic and profitable crafts can be.

Adults suffering mental strain at work can buoy their spirits at home by working with their hands in a creative pursuit. And at gift-giving time, handcrafted goods are often more appreciated than machine-made items because of the originator's personal touches.

The best way to learn a craft, and which crafts might be best suited to your lifestyle and pocketbook, is to observe a master craftsman at work, ask questions and maybe try yourself—before investing in supplies and lessons. At Six Flags Magic Mountain family amusement park in Valencia, CA, guests can do just that.

Spillikin Corners is the park's year-round crafts village where artisans representing more than a dozen different crafts ply their trades in full view, sometimes with guest participation.

Candles, sand paintings, dolls, doll wardrobes, weaving, wood carving, brooms and candy are a few of the time-honored folk arts and crafts which guests at the beautiful mountain playland 25 miles north of Hollywood can observe and literally have a hand in, while also making their own unique souvenirs to take home.

Spillikin Corners artisans take pride and pleasure in sharing information, ideas and practical pointers with guests. In fact, a magnanimous attitude toward sharing creative tips and ideas is common among craftspeople and artists.

See Local Merchants

If it is impossible to visit Magic Mountain in California, aspiring weavers, wood carvers, confectioners and potters should seek out craft shows featuring live demonstrations. Or chat at length with employees in nearby crafts and art supply stores, since most employees of such establishments are involved with creative pursuits and have a broad view of various craft costs and bare necessities needed to make a start.

The first step you take today toward rediscovering the crafts of yesterday may put you way ahead at gift-giving time—and the rest of the year, too.

CHOCOLATE SWEETENS THE DAY

Chocolate Fleck Pudding Cake is special pudding cake, with flecks of chocolate in every slice. With the help of Baker's unsweetened chocolate, instant pudding and pie filling and cake mix, it's easy to mix in one bowl. Bake ahead and freeze; defrost the day you serve.

CHOCOLATE FLECK PUDDING CAKE

- 1 package (2-layer size) yellow cake mix*
- 1 package (4-serving size) vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup water*
- 1/4 cup oil
- 1 or 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, coarsely grated

*Or use pudding-included cake mix and 3/4 cup water.

Combine cake mix, pudding mix, eggs, water and oil in large mixer bowl. Blend; then beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 4 minutes. Stir in chocolate. Pour into greased and floured 10-inch tube pan. Bake at 350° for 55 to 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean and cake begins to pull away from sides of pan. Do not underbake. Cool in pan 15 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Frost and garnish with slivered almonds, if desired.

Note: For decorative effect, spread half the frosting evenly over top and sides of cake. Pipe remaining frosting through pastry bag with star tip.

In high altitude areas, use large eggs, add 1/2 cup all-purpose flour and increase water to 1-1/3 cups; bake at 375° for 45 to 55 minutes. (With pudding-included cake mix, use 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons water.)

Hungarian Chocolate Frosting. Melt 5 squares unsweetened chocolate in saucepan over very low heat; pour into mixer bowl. Add 3 cups unsifted confectioners sugar and 1/3 cup hot water all at once and blend well. Add 2 slightly beaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Then add 1/2 cup butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. (If frosting is soft, place bowl in larger bowl of cold water and stir until of spreading consistency.)

ESCAPING INJURY when the car which he was driving on Greenwood street slid across Oakland Park road and went over an embankment was Grant Penning, 17, of Thief River Falls. The Penning vehicle was traveling east on Greenwood and skidded on ice at the stop sign protecting Oakland Park road, sliding across the roadway and through a retaining cable into the deep ditch. The accident happened approximately 11:30 p.m. Friday.

For Murder Trial . . .

Jury Selection Continues Here

Selection of jurors continues today in Pennington county district court in preparation for the trial of Paul Walter Boman on a charge of murder in the first degree. With 10 jurors seated at the time court recessed Friday afternoon, it is expected the selection process will be completed today and the trial will start Tuesday.

Boman is charged with murder in the death of Duane Morben on June 11 at Morben's mobile home at Northwestern Trailer court in Thief River Falls. He was indicted by a Pennington county grand jury on June 15.

Jury selection for the case has been a time-consuming process. Although 45 names had been drawn of jurors for the fall court term, 10 had been either excused or deferred by the clerk of court for various reasons, leaving a list of 35 jurors available.

As a result of dismissals requested by either the prosecution or defense, the list of 35 available jurors was exhausted on Friday afternoon with only 10 of the necessary 12 members seated. The selection process had begun Tuesday morning.

A list of 10 additional prospective jurors was drawn from the county court jury list and selection of the last two jurors was to be attempted from that list today.

Jurors seated through Friday included Mable Smith, 58, Thief River Falls, laundry worker; Mrs. Esther Collins, 42, Thief River Falls, assembly worker; Clayton Molstad, 54, Thief River Falls, maintenance worker; Donald E. Grochow, 47, Thief River Falls, dairy plant worker; William Mehrkens Jr., 40, Thief River Falls, printer; Marion Prichard, 52, Thief River Falls, bookkeeper; Rosalind Westlin, 29, carrier and agency representative; Leola Cullen, 66, Goodridge, housewife; Dennis Gilbertson, 25, Thief River Falls, barber; and Ruth Klosterman, 55, Thief River Falls, teacher.

Drawn from the county court jury list for potential selection today are Jerry Jensen, Olga Melvie, Carole Johnson, Margaret Lian, Susan Blodgett, Richard Sjoberg, Ardis Olson and Leonard Olson, all of Thief River Falls; Marlys Miller of rural Goodridge and Richard Rustan of rural Oklee.

Arctic May Buy Larson Boat Company

At a board meeting to be held in December, directors of Arctic Enterprises of Thief River Falls are expected to make a decision regarding the acquisition of Larson Industries, Inc., of Little Falls, a fiberglass boat manufacturer.

Federal Financial corporation, which owns 07 per cent of the Larson company, is negotiating with Arctic for the sale of its 13,066,437 common shares of Larson Industries stock at approximately two cents per share or $260,000.

Federal Financial corporation is a subsidiary of Jacobs Industries, Inc., a Minneapolis holding company headed by Irwin Jacobs, chairman of Arctic's board of directors and holder of 35 per cent of Arctic's common stock.

The proposal also provides that Arctic pay FFC, over a period of years, up to 25 per cent of the redemption value of the Larson preferred stock it owns, and that a loan from FFC to Larson be renegotiated with Arctic.

Arctic's board had discussed the proposal at its November meeting.

Snowmobile Safety Class Starts Dec. 17

Snowmobile safety course for youngsters in the 12 to 18 year age group will be conducted December 17, 18 and 19 from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Franklin middle school cafeteria.

Sponsored by the Thief River Falls police department, the course will be instructed by police officers Duane Holland and James Hulteen. The course is required of youngsters in the 12-18 age group who wish to operate snowmobiles on public property.

There is a $2 fee for the course which covers all expenses, including the certificate for those who successfully compete the course. Boys and girls should bring the $2 fee plus a self-addressed and stamped No. 10 (business size) envelope with them to the first session.

Utilities Dep't. Initiates Load Control Effort

City of Thief River Falls is introducing a load management system for electric heat and hot water customers only, that is designed to save thousands of dollars in future rate increases, according to John T. Anderson, superintendent of utilities.

Purpose of the load management system control device is to cycle electric heat off during peak electrical demand periods which occur on extremely cold winter days when most heaters are in operation, Anderson said.

"If customers were to look back over their winter month electricity bill, they would recognize that their electric heat and water are a significant part of that winter peak demand. By controlling electric heating and water heater loads, peak demand costs would be significantly reduced," he said.

To reduce peak demand, the city has turned to the use of load control devices that attach directly to the customer's electric service to control the electric heat and water supply. During the peak energy demand periods, an over-the-wire signal from the city computer activates the load control device. When activated, the load control device cycles or turns off the electric heat and water heater to insure that these appliances are not operating at the peak time. This serves to effectively reduce peak energy demand.

"Presently there are two basic types of utility companies," Anderson explained. "One is the type that generates its own power, such as Minnkota power cooperative. The other is a utility that purchases power from the generating companies. The city of Thief River Falls purchases most of its peak power.

"By reducing peak electrical demand, the city can reduce the rate it pays when purchasing electricity from other power generating companies. This cost-saving can then be passed along to customers in the form of lower rate increases in the years to come and in immediate rate incentives for those being controlled," he said.

"Many of our electric customers don't realize that their city pays an electric bill just as they do," Anderson said. "More than one-third of our annual cost for wholesale electricity is based on the momentary peak amount of electricity that is used during a few days in the winter. This is what the engineers call 'peak demand'. And, of course, we must factor this "Peak demand" cost into the rates that we charge for electricity," he added.

Thief River Falls rates are already lower than in many surrounding areas. This program is expected to help to continue providing electric service at reasonable rates or with lower rate increases in the years to come.

Load control devices will be provided to residential customers free of charge and will be installed at their convenience as much as possible. Questions regarding this program can be answered by calling the utilities department at 681-5816.

"Remember, this applies only to customers using electricity as a primary source of heat," Anderson concluded.

ICCC Denies Office Use By Planned Parenthood

Upon action taken by the board of directors of Inter-County community council at Oklee, space in the council's office complex at Oklee has been denied to North Central Planned Parenthood.

The Planned Parenthood office at Thief River Falls had arranged for an office at Oklee to be served for a couple of hours once or twice a month. The office was established, according to Rosemary Given-Smith of Bemidji, director of the North Central organization, because of the demand for services from the general Oklee area.

"We had felt it would be better all around for someone from our office to go there a couple of times a month than for all those people to have to drive to Thief River Falls," Mrs. Given-Smith said. "Our request for space from Roy Jorgenson, director of the Inter-County office, was accepted by him."

Objections to use of the ICCC space were raised in the community, however, and public meetings were held at Oklee and Fosston. Speaking at these meetings was Kris Kremer of Thief River Falls, an active member of Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL), who has been studying Planned Parenthood program and materials.

Petitions were prepared asking the ICCC board to discontinue use of its offices for Planned Parenthood activities. The board acted at its meeting November 28 to deny use of its offices.

Mrs. Given-Smith had stated in her initial letter of request to Jorgenson that North Central Planned Parenthood is primarily funded by Title V through the department of health, education and welfare (HEW) and serves the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau.

Primary focus of the program is community education and direct medical service, she said. Upon request of any civic, church, school or informal group, speakers are available to provide programs in understanding human development, contraception, veneral disease, menopausal problems, family life and

Frank Grisanti Killed By Car Near Warren

Frank Martin Grisanti, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ames Grinsanti of Thief River Falls, was killed about 5:15 p.m. Saturday when struck by a car while walking on highway 1 about one and one-half miles east of Warren.

According to the Minnesota state patrol which is continuing investigation of the accident, Grinsanti was walking east along the highway when struck by a car driven east by Miles Knutson, 59, of rural Warren. The youth was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, the state patrol said.

Funeral services for Frank Grinsanti will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church with Rev. James Bernauer officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

The body will repose at the Belmont Funeral home this evening (Monday). There will be no reviewal at the church.

Bids On City Traffic Lights Are Accepted

Bids for traffic lights to be installed in Thief River Falls next summer were accepted by the Minnesota department of transportation at a bid opening held recently in St. Paul.

Edling Electric company of Moorhead was awarded the contract in the amount of $205,274 with the work to begin May 12, 1980, and be completed in 75 working days.

Traffic signals and signs are to be installed on highway 1 at intersections with highway 32 and highway 59; on highway 32 at intersections with First street and Second street, on highway 59 at intersections with LaBree Avenue and Atlantic avenue and on First street at intersections with LaBree, Horace and Pennington avenues.

Franklin Choir Concert Tues.

Franklin middle school Christmas choral concert will be presented Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Franklin gym. Directors for the evening program are John Hustad and Marcia M. Knuttila.

Music selections and performers include the following groups.

Seventh grade choir will sing "Sound the Trumpet," written by Henry Purcell and arranged by Hal H. Hopson. Selection will be accompanied by Nora Hushagen, piano, and Andrea Ault and Carla Anderson, trumpets. "Sing a Song of Merry Christmas," written by Wolfgang A. Mozart and arranged by Walter Ehret, will be accompanied by Val Christensen, Georgia Howard, Teri Klopp, Sheila LeTourneau, Paul Cuppett, Bubs Dargon, and Scott Fowler, all members of the brass ensemble. "Heaven and Earth, Rejoice and Sing!" arranged by Linde Steen Spevacek, will be accompanied by brass ensemble members Kristy Finney, Tami Eckstein, Jim Hustad, Steve Solheim, Jeff Wilkens, Paul Cuppett, and Val Christensen on piano.

Eighth grade chorus, fifth hour, will present "Coventry Carol," arranged by Leonard Stone, with a solo by Dennis Langevin and Corie Larson on piano. "Little Christopher," arranged by Don McAfee, will include brass ensemble members Jennifer Glass, Mona Pederson, Kristie Raymond, Jodi Anderson, Cindi Solem, Doug Amiot, Tim Mickelson, Paul Magner, Lee Genereaux and Dennis

Soil Survey Nearing Completion In Pennington

Onset of winter weather has once again forced the Pennington county soil survey crew members to call a halt to most of their field work in the county. Field work will continue through December, however, in the eastern bog areas of the county.

Soil scientists in the party had a highly productive field season this year, according to a report prepared by staff member Michael D. Oja. Soil mapping is now complete in Reiner, Highlanding, Star and part of Goodridge townships. Approximately 15 per cent of the county is not mapped. Soil mapping is scheduled for completion by August of 1980, with publication of the soil survey scheduled in 1983.

Dan Hanson joined the soil survey party May 16, 1979. Hanson graduated from the University of Minnesota in June of 1978 with a double major in forestry and soil science. He previously worked for the DNR as a crew leader for the young adult conservation corp (YACC) program. Prior to his employment with DNR, he worked for Boise Cascade company and was involved with its forest inventory program. Dan is a native of Owatonna and is married.

Dan's addition brings the soil survey staff to four people. Other members of the party are Rod Heschke (party leader), Jim Schulzetenberg and Oja.

Pennington county soil survey is a cooperative effort of the USDA soil conservation service, University of Minnesota agricultural experiment station, and Pennington county. The Pennington soil survey is one of 19 soil surveys currently in progress throughout the state. Kittson and Norman counties have published soil surveys available to the public. Beltrami county has just begun a soil survey and Lake of the Woods county is scheduled to begin mapping in 1983. Party members Oja and Hanson will work part-time this winter in the vast bog areas of northwest Beltrami county.

At present the party is mapping about 50 different soil types in Pennington county. The party has also discovered 14 new soil types in the county. According to Heschke, during the winter a large part of the party's time will be spent analyzing laboratory data on many of the established soils and all of the new soils.

Samples of the soils collected during the field season are sent to the soils laboratory at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul. The data, when received, forms the basis for the engineering and other interpretive tables in the published report. The soil scientists, using this information, rate each soil according to the specific uses, such as suitability for basements, septic tank absorption fields, road fill, sewage lagoons and other uses.

Forseeable uses for the soil survey report would be to help farmers more accurately predict yields, especially over a long period of time or on land they have not previously farmed. Knowledge of the soil types and textures can help them "fine-tune" their fertilizer and pesticide application, helping to eliminate costly over use. The soil maps can also locate problem areas where drainage erosion control or SOILS MAPPING in Pennington county advanced again during 1979 with only about 15 per cent of the county remaining to be mapped, according to crew members of the Pennington county soil survey team. Much of the effort for 1979 was concentrated in Reiner, Highlanding, Star and parts of Goodridge townships, according to crew member Michael D. Oja. Soil samples taken by the crew during the summer months are sent to the soils laboratory at the University of Minnesota for analysis. The party has discovered 14 new soil types in the county.

Olson and Beich Vows Exchanged at Wannaska

Miss Carla Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Olson of Roseau, became the bride of Steve Beich, son of Dr. and Mrs. Orion Beich of this city, at a double ring ceremony on October 6, at the Riverside Lutheran church at Wannaska.

Officiating at the ceremony were Rev. Ron Becklund and Rev. Erling Huglen. Mrs. Clayton Erickson, aunt of the bride, was organist. She played Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus" for the processional, and also accompanied Mrs. Erling Huglen as she sang "Sweet, Sweet Spirit," "My Tribute," and "The Lord's Prayer." The guests participated in the service by singing, "How Great Thou Art," and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Lisa Olson and Jeff Huerd distributed the wedding programs.

Candelabra with peach tapers formed the chancel setting. On the altar were peach begonia blooms, corresponding with the potted plants on the organ and piano.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white qiana, styled with an empire waistline and a chapel-length train. Lace edged the Queen Anne neckline and matching lace motifs, embroidered with pearls, were appliqued on the bodice and long, sheer sleeves. Her lace profile headpiece, etched with seed pearls, held her chapel-length veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of peach roses, white carnations, ivy and babies' breath.

Diane Severson of Roseau, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathy Olson, a cousin of the bride, and June Hanson, a friend. Lisa Olson, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Their floor-length gowns of peach floral print were styled with flared skirts and gathered bodices featuring flared collars and long, full sleeves. In their hair, they wore a cluster of peach silk flowers. They carried bouquets of matching silk flowers, accented with white carnations.

Wearing similar attire was the flower girl, Amy Anderson of Minneapolis, a niece of the groom. The rings were carried by Joshua Beich, son of the groom. Like his father, he wore a white toxedo with a peach ruffled shirt and a peach colored boutonniere.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Terry Beich of this city. Groomsmen were Bill Hempel, Minneapolis, and Dave Lee, Thief River Falls, friends of the groom. The ushers were Terry Beich, brother of the groom, and Kim Erickson, Badger, a cousin of the bride. They wore brown tuxedos with peach ruffled shirts and peach carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride was attired in an ivory colored floor-length gown topped by a green velvet vest. The mother of the groom wore a teal green street-length dress. Their identical corsages were of white carnations and peach silk roses.

Special guests at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Albin Olson and Mr. and Mrs. George Erickson, grandparents of the bride, and Robin Vicker, the bride's personal attendant.

A reception followed at the Wannaska school lunch room. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brinkman, godparents of the bride. Joni Olson, cousin of the bride, registered the guests as Debbie Stotts and Jean Karlstad, friends of the bride, served the punch.

The serving table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with peach roese buds and topped with a Holly Hobbie bride and groom ornament. The cake, baked and decorated by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. George Erickson, was cut and served by Mrs. Barbara Anderson, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Jeanne Huerd, a friend of the bride. Mrs. Judi Olson, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. RoseMarie Olson, aunt of the bride, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Shaun, Teri and Tammy Olson. Cheryl Olson presided at the gift table and Tim Olson and Brian and Eden Berg served as gift bearers. All are cousins of the bride.

The couple is now at home at the Countryside trailer court in Thief River Falls. The bride is a graduate of Roseau high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI, department of cosmetology. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the Mankato State University. He is a representative for Phillip Morris company. Photo by Don Miller of the Oak Leaf Studio, Roseau.

After they open the toys and ties and wallets and watches, there's one more gift to go. It's a U.S. Savings Bond — Nestled at the bottom of the Christmas stocking. It's probably the easiest gift you can give. Just stop at the bank and pick it up. But it's one of the nicest presents anyone could hope for. So fill a stocking this year and a wallet in the years to come.

WCTU Traces Present Heritage To The Pilgrims

"Channels of Christian Strength, inherited from the Pilgrims," was the theme studied at the recent meeting of the Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Woman's Christian Temperance union held at Our Saviour's Lutheran church.

The meeting began with the women joining in singing the "WCTU Fighting Song." Mrs. Earle Ripley was in charge of the devotional meditation, reading Psalm 71:16-17. She stressed "I will go in the strength of the Lord God." She said that the strength and faith of the Pilgrims is an abiding inheritance and that it is fitting on Thanksgiving day, so firmly associated in tradition with the memory of the pilgrims, that we pause, give thanks, and remember:

(1) The compact made at sea aboard the Mayflower; the Pilgrims didn't land on these shores as a crowd of individuals, but as an organized society affirming "In the name of God, Amen."

(2) The men and women who settled here amid incredible hardships; they were determined to create a new life with freedom to worship and to live unimpeded from tyranny of church and state.

(3) With thanksgiving, the strength and courage which guided them through the first terrifying, disastrous winter; a strength which came from God in whom they trusted.

(4) The determination of the Pilgrims that the church and school should have the support of the community in fitting men, women, boys and girls for living, both in time and in eternity.

(5) The influence and spirit of the Pilgrims which shaped the destiny of this land and provided the groundwork in which this democracy grew.

(6) That this heritage, an inheritance from the Pilgrims, is ours. Since it is our possession, we should guard it, preserve it, and pass it on to the next generation, always thankful that it is a privilege to live "in a land, under God."

Following the devotional meditation, the effects of using marijuana were discussed. Articles read by Valborg Hanson and Geneva Overum were "Latest research results on marijuana," "Slow Poison," and "Marijuana, why all the fuss." Hildur Lian and Ruth Haugan presented "Your Letter to Congress."

The meeting concluded with the completion of the 1979-80 program calendars and singing of the "Happy Birthday" song for Geneva Overum.

Lunch was served by Agnes Longren.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I was disabled as a result of service during the Vietnam conflict and convalescence required a number of years. Now I understand I am ineligible for full educational entitlement under the GI Bill because of the 10-year delimiting date. Is this true?

A—No. If your disabilities were severe enough to prevent you from attending school during the 10 years following your discharge, you may be granted an extension of your delimiting date. Contact your nearest Veterans Administration regional office for assistance.

Q—My husband was receiving compensation for total disability for 10 years before he died of a non-service-connected disability. I married him 20 months before he died and we had one child. Can I receive Veterans Administration compensation?

A—A wife of less than two years is not eligible for Dependency and Indemnity Compensation, but the child is. The veteran's widow can, however, file for non-service-connected pension.

$1,002 Given By Women's Club To NCC

$1,002.64 was recently presented to Ken Wiebolt, dean of students at Northland community college, by the Federated women's club of Thief River Falls. Sum of money represents the balance of the Dr. Mayer Oakes student revolving loan fund which began in 1955.

Dr. Mayer Oakes, who had his degree in education, taught in Lincoln high school many years. When he died, his family received many memorials and felt it would be a fitting tribute to perpetuate his interests and concern for young people and their educational needs. The family then formed the loan fund to be known as the Dr. Mayer Oakes student loan fund.

The $1,002.64 received from the fund and donated to the college doubles the amount available for short term loans at the college at this time, according to Wiebolt. Short term loans are given to students based on need, Wiebolt said, and there is no interest charged. A maximum of $100 may be borrowed by a student at one time, with repayment required in 30 days.

"This is a substantial amount donated by the club to the college," Wiebolt said.

Former TRF Teacher Gives Piano Concert

Gloria Swanson, former teacher in the Thief River Falls elementary schools, recently presented a piano concert, "With Thanksgiving and Praise," at Bemidji.

Many of the arrangements of traditional and contemporary sacred musical compositions she played were arranged or composed herself. Included in the selections was "My Tribute," which was dedicated to Dr. and Mr. Arnold Berg of Thief River Falls.

She presently resides in Thief River Falls, where she is involved in many community service projects, including teaching elderly how to play the piano.

While inflation may be up around ten per cent this year, farmland values are expected to rise faster, at a rate of about 14 per cent, say U.S. department of Agriculture economists.

Board of director of Inter-County community council, Inc. will hold its monthly executive meeting at Sullivan's in Red Lake Falls on December 19 at 6:30 p.m. All board members are urged to attend.

PRIVATE DAVID O. Kjellberg is temporarily employed in the Thief River Falls Army recruiting station. Kjellberg, a 1979 Fosston high school graduate, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald L. Kjellberg of Fosston. Kjellberg joined the army last July for a three-year tour. Since that time he has completed basic training and motor transport operator's school at Fort Leonard Wood, MO. His next duty assignment will be at Fort Ord, CA working in the field of his choice.

Senior Meeting Set Tomorrow

Thief River Falls senior citizen's coordinating council will have its regular monthly meeting Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the public library. Michael Moore, director of the area agency on aging of Crookston, will be present to lead a discussion concerning needs of the elderly in this region and what services are being provided for them. Anyone interested may attend the meeting.

County Fair Annual Meet Set Friday

Five directors and a slate of officers will be elected when the Pennington county fair association holds its annual meeting Friday at 8 p.m. at the Pennington county courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

Directors whose terms expire this year include Bernard Myers, District 1; Vernon Lee, District 2, Duane Olson, District 3; Fred Dallmann, District 4; and Oliver (Skip) Swanson, District 5. Directors will be elected for three-year terms.

Present officers of the association include Dan Helle, president; LaVerne Hamre, vice president; Vernon Lee, secretary; and Richard Anderson, treasurer. Officers of the association are elected each year.

Also to be elected at the annual meeting will be three delegates to the annual meeting of the Minnesota association of county fairs to be held January 20-22 in Minneapolis. It is at the state meeting that local delegates contract for entertainment attractions for the 1980 fair.

During the annual meeting of the county association Friday, report will be given on the operation of the 1979 Pennington county fair and the current financial standing of the association. Questions will be answered and suggestions received for operation of the 1980 event. All members of the association are encouraged to participate.

Watch out for cholesterol this new year! Foods which claim the biggest chunk of your grocery dollar are usually those that are highest in cholesterol and saturated fat. These same foods promote high blood cholesterol levels. Most scientists agree that such high levels further develop heart and blood vessel diseases. Buying low fat dairy products, polyunsaturated margarines and vegetable oils for your family cooking will keep that cholesterol level down.

Soil Survey Advances In Pennington

other specific management may be required, particularly on unfamiliar ground.

Knowing the soils can also help the farmer in buying or renting land, giving some information before making a financial commitment. The information in the report can also enable city planners to plan for future city growth, steering clear of areas which may cause problems for the new homeowners, the city, or both. An attempt can also be made to keep prime agricultural land in production and direct city expansion to less productive soils.

Food Program For Children, Women Noted

Food packages provided to women and children in a department of agriculture supplemental food program would be geared to their different health and nutritional needs under rules proposed recently.

"We want to tailor the food packages to the nutritional needs of children of different ages as well as to the special needs of women who are breastfeeding or pregnant," said assistant secretary of agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

Currently, the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC) provides only three types of food packages — one for infants, one for women and children, and one for children with special dietary needs.

Program administered by the USDA's food and nutrition service, provides food and nutrition education to 1.6 million low-income women and children up to five years old with special nutritional needs. Women participating in the program are either pregnant or breastfeeding or have recently given birth.

Under today's proposal, the program would provide seven food packages geared to the dietary needs of the different participants. In addition, the department is proposing to limit the sugar content of cereals available through the program.

Seven food packages outlined in the proposal would be geared to: Infants from birth to two-four months; infants from two-four to six months; infants from six to 12 months; children from one to five years; children from one to five years with special dietary needs; pregnant and breastfeeding women; and women who have recently given birth. Food packages include items such as iron-fortified infant formula and cereal, eggs, milk, adult cereals, cheese and juice.

Department is proposing to restrict the sugar content of cereals provided in food packages to no more than six grams of sugar for each ounce of dry cereal.

Surgeon general and the American society for clinical nutrition have recently warned of the connection between sugar consumption and tooth decay, Ms. Foreman said. Surgeon general's report calls for curbing excessive sugar intake and states that "Americans would be probably healthier, as a whole, is they consumed . . . less sugar."

In addition, under the proposal, WIC participants who do not have iron deficiencies could receive cereals providing at least 25 per cent of the U.S. recommended daily allowance (USRDA) for iron. Participants with iron deficiencies would be limited to cereals providing at least 45 per cent of the USRDA for iron.

Currently, all participants are restricted to cereals with at least 45 per cent of the USRDA. This significantly limits the number of available cereals, and surveys indicate that a substantial number of participants are not using the cereals available from this limited selection.

"The proposal on iron fortification is designed to tailor iron requirements to nutritional needs while also insuring that more cereals are actually consumed," said Ms. Foreman.

To supply more protein to pregnant and breastfeeding women and to encourage breastfeeding, dried beans and peas or peanut butter would be added to their food package under the current proposal.

Department is also requesting comments on whether vegetables or whole wheat breads should be distributed to participants in the WIC program.

Proposed changes in the food packages were published in the federal register Friday, November 30. Persons interested in commenting should write to Stanley Garnett, acting director, Supplemental Food Programs division, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Archaeologist Struggles To Save Artifacts

An important chapter in the early movement of historic Indian people into the central Minnesota-North Dakota border area is being eroded by periodic flooding along the Red river, says Moorhead state university archaeologist Mike Michlovic. And with a $2,000 start-up grant from the MSU foundation, Michlovic will begin test excavations there next summer in an attempt to save as many of the artifacts as he can.

About a half dozen prehistoric Indian sites have been identified along the Red River in Norman county, Michlovic said. Hillsboro, N.D. farmer John Beach, who's also associated with the Hillsboro Museum, has collected scores of artifacts from the sites after they've been exposed by floodwaters.

Beach's collection is at the university now, being examined by Michlovic and some of his classes.

These artifacts — arrowheads, pottery, animal bones and stone tools — are the remnants of Indian people who were moving through the Red river valley possibly as far back as A.D. 1,100. "We haven't carbon-dated any of these occupations yet," Michlovic said, "but the designs on some of these artifacts link them with Indian groups that were roaming the Midwest 400 to 900 years ago."

Some of the pottery designs, Michlovic said, seem to indicate that distant Indian groups were moving together here, possibly the early movement of Dakota Indians in this area along with other Indians from the Mississippi river valley.

Before the MSU foundation grant was awarded, Michlovic was striking out trying to fund an excavation of the sites, already agreed to by property owners along the river. The problem, he says, is that no federal or state money is available to dig up archaeological sites that aren't threatened by government-funded projects, like road or bridge construction.

"These sites are being swept away by acts of nature and don't fall under the usual federal protection laws," Michlovic said. "But once they're lost, no matter how, they're lost forever."

With the funding he already has, and with possibly more coming in, Michlovic will take a crew of students out to Norman county next summer, starting some test excavations to determine how historically significant the sites are. They expect to spend about a month in the field sifting through and examining the Indian relics.

Decline Noted In Income To Hog Farmers

Estimated marketing receipts to pork producers through October have fallen nearly $20 million below the 1978 level although slaughter marketing volume was higher by almost 70 million pounds. Decline in gross income to hog farmers is due to depressed market prices, reports agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

Minnesota farmers received an average of 42.4 cents a pound, live weight, for slaughter hogs during the first ten months of 1979. That was down almost a nickel from the 47.3 cents average from the same period last year, and makes pork the consumer bargain.

National commercial livestock slaughter estimates continue to show that Minnesota is the third leading pork supplying state and the eighth ranked state in total red meat output. This year's total red meat production for Minnesota through October is put at over 1.34 billion pounds, a 5 per cent drop from 1978.

Minnesota supplied an estimated 6.1 per cent of national pork products. This state's contribution was 4,527,300 hogs grossing nearly 539,000 tons and representing an estimated farm value of $456.9 million.

During October alone, Minnesota's commercial livestock slaughter market value to farmers was $95.8 million. That was lower by $16.2 million or 14.5 per cent below the farm value of slaughter livestock in October 1978.

Beef cattle continue to be the leading source of gross income for Minnesota red meat producers. January through October Minnesota commercial slaughter of 877,500 cattle grossed nearly 961 million pounds with a farm value of $572.4 million or an average of 59.6 cents per pound live weight. That value was up by $66.7 million although the volume was down from last year by over 8 per cent, because the average beef cattle market value last year was only 42.8 cents per pound.

Early-Money Lessons Teach Saving Methods

A friend — who still remembers an old gray house on a country road outside a small midwestern town at Christmastime — says his most pleasant memory is his Dad piling him into the cab of a pickup truck along with his sister and two brothers.

"We all had money saved for Christmas shopping in town," he recalls, with pride.

Saving for shopping trips, and stashing away Christmas money can teach valuable, life-long lessons.

But there are some simple precautions wise parents should observe.

The limits of a regular allowance teach most kids how to make spending choices. They soon learn to put some cash away for another day.

It's not normal for preschoolers to save every Christmas nickel. So don't encourage saving for saving's sake. Rather, suggest some sensible saving goal — like five dollars a month for a new bike.

And don't expect a nine or 10 year-old to save for college tuition. That's too remote to be taken seriously. Only an older child could consider such a goal.

Preschoolers need a little unlocking bank — so they can count their money. Sure, they may spend it all. But them must learn to handle money before they can handle its temptations.

ICCC Board Denies Use Of Office Space

parenting responsibilities and the churches' responsibilities in establishing sexual values.

She said physical exams are done by local physicians on each patient annually, including pelvic exam, laboratory tests, breast examination, blood pressure, height and weight. If requested or deemed necessary by the physician, pregnancy or venereal disease testing is done.

North Central Planned Parenthood upholds HEW guidelines that no abortions, abortion counseling or abortion referrals will be done, Mrs. Given-Smith added. Not all Planned Parenthood offices outside the region are government funded, and those which are not do not have to follow the HEW guidelines.

The main purpose of locating an office at Oklee, she said, "is no more than to provide an additional service to those people who choose to use the family planning service available in neighboring communities."

Objection to the office as presented at the public meetings in Fosston and Oklee centered on Planned Parenthood allegedly providing contraceptives to teenagers without parental consent or knowledge. It was cited that literature given teenagers is "crude and sexually explicit" and that funds for abortions and other aids in getting an abortion are available.

Mrs. Given-Smith told the Times following the ICCC board's decision that there would be no attempt to locate a Planned Parenthood office elsewhere in the Oklee area at this time. She also denied that the organization provides materials in this area which would be unacceptable to the majority of people here, or that it acts in violation of HEW guidelines on abortion or abortion referrals.

Mrs. Carl Cleven Dies Friday At Valley Home

Mrs. Carl (Ruth) Cleven, 66, of Thief River Falls and formerly of the Grygla community, died Friday morning at Valley Home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Carl Cleven will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m., at Our Savior's Lutheran church with Rev. Eugene Engerlein officiating. Mrs. Gary Ericksen will be the organist and Ron Hanson, the soloist. Interment will be in the Bethesda cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Sam Bratteli, John Smeby, Albert Smeby, Carlyle Askeland, Barnel Benson and Melvin Wilkens.

The body is reposing at the Green Funeral home and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Mrs. Cleven, the former Ruth Miller, was born April 1, 1913 in McVille, N.D., to Emil and Anne Knutson Miller. She attended school and grew to womanhood in the McVille area. On Jan. 1, 1943, she was married there to Carl Cleven. The couple moved to Grygla, where they farmed in Lee township, Beltrami county. Prior to retirement, Mrs. Cleven also worked for several years at Land O' Lakes. In 1976, the Clevens moved to Thief River Falls and have since resided at Valley Home.

Surviving are her husband, a son, Vern Cleven, Thief River Falls; two grandchildren, four sisters: Ethel Miller, Minneapolis; Marlys Miller, Aneta, N.D., Alice Goodell, Fargo, N.D., and Mrs. Melvin Mabel; Cleven, Mayville, N.D.; and three brothers: Howard Miller, Aneta, N.D.; Archie, Garland, Tex.; and Edwin, Fargo, N.D.

She was preceded in death by her parents.

Carl Lindstrom Services Held At Goodridge

Funeral services for Carl F. Lindstrom, 96, of Goodridge were held Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Faith Lutheran church at Goodridge. Lindstrom died Monday, December 3, at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Gene Broughton officiated at the services. Mrs. Alice Skreland was the organist and Mrs. Arnold Hammer, the soloist. Interment was in the Highlanding cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Kore Hanson, Allen Jones, Irvin Iverson, Oliver McEnelly, Wilfred Stephenson and John Tanem.

Carl F. Lindstrom, a son of the late John and Julia Lindstrom, was born Oct. 4, 1883 in Wright township, Marshall county, near Argyle. He attended elementary school in Florian and worked during the summer months on large farms along the Red River. In 1905, he came to this area and homesteaded where Goodridge is now located. He farmed in that community and also operated a garage at Goodridge for many years. He was active in the affairs of the community, served as mayor of Goodridge and was a member of the Goodridge school board.

On July 24, 1918, he was united in marriage to Ella Olson at Goodridge. Two children: Lucille and Richard, were born to this union. Both preceded him in death. After the death of his wife in 1950, Lindstrom continued to live at his home until 1973 when he made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Vezina. Since 1976, he had been a resident at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

He is survived by one granddaughter, Mrs. Michael (Mary) Flannery of Los Angeles, Calif.; who made her home with the Lindstroms from 1943-1954. Also surviving are four great-grandchildren, two nieces and one nephew.

In addition to his wife, son, daughter and parents, he was preceded in death by two brothers and two sisters.

Clarence Eide Dies Sat. At Grand Rapids

Clarence Eide, 72, of Grand Rapids and formerly of the Thief River Falls community, died unexpectedly on Saturday at Grand Rapids.

Funeral services for Clarence Eide will be held Friday at 1 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel in this city. Rev. Richard Larson, pastor at Zion Lutheran church, will officiate. Interment will be in the Bethlehem cemetery in New Solum township, Marshall county.

A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the Times.

Leslie Walker Rites Held At Oklee Church

Funeral services for Leslie Vernon Walker, 54 of Fargo, N.D., and formerly of Oklee, were held Thursday at 11 a.m., at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church at Oklee. Walker died Monday, December 3, at the Veterans hospital in Fargo, where he had been admitted 18 days previously.

Celebrant at the Mass of the Resurrection was Rev. Keough Patnode. Interment was in the St. Vincent dePaul Catholic church at Plummer. The Petterson Funeral home, Oklee, was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were nephews: William Malwitz, Jr., and John, Brian, Gregory, Larry and Martin P. Walker.

Leslie Vernon Walker, a son of the late James and Mary Walker, was born July 29, 1925 at Oklee. He attended school at Oklee and lived there until entering the U.S. Navy during World War II. Following his discharge, he returned to Oklee and was employed there by the Red Lake County Highway Department as a truck driver until stricken with polio at the age of 22.

He was married July 27, 1957 at the St. Vincent dePaul parsonage at Plummer to Martha Axelson, a polio victim, whom he met at the Sister Kenny Institute. Both were confined to wheel chairs at the time of their marriage. Following their marriage, they lived for a number of years at Warm Springs, Ga. After his wife's death on Nov. 18, 1964, he returned to Oklee and lived there for a year before moving to Fargo, N.D.

He was a member of the Oklee American Legion post.

He is survived by four brothers: Martin, George and Rex Walker, all of Oklee; and Patrick of Pengilly; and one sister, Mrs. William (Dolly) Malwitz, Red Lake Falls.

In addition to his wife and parents, he was preceded in death by three brothers, including Bert Walker, who died September 11 of this year.

Joe Hegrenes Rites Held In Twin Valley

Joe T. Hegrenes, 74, of Twin Valley, and formerly of Silverton township, Pennington county, died Saturday morning, December 1, at the Ada hospital. Death was caused by an apparent heart attack.

Funeral services for Joe Hegrenes were held Wednesday at 2 p.m., at the Zion Lutheran church in Twin Valley. Rev. Paul G. Mathre officiated. Mrs. Roy Lerud was the organist and Mrs. Charles Olson and Mrs. Alice Setterholm, the vocalists. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Erlien Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Roy Forsell, Guy Olson, Fred Skaurud, Mervyn Larson, Edwin Aaby and Don Williams.

Joseph Theodore Hegrenes was born July 22, 1905 in Silverton township, Pennington county, to John and Marit Hegrenes. He was baptized and confirmed at Silverton Lutheran church and received his elementary education in the rural school in that area.

On March 12, 1938, he was married to Annie Walseth at the parsonage at Mavie. The couple lived at Borup for four years before moving to a farm northwest of Twin Valley. There they lived and farmed for 26 years. In 1968, they retired and moved into Twin Valley. Hegrenes was engaged in carpentry work during his latter years.

He was a member of Zion Lutheran church and served on the board of trustees; and for one year, was manager of the Co-op Credit Union.

Surviving are his wife, three daughters: Mrs. Kenneth (Mildred) Stenehjem and Mrs. Barbara Strand, both of Yakima, Wash.; and Mrs. Kaye Herrold of Santa Rosa, Calif.; and six grandchildren.

Also surviving and attending the services were six sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Carl (Selma) Westby, Pelican Rapids; Mrs. Knute (Gerda) Knutson, Goodridge; Mrs. Einer (Christine) Barstad and Mrs. Norton (Olga) Nelson, both of Thief River Falls; Mrs. Robert (Hazel) Oden and Mrs. Doris Senstad of Minneapolis; Casper Hegrenes, Pacific, Wash., and Bennie of Ada.

One aunt, Berit Bergli, Norway, and several nieces, nephews and cousins survive.

He was preceded in death by his parents, two sisters and a brother.

TRF, Goodridge FFA Contribute To Grain Drive

If the ears of corn collected from Minnesota's farmers by the state's Future Farmers of America (FFA) were laid end to end, the row would stretch from Minneapolis to the Great Wall of China, states Jim Martin of Courage center in Golden Valley.

For 26 years the FFAers have been asking local farmers for donations of corn, selling it and giving the funds to Camp Courage and Courage North, camps for children and adults with physical disabilities. This year the cumulative total soared over the $1 million mark. Thief River Falls chapter contributed $375 to the total and the Goodridge chapter donated $227.

"I don't know of another school youth service project in the world that has endured for so long and given so much to one service organization," said Waino Kortesmaki, executive secretary of Minnesota's FFA for 30 years until his 1977 retirement. "The boys who gathered corn for Camp Courage years ago have grown up, married and some are seeing their sons and daughters working on the same project this fall," he said.

The corn drive project has helped more than 6,500 people with disabilities attend the two camps operated by Courage center, a rehabilitation complex headquartered in Minneapolis. The monies have also supported Courage center's camping program by building an activities - dining hall, a speech therapy building, a greenhouse-horticulture building, plus sponsoring a ham radio training school and travel camp.

The FFA is a national organization of more than a half million vocational agriculture and agribusiness students from ages 14 to 21, in 50 states and Puerto Rico. The organization trains young men and women for leadership, with many going on to notable careers. President Jimmy Carter was an FFA member in his youth in Plains, Georgia, where he was named chapter secretary.

"Corn drives for Camp Courage" are one of the Minnesota FFA's "living to serve" projects designed to encourage useful citizenship among the organization's predominantly rural youth members. The project began in 1953 in the small farming community of Freeborn, population 300. The Freeborn agriculture students walked into local farmers' fields to glean wasting corn downed by unusually high winds that fall. They sold it for $90.

The project caught the imagination of other chapters, growing to involve more than 9,000 Minnesota FFAers who collected over $135,000 last year for people with physical disabilities.

"Since most farmers know someone in their area who has gone to Camp Courage," said Jerry Speir, executive secretary of Minnesota's FFA, "grain drives have become a tradition."

The drives' success lies in their strong organization and community involvement. Students publicize the day of the drive through local media, and by posting signs in farmer-patronized businesses. Then they divide the school district into zones and draw up lists of farmers from whom they will solicit donations of grain. On the day of the drive, students head out to farms in empty pick-up trucks borrowed from their parents, often with gas donated. They sell the grain they collect to the local grain elevator manager, who sometimes pays above market value.

Students also solicit cash donations from local agribusinessmen and townspeople. In areas where corn is not the major commodity, they collect other grains, scrap metals, pine cones or stage other projects.

"I think kids are idealists at heart," said Lee Asche, the originator of the first corn drive as Freeborn's FFA advisor 26 years ago. "In a day when the world seems to be falling apart in many places, I believe there are kids who respond to the needs of their fellow man."

Proof Needed Of Inability To Pay Fuel Bill

Otter Tail power company has announced a cold weather policy of voluntarily refraining from terminating the electric service affecting the primary heat source of any residential customer who claims inability to pay for the service.

But, according to Robert M. Bigwood, president of the Fergus Falls-based electric company, the customer claiming an inability to pay must personally make his situation known at his nearest Otter Tail division office or to an Otter Tail service representative. Otter Tail employee thus involved will then work with and help the customer so that a satisfactory solution other than a cutoff of electric service may be found for the problem.

Minnesota public service commission has conducted hearings on revisions to their cold weather rules but have not as yet finalized any new requirements.

Bigwood disagreed with commission contentions that "there may now be numerous Minnesota households without heat because utility service has been terminated," and "the facts constitute a danger to the public health and safety," labeling them "significant misstatements of the facts as the situation exists in Minnesota."

Speaking for his own company, Bigwood said, "We don't like to disconnect a customer's electric service at any time, especially so when there is an established inability to pay. Disconnection is always a last resort measure taken only after adequate notice and after considering such factors as ability to pay, temperature predictions, family illness and other mitigating circumstances."

A summary of the types of assistance that are available through the company and elsewhere for customers unable to pay their electric service bills will be sent out seen to Otter Tail's Minnesota residential customers in the form of a bill stuffer, Bigwood pointed out.

Most Grocers In State Obey Food Stamp Law

Only 16 out of more than 3,776 Minnesota retailers currently authorized to redeem food stamps have been found guilty of misusing the program during the fiscal year 1979, according to the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA).

According to Monroe Woods, USDA Midwest regional administrator for the food and nutrition service (FNS), this figure indicates a majority of Minnesota retailers are generally abiding by the regulations of the federally funded program designed to provide low income or needy families, the elderly, and the disabled with additional assistance to purchase food for a well-balanced diet.

USDA monitors a retailer's use of the food stamp program by periodic checks designed to insure that the retailer is abiding by the federal regulations. Another effective method of checking a retailer's actions comes from reports from private citizens who believe they have seen an illegal food stamp transaction.

Woods indicates that the most frequent violation is the acceptance of food stamps for the purchase of ineligible items. These ineligible items most frequently include paper products, cigarettes, household cleaning products and alcoholic beverages.

Once a retailer has been investigated and found guilty of violating the program regulations, he is subject to a disqualification from accepting food stamps for a period ranging from 30 days to three years. In cases where the disqualification of a food store would result in the complete absence of an authorized food store in any area and the violation occurred after Jan. 1, 1979, a fine may be imposed rather than a disqualification.

Descendants Of Telemark Group Formed

A group of Telemark, Norway descendants have reorganized the Telelag of America.

Temporary officers are: President, Hilbert Thompson, Fergus Falls; vice president, Harold Sersland, Minneapolis; treasurer, Orville Prestholdt, Golden Valley; and secretary, Mrs. Hilbert (Lillian) Thompson, Fergus Falls. Officers will continue until the 1980 Telemark annual meeting.

New Telelag board of directors met recently at the Orville Prestholdt home in Golden Valley. Plans for the 1980 Telelag, to be announced soon, include talent from Vinje in Telemark, Norway.

"Telesoga," the name of the Telelag publication for many years, will be used again for bulletins and information to Norwegians who trace their ancestry to the valleys of Telemark in Norway.

Inquiries or interest in the Telelag of America can be directed to Hilbert Thompson at route 3, Fergus Falls, MN 56537.

Minimum Wage To Increase On January 1

Minnesota employers are reminded that minimum wage rates for those covered by either state or federal law increase effective Jan. 1, 1980. Alert comes from Minnesota labor and industry commissioner Harry D. Peterson, whose department administers the state labor standards laws and regulations.

Employers covered by state law and not under jurisdiction of the federal act will be required to pay adult workers a minimum rate of $2.90 in the coming year. Peterson pointed out that the minimum rate to be paid to minors under 18 will be $2.61 per hour.

Changes in the state law enacted by the 1979 legislature include provisions for subsequent increases in 1981 and 1982. Peterson pointed out that the overtime rate for workers under the state law is for hours in excess of 48 in a work-week.

Peterson explained that employers covered by the federal act must pay a minimum rate of $3.10 per hour effective January 1 and that the federal law does not provide for a reduced wage for minors. He also cited that time-and-one-half pay after 40 hours in a workweek is required of those employers covered by federal statutes administered by the U.S. department of labor, wage and hour division.

Posters describing the state fair labor standards act and regulations are now available. To receive copies, employers are asked to contact: Minnesota Department of Labor and Industry, Labor Standards Division, 444 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101, or phone (612) 296-2125.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I certainly had to admire the letter Mrs. L. Carpenter wrote December 5 on drugs. It takes courage to speak out on any issue that is critical of lifestyle.

Mrs. Carpenter mentioned that the group she hoped would be formed to combat drugs might be called, "Tough on Drug Pushers". I wonder if she realizes exactly what that would mean — not that I'm against it, mind you — I just wonder. That would mean involving every merchant that sells coffee, tobacco, alcohol or non-prescription drugs. That would mean challenging the coffee hour at church each Sunday. That would mean condemning the DFL "Wine and Cheese Party". Not that I'm opposed, mind you, I just wonder if she knows the implications.

It would also mean confronting all places of business that had coin operated pop machines or tobacco machines, including the hospital. Not that I'm opposed, mind you, I just wonder.

There is no generation gap between the young and the old, Mrs. Carpenter, it is simply that the drugs have changed. The youth of Thief River and every other town are simply following in their parents' footsteps. There is not a single drug being taken by the youth of this town that has caused 1-1,000 the heartache that alcohol has and is and will continue to cause. And, I believe the record will show that as the youth have their fling with the modern drugs, they eventually switch to mom and dads's old standbys.

When the private and public drinking clubs of this town dry up so will the drugs of youth, but never before then.

I wish, hope and pray God's speed to your efforts, Mrs. Carpenter; may your tribe increase. And should your group be willing to tackle all the implications that an all out war on drug traffic implies — count me in.

To The Editor:

I am dismayed that teacher contract negotiations have dragged on for eight months without a settlement and that the teachers have had to work for four months without a contract. Some of the members of the school board would have us believe that they are holding the fiscal line against unreasonable demands made by the teachers. Therefore, I believe it is time the facts were examined.

When I moved to this community 10 years ago teacher morale was high. Since that time our teachers have upgraded their skills and have become even more professionally competent, but year by year their morale has sunk lower and lower. I conclude the reason for this lowered morale must lie in the way they have been treated by the school board.

I am concerned, and every citizen of the school district has a right to be concerned, because studies in industry have shown that lowered worker morale adversely affects worker production and efficiency. I am sure the teachers struggle to keep their classroom efficiency high, but I have no doubt but that this prolonged salary negotiation crisis has affected their classroom performance. In the long run, our children suffer through lowered educational growth. That is why I am concerned.

I know that not everyone on the school board thinks alike. I have personally known some of the board members for a number of years and know them to be men of high honor and deeply concerned for both the welfare of the teachers and for the quality of education in this community.

Inflation is running in excess of 10 per cent per year, but the school board originally offered the teachers a two per cent raise. That's about as subtle as leaving a penny tip at a restaurant! No wonder the teachers are dismayed!

The board defended its paltry wage proposal by saying the school district had very little money with which to raise salaries. Almost immediately, however, the school administration announced that a bookkeeping error had been discovered and the district actually has a half-a-million dollars it did not know it had. Then the school board announced that none of that money would be released for teacher salaries, so now the board sits on half-a-million bucks and claims there is no money for the teachers. Perhaps the public can now understand why the teachers are frustrated and angry at the school board.

Probably because the position of the board at that point was untenable, the board hired a Twin City lawyer to negotiate with the teachers. Is it not strange that this board, which has said it most vigorously opposes all attempts that would take control of the schools out of local hands, has voluntarily surrendered one of its most crucial functions — salary negotiations with the teachers — to an outsider, thus giving away local control?

Had this Twin City lawyer reached a fair agreement speedily, perhaps none would object, but let's examine his performance. The school board has disclosed that it has paid out in excess of $48,000 in taxpayer money for the services of this lawyer. First, it spent about $23,000 having this lawyer defend the board in a suit brought against the board for unfair labor practices. The board lost the case on almost every count; $23,000 of taxpayer money down the tube.

Next, he was hired to negotiate with the teachers. He and his firm have been paid in excess of $25,000. For what? For nothing, for he has failed to negotiate a settlement. Now the board is threatening to take the negotiations to arbitration, a lengthy, costly process which will drain additional thousands of dollars from this community for lawyer fees and for the expenses of arbitration.

That $48,000 could have been spent hiring additional teachers to reduce the overcrowded conditions in many classrooms. It could have been used to raise teacher salaries. Instead, it went to the Twin Cities. That is why I say some members of the school board have badly misplaced their priorities. Instead of saving taxpayer money by taking a hard line in these salary negotiations, they are actually wasting taxpayer money.

What are the teachers asking for? They are asking for a pay raise that is lower than the increased cost of living, an increase that is lower than the teachers of Bemidji recently received, an increase that will still leave the average teacher salary in Thief River Falls some thousands of dollars lower than the average teacher salary in Bemidji and some hundreds of dollars lower than the salaries of Roseau teachers.

If we want excellence of education for our children, then we must be prepared to pay excellent teachers. Thief River Falls will not keep its excellent teachers unless the school board grants equitable pay raises. I admire the restraint and moderation of our teachers. They are not asking to be paid as much as the Bemidji teachers are paid. They aren't even asking for a raise equal to the increased cost of living.

I ask our school board to leave the Twin City lawyer home, quit wasting taxpayer money, and sit down with their neighbors — the teachers — and quickly negotiate a fair settlement. Let's get on with the educative process!

Sincerely,
Jonathan Law

WCTU MESSAGE

Today in the field of drug addiction, selective indignation is rampant. Take the lung association raising its money by Christmas Seals which pushes the slogan "Please don't smoke—people breathing." To protect people's lungs, it educates the public on pulmonary diseases and of non-smokers' rights. It is rightfully indignant about the threat of nicotene to smoker and non-smoker. But, to this lung association, alcohol, the No. 1 drug problem is O.K. It puts its seal of approval on alcohol, utters no protest about its harmful effects, approves its acceptance and use. How? By holding a cocktail party at the annual lung association meeting. It strains at the gnat of lung disease from smoking and swallows the camel of brain damage, cancer, alcoholism and all the other physical, social, and moral problems resulting from the acceptance and use of ethyl alcohol.

Similar selective indignation is evident in drug abuse conferences. Here, the drug problems are discussed at great length while cigarettes are smoked by conference participants. At many of these affairs, at the end of the day, the group retires to the cocktail lounge to drink and put its seal of approval on alcohol the No. 1 drug.

December Has Most Frequent Auto Mishaps

Motorists should be aware that more motor vehicle accidents occur during December than any other month of the year, announced John P. Sopsic, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

According to the office of traffic safety accident records, a total of 14,099 crashes occurred during December of 1978. Of these crashes, 61 were fatal crashes resulting in the deaths of 75 persons.

Compared to 1977 figures, the fatal accidents that occurred in December of 1978 were 44 per cent higher than the same month the previous year.

January and November follow December as all-time high accident months. In 1978, January had a total of 11,853 carshes, 46 of which were fatal crashes responsible for the deaths of 54 persons. November of the same year totaled 11,474 crashes, 63 of these were fatal crashes resulting in the deaths of 76 individuals.

So far in 1979, a reported 732 persons have died in motor vehicle accidents. This is a preliminary figure and it is expected to rise somewhat as late reports arrive. The final fatality figure for 1978 was 980.

"The best contribution each motorist can make to saving lives to to respect the 55 mile per hour speed limit," said Sopsic. "During December and throughout 1980, drive 55, use your seatbelt and shoulder harness and don't mix alcohol and driving. These actions in addition to remaining alert to winter hazards will allow you to do your part in keeping the holiday season free of tragic fatal crashes."

More On Nuclear Energy

Following editorial is from the Minneapolis Daily American:

With Jane Fonda and hubby, Tom Hayden, Ralph Nader and their rock bands getting all the publicity in front pages to impede and halt the use of nuclear power plants in the U.S., the average citizen is likely to swallow the scare propaganda if he does not get the other side of the story.

There are leaders and groups of people who make strong arguments for the use of nuclear energy, but they don't have the rock bands to attract music-loving kids by the tens of thousands for front page publicity.

Nevertheless, the other side of the "nuke" story is a pretty good one. The most salient case for nuclear energy is the future; it will eventually evolve into a process of fusion, rather than fission and thus eliminate entirely the danger of radiation accidents. (Creating nuclear power with a system of fusion uses up nuclear waste.) But even without the coming technology, the Jana Fonda's aren't telling the truth about nuclear power plant safety.

Clarence E. Larson, a former commissioner on the Atomic Energy commission makes this astounding revelation on nuclear plant safety: "A person living every minute at the boundary of one of our licensed nuclear plants, drinking the discharge water, breathing the air and eating fish from the same water... would have to remain there for more than 200 years to get the same radiation exposure effects as will result from a single chest X-ray."

Time Magazine, in reporting the problem of disposing of nuclear waste from nuclear power plants, reported Sept. 25, 1978 that "all the waste generated up to the year 2000 by the U.S. nuclear power plants, could be stacked six feet high on a single football field."

By the year 2000, the waste will no longer be accumulating because we'll have switched to the clean fusion means of nuclear energy production.

Congressman, Lawrence McDonald, writing on behalf of a group called "Americans for Nuclear Energy", throws a whole sheaf of responses at Jane Fonda and her entourage. None of it makes the front page however, because he hasn't got a rock band. But you should know what he has to say anyway!

"Think of the countless numbers of our fellow citizens who die annually from the belchings of fossil-fuel plants. Nuclear energy is clean. Think of the damage to our environment from tanker accidents and oil spills in our waterways. Nuclear energy doesn't pollute. Think of the virtual state of blackmail we face from the Arab & OPEC nations from oil shortages. Nuclear energy is ours, and cheap. Think of the plight of those who die each year from mining diseases, gas explosions, pipeline disasters, oil tanker disruptions and hydro-electric dam failures. Nuclear energy is safe. Nuclear energy has never killed a single person from an accident in commercial power production in 23 years of reactor operation in America. Recent severe winters saw entire regions without sufficient energy to warm their homes due to shortages. Hundreds of thousands were thrown out of work in energy intensive industries. Coal strikers seized the nation's helplessness to grab more for themselves. Schools were closed. People died. The lesson is clear. The only reliable source of energy during these times was nuclear energy. It saved lives all over America by being there when it was necessary.

To abandon more than 12 per cent of our entire national electrical power supply as the anti-nuclear bands demand, would be sheer folly. As gas, oil and coal become more and more difficult to use, nuclear energy is there to fill the gap. Ditching nuclear energy would be nothing short of catastrophic."

Even if you like rock music, you might also like to hear both sides of the nuclear energy story.

Self-Appointed Mission

Following editorial is from the New Prague Times:

Bumptious politicians and over-egotistical "do-gooders" can serve best by not intruding themselves in delicate international situations. Otherwise they may do more harm than good.

The language of diplomacy carries varied shades of meaning and nuances of interpretation. These are best conducted by the trained, experienced and competent officials and staff of the Department of State, as provided by the Constitution.

Undoubtedly, Congressman George Hanson of Idaho, meant well when he took off on his own, to settle the Iranian crisis, but a consensus of knowledgeable observers indicates that he might have delayed, instead of hastened, settlement. His self-appointed trip to Iran is thought to have indicated to Iranians a division on U.S. policy.

Actually, Representative Hanson had no more business in Iran than an official or staff member of the State Department would have in occupying Hanson's seat in the House, proposing legislation, or participating in debate there. His act was an invasion of the province of the administrative branch of government. He was further afield right here at home with his own government, than was his physical presence in Iran.

Imagine, if you can, the confusion which would result if each of the 536 members of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives took off in all directions to conduct the international affairs of this country.

When national legislators visit other countries on "study missions", it is usually to promote good will and there is only small significance attached to their visits,—except for the expenses involved.

Former Presidents Treated Like Kings

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Few things are more irritating to an ordinary taxpayer than reading about new demands from past presidents or increasing costs for the staff of the current head of state.

Former President Richard M. Nixon's latest demand for office space in New York will cost the taxpayers about $300,000 a year. Naturally, he can't be expected to accept the type of space which might satisfy someone who had to pay his own rent. The General Services administration is seeking "4,000 to 8,000 square feet, first-class and air-conditioned in mid-Manhattan."

Federal law gives the ex-represident a pension and requires the government to provide him with office space, supplies, staff and travel money. Former President Gerald Ford enjoys the same privileges. Both men have become wealthy and are able to maintain a standard of living enjoyed by only a comparative handful of Americans.

Support for ex-presidents and their wives is expected to cost us about 18.3 million dollars next year. It will be 285 times the cost of 25 years ago. Secret Service protection for ex-presidents and their wives accounts for about $8,000,000. This protection is provided even when they are on private business designed to add to their personal incomes.

Legislation has been proposed in congress which would make the benefits conform more closely to their actual needs. There seems little reason for a past president to live in regal splendor and pomp entirely at taxpayer expense. They should be able to pay for their own transportation and contribute toward the cost of protection if they feel it necessary when playing in golf tournaments or appearing on television for money.

If Jimmy Carter is a typical modern-day president, there will be a library named for him. Six presidential libraries are already being operated by the government at an annual cost of $9,000,000. The stinger is that they are built with privately-raised funds, then turned over to the government for all future maintenance and costs.

Reports that Rosalyn Carter's personal staff costs the taxpayers about $650,000 a year have been raising eyebrows lately, too. There are 21 fulltime employees on her staff — two directors, three personal assistants, four press secretaries, three social secretaries, two project directors, a researcher and a number of schedule and advance assistants. Her chief of staff earns $56,000 a year, the same sum paid to Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security advisor.

It's all legal. A statute declares that funding shall be provided the first lady "in connection with assistance provided by such spouse to the president in the discharge of the president's duties and responsibilities." Rosalyn is clearly an asset to Jimmy — but $650,000 worth a year?

The Presidency is a tough, demanding job. Men age visibly under its pressures. No one should begrudge them a more than comfortable life after leaving the White House. But the expenses associated with past presidents are getting out of hand. And surely a good first lady can be effective for less than $650,000 a year. Congressional efforts to put some kind of realistic ceiling on all of these benefits are in order.

Save Yourself Important Tax Dollars In '79

There may still be time to reduce or defer your federal income tax for 1979. To review the options that may be available, ask yourself the following questions prepared by the Minnesota society of certified public accountants:

How is my 1980 income likely to compare with 1979? The answer to that will indicate whether you should try to move income from one year into the other and whether you should try to bunch deductible expenses. If you are self-employed, of course, you have more control over the timing of income and deductions than the salaries employee. In trying to hold down 1979 taxable income, for example, you can delay billings and not press for collections until after the first of the year. Of course, the exact stragegy will depend on whether you use a cash or accrual method of accounting in your business. You can also buy equipment in order to get the ten per cent investment credit this year; order necessary repairs before the end of December; stock up on non-inventory items; sell off obsolete inventory; and lay the groundwork for claiming losses on debts that went bad in 1979.

Am I eligible to set up my own self-employment retirement plan? Think about doing so now, to protect some 1979 income. You have until you file your tax return to do it, provided you file on time or within the period covered by an extension.

What is the condition of my home? Does it need improved insulation, storm windows or other energy-saving work that would qualify for the energy tax credit? There might still be time to do it this year.

Do I have a favorite political candidate? You can get a credit of up to $50 ($100 on a joint return) for political contributions of at least twice those amounts. If you make your contribution right away, you can repeat it in 1980. By splitting a contribution between the two years, you double the credit.

Do I support a dependent parent who receives social security benefits? Don't forget, those benefits were raised this year because of inflation. If the increase resulted in your share of your parents' support dropping below 50 per cent, take steps at once to increase your share so as not to lose the exemption, which has been raised from $750 to $1,000.

Did I, or could I, realize significant capital gains or losses on securities investments this year? Discuss with your tax adviser what benefits are available, then check with your securities adviser whether changes in your portfolio for tax reasons would make good investment sense.

How about my 1979 charitable contributions? This might be the year to make that big gift. Consider giving a capital asset that has appreciated in value since you acquired it; that lets you deduct today's fair-market value while avoiding tax on the capital gain provided the recipient uses the property in its exempt function. (The deduction for the full fair-market value is limited to 30 per cent of adjusted gross income.) If 1979 appears to be a better year than 1980, you might want to make some of next year's charitable contributions now and get the deduction on your 1979 return.

Can I take advantage of income averaging? Only if 1979 was a much better year for you than your average for the preceding four years. Your 1979 taxable income must exceed 120 per cent of the four year average by more than $3,000. For example, if you are a single taxpayer and your income average for the past four years is $11,650, your 1979 income must be more than $16,980 in order to qualify for income averaging.

And finally, ask yourself, where are all my receipts, cancelled checks and other records? Gathering this material ahead of time will help you avoid mistakes in the last minute rush as tax deadlines approach. Go over the deductions, exemptions, credits and adjustments that are obvious; you are sure to be reminded of others that are available if you act now, before the end of the year.

BSU Fiddler Contest Now Takes Entries

Annual old-time fiddler's contest will be staged for the seventh time this January 12 to boost the scholarship fund for the symphony string students at Bemidji state university.

Entries are now being accepted for the upcoming competition. According to coordinator Felix Spooner, no registration fees are required but all performers will receive a plaque. As in years past, contestants are asked to play two numbers: a waltz and a dance tune of their choice. Trick fiddling and novelty tunes will not be considered by the judges. A maximum of two accompanists is permitted selected on the basis of timing, intonation and difficulty of the pieces. The competition will begin at 8 p.m. at Memorial hall on the BSU campus.

In the past six years numerous competitors from the Midwest and Canada entered the event to compete for three tropies and attracted crowds of up to approximately 2,500 people. Prizes are also awarded to the oldest and youngest fiddlers.

Following the contest, an old-time dance with music provided by the visiting fiddlers will be held. All admission fees from spectators will be used for the BSU music scholarship fund.

For more information, write Felix Spooner, Bangsberg fine arts complex, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601. Phone number is (218) 755-3362.

Problems Exist On Blackduck KAWE-TV Tower

Problems continue to plague work on the public TV tower near Blackduck. Tower had been stacked up to 380 feet by mid-November when the construction crew discovered more problems with the fabrication of the tower sections.

Tower has now been dismantled to the 100 foot mark, the second time it has been taken down due to fabrication problems. It stood at 520 feet in September when similar problems developed. At that time the steel was sent back to the factory to be reworked.

In the latest development, the tower contractor, Advance Industries, has pulled the tower crew off the site until new steel can be fabricated and shipped up from its Sioux City, Iowa factory. KAWE station manager, Don Checots, said that the length of delay in getting the station on the air resulting from this new problem cannot be assessed.

"If new steel can be on-site soon," Checots noted, "and if the crew worked through the winter months as they had originally planned, then the tower could conceivably be finished in April. But realistically, given those conditions, I expect our air date to be delayed past that time."

$626 Million In Grain Under Loan In State

Farmers in Minnesota at the end of October had over 245 million bushels of grain and oilseeds with a market value of more than $626 million under federal price support loans, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin estimated. That volume was one fifth of the national total under federal mortgage.

Minnesota has almost $473 million in mortgaged crops totaling nearly 191 bushels in the national grain reserve, according to the monthly summary on price supported commodities. Balance was under support loans only.

More than half of both the volume and the estimated market value of all commodities under outstanding federal price support obligations in Minnesota was represented by this state's corn and grain crops. And, commissioner Seetin noted, the nearly 151 million bushels of corn under support loan mortgages at the end of October was equal to more than one fourth of the estimated 1979 crop. Market value of the mortgaged corn was almost $326 million.

Wheat continued to be a strong second in mortgaged Minnesota crops. At the end of October state farmers had 52.3 million bushels valued at almost $203 million under price support loans.

Remaining in the National grain reserve at the end of October were 129.5 million bushels of corn and 39.9 million bushels of wheat, with the smaller volumes and mortgages on these two leading support crops held under short term support loans only. Grain reserve contracts are in force for up to three years, depending upon market prices and trigger levels specified by the Congress.

Other Minnesota balances outstanding on October 31 under federal price support loans and mortgages were: barley, 22.4 million bushels valued at $53.3 million; oats, 15.1 million bushels valued at $18.7 million; grain sorghum, 116,500 bushels valued at $315,000; soybeans 4.25 million bushels valued at $24.9 million; and rye, 264,577 bushels valued at $595,000.

Set Hearings On Shade Tree Disease Costs

Proposed new rules governing the Minnesota shade tree disease control cost sharing programs will be open for public evaluation and comment at three hearings next month in Mankato, St. Paul and St. Cloud, according to agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

The hearings are scheduled as follows:

January 10 at 10 a.m., regional law enforcement center building, basement meeting room, Front and Liberty streets in Mankato;

January 11 at 9 a.m., Room 116A administration building, 50 Sherburne Avenue in St. Paul;

January 11 at 3 p.m., Stearns county courthouse in St. Cloud.

The shade tree disease control and reforestation program administered by the Minnesota department of agriculture provides up to $25 million in matching grants to cities and counties to offset the costs of managing both Dutch elm and oak wilt diseases, planting trees on public property and finding uses for diseased wood.

Proposed new rules reflect program changes made by the 1979 Legislature, placing increased emphasis on reforestation of urban communities, and combining the previously separated sanitation and reforestation grant programs.

Other changes in the new rules include the raising of the state reimbursement from 45 per cent to 50 per cent, removing restrictions on the number of newly planted public trees eligible for reimbursement, establishing a special incentive for cities under 4,000 population to plant nes trees, and removing the population restrictions for wood utilization grant eligibility. The special incentive for smaller cities is 90 per cent or a maximum of $60 per new tree planted on public property.

Public comment will be accepted orally or in writing at any of the three public hearings, or by mail to Jon L. Lunde, Hearing Examiner, Room 300, 1745 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55104, prior to Jan. 18, 1980.

A statement on the need and reasonableness of the proposed new rules will be available by mid-December either from the hearing examiner or from the administrator, Shade Tree Program, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55107l

MACI Passes Support For Gas Tax Boost

Winston W. Borden, president of the Minnesota association of commerce and industry, announced that the MACI board of directors has passed a resolution supporting a two-cent increase in the state gasoline tax which would provide about $50 million for additional highway construction and maintenance.

Two-thirds of the money would go to the state for road construction and maintenance with one-third returned to Minnesota counties for road construction and maintenance.

"The costs of road construction and maintenance have risen far more rapidly than the general inflation rate," Borden said. "And, declines in gasoline usage will cause a highway user fee revenue loss of 10 per cent or more. The gas tax is an equitable tax, because those who use the roads pay the tax, which is levied on each gallon of fuel."

Borden expressed concern that without a gas tax increase, cancelled or deferred highway projects due to fund shortages will have significant effects on highway safety, and on the flow of commerce (including tourism) in Minnesota.

In 1967 the state gasoline tax was increased from six to seven cents per gallon. In 1975 the tax was again increased from seven cents to nine cents. The MACI resolution urges the 1980 legislature to increase the tax from its current level of nine cents to a new level of 11 cents per gallon.

As an example of the increased costs involved in highway construction) Borden cited the increase in concrete costs from 1967 to 1979 of $22 per cubic yard, while asphalt costs have nearly tripled in that time period.

MN. Star Watch Offers Facts On Universe

What stage is the moon in? What planets are visible in the Minnesota sky? What are quasars and black holes? When and why do we have meteor showers?

Theses are a few of the questions that will be answered by Minnesota Starwatch, a new service offered by the University of Minnesota department of astronomy.

A taped phone message on the night sky in Minnesota, Starwatch is prepared by the students and staff of the astronomy department, and includes information on the seasonal night-time sky along with brief explanations of different aspects of the universe.

Tapes were made in response to increased public interest in celestial events, according to Butler Burton, head of the astronomy department. Messages are updated every two weeks and are available 24 hours a day.

Interested persons can call (612) 376-5587 for the Minnesota Starwatch message.

Wise Selection Of Toys May Develop Children's Skills

You don't have to go into debt this holiday season to get toys that children enjoy, say child development specialists.

"I would recommend," says Meg Katzman, "that parents consider not only what is pleasing to the child, but what is affordable to them as a family.

"A lot of the toys on the market are expensive, colorful and attractive, but there are many excellent toys that aren't expensive."

Children learn a variety of skills and concepts from play activities, according to Katzman. Many toys and games provide children learning experiences in several areas.

Toys may be used for physical, cognitive and social development. Katzman evaluates a child's need for interaction with other children and level of muscle development, especially ability to manipulate fingers and hands.

In many instances, the simpler the toy the greater the opportunity for the child to be creative, imaginative and expressive.

"The cars that the kids choose to play with in the hospital playroom are the simple wooden cars that don't do anything," Katzman says. "The kids will play for hours using their imaginations."

The same is true of dolls. If the doll cries on its own, the child doesn't have to express those feelings for the doll, eliminating that creative, imaginative element of make-believe.

"This isn't to say that the sophisticated, more expensive toys don't serve any function in play," Katzman adds. "But you don't have to purchase expensive, complex toys for your child to have a learning and rewarding experience.

"Play is the way children learn and toys should be a meaningful and enjoyable experience for children." Toys should be chosen to stimulate a child's development and learning process.

"From birth to about four months it's important for babies to start learning to focus their eyes," says Cynthia Hobbie, pediatric nurse.

She suggests brightly colored mobiles, pictures or toys to hang on bassinets or cribs. "Be sure the bottom looks as interesting as the top, because the child will be looking at it from the bottom," Hobbie says. It's important to have many objects for the baby to view and to change those objects frequently, so the baby has a variety of things to explore visually.

"At four months of age the child starts to reach for things and begins to transfer objects from one hand to the other," Hobbie says. Small toys — but not small enough to swallow — with different colors and textures are good for helping the child develop touch and sight.

At about six months of age children learn to drop things. "They start playing the game of throwing things on the floor for mommy and daddy to retrieve," Hobbie says. By tieing toys to the high-chair with brightly colored string, parents can avoid having to pick-up the toys fromthe floor and the children can develop muscles by throwing the toys down and pulling them up with the string.

Seven to 10-month-olds love noise and bang their toys against trays, tables and floors. "The noise drives everyone crazy," Hobbie says. "So a rubber hammer is a nice gift."

Cloth books are good toys for one-year-olds, because they stop placing things in their mouths and enjoy interactive play. "Mommy will say 'where is the kitten?' And the child learns to identify and point to the right object," she says.

Symbolic play begins at age two and children start imitating the role models they see at home. Hobbie says, "They feed and change their baby dolls and mimic other things they see in their environments."

Any toys of objects of play that can be used in role modeling are excellent toys. So are books that describe every day occurances and experiences with which the child is familiar. Katzman comments, "From the experiences we have with children, there are just as many little boys who choose to play with dolls and household toys as little girls; and just as many little girls who play with trucks and building blocks as little boys."

Boys and girls, both, need to learn to be caretakers, to be productive and powerful in their play, she stresses.

Three-year-olds begin playing with other kids, as well as playing alone. "Any kind of building tool is good for kids about three years and older," Katzman says. "Building toys are among the most durable and affordable toys that can be purchased and are excellent developmental tools."

There are various kinds of building materials — wooden or plastic blocks or materials that fit together. The more intricate the building toys, the more skills it takes to use them.

In choosing a toy, consider the child's level of physical development, so the child is neither bored nor frustrated by the toy.

"Children use toys as a way to master or gain understanding or control over their environments, and toys or games that are frustrating don't build a sense of confidence within the child," Katzman says.

"A three-year-old would not benefit from building blocks that need to be fitted together," Katzman says. "Whereas a 10-year-old wouldn't benefit from simple blocks that would be suitable for a three-year-old. You have to look at the indivual child's needs and level of development."

When children are four to five years old, role experimentation includes dressing up and dramatic play. Hobbie says, "Provide them with all different kinds of hats — firefighter hats, police hats, wedding veils, hard hats, fancy frilly hats and others — because just by changing their hats they are able to change characters and experiment with different roles.

"When my kids were that age I picked up a bunch of used clothes, like fancy dresses and petticoats and things, and washed and pressed them and put everything in a big trunk. That present was a tremendous hit," she said.

Puppets are good toys for children of all ages. They can be used to release or express feelings and emotions. Simple puppets can be given to younger children and more complex puppets and marionettes are suitable gifts for older children. Puppets, stages and costumes can be made by children, if they are provided with materials to stimulate their creativity.

Another play item that has a multiplicity of uses is water — "whether you use the water in the bathtub, your kitchen sink, or out by a lake," Katzman says. Many items can be purchased for water play.

"Water teaches children many different concepts — density, buoyancy, cause and effect, and so on. It can be an individual or group activity," Katzman says.

Finger paints, clay, crayons and other art supplies aren't terribly expensive and help kids express themselves and feel productive. Be sure all materials are non-toxic.

Five-year-olds are interested in facts and details. "They spend a lot of time with miniatures, like forts and doll houses," Hobbie says. Games are good toys, too, because they teach kids to take turns and to follow instructions.

"Toys that help teach or reinforce certain educational concepts, such as the alphabet, counting, colors, shapes, memory, and so on, are good gifts for children," Katzman adds.

Group activities are important to six-year-olds. Gifts for them include balls, bats, sleds and jump ropes. In addition to learning to cooperate and get along with others, these activities help develop large muscles.

By seven years, children are usually reading simple stories, so books are suitable gifts. Complex building blocks, logs and bricks stimulate creativity and help develop small muscles. Paints, charcoals and chalks are good art supplies for this age group.

From age eight throughout the teen-age years, sports equipment makes good presents. Especially in the pre-teen years, free flowing forms of dance, roller-skating, soccer, volleyball and basketball, all are good activities for improving coordination. Chemistry sets are good presents, as long as they are kept out of the reach of younger children.

Teen-agers can be given gifts other than the usual records, posters, clothes and jewelry. "Toys and game, like chess, can teach advanced logic," Katzman says. And many games are available that reinforce more complex mathematical skills.

"Parents should approach play and toys as teaching tools for their children, not merely as vehicles of entertainment," Katzman says.

Hobbie adds books, skis, ice skates, bikes, intricate puzzles, tickets to events, concerts and museums, cookbooks, magazine subscriptions, crafts and nice art supplies to the the list of possible gifts for teen-agers.

When choosing appropriate gifts for children, parents have to decide what a toy accomplishes and what their child wants or is ready for. With the previous suggestions in mind, parents can be the best judges of toys for their children.

$2 Million To Help Airport At Baudette

Baudette International Airport has received $2,000,000 to complete pending airport development projects, and Congressman Arlan Stangeland says "This will benefit residents in northwestern Minnesota tremendously."

"A large amount of air traffic to and from Canada is already supported by the Baudette International airport and this much needed expansion should increase traffic since larger aircraft will be able to land there," said Stangeland.

The funds, provided in the 1980 department of transportation bill, will primarily be used to build a new 5,000 feet runway. Remaining funds will be allocated to resurface the old runway for use as a taxiway and provide for an increase in the parking area needed for aircraft.

"Another important aspect that will benefit the residents of this area is that it will provide a larger runway on which tourists can land. The tourism industry plays a major role in the economy of the Baudette region and since the only way tourists can currently travel to Baudette is by car, I think a larger airport definitely presents some new and important options.

"Since larger planes will be able to land there in the future, I think the possibility of a small commuter airline might become a reality," said Stangeland.

BSU Site Of Small Business Region Center

Bemidji state university will be the site of new small business development center, designed to serve a 12-county region. According to Dr. Milt Will, BSU professor of business administration and coordinator for the local project, the center is being established by the state legislature-appointed small business advisory task force and will coordinate business assistance programs for Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Lake of the Woods, Beltrami, Pennington, Red Lake, Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater and Hubbard counties.

The grant funding the project, which is being administered by the department of economic development, totals $150,000 — approximately $35,000 of which will back the BSU-based center. Remaining monies will support similar programs in other regions of the state with headquarters in such locations as Duluth and St. Cloud.

Small business advisory task force originally developed a state plan for assistance which resulted in a proposal to the state legislature and to the small business administration. A contract from the SBA was then issued to establish centers at nine universities and one private college.

Development center at BSU, Will commented, is initially establishing an advisory committee which will consist of business persons, members from associations and others who can provide needed direction. Among their responsibilities will be reviewing the program budget and evaluating on-going progress. Through this initiative, the center will design a program appropriate to this region. At this point in time, Will indicated potential projects may include substantive (short-term) counseling, in-depth counseling, training - pre - business workshops, management courses and conferences, specialized programs and outreach to special groups.

Names of individuals being appointed to the advisory committee are expected to be released soon.

For further information, Dr. Milt Will may be contacted at Hickory Hall 120, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601. Phone: 755-2754.

U of M To Use $625,000 For Hiring Staff

University of Minnesota graduate school will use a $625,000 grant from the Northwest area foundation to hire six young faculty members in the physical sciences. The grant will help the University introduce younger talent into departments with a high percentage of older faculty members, said Warren Ibele, dean of the graduate school. "What with projections of declining enrollments; there's not likely to be legislative support for keeping a flow of new talent into the University," he said.

University study found that the percentage of younger faculty members was particularly low in chemistry, biochemistry, mathematics, physics and geology. The six new positions will be in those fields.

University learned this week that the Northwest area foundation will provide $125,000 during each of the next five years to pay the salaries of the six new professors.

Christmas Seal Sheet Designed By 9-Year-Old

Magical little pieces of art comprise the 1979 Christmas Seal sheet. Each of the 54 seals is the creative design of children representing every American state and territory. Minnesota's seal is the work of Jill Wollack, 9, Little Falls. It colorfully depicts three chiming holiday season bells.

Jill says, "I am glad my design was picked for the Christmas seals. I know that Christmas seals are more than children's pictures on stamps."

Wollack received a Christmas seal distinguished service award from the lung associations of Minnesota at the special ceremony at the main post office in St. Paul, December 3. Her award was part of the Lung associations' "Tribute to Minnesota's postal service employees." About 100 people from around the state were present.

In receiving her plaque, Jill explained, "To me, the seals mean that there are people helping other people who have asthma and other lung diseases. Seals also mean that people give the gift of clean air to other people."

Wollack's holiday picture has been reproduced over 100 million times on sheets of Christmas seals mailed to people in Minnesota and across America, as a means of raising funds to prevent and control respiratory diseases which cripple the lungs of thousands of children and adults each year.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

We appreciated Larry Richel's concise letter regarding Sunday shop hours. Now we would like to hear from any other shop owners who believe Sunday should be kept as the Lord's own day, and who are staying closed on Sundays.

Last year we were impressed that Gordon's Hallmark stood firm on their Sunday closing, and we made an effort to give them as much of our own business as possible. If the merchants will advertise that they stay closed on Sundays, we believe many will back them with their business the other six days of the week.

"Wherefore the LORD God of Israel saith, . . them that honour me I will honour, and they that despise me shall be lightly esteemed." I Samuel 2:30

Sheep Growers To Learn Of Feeding Ewes

Area sheep producers are scheduled to meet on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls when county extension agents Terry Courneya and Howard Person will provide a program on winter feeding and care of the ewe flock.

Their discussions will explain an easy method of determining an adequate nutrition program using home grown feeds. Rations will be discussed that can assure healthy ewes which will produce vigorous lambs at minimum costs.

All area sheep producers are encouraged to attend.

Jobs Created As A Result Of Nov. SBA Loans

Paul W. Jansen, district director of the Minneapolis district office of the Small Business administration, announced recently that $6,792,700 in SBA loans had been approved for 61 Minnesota companies in the month of November. Projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 805 jobs.

Direct Management assistance counceling was provided to 236 Minnesota firms through the Small Business administration's in house counselors or through support groups like the Service Corps of Retired Executives and the 10 colleges participating in the Small Business institute program.

Five loans, amounting to $294,000, were made to minority owned firms; making the minority component of the November loan portfolio 8.2 per cent of the total loans and 4.3 per cent of the total loan dollars.

Inflation price you out of a new building? Take a look at Stran.

And reconsider.

As your Authorized Stran Builder, we're very much aware of how inflation has affected the cost of building new facilities.

Costs have risen dramatically for both materials and construction labor. That's why it makes good building sense to take a look at Stran's building systems approach. Why?

- Most of the building is fabricated in a modern manufacturing plant to take advantage of automation and more productive man-hour utilization.
- The system is designed and produced to go together fast at your jobsite. Saving valuable man-hours in on-site construction costs.

So before calling off your plans for a new building, call us and let's see how we can help you deflate inflation. We may have you breaking ground after all.

Northwest Athletic Conference high school basketball race started off with a bang Friday when defending champion Bemidji, expected to struggle through the 1979-80 season, upset preseason NWAC favorite Crookston 52-48 on the Pirates' court.

Crookston, by coach Marshall Olson's own admission, expects to have a banner winter campaign. That undoubtedly includes an NWAC pennant. While the Pirates can certainly bounce back from a single setback to fulfill Olson's expectations, a conference-opening loss is tough to take; especially a home court decision you expect to win.

Northwest Athletic Conference basketball officials decide a champion by the point system. If you play a conference opponent twice during the year the game is worth one point. A single meeting makes it a two-point game. Bemidji, winning just six games all year, won the 1978-79 NWAC pennant by beating Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks in two-point games while splitting home-and-home sets with Crookston and Thief River Falls. The Lumberjacks beat East Grand Forks in overtime, lost to Thief River Falls in overtime, beat Fergus Falls by a single point, lost to Crookston by one point and then won the title with a two-point victory at Crookston late in the year.

But Bemidji lost top scorer John Noga from that 6-13 team and then suffered a key loss when senior center Tom Campbell, a 6-3 high jumper, hurt a knee during the football season this fall and will probably miss the entire 1979-80 basketball season.

But it was a combined 30-point effort from 6-2 senior forwards Tony Murphy (16) and Rob Egersdorf (14) that offset a 20-point performance by Crookston star Tim Knotek in Friday's NWAC opener.

However, Bemidji's stay atop the conference standings was short — one day. The Lumberjacks returned from Crookston to host Fergus Falls in another two-point NWAC contest Saturday and the Otters won it 74-65. A Bemidji victory would have set the Lumberjacks up pretty this early in the season.

Now it's the Otters who may rank as NWAC favorites. The struggling Fergus Falls basketball program received a big boost this year with the arrival of 6-4 forward Lonnie Meade, a senior transfer student from Elkader, Iowa. Meade, "a good one," according to most reports, scored 21 points in the win over Bemidji.

Benefiting from an early season schedule that includes five of their first seven games at home, the Otters, who were just 1-17 a year ago, are 4-1.

A key Northwest Athletic Conference basketball game will be played Friday when Thief River Falls opens its NWAC schedule at Crookston. The Pirates can ill afford another conference loss this early in the season, and the 3-0 Prowlers consider themselves title contenders.

But outside of a 57-56 victory at Grafton, Thief River Falls has looked less than impressive in opening the season with three straight wins for the first time since 1974-75. Home court victories over Roseau 67-49 and Kennedy 52-41 Friday were not well-played games. Fans will probably use Friday's out-come at Crookston to judge the Prowlers' worth.

In that 1974-75 season, Thief River Falls opened with four straight wins, beating Alvarado 64-46, Roseau 58-27, Grafton 48-46 and Grand Forks Central 58-56 in double overtime before losing to Breckenridge 64-55. The Prowlers reached the Region 8 finals that year before a 39-37 loss to Mahnomen ended an outstanding 20-5 season.

Miscellaneous

Prowlers Beat Kennedy 52-41

Disappointed in his team's play, Lincoln high school basketball coach Glen Peters still paid his Prowlers a compliment of sorts following Friday's unimpressive 52-41 victory over Kennedy by saying, "As bad as he played, we still won the game. That's what's hard to believe. In the last few years we would have lost a game like that."

A more formidable opponent would have produced a loss for the Prowlers who entered the game as the heavy favorite in most basketball minds. Instead, Thief River Falls finds itself 3-0 heading into Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference opener at Crookston.

"Our heads weren't in the game," admitted Peters. "But sometimes it's tough to play against a team like Kennedy. It just wasn't one of our better games; we're capable of playing a lot better. But you have to give Kennedy credit; they're a scrappy outfit."

Kennedy played the bigger Prowlers on even terms in the first half, owning a 14-10 first quarter lead and trailing just 24-22 at intermission. A big part of the Rockets' success was their surprising board strength. With 6-2 center Randy Dahl the only Kennedy player topping the six-foot mark, the Rockets used positioning to double Thief River Falls' rebound total through the first quarter and one-half. And the visitors lost the battle of the boards by a mere 33-31 at game's end.

"We played initial tough defense, but we weren't aggressive on the boards at all," mentioned Peters.

Thief River Falls pretty much decided the issue in the first two minutes of the second half when Todd Young scored a fast break lay-up off the half-opening jump ball; Greg Miller followed suit by scoring on a lay-up off a jump ball under the Thief River Falls basket; and Young dropped in a pair of free throws for a quick 30-22 edge.

It became 38-29 by the end of the quarter and the difference spread to 50-33 with 2:10 remaining before reserves flooded the court.

Thief River Falls worked the ball inside on the Rockets to finish with a 23-for-43, 53 per cent shooting performance. Kennedy, meanwhile, struggled from the field where eight blocked shots were included in the Rockets' 13-for-47, 28 per cent shooting. Held to just four second half field goals, Kennedy did most of its offensive work from the free throw line where the Rockets were 15-for-26. Daryll Foss, the game's high scorer with 13 points, collected 11 of those points at the free throw line.

The two teams divided 39 turnovers, with the Rockets losing the ball 20 times.

Five-Goal First Period Beats Blue Wave . . .

Prowlers Open With 7-3 Victory

Wendell Grand called it a "one-period victory" Saturday as the Lincoln high school hockey coach watched his team jump out to a 5-0 first period lead with a strong play that eroded away in the final two periods of the Prowlers' 7-3 season-opening win over Crookston Mount St. Benedict in the sports arena.

"We won the first period 5-0, then lost the other two," said Grand. "I guess you could say we were happy with our first period, but other than that we were disappointed in our play. I didn't think we'd have to work as hard as we did to score seven goals after we got those first five."

Thief River Falls started in impressive fashion as Wade Hoppe put the Prowlers' first shot on goal into the Blue Wave net. The senior center picked up a loose puck in front of Crookston goalie Jon Brekken and quickly lifted the puck with a wrist shot that caught the corner of the net with just 1:06 elapsed.

Hoppe was 2-for-2 a few minutes later when his second host of the game — a long sailer from the center ice area — eluded Brekken at 4:30.

A power play goal by Paul Drees made it 3-0 at 9:49 as he took a perfect feed out of the corner from Bob Fitzgerald for an easy tap-in.

Thief River Falls broke it open when Jim Thompson and Jeff Ulrich scored just 18 seconds apart — both less than two minutes after Drees' goal.

But that ended the hockey for the night — the good stuff, at least. A dead second period was followed by a third period that wasn't particularly well-played, but did feature five goals — three by the Blue Wave against Thief River Falls back-up goalie Jeff Mongoven.

A long slap shot by Fitzgerald made it 6-0 at 2:15 of the third period.

Mount St. Benedict needed just three seconds on the power play to score at 2:49 when Dave Ogaard scored from the face-off to the left of Mongoven.

Fitzgerald went to his backhand to beat Brekken at 9:43 when Tom Bjorkman's lead pass put him behind the Blue Wave defense.

Mount St. Benedict completed the scoring when Ogaard caught the short side at 10:32 and John Rock lifted up a power play rebound at 13:02.

Thief River Falls played without co-captain Dave Geatz. The senior defenseman missed the game because of illness, forcing the Prowlers to go with three inexperienced defenseman, along with veteran Brian Ranum. "We definitely missed David," said Grand who expects him to be at practice today (Monday) and in the line-up Saturday when the Prowlers play at Fergus Falls.

JOHN SMITH of Crookston Mount St. Benedict had his third period shot blocked by Thief River Falls goalie Jeff Mongoven Saturday night in a Section 8 high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Sophomore defenseman Steve Olson, making his varsity debut, tried to help Mongoven on the play. Thief River Falls won 7-3.

Northwomen Lose Opener At Bottineau

Northland community college women's basketball team opened its 1979-80 season Saturday by losing a 58-43 game at Bottineau, N.D.

"They weren't 15 points better than we are; they're five games more experienced than we were," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson, pointing to Bottineau's earlier start than the Northwomen.

Three Bottineau scorers reached double figures, led by game-high scorer Janelle Haskins with 21 points. Freshman Julie Easton scored 10 points to pace the Northwomen who trailed 28-20 at halftime.

Northland shot 32 per cent from the field, hitting 19 of 60 shots. Bottineau made 26 of 78 shots for 33 per cent. The Northwomen were 5-for-8 at the free throw line where Bottineau was 6-for-8. Outrebounded 56-37, Northland also topped the turnover charts 28-27.

The Northwomen will participate in the Lake Region invitational tournament this weekend at Devils Lake, N.D.

Lincoln Girls Host Flyers Tuesday . . .

Prowlers Play Fisher In Basketball Opener

A year ago the Lincoln high school girls basketball team shot just 26 per cent from the field for the year and finished with an 8-12 record. The lid has remained on the basket for the Prowlers in preseason drills and scrimmages heading into the 1979 season opener Tuesday against Fisher in the Lincoln gym. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

"If our shooting doesn't improve it's going to be a real struggle," admitted Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "If we don't shoot better than 25 per cent we'll have a tough time of it. If we can shoot 35 to 40 per cent we'll win because I think our defense is good enough. But you can't win if you don't score."

Two starters return off last year's ball club — captain Roberta Engel, a senior, and Ann Goodrich, a sophomore. They'll be joined in Tuesday's lineup by senior Kathy Beito and junior Kim McFarland, top varsity reserves last winter. Junior Sally Narverud or sophomore LeAnn Paetznick will round out the starting unit. Juniors Karen Kjoety, Marlys Huot and Carla Ode will probably be top players off the bench.

"We're going to have to play a lot of defense to make up for the lack of shooting," mentioned Sjoberg. "Either that, or get a lot of rebounds."

And rebounds won't be easy to come by either since the Prowlers do not have much in the way of height this winter. However, Engel was the team's top rebounder last year when she averaged 8.1 rebounds per game to go along with an 8.3 scoring average. Goodrich did little scoring last winter, but was one of the top ball handlers in the area as she quarterbacked the team, as the point guard.

Rest of the squad members heading into the opener include seniors Stacy Sinn and Colleen Kron, junior Rhonda Sanders and sophomores Karmin Espe, Patty Blackstad, Jill Matson, Karen Wedul, Tara Nicholson, Peggy Hamre, Katy Kinsman and Mary Dondelinger.

Starting her second year as the Prowlers' head coach Sjoberg faces a challenging schedule that features all seven Thief River Falls North Half Region 8AA opponents, along with several of the area's Class A schools.

Tom Schafer serves as Sjoberg's top assistant coach, with Lynn Dyer directing the freshman squad.

Tuesday night will be the only Thief River Falls home appearance of 1979. The Prowlers, who will be at Park Rapids Thursday, won't return to the Lincoln gym until Jan. 12 to face McIntosh-Winger.

Lincoln Hockey JV Wins By 10-Goal Rule

This year's new 10-goal hockey rule — similar to baseball's 10-run rule — that ends high school games anytime a team has a 10-goal lead after two periods was put into immediate use Saturday in Thief River Falls' 11-1 season-opening junior varsity win over Crookston Mount St. Benedict.

Thief River Falls built a 4-0 first period lead, made it 7-1 in the second period and put a premature end to the game when Grant Torgerson scored with 10:54 remaining in the third period.

Lincoln Tops Kennedy JV 59-39 Friday

Thief River Falls jumped out to a 22-9 first quarter lead and coasted to a 59-39 junior varsity high school basketball win over Kennedy Friday.

Now 2-1 for the year, Thief River Falls led 29-17 at halftime and enjoyed a 48-25 third quarter cushion.

Rick Trontvet scored 11 points for the winners.

Wildlife Group Produces New Education Set

National Wildlife Federation has announced a new wildlife education series — "Wildlife in Your World" — designed for teachers and parents of elementary school-aged children. The first kit of the series is "Animals of North America" and is available for $8.95.

The kit includes 16 full-color photographs, measuring 8½ inches by 11 inches, of familiar North American animals, from the red fox to the herring gull. Each photograph is mounted on poster board. The reverse side contains facts about the animal — what it eats, how big it is, where it lives, and how it raises its young.

The kit, an educational service of the nonprofit NWF, contains a book of 16 short stories, one for each animal, featuring children and their encounters with animals. The stories are coded for various reading levels.

The kit's 19-page teacher's guide suggests games, puzzles, crafts, and other activities for students and includes a glossary of scientific terms.

To receive a "Wildlife in Your World" kit, send $8.95 to the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Doug Rud — Thief River Falls

MOUNT ST. BENEDICT goalie Jon Brekken turned aside a Thief River Falls shot during the second period of Saturday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena. Thief River Falls forwards Wade Hoppe (13), Jim Thompson (15) and Jeff Ulrich (14) all kept an eye on the puck. That trio produced four goals and eight points in the Prowlers' 7-3 season-opening triumph over the Blue Wave. Brekken faced 44 shots, with the sophomore netminder stopping 37.

Nordics Press Rams To Claim Surprisingly Easy 67-47 Win

Full court pressure defense limited Roseau to just 16 points in the middle two quarters Friday as Marshall County Central stunned the defending North Border Conference champion Rams 67-47 on their own court.

Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland declined to slap a contender label on his team after the surprisingly easy win over the Rams who were considered a North Border co-favorite this winter, along with Lake of the Woods. "It doesn't make us an instant contender," said Ueland, "but it does make up for those two nonconference losses to start the year. This is one of those wins you get every other year that really picks you up."

Roseau led 11-7 at the end of the first quarter before drawing blanks against the Marshall County Central press that supplied the Nordics with a 27-23 halftime edge and a 48-27 third quarter cushion. The visitors built a 30-point lead in the fourth quarter.

"We came with an all-out full court press in the middle two quarters," explained Ueland. "They turned the ball over to us 30 times, and we were fortunate enough to score off the turnovers.

Scott Peters led a balanced Marshall County Central attack with 16 points while Ray Kvalvog contributed 14 and Dan Maki had 10.

"We did a lot of things well," pointed out Ueland. "We hustled, we played defense very well and our reserves played extremely well for us. When you play the type of game we play, you play a lot of kids. They all came in and did a good job for us."

Marshall County Central finished with a 24-for-59, 41 per cent shooting night from the field. Roseau made just 12 of 39 shots for 31 per cent. The Nordics were 19-for-32 at the free throw line and the Rams for 23-of-41 in the foul-plagued game. Roseau held a 30-26 rebound edge.

The Nordics, 2-2 for the season and 2-0 in conference play, will be at Warroad Tuesday.

Grygla 33

Minus several starters because of disciplinary reasons, Grygla was an easy North Border Conference victim for Middle River Friday, 82-33.

And the Skippers did it with scoring star Scott McKeever collecting just four points — thought to be the junior's lowest point total since the eighth grade.

"He still played a good game," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby of McKeever who has been the focus of most defenses this year. "He had a good floor game and he played good defense. The shots just weren't there for him."

Jon Neumann led the assault for the 4-0 Skippers with 16 points. Brian Walton had 13 and Eugene Kaml finished with 10 as Middle River took a 16-6 first quarter lead and turned it into a 42-13 halftime bulge.

Middle River will be at Plummer Tuesday before returning to North Border Conference play Friday at Roseau.

Red Lake Falls 47

Goodridge missed 11 free throws and lost four-point Polar Conference game to Red Lake Falls, 47-43.

"It was just unreal," said Goodridge coach Rick Nelson as he talked about the Huskies' free throw shooting that saw them miss ten times on the front end of bonus situations. "That killed us right there."

It was close throughout. The game was tied at 10-10 in the first quarter, Goodridge held a slim 22-20 halftime edge and it was deadlocked again at the end of the third quarter, 30-30.

Kevin Erickson of Red Lake Falls scored 20 points, with Rock Cullen of Goodridge supplying 17 in his first starting role in place of injured Randy Henrickson, the team's top performer who will be sidelined with an ankle injury until mid-January. "Cullen played a heck of a game for us," praised Nelson.

Both teams made 19 field goals, but Goodridge was 5-for-16 at the free throw line and Red Lake Falls was 9-for-13. The Huskies made 19 of 49 field goal attempts for 39 per cent, a slightly better figure than the Eagles' 19-for-57, 33 per cent showing.

Goodridge, 1-4, will play at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday.

BSU Receives $17,700 Grant Through DNR

A grant of $17,700 was recently received by Bemidji state university's center for environmental studies through the Minnesota department of natural resources, according to Dr. Charles H. Fuchsman, center director and professor of environmental studies.

The funding is for preliminary evaluation of Minnesota peat as a chemical feedstock for the production of wax, coke and single-cell protein; drilling mud additives; lubricants and pharmacologically active substances. Another purpose of the program is to attempt to assess the marketability in the U.S. of peat-derived chemicals, using peat samples supplied by the DNR. The grant is in effect through 1980.

The need for such a program was delineated in a report to the Minnesota department of natural resources peat program, "The Industrial Chemical Technology of Peat," by C.H. Fuchsman in February 1978. An initial study of the chemical potential of Minnesota's peat is described in a report, entitled, "Preliminary Analytical Survey of Minnesota's Peats for Possible Industrial Chemical Utilization," by C.H. Fuchsman, K.R. Lundberg and K.A. Dreyer in May of 1979.

"This new program gives us an opportunity to expand our own capabilities in peat-related research and instruction. It will benefit the State of Minnesota in the environmentally sound management of a very important natural resource," Fuchsman said. "We also welcome the opportunity to establish communications with companies interested in the field partly because of the enhanced employment possibilities which it may offer to BSU graduates."

Strandquist 50
Grygla 37

Strandquist broke open a close game by out-scoring Grygla 15-4 in the third quarter Saturday enroute to a 50-37 win.

The Warriors led just 20-17 at halftime, but pulled away 35-21 in the third quarter to hand the host Eagles their fourth straight setback.

"We've got the third quarter blues," mused Grygla coach Jerry Maki. "It's just like there's a cover on the basket in the third quarter. It's happened to us every game."

Grygla draws a tough assignment Tuesday, playing a tall Lake of the Woods team in a North Border Conference game at Baudette. The Eagles host Warroad Friday.

State DNR Is Conducting Mail Survey

About 22,000 Minnesota hunters and trappers will be receiving a postcard questionnaire from the Department of Natural Resources during December and January.

Information received from the survey enables the DNR to estimate the take of wild animals during the seasons and to determine hunting pressure and hunting success.

Officials said such information is critical in planning wildlife management programs which improve hunting and trapping opportunities.

Hunters and trappers receiving the questionnaire were selected at random. They are being asked to return the postage-paid card promptly so that survey results will be available late this winter when the Department begins planning the seasons for 1980.

Northmen Win Red River Basketball Tournament

Scoring 310 points in three games, Northland community college successfully defended its title in the Red River community college invitational basketball tournament played in Winnipeg Friday and Saturday.

The Northmen began the tournament Friday afternoon with a 115-72 win over the University of Winnipeg junior varsity. Northland out-scored the Red River alumni 113-87 in Saturday afternoon's semifinals, then knocked off the Spaghetti Factory, a men's senior amateur team from Winnipeg, 82-74 in Saturday night's championship game.

"Our kids hustled. Everybody played well," said Northland coach Chet Engelman.

But despite averaging over 103 points during the tournament, Engelman wasn't satisfied with the Northmen offensively. "Defensively we didn't play too poorly," he noted. "Offensively we left a little to be desired. We got away from the team concept at times. But when we really needed it — like in the championship game — the kids came through."

Northland, now 4-0, will play a weekend series against Trinity Bible Institute Friday night and Saturday afternoon in Ellendale, N.D.

Winnipeg JV 72

Freshman Terry Harris poured in 42 points and pulled down 15 rebounds as Northland handled the University of Winnipeg junior varsity 115-72. Harris was just four points shy of the 46-point Northland one-game scoring record held jointly by David Dickey and Dale Hanson.

Northland's full-court pressure defense forced Winnipeg into 53 turnovers, a new school record in the recovery department by the Northmen who mishandled the ball 24 times themselves. Tony Smith and Chris Kays both came up with 10 loose ball recoveries for the Northmen.

Shooting an even 50 per cent from the field for the game, Northland made 52 of 104 field goal attempts. Winnipeg hit 27 of 62 shots for 44 per cent. The Northmen were 11-for-17 at the free throw line where Winnipeg was 18-for-32. Winnipeg finished with a 57-50 rebound advantage.

Red River Alumni . . 87

Northland opened with an 8-0 lead and was never threatened as the Northmen breezed to a 113-87 victory over the Red River alumni.

The one-two punch of Terry Harris and Vince Parker produced 48 points as Harris collected 25 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and blocked seven shots. Parker, meanwhile, hit 23 points from his guard position.

Northland enjoyed a 54 per cent, 46-for-85 shooting game while Red River went 31-for-84 for 37 per cent. There were 77 free throws shot in the semifinal match as Northland made 21 of 38 from the line and Red River sank 25 of 39. Northland finished with a 67-57 edge on the boards and Red River topped the turnover charts 36-30.

Spaghetti Factory . . 74

In a roughly played championship game, Northland overcame a 39-36 halftime deficit to beat the Spaghetti Factory, a collection of former Canadian high school or college standouts, 82-74.

A 10-point burst in the second half put Northland in front for the first time, 50-47, with 14:17 remaining. But the Northmen didn't get the lead for keeps until Tony Smith sandwiched two baskets around a Vince Parker bucket for a 59-55 edge with 6:29 left. That ballooned to 80-68 in the final two minutes.

Terry Harris continued his strong tournament performance with an 18-point, 18-rebound game. Parker led the Northmen with 23 points and Smith starred with 16 points, 12 rebounds and eight loose ball recoveries.

Neither team shot very well. Northland was 32-for-85 for 38 per cent from the field and the Spaghetti Factory was 32-for-94 for 34 per cent. From the free throw line the Northmen were 18-for-27 and the Spaghetti Factory was 10-for-14. The losers led both the rebound charts (69-63) and turnover figures (28-17).

Cardinals Lose To Flyers 37-36

A strong first quarter showing fizzled at the end Thursday as Plummer lost to Fisher 37-36 in girls high school basketball.

The Cardinals opened with a 9-0 lead and had the perennially strong Flyers down 17-2 at one point before settling for a 17-6 lead at the end of the first quarter. Fisher trailed 23-15 at halftime but pulled within 29-27 by the end of the third quarter.

"We were blowing them away at the start," noted Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "Then we started standing around in the second half."

Still, the host Cardinals enjoyed a 37-34 edge with less than 30 seconds remaining and they were standing at the free throw line with a chance to put the game away. But Fisher rebounded the missed shot and quickly scored for a 37-36 game. Another missed Plummer free throw with 20 seconds to go led to an 18-foot game-winning shot by the Flyers' Caroline Love with five seconds on the clock.

"That's definitely one that shouldn't have gotten away," sighed Koivisto whose team dropped to 1-1 with the loss.

Diane Fisher scored a game-high 16 points for the Cardinals, with 10 of those points coming in that first quarter blitz. Mary Westlake added 10 points for the Cardinals who close out their pre-Christmas schedule this week with games Tuesday at Gonvick and Thursday at Goodridge.

Strandquist managed to collect just five field goals against a strong Middle River defense Thursday as the Skippers won 40-29.

The Strandquist girls led 6-4 at the end of the first quarter but trailed 18-8 at halftime and fell behind even further, 28-19, in the third quarter.

First half shooting problems disappeared in the second half for Goodridge Thursday as the Huskies beat Gonvick 49-34 in their home opener.

A bundle of missed shots — lay-ups included — held Goodridge to an 8-8 first quarter tie. The Huskies managed to take a 21-18 lead into intermission, then made it 34-38 in the third quarter.

"We played a lot better in the second half," pointed out Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff. "They ran the same thing, but they were just more aware of what they were doing."

Mary Kiesow scored 19 points and Angie Berndt had 11 for the Huskies, now 1-1. Goodridge will host Mount St. Benedict of Crookston Tuesday and will entertain Plummer Thursday.

LOW 26

Dawn Nelson poured in 20 points Friday to lead Middle River to its third win of the season-opening week, 44-26 over Lake of the Woods.

Middle River broke open a 6-6 ball game by out-scoring the Bears 18-2 in the second quarter for a 24-8 halftime cushion.

"We'll be respectable," promised Middle River coach Tom Neibauer as he looked ahead to the rest of the 1979-80 season, "but we might have trouble with teams like Grygla, Roseau and Newfolden."

The Skippers will host Badger tonight (Monday) and will play at Greenbush Tuesday.

Badger 23

Marshall County Central handled a new defense like seasoned performers in beating Badger 48-23 Thursday at Newfolden.

"Our defense played fairly well," acknowledged Nordics coach Tom Mjelde. "We put in a press for the first time last night and it worked well for us."

The Nordics, who gave up just 35 points in a season-opening 51-35 win over Lancaster a week earlier, held Badger to a single third quarter point as a 23-12 halftime lead went to 35-13 in the third quarter.

Marshall County Central will host Karlstad tonight (Monday) before driving to Warroad Thursday.

DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED

DECEMBER MOOSE hunt proved to be hard work after Mike Mongoven (right) downed this large bull near the Elm Lake wildlife management area. The moose was shot at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, but eight men were needed to drag the animal to the nearest road one mile away. They finally made their way out of the brush about noon Thursday. Jeff Johnson, Jeff Mongoven and Dana Mongoven were other members of the official hunting party.

370 YACC Workers Used On DNR Jobs

Approximately 370 young adult conservation corps workers were employed by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources during the past year, it was announced by the DNR.

Those qualified for YACC work are between the ages of 16 and 23 inclusive, are unemployed and not in school, legal residents of the U.S. and capable of performing the strenuous outdoor work.

YACC workers are employed in state parks, state forests and other public lands where they plant trees, repair buildings and other facilities, brush out roads and trails, clean up campgrounds and perform dozens of other tasks required to maintain public recreational sites, public property and public lands.

DNR officials say much of the work accomplished by YACC crews would not otherwise have been done due to lack of funds and personnel.

Cost figures show that for every $1 expended in the YACC program the public received $1.15 in the value of work accomplished.

The program is supported 100 per cent by federal funds.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our wife and mother, Olga Ryan, who passed away on December 11, 1977.

We do not need a special day
To bring you to our minds.
The days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were ours to give
We'd give it, yes and more
To see the face we loved so well
Come smiling at our door.

Sadly missed by husband Ole and children

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

December 10, 1979
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minn.
November 20, 1979

Pursuant to adjournment, the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., November 20, 1979.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

A proposed Plan for development of a 911 Emergency Telephone Service was presented to the Board for discussion. The Plan generalized the development but left some questions unanswered. The 911 Plan is intended to provide for a single emergency number for all people in the State to use to call for emergency assistance. Each area must develop a system which will allow anyone to dial 911 on their phone and they will get an answering service or someone that will handle the problem. In addition to this the system will 'hold' the number making the call to allow a trace of the call should the caller fail to give an address. The matter is to be taken up again at a later meeting with more information to be gathered with cost figures in place.

Sheriff Richards discussed matters relating to his Office but no action was required.

The minutes of the meetings of Oct. 23 and 25 and Nov. 6th were read and approved as read.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Koop that a levy be made for ditch maintenance purposes against property assessed to the various ditches for 1979 payable 1980, and when such tax is collected, such maintenance levy shall be credited to the various ditches, as follows: A four per cent levy on property in the County Ditch 44 area; An eight per cent levy is assessed against property in the area benefited by Jud. No. 1 and Jud. No. 41. A 10 per cent levy against Rox San No. 1 (8), Wy-Ri- 2 (16), Co. 42, Co. 51, Co. 55, Co. 68, Co. 76 and Jud. No. 11; and a 20 per cent levy against San-BR No. 1 (1), Co. 25, Co. 31, Co. 35, Co. 37, Co. 38, Co. 39, Co. 43, Co. 47, Co. 49, Co. 53, Co. 75, Jud. No. 14 and Jud. No. 25-2.

Motion declared unanimously carried.

The Auditor presented the unpaid accounts that have accumulated over the last several years as a result of work done by the Highway Department (mostly snowplowing) and the individual [illegible] the area of for some [illegible] paid. It was pointed [illegible] these people were [illegible] the entire [illegible] process which is [illegible] by some people. [illegible] Stenberg seconded by [illegible] that delinquent bills [illegible] to 1975 and 6 minor [illegible] statements that have [illegible] because the party [illegible] of the County should [illegible] from the Accounts [illegible] record in the Highway [illegible], all according to a list [illegible] Board. Motion declared [illegible] carried.

The Auditor presented the board with a letter from the Department of Revenue which indicated that all rural lands were being increased in value by 30 per cent for the assessment year 1979 for taxes payable in 1980.

Application for half a homestead was approved for Wesley Skibicki on 16.4 acres in Sec. 24 in North Twp.

Moved by Koop seconded by Tasa that Jacqueline Schwitez, Rt. 3, Thief River Falls be appointed to the Board of the Agassiz Health Systems Agency with headquarters in East Grand Forks, said appointment to fill vacancy on the Board created by resignation of Ev Ault. Motion carried.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Koop that meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M., Dec. 11, 1979. Motion carried.

Trace Superstition To Christmas Holly

"Tis the season to deck the halls, but before you bring home boughs of holly you ought to know some of the history and superstition surrounding that tough, prickly-leaved, berry-bearing plant, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

Since the days of the ancient Celts, magical powers have been ascribed to holly, the National Wildlife Federation bi-monthly reports. And one legend holds that weather conditions at the time Christmas holly is brought in will determine who runs the household — the husband or the wife.

Holly's use as a decoration dates back to the Druids, a religious order that thrived in pre-Christian England and France. "These woodsy priests considered the plant's eternally green leaves proof that the sun would never desert them," the magazine explains.

Early Romans extended this tradition by hanging holly indoors during the feast of Saturnalia, a mid-winter festival celebrating the return of longer days. Early Christian converts also adopted this ritual by designating Christmas Eve as "templa exornata" — "temples are adorned." It was forbidden to bring any greens into the home before that night.

"Because of this ban on early decorating, many Christians believed that bringing holly into a house too soon would cause family quarrels and misfortune," National Wildlife says.

As Christianity spread, so did holly legends. In one tale, the plant was said to have had white berries until the Nativity. When a visitor broke off a branch of a holly tree growing outside the Bethlehem stable and offered it to the Christ Child, the baby pricked his finger on the sharply pointed leaves. "Horribly embarrassed, the holly blushed and its berries have remained red ever since."

Another holly superstition was promoted by Pliny, the early Roman naturalist. He asserted that a wild animal could be subdued merely by throwing a stick of holly at it. "He also alleged," notes National Wildlife, "that holly flowers could make water freeze, and that if the tree was planted near a house it would protect the inhabitants from bad weather, poison and witchcraft."

Medieval English physicians thought holly berries could cure colic, but patients who followed their doctors' orders sometimes died from the violent vomiting the berries induced. Holly leaves, however, are harmless when roasted and brewed for team. The brew was often drunk by South American Indians, who thought it gave them extra strength.

Subject of all these legends comes in more than 200 varieties, including some that lose their leaves each autumn. Nearly two dozen species are found in the U.S., the most common of which is American holly. This variety once grew thickly in forests throughout the eastern U.S., but now only a fraction of those wild stands remain, according to National Wildlife.

Like other varieties, American holly trees are single-sexed. Only the female plants produce the scarlet berries, and not until they are at least 8-years-old. The berries are food for mockingbirds, thrushes, robins, bluebirds and many other animals.

"Beneath its rough gray bark, holly wood is chalky white and hard as rock," says National Wildlife. Once prized by cabinetmakers for its indestructible quality, the plant is now considered a nuisance because it's tough enough to break a chain saw.

Most of the holly boughs seen at Christmastime come from English holly, which grows wild throughout much of southern Europe. It was imported into the Pacific Northwest by a group of British immigrants and now about 1,000 acres in Washington and Oregon are used to cultivate the plant and fill our Christmas decorating needs.

If you contribute to the $3 million Christmas holly industry, maybe you'd better check the weather first. An old Irish Catholic legend has it that if holly is brought inside during fair weather, the wife will rule the household forevermore. But if boughs are brought in during a storm, the husband will be master.

For Christmas: Be A Cotton Picker

Need a gift idea? Try a high-fashion, high-quality all-cotton shirt.

You can give great gifts for the holidays and all year long without losing the shirt off your back if you give some of these elegant, easy-care and relatively inexpensive cotton shirts.

Pretty and practical, comfortable whatever the weather and attractive with anything from fashion jeans to full-length skirts, shirts such as this lovely Lady Arrow Cotton-Ease are made even better by being made of Sanfor-Set finished cotton, so you can wash and wear them. This one features a sophisticated small collar and a colorful print of birds and branches that has a hand-painted, Oriental look.

Cotton clothes are comfortable because cotton is a natural fiber. It "breathes" so it's not hot and sticky in summer nor cold and clammy in winter. Because such shirts don't have to be ironed, they save time, money, trouble and energy — yours as well as the nation's.

The same material is made into marvelous shirts that can make marvelous presents for the men on your list, especially if the women in their lives would rather do almost anything than iron shirts.

These attractive, easy-care shirts make such great gifts you may want to give several — to yourself.

Peat Has Capability To Provide State's Energy

by Rebecca Judge
Peat Project Coordinator

Recent government studies indicate that Minnesota's 7.2 million acres of peatlands contain enough energy to meet all of Minnesota's fuel requirements for the next 180 years.

According to the U.S. department of energy, Minnesota's peat reserves contain the energy equivalent of 32.9 billion barrels of oil, or 198 quads (BTU measurement). Minnesota's energy consumption for all of 1976 totalled 1.1 quads.

Pending legislative approval, many plans are being made to utilize this abundant energy resource. Minnesota Gas company (Minnegasco) has submitted an application to the Minnesota department of natural resources to build a large-scale peat gasification plant in Koochiching county. Once operational, the plant could provide the state with nearly half (41 per cent) of its yearly natural gas requirements. The proposed plant would require approximately 200,000 contiguous acres of peatlands, harvested to a depth of six feet, over its 20-year operational lifetime.

The city of Virginia is also considering peat power. Plans for a new district heating power station have included an investigation of the feasibility of using peat as the primary fuel through direct combustion. Capital costs of a peat-fired plant would be $35 million, as compared with $22 million for an oil-fired plant and $31 million for a coal-fired plant. The higher costs of the peat-powered plant might be offset by the relatively low price of peat.

If the power station were in operation 5,600 hours per year, peat would be economically competitive at a price of $13.50 per ton. The current market price for peat is $13.36 per ton. This price is expected to decrease with more efficient harvesting methods and increased peat utilization. Should demand on the plant be less than 5,600 hours per year, the price of peat would have to be much lower to be economically attractive.

On a smaller scale, individual homeowners may want to consider burning peat in their fireplaces instead of wood. Peat bricks can be easily made by cutting blocks of peat from the bog and leaving them outside to dry. Since peat has a heating value superior to wood, this may be a viable alternative for those of us seeking to cut our heating fuel consumption. At this time, the state is not considering a permit system to allow this type of harvesting on public lands.

A major obstacle to peat utilization as an energy source is its high water content. In its natural state, peatlands contain about 90 per cent water by weight. This means that for every 10 pounds of peat extraced from a bog, nine pounds are water and only one pound is peat. In order to be used as fuel, peat must contain no more than 50 per cent water. In other words, eight pounds of water must be removed from each 10-pound block.

At the 50 per cent moisture level, peat combustion releases 4,000 to 5,000 BTU's per pound, a heating value roughly equal to that of some woods. At 30 per cent moisture, peat has a heating value close to that of lignite coal (7,300 BTU's per pound). Totally dry peat approximates sub-bituminous coal in heating value.

Researchers at the institute of gas technology in Chicago are investigating alternative methods of removing water from peat. They are experimenting with a process which presses peat between two large rollers and squeezes out much of the water. Peat processed via this method usually has a moisture content of approximately 70 per cent. This peat is then placed in a high temerpature "pressure-cooker" until moisture content is sufficiently low for utilization.

In Europe, where peat has been used as a fuel for centuries, peat is cut from the bog and allowed to dry on the field's surface. Moisture content can be reduced by this method to anywhere from 30 per cent to 50 per cent. U.S. air quality standards established by the clean air act essentially rule out this simple, energy-efficient method, as peat particles become airborne easily, causing a general degradation of the air quality within a 30-mile radius of the harvesting area.

Oak Hills Choir Concert Given Dec. 15 and 16

"Specially for Shepherds," a cantata by Ralph Carmichael, will be presented by the ninth annual Christmas festival choir Saturday, December 15 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, December 16 at 2:30 p.m.

Kenneth J. Wold, director of music at Oak Hills Bible Institute, Bemidji, will conduct the 70-voice choir made up of students and staff of the school.

Among soloists is Debbie Nygard, Thief River Falls.

Public is invited to attend either or both of these identical services conducted in the fellowship center chapel on the Marquette Lakeshore campus of Oak Hills Bible institute, two miles south and two miles west of Bemidji on the Oak Hills road.

Marshall ASC Community Election Held

Community committeemen for the agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) in Marshall county were elected recently with slightly more than 25 per cent of the eligible farmers voting, according to Alton Nybladh, chairman of the committee.

Nybladh said that out of a total of 2,915 farmers eligible to vote in the election, 799 votes were cast. Newly-elected committeemen will meet at the county convention Monday, December 17, at 9:30 a.m. in the PKM building in Warren to elect a member to the county committee for a three-year term, a county committee chairman, vice chairman and two alternates to the committee.

Presently serving on the committee in addition to Nybladh are Einar Strandquist and Leo Orpen. Delegates to the county convention are the community committee chairman, vice chairman and regular member.

County and community ASCS committees are in charge of local administration of such national farm programs as commodity loans, wheat and feed grain set-aside, wool, agricultural conservation practices (ACP) and disaster programs. This year about 85 per cent of Marshall county farmers took part in one of more of the programs administered by the ASCS committees, compared with about 80 per cent in 1978.

Community committeemen elected for the Times area include the following with chairman, vice chairman, first, second and third alternates listed respectively:

Agder, East Valley, Excel, Holt, Newfolden and New Solum townships — Harold Lambert and Clifford Jorde, Thief River Falls; Robert Dahl, Lester Elseth and Richard Moen, Newfolden;

Alma, Comstock, Foldahl, Marsh Grove, McCrea and Viking townships — Leonard Gonsorowski, Newfolden; Arnie Maurstad, Argyle; Franklin Knoll and Gordon Wetterlund, Warren; and Eugene Jorgenson, Argyle;

Augsburg, Lincoln, Nelson Park, Wanger, West Valley and Wright — Thomas Urbaniak, Argyle; Phillip Boen, Strandquist; George A. Kuznia and Lowell Hogberg, Argyle; and Frank Kasprowicz, Stephen;

Cedar, Como, East Park, Huntly, New Maine and Spruce Valley — Dean Anderson and Vernon Bengston, Newfolden; Armand Westlund, Strathcona; Donovan Rudd and Thalmer Johnson, Middle River;

Eckvoll, Espelie, Grand Plain, Moylan and Valley — Lloyd Wiseth, Merlin Drangstveit, Roy W. Anderson, Rodney Wayne and Vernon Rogalla, all Goodridge;

1980 Farmer's Tax Guide Is Now Available

Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director, announced today that the 1980 edition of the Farmer's Tax guide is now available. It provides a very useful reference for what is new in federal taxes that may affect farmers and written instrictions on how to comply with federal income tax laws.

Copies are available at the extension office in the Pennington county courthouse. Stop in and pick up a copy.

Attendance Cut At Beef Cattle Day

High winds and blowing snow on Wednesday limited attendance at beef cattle day held at the Northwest experiment station, Crookston, but researchers presented the full program to the 60 cattlemen and others who were there.

Ralph Smith, superintendent of the West Central experiment station, Morris, reported on the performance of yearling steers and heifers in summer and winter housing systems. The five large scale housing systems constructed side by side at the Morris experiment station continue to provide valuable performance data and a comparison of housing systems.

Beef steers on slatted floor in cold barns along with the open lot with only a windbreak fence continue to return more money to labor and management, according to the Morris trials when all the factors including the cost of the housing unit are considered.

Harvey Windels, animal scientist, Northwest experiment station, Crookston, reported on the results of calcium levels in finishing rations for beef cattle. Added calcium was in the form of ground limestone.

Levels of .3 per cent to .6 per cent showed no significant differences during the growing period but during the finishing period a positive response and increase in the rate of gain was observed. Cattle fed additional calcium generally had greater feed intake in the finishing period. Results suggest that the added calcium carbonate had a buffering effect, which stimulated grain consumption. Economic returns were improved by increasing the calcium level in the ration.

Bob Jacobs, extension livestock specialist, U of M, St. Paul, discussed the various treatments whereby nitrogen can be applied to corn silage. Jacobs showed that the nitrogen requirements can be obtained more economically by adding urea or other nitrogen forms such as ammonia, then by obtaining this requirement in other kinds of feed that would bring the protein levels up to adequate animal requirements. Jacobs cautioned the cattlemen present that moisture content of the silage is very important. He stated that 65 per cent moisture was a good level which would accept the nitrogen additives adequately and would not result in a large loss during ensiling or storage.

Dr. J. Meiske, animal science department, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, made several interesting reports. He showed the results of a detailed and comprehensive study of hair analysis as an indicator of mineral status in livestock. Evidence showed that mineral content of hair varies at various locations on the body of the animal. It also shows a tendency to vary in different kinds of cattle and in different colors of cattle. Results of the research showed that hair anlysis is probably a doubtful procedure in trying to determine whether animals are deficient in the several minerals which they require.

Dr. Richard Goodrich, animal science, along with Dr. Gene Allen, associated with the animal science and food science department, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, made several reports. Allen's research showed that cattle utilize protein and continue to add protein to the carcass much more economically than smaller size cattle. He recommended separating feeder cattle somewhat by size, characteristic and advocated management practices which would allow finishing off some cattle at a different rate and weight.

Dr. Goodrich, who is involved with many of the beef cattle research projects, directly or cooperatively, reviewed nutritional protein matters. Goodrich showed that calves from one week of age to about 390 pounds responded best with a ration at the 13.1 per cent protein level based on the dry matter content of the ration. The return per head was optimum as well at the 13.1 per cent level and feeding higher levels did not pay.

In another research project that Goodrich directed, relating to sources of protein in feeder cattle rations, Goodrich showed that it was hard to beat urea as far as the economics of feeding were concerned. Of the eight other sources tested, alfalfa fed with smaller amounts of urea and alfalfa was next best.

The 1979 Minnesota cattle feeder's report, a publication by the department of animal science in cooperation with the agricultural extension service, can be obtained through agricultural extension offices throughout Minnesota and contains the details of all of the late research.

Fund Drive At MSU Appears To Be Success

Contributions to Moorhead state university's first annual fund drive have topped $106,000 so far, with business-and-corporate donations still to come in.

The drive, the first attempt by the university to put all its fund-raising efforts under one annual compaign, will provide scholarships for the MSU students and fund special academic and cultural programs.

Frank Williams, development director at the university, says he expects the campaign to hit $150,000 when all the contributions are added up. "That would just about match what we need to support our programs planned for the year. We're a bit inexperienced in fund-raising here and we didn't know what to expect our first year at this. As it's turning out, we're getting the backing from the community that we dearly need."

The MSU foundation, a private, non-profit organization supporting the university and sponsoring the fund drive, will give more than $141,000 in student scholarships this year, double what it gave last year. "Much of that money will come from this year's campaign," said Williams, who's also executive vice president of the foundation. "That's one reason why we hope to meet our fund drive expectations."

Fund drive kicked-off October 15 and much of the campaigning ended in November. Final tally won't be in for at least another month, Williams said, pending the results of the business and corporate campaign that is still going on.

MSU alumni association's three-week phonathon last month, part of the annual fund drive, brought in over $40,000 and faculty-staff donations and pledges on campus alone amounted to more than $12,250.

Land O' Lakes Pays Members $15.9 Million

Land O' Lakes, Inc. has made cash patronage and revolvement payments of $15.9 million in 1979 to more than 850 member association cooperatives and 8,000 direct farmer members.

Included in the $15.9 million total is a recent equity revolvement of $7.97 million. Amount is the equavalent of one full year of equity revolvement. Payment was authorized by the Land O' Lakes board of directors which determines the amount and method of distribution of margins in accordance with the cooperative's by-laws.

Payments for 1979 are as follows:

1) Cash patronage paid in June $7,383,000; 2) Revolvement of prior equities paid in December $7,971,000; 3) Estate payments made throughout the year $566,000; with total cash payment in 1979 $15,920,000.

Total cash payment represents 65 per cent of the cooperative's patronage margins in 1978.

Commenting on the payment, Ralph Hofstad, president of Land O' Lakes, said, "A full year revolvement of equity is highly unusual. It is a goal cooperatives strive for, but are rarely able to achieve. Land O'Lakes board is to be commended for achieving this record and for adhering to its program of sound financial management."

The $7.97 million December revolvement is the balance of 1964 and 50 per cent of 1965 equities, and the appropriate equities held by members and patrons of other cooperatives that have joined with Land O'Lakes.

Commenting further, Hofstad said, "Land O' Lakes is making equitable returns to its members while maintaining a sound financial structure upon which to build for their future needs."

As to those future needs, Hofstad said, "The board determines which ventures we go into, whether it's expanding feed manufacuring facilities, buying an additional butter churn, or entering an entirely new marketing area."

Cooperative president noted that every capital expenditure made by Land O'Lakes is planned for a single purpose. "Land O'Lakes investments," he said, "are used to develop and improve those activities which will increase the on-farm income of its members."

Cooperative's total cash equity redemptions for the past 10 years amount to approximately $188 million.

Land O' Lakes, Inc. is a farm supply and food marketing cooperative headquartered in Minneapolis. Approximately 250,000 upper midwest farmers held membership in it.

Cub Pack 199 Has Meeting At St. John's

Cub Pack 199, sponsored by St. John's Lutheran church, conducted its pack meeting November 26, with Den 5 serving as host den. Peggy Bruzek is den leader for Den 5, and she is assisted by Karen Braunschweig. Opening ceremony consisted of a flag presentation led by Den 5 and followed by an invocation by Rev. Barrie Henke.

Theme for November was Knights of Yore. Boys learned about knights and their code of conduct and made armor, helmets, swords and shields. Cubs marched in the knight parade, led by assistant cubmaster Winton Dahlin and a first, second, and third place ribbon was awarded in each den for the best knight costume. Webelos served as judges and awarded the ribbons. Following the parage and judging, all the cub scouts played a game called "spear the ring."

Bobcat badge was presented to Brett Reay. Beads were also presented, along with 16 webelos activity badges. Denner and assistant denners were recognized and skits were presented by Dens 3, 4 and 6.

Pack meeting was concluded with the reading of the Knight code of conduct and the cub scout promise. Refreshments were served.

Block Grant Program Poses Challenge To County Boards

Minnesota counties, including Pennington, are facing a dilemma in a new-found freedom with a few string attached. The problem (or perhaps opportunity) is the community social services act (CSSA), more commonly referred to as the block grant program.

Pennington county commissioners will receive for Pennington county programs a total of $156,743 through the block grant program for calendar year 1980. Such a grant, it would seem, would be received with welcome arms as an opportunity for exercise of local control. Why then, should commissioners and other county officials have mixed emotions about the program?

One reason might be that the county, in order to receive the grant, must levy matching funds. Another is that the state has decreed in what general areas the funds must be spent. Yet another is that in several specific areas, the county is required to have a "maintenance of effort" — a match of spending in the fund year to spending in those programs the previous year.

Maintenance of effort is required, for instance, in mental health, chemical dependency and mental retardation. In these areas funds must be expended in an amount equal to that expended in the previous year. They do not, however, need to be expended in the same manner with the same supplier of services. Herein lies the desired local control.

With the county having the responsibility to determine how the funds will be spent, the commissioners are faced with requests and proposals from a number of directions. Although the block grant funds will total $156,743 from the state, the requests for funding received by the county already approach the $300,000 mark.

Block grant funds cover the three areas mentioned (mental health, chemical dependency and mental retardation) as well as child care, developmental achievement centers, underserved populations and affected employees (chemical dependency) and services included in the state comprehensive annual services plan. Because of this, the commissioners in most Minnesota counties are operating the program through their county social services (welfare) departments. That is the situation in Pennington county.

EVERYBODY GETS A BITE of the block grant funds allocated to the counties through the Minnesota welfare department. . .or so it seems. The program provides no new funds, but combines money formerly going directly to agencies from the state with money distributed through the county welfare departments.

Murder Trial In Second Day Here

Jury of five men and seven women with another woman as alternate began hearing testimony in the first degree murder trial of Paul Walter Boman Tuesday morning at Pennington county district court in Thief River Falls. Final jurors were selected Monday and include Carole Johnson, route 1, TRF; Leonard Olson, route 4, TRF; and Shirley Carlson (alternate), route 5, TRF.

Jury selection for the trial took five days with the district and county court jury lists totaling about 60 people being exhausted before the final selection of an alternate was made.

Judge Warren Saetre opened Tuesday's first trial day with instruction to the jury prior to an opening statement by Norman Coleman of the Minnesota attorney general's office, prosecuting attorney. Assistance from the state attorney general's staff was requested by Pennington county attorney David Olin.

Defense attorney Douglas Thomson of St. Paul deferred his opening statement until the prosecution rests its case. Prosecution witnesses who have taken the stand until noon today include Sgt. Allen Melbye of the Thief River Falls police department, first law enforcement officer on the scene; Dennis Kiesow, investigator for the department who investigated the scene; Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, called to the scene; Sheriff Charles Richards, called to the scene; L. M. (Max) Graham, BCA agent, who assisted in the investigation; Deputy James Wright, who searched the defendant; Linda Welk, lab technician at Northwestern hospital; Fran Johnson, identification officer for the BCA; and Laura Nelson, crime lab analyst for the BCA.

In his opening statement to the jury, Coleman outlined the prosecution's position in the case in which Paul Boman is charged with the shot gun murder of Duane Morben. Following is a summary of his presentation:

Paul and Colleen Boman were married in October of 1976 and in the fall of 1977 Colleen took jobs as a bakery cashier and as a waitress at the VFW club. At the VFW club she met Duane Morben, then 28 years old, married, with one child. Morben was later remarried.

Colleen's marriage with Paul Boman went bad and in March of 1979 she moved in with her mother, Barbara Pearson, rural Thief River Falls. In May of 1979, the attorney said, Colleen Boman and Duane Morben became lovers. The defendant professed his love for Colleen and pleaded with Duane's wife not to leave him because Colleen would move in.

In May of 1979 the defendant and some friends moved to Wyoming. He called Colleen's sister, Charlene Pearson, on the telephone and told her in the conversation, "I'm so mad at Duane I could kill him", the attorney said.

Paul Boman came back from Wyoming and on June 10 spent the afternoon at El Cerritos bar in St. Hilaire. About 12:30 a.m. June 11, Mrs. Barbara Pearson heard a car in her driveway and the defendant came to the door. She let him in and they talked for about two hours, although Paul previously would not let his mother-in-law visit Colleen or talk to her on the telephone when he was present in their trailer before their separation.

The prosecutor said that Boman again professed his love for Colleen, said he had heard she was intimate with Duane Morben and that he planned to kill himself in front of her. He was aware of the impact Colleen's father's suicide had on her, the attorney said. Mrs. Pearson told Paul it takes guts to kill yourself, and he left.

About 3:20 a.m. the telephone rang in the Morben trailer at Lot 13, Northwest Trailer court, Thief River Falls. Morben and Colleen Boman were in bed and Morben answered the phone.

In Sunflower Crop . . . .

Moisture Dockage Concerns Farmers

Concern among sunflower producers about the percentage of moisture dockage being applied to sunflowers delivered to area elevators resulted in a public information meeting held Monday at the meeting room of the Thief River Falls regional library.

Methods which can be used to determine how many pounds of high moisture sunflowers are needed to yield a given weight of 10 per cent moisture sunflowers were outlined by agricultural extension agents Terry Courneya and Bill Penning. The 10 per cent moisture figure is considered a standard for the industry, the extension agents said.

They indicated that when grain products are delivered to the local market in a condition that does not meet the industry standards, a dockage determination is made. Excessive moisture in much of this year's crop — beyond the 10 per cent standard — has left the local market outlets with some uncertainties about what to expect when the commodity is reduced to market standards of moisture and purity.

This uncertainty has made it necessary for elevators to build in some insurance factors that reduce the risk to the buyer. This difference between weight of wet sunflowers delivered and weight of product at the 10 per cent standard has left a number of questions and anxieties in the minds of sunflower producers.

"It is helpful if not essential for the producer to be well informed as to what he is actually delivering on a standard dry matter basis," Courneya said, "in order to evaluate the impact of the dockage systems being used on the net dry grain he is delivering to the market."

Courneya and Penning prepared for distribution a table of comparison showing dry matter equivalent for sunflowers at varying percentages of moisture. The table accompanies this article. Also shown is the formula used in determining weight of dry product which will result from water removal from high moisture grain.

Producers have been concerned that the rate of loss applied by the elevators and deducted from delivery weight of high moisture sunflowers is excessive, and that the result is severely reduced return from the product marketed. They have

Corrections In Traffic Death Story Noted

Investigating officer in the highway death of Frank Martin Grisanti, 47, Thief River Falls, who was struck by a car on highway 1 east of Warren early Saturday evening, has requested that the Times correct several points in the initial accident report published Monday.

Information received by the Times indicated that the victim was walking east along the highway when struck by an eastbound car driven by Miles Knutson, 59, of rural Warren at about 5:15 p.m.

State patrol officer investigating the accident states that Grisanti was apparently on his hands and knees in a crawling position at the time of impact. At the time of the accident, the driver of a westbound car at the scene had observed the youth lying in the middle of the eastbound traffic lane.

Examination of the Knutson car indicated that impact was on the lower part of the bumper and that there was no damage to the vehicle, the officer added. He said the driver of the west-bound car blinked the vehicle's lights in an attempted warning, and that Knutson applied the brakes of his car a short distance before hitting the victim but was unable to avoid impact. He emphasized that the Knutson car was traveling well under the speed limit and that the driver had not been drinking.

The officer also said that the accident had been determined by further investigation to have happened about 5:05 p.m. Grisanti was transported by Warren ambulance to the Warren hospital but was dead on arrival.

Warren police department, Marshall county sheriff's department, Thief River Falls police department and Pennington county sheriff's department all assisted the state patrol in investigation of the accident.

2 Pennington 4-H Records Go To State

Tom Scholin and Kirk Hamre were a couple of happy fellows when they learned their 4-H records had been selected to go on to the state competition, according to Howard Person, associate county extension agent.

Tom's and Kirk's records were selected December 4 at district record judging conducted at the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls. Kirk's record won in the beef project area and Tom's in the petroleum power project. Other participants from the county included Roger Solem, Tim Panek, Kerry Madunich, Collette Thune, Sue Spengler and Tom Melin.

S.D. Board Settles With Some Teamster Groups

Approval of contracts with the Teamsters union covering transportation, custodial, food service and clerical personnel took place at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening at the school district service center. Budget cost will grow from $926,616 last year to $1,000,828 this year and $1,145,097 next year as a result of settlement for those units.

Still remaining to be settled are contracts with the district's faculty, teacher aides, confidential employees, supervisors and administrators, primarily principals. A mediation session with board and faculty representatives will be held Thursday at 9:30 a.m. in the Pennington county courthouse.

Settlement with the four Teamster units which signed contracts with the board Monday called for an eight per cent increase over 1978-79 for 1979-80 and an additional seven per cent for 1980-81. Total dollar addition to the budget will be $74,212 for 1979-80 and an additional $70,057 in 1980-81.

On an individual group basis, the settlement is as follows:

Transportation (bus drivers and mechanic; —Total 1978-79 salaries and benefits of $182,372, increase of $14,590 in 1979-80 and $13,787 in 1980-81 with top hourly salary increasing from $5.76 lastyear to $6.20 this year and $6.63 next year;

Food Service — Total 1978-79 salaries and benefits of $97,473, increase of $7,800 in 1979-80 and $7,369 in 1980-81 with top hourly salary increasing from $4.47 to $4.81 and $5.15 over the three years;

Clerical — Total 1978-79 salaries and benefits of $170,282, increase of $13,622 in 1979-80 and $12,873 in 1980-81 with top hourly salary increasing from $4.80 to $5.16 to $5.552;

Custodial and Maintenance — Total 1978-79 salaries and benefits of $476,489, increase

APPROXIMATELY 480 children of all ages gathered to see Santa Claus Saturday afternoon in the city auditorium in Thief River Falls. Santa accepted Christmas lists from the children while his "assistants" provided the young visitors with candy.

Grade School Concerts Set For Christmas

Thief River Falls elementary schools will present their Christmas concerts on the following dates: Mark Twain school, Friday, December 14 at 1 p.m. in the Franklin middle school gym; Washington school, Tuesday, December 18 at 1:30 p.m.; Knox school, Wednesday, December 19 at 1 p.m. and Northrop school, Thursday, December 20 at 1:30 p.m., all in the school gymnasiums.

Upper elementary grades will present their first musical this year. Describing this first experience was one girl who said, "This is fun! I thought only high school kids could give a musical!" The "fun" part, which is a new experience for both the students and instructors, is the taped orchestral accompaniment.

"The Small One" is the title of the musical, with the story tellers acting as two Mexicans, one an old-timer named Gonzales, and the other, a young friend named Pablo. They weave a story in words and music about a donkey in Jerusalem who comes to the assistance of Mary and Joseph. The lower elementary grades will present their enthusiasm of the Christmas season in music.

Everyone is welcome to the concerts which are directed by Pat Beauchane and Jeanne Harger.

Revenue Sharing Approved By City

Tuesday evening's city council meeting was adjourned following two hours of discussion and a special hearing on federal revenue sharing.

Roger Delap, assistant city clerk, discussed the seven items considered for expenditure in 1980. "Funding under the current revenue sharing budget goes through 1980," he said.

Resolution was introduced by alderman Bill Penning and seconded by alderman Ole Engelstad to approve the following seven items in the proposed use of federal revenue sharing funds: (1) CES vote-a-matics (election) — $3,000; (2) police department - firing range backstop, $4,000; (3) street department — snow plow truck, $50,000; (4) para-transit bus, city share, $7,000; (5) garbage rate subsidy — senior citizens, $2,400; (6) senior meal subsidy — Tri-Valley, $8,100, and (7) disk storage — data processing, $6,500. Total resulted in $81,000 with estimated revenue sharing funds available for the 1980 budget standing at $87,301.00.

George Singer, airport manager and official representative of the proposed handicapped program to be initiated at the Thief River Falls regional airport, asked approval from council members to adopt an amendment to be included in the operations manual of the airport. Following a resolution introduced by alderman Penning, and seconded by alderman Milan Borsheim, the motion carried. Item in the amendment included the nondiscrimination practice at the Thief River Falls regional airport to be adopted as the official policy in the operation of the airport on the basis of handicapped persons or facilities.

Bids were accepted from three auto dealers in Thief River Falls for the police patrol car at the Thief River Falls police department. Bids included $6973 for a Ford LTD from Tunberg Motor company, $7269 for a Chevrolet Impala from Northern Motors, and $7150 for a 1980 Plymouth Grand Fury from Westside Motors. It was resolved to accept the low bid of $6973 submitted by Tunberg Motor company for the patrol car.

In regular and special bills to be paid by council members, Stewart and Walker's final statement for the airport development aid project (ADAP) funds set at $445.97 was agreed to be paid, as well as $2,459.55 for the Thief River Falls amateur hockey

Annual St. Lucia Festival Set At Redeemer Luth.

Janelle Kain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kain of this city, has been selected to serve as St. Lucia at the annual St. Lucia family festival to be held Sunday, December 16, at 7 p.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church, Thief River Falls.

Narrator for the program will be Vicki Gustafson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gustafson. Diane Cork, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cork, will give devotions.

Since 1655, St. Lucia Day has been observed on December 13th in Sweden as a festival of lights. Its observance is two-fold. It ushers in the Christmas season and it marks the return of more daylight hours to the dark winters. In the traditional family festival, the role of St. Lucia is played by a girl, usually the oldest in the family. Attired in a white dress and a crown of seven lighted candles surrounded by a wreath of lingon leaves, she goes through the house early in the morning on December 13th, waking the family with songs as she served St. Lucia buns and coffee.

The public is welcome to attend Sunday's St. Lucia festival. The free will offering is designated for Lutheran Social Services.

Following the program, lunch, featuring Scandinavian goodies, will be served.

Serving as co-chairmen of the event are Mrs. Jerry Fessler and Mrs. Cecil Anderson. The Rebekah unit is in charge of decorations, the Lydia unit, the program, and the Mary unit, the publicity.

University Women To Have Musical Treat

Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m., at the Margaret Seatre home.

Cultural interest chairman Mary Morken has coordinated a "A Musical Treat" program with Delbert and Fern Erickson and Eldor Erickson providing entertainment.

All AAUW members are encouraged to attend this meeting. Guests are welcome.

Alpha Phi Learns About Battered Women

"Problems of Battered Women," was the program theme at the December meeting of the Alpha Phi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International held Thursday at the home of Clarice Galliher.

Kathleen Kolden of the Martha Rogers Ripley alliance was guest speaker. She showed slides and explained the function of the Battered Women's shelter which will begin operations early next year.

The meeting also included the chapter's Christmas party. In place of a gift exchange, the members contributed toward a gift of bed linens and blankets for the shelter. The items were presented to Mrs. Kolden at the meeting. On behalf of the chapter, Ruth Bernhardson presented the hostess with a large bowl of fruit; and in the absence of President Edith Etter, Mrs. Galliher, the first vice-president, was in charge of the business session. Plans for the February meeting were announced by program chairman Jeanne Harger.

The lunch featured fruit salad and Christmas breads prepared and served by May Isaneson.

Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, founded in 1929, is an honor soceity for women teachers. The Alpha Phi chapter was chartered in 1979 and includes teachers in Pennington, Red Lake and eastern Marshall counties. Officers, in addition to those previously named, are Janet Shaw, second vice-presicent; Mary Boutiette, recording secretary; May Isaneson, parliamentarian; Eloda Knutson of Goodridge, treasurer; and Linda Mickelson of Oklee, corresponding secretary.

Shower Set for Mrs. Tim Munt and Elizabeth

Baby shower will be held for Mrs. Tim Munt and Elizabeth on Sunday, December 16, at 2 p.m. at the Ekelund Lutheran church in Goodridge.

Bonawitz and Blaeser Vows Said In Moorhead

Miss Pam Bonawitz and Don Blaeser exchanged marriage voews on Saturday, November 17, at St. Mark's Lutheran church in Fargo, N.D., with Rev. Roger Prescott officiating.

Parents of the couple are Harol and Joyce Bonawitz of Moorhead and Ervin and Leona Blaeser of Mahnomen. The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Woldness of this city and Mrs. Agnes Bonawitz of Moorhead, were honor guests at the wedding, witnessed by approximately 250 relatives and friends.

Vocalist Marla Ray of Big Sandy, Mont., a friend of the groom, sang "Beautiful," "Follow Me," and "Evergreen."

For the afternoon ceremony, the chancel was graced with candelabra with ivory tapers. On the altar were arrangements of blue tipped carnations accented with babies' breath and greenery.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of ivory polyester silesta chiffon. It was styled with a mushroom pleated blouson bodice with pleated bishop sleeves gathered into silk Venise lace cuffs. A sheer yoke of imported, embroidered tulle and Venise lace accented the high neckline. Her full skirt flowed into an attached chapel-length train. To complement her gown, she wore a waltz-length veil attached to a derby hat covered with embroidered tulle. She carried a cascading bouquet of ivory roses and carnations with trailing English ivy.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Nancy Odness of Moorhead. Bridesmaids were friends of the couple: Pat Rudnick, Casper, Wyo., Tarryl Shomento, Minot, N.D. and Linda Olson, Fargo, N.D. Their identical gown of silver-blue silesta knit chiffon featured blouson bodices, scoop necklines, angel-wing sleeves and softly pleated skirts. They carried arm bouquets of blue tipped carnations with babies' breath and greenery.

Jodi Odness, Moorhead, a niece of the bride, was minature bride. Her gown of ivory satin backed crepe, styled like the bride's, was made by her mother. She carried a small colonial bouquet of ivory roses. Minature groom was Jeff Voldness, Fon du Lac, Wis., a cousin of the bride. Like the groom and his attendants, he wore a dark brown tuxedo and ivory ruffled shirt. His boutonniere was in ivory rose bud.

Best man was Bob Hengemuhle of West Fargo, N.D. Groomsmen were Kevin Stennes, Hawley, and David Nelson and Kevin Braaten, both of Fargo. All are friends of the couple. The ushers were Greg Odness, Moorhead, brother-in-law of the bride, Jim Nelson, Sioux Falls, S.D.; Jeff Nelson, Perley; and Edgar Jacobson, Bemidji, friends of the couple.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bonawitz selected a taffy brown floor-length gown, accented with a corsage of yellow roses and carnations. The mother of the groom wore a pale blue floor-length gown with a Wilburnbbey rose and an apricot colored carnation corsage. Corresponding boutonnieres were worn by the fathers, who wore brown tuxedos.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Curt and Betty Borgen, Moorhead, friends of the couple, as host and hostess. Julie Walker registered the guests as cousins of the bride, Jimmy Hirst, Williams, and Robin Tina Voldness, Fond du Lac, Wis., served as gift bearers.

Centering the serving table was a Lady Windemere, marble wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with blue roses. Topping the cake was a glass blown, heart-shaped ornament. Ardis Sandvig, Moorhead, a friend of the couple, cut and served the cake, as Grace Bonawitz, Moorhead, aunt and godmother of the bride, and Elvis Vikander, a friend of the couple, poured the coffee. Punch was ladled by Judy Olson and Candy Richards, friends of the bride.

In the evening, a wedding dance was held in the Riviera Suite at the Ramada Inn in Moorhead.

The following day a brunch was served at the bride's parental home to the immediate families and out-of-town relatives. Highlighting the event was the opening of wedding gifts by the bride and groom.

The evening preceding the wedding, the groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Speak-Easy in Moorhead for the families of the bride and groom, and the bridal party.

Attending the wedding, from this area, in addition to the bride's maternal grandparents, were Mrs. Tillie Thompson, Newfolden, a great-aunt; Mrs. Dolores Hirts, Williams, an aunt; Jim Hirst, Williams; Tim and Marlys Hirst, Pitt; and Jon and Jane Hirst, Middle River, all cousins of the bride.

The newly-weds are now making their home in Karlstad, where the groom is elementary school principal.

Zion Choirs To Present "Love Came Down"

"Love Came Down" will be the theme of the Zion Lutheran church annual Christmas choir concert to be held Sunday, December 16, at 4 p.m., at the church in this city.

All the choirs will participate in the concert. The children's choir, with Leann Mattson as director and accompanist, will sing "The Virgin Mary," "Come Rejoicing," and "The Sleep of the Infant Jesus." Among the selections provided by the chapel choir with Jackie Nelson as director and accompanist will be "Were you there on that Christmas Night."

The Hi League choir, directed by Rev. Jim Mattson, will join the Senior choir, directed by Phyllis Dalager, in presenting the musical "Love Came Down," with taped orchestra accompaniment.

The concert is open to the public. A free will offering will be taken. A potluck supper will follow in the church parlors.

Zion Lutheran church women are asked to note that the concert will replace the regular monthly meeting.

WANTED

Any information leading to the apprehension of the man described here:

Last Thursday night while I was waiting on customers I spied a little old man stuffing some of our best selling items into a big burlap sack. While I stood there in shock, I saw him grab at least five holiday sweaters, three Gunne Sax blouses, and several Ed Burt turtlenecks.

Still not satisfied he scoffed up four of our nicest velours, two leather handbags, and a ski jacket. (The note he left said he'd gotten the same jacket from some other guy, but that ours were cheaper.)

While I was reading the note he snatched up a pile of Robes and Pajamas, and at least a dozen of our mittens. Just as he was leaving, he suffed into his bag several Morton Salt Girl Necklaces that I wanted to sell as stocking stuffers for the girl who has everything. What nerve!

That crazy old man was wearing a fuzzy red suit; big black boots, and a wierd looking hat with a ball on the end. He had long white hair, an unruly white beard, a blush to his cheeks, and twinkly blue eyes. I'm sure this man was wearing a disguise.

Any person or persons knowing the whereabouts of this man can contact me at

Advise Caution In Turning To Alcohol Fuel

Minnesota rural communities were cautioned today to consider the risks before joining in the growing desire to invest in alcohol fuel production equipment.

In a joint statement from Minnesota's energy agency director Al Johnson and agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin, the Minnesota farm community was informed that the state knows of no equipment to distill alcohol from crops, forestry or urban biomass that has been proven practical and energy efficient. All such efforts to date are experimental.

Seetin and Johnson said there is guarded optimism based on some ongoing experiments that such a process may be available, hopefully in the not too distant future. But as of today farmers and rural communities would do well to investigate carefully before making the sizeable investment in either stills, "do it yourself" training courses, or consultants who are converging on farm communities in increasing numbers.

Both Johnson and Seetin emphasize that farmers in particular are heavily dependent on energy for food production and product transportation. This in turn makes them vulnerable to proposals that make it look like there is an easy way to "on farm" energy independence.

The breakthrough for all farmers, say the two state officials, will more than likely come through a cooperative effort by scientists and engineers working in the private sector, in the universities, in government and with farmer inventors.

Forty three federal permits for experimental production of alcohol fuel have been issued to Minnesotans as of November 30 by the bureau of alcohol, tabacco and firearms of the U.S. Treasury department. Continued regulatory monitoring has found only limited success in actual alcohol fuel production according to information given Minnesota officials by the federal agency.

Inquiries may be directed to either the Minnesota department of agriculture, 90 W. Plato Blvd. St. Paul, MN 55107 or the Minnesota energy agency, 980 American Center bldg., 150 E. Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55101.

Christensen Candidate For State House

Clyde Christensen

Clyde Christensen, Thief River Falls area farmer with an extensive background in community activity, announced this week that he will be a candidate for Independent - Republican endorsement as state representative from District 1B.

"I am making known at this time my intention to seek election to the Minnesota House of Representatives from District 1B," he announced in a statement made available Tuesday. "In the past two years many people have contacted me, urging me to make this decision."

In noting that he will seek the Independent-Republican party endorsement, Christensen said, "Politically, I would consider myself a conservative. I believe we must control spending in every level of government. We must carefully consider what excessive regulation is doing to our business community.

"In our rural area, small business and farm business is the heart of our economy. Taxation is always a concern and I believe we must get a fair share of those taxes back to our rural area in order to keep our schools, road systems and the like up to a reasonable standard."

Christensen said he believes his background and experience in community service will be helpful as Minnesotans face the demands of the future. A present member of the Valley home for the aged board, where he has served for about the past 10 years, he also served nine years on the board of trustees at Northwestern hospital from 1962 to 1971.

After eight years on the board of education for School District 564 in Thief River Falls, he did not seek reelection at the last school election. He chaired both the hospital and school boards. Also serving one three-year term as supervisor on the township board, he has been a member of a number of organizations and committees endeavoring to improve the community.

A life-long resident of Pennington county, Christenson has farmed here since his youth. He and his wife, Verna, have three sons who are involved in the farming enterprise and a daughter who is attending Thief River Falls schools.

"There are many issues and concerns which I hope to discuss with many area residents during the coming months," he added.

Christensen is the second Thief River Falls area resident to announce his candidacy for the District 1B House seat vacated by John Corbid who has announced he will not seek reelection and has moved from the district. Jim Kremer of Thief River Falls announced earlier he will seek the DFL endorsement for the office.

out that the purpose of the act is to provide community social service funds to county boards through the state department of public welfare.

Block grants to counties are not new funds, but a consolidation of money which previously went directly from the state welfare department to agencies and that money which was administered through county welfare departments, Erickson said.

Monies are allocated to the counties by a formula established in law rather than by the state department. Funds are distributed in a block and not by categories, and county boards are to determine what specific county services will be provided, who will provide them and who will administer the county social service program.

The county may decide it wants to change the way it has operated under a specific program in the past. This is permissible under the block grant program, within the general categories mentioned. In Pennington, for example, the welfare board is using a part of its chemical dependency funds for hiring of a chemical dependency counselor for the county, and may also contract for service elsewhere. Some other changes in how and where funds are spent will be likely.

Because of the necessity to levy county matching funds, the county welfare department will levy $350,743 locally for 1980. Of this total, $194,000 will be for income maintenance and $156,743 will be to match the state block grant.

The levy for 1980 is well over the 1979 levy of $214,000 for social service and income maintenance. But Erickson points out that it is well below the highest local levy for welfare of $550,000 in 1975. In 1979 the board used about $150,000 in fund balance to reduce the levy. Total expenditure budget of the department for 1980 will be about $2.5 million.

By formula, using 1978 base figures, the expenditures by various areas under the block grant program for Pennington county would include: Mental health, $49,184; detoxification, $20,165; half-way house, $1,562; day activity center, $46,046; affected employees, $6,066; youth and underserved, $6,248; day care, $5,072; and state administrative aid, $12,628 for a total of $147,871. Since no county may receive less than 106 per cent in 1980 of what it received in 1978, the block grant is set at $156,743.

Formula to determine what each county will receive under the block grant program is as follows:

(1) $65.50 times the average, by month, of unduplicated persons receiving AFDC, general assistance and medical assistance;

(2) $3.05 times the population, most recent date of the state demographer; and

(3) $26.75 times persons aged 65 or older, most recent data of the state demographer.

With the number of requests received by the county, decisions on many programs have not yet been reached. Counter-offers have been given in some cases where requests have been made of the county but final settlements have not been reached. As might be expected, it will take the commissioners some time to come to grips with their new-found freedom of fund allocation. Local control implies local responsibility.

Plummer Sets Music Concert

Performing in the program will be K-6 elementary students, junior band, concert choir, concert band, triple trio, swing choir and the brass choir. Program is free and open to the public. A luncheon will be served by the music boosters following the concert.

Mrs. Coffield Rites Held At Lake Bronson

Mrs. Sarah (Sadie) Coffield, 73, of Lake Bronson died Thursday evening at the Karlstad Memorial hospital, following a month's illness.

Funeral services for Mrs. Coffield were held Monday at 2 p.m., at the Community Covenant church in Lake Bronson with Rev. Keith Carlson officiating. Mrs. Edna Erickson was the soloist and Mrs. Cindy Nyflot, the organist. Interment was in the Riverside cemetery at Lake Bronson. The Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, was in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Fred Huser, Dale Hartwig, Bob Bailey, Dick Bailey, Bill Nelson and Elmer Johnson. Serving as active pallbearers were Gene Goldstrand, John Collins, Don Austad, Roger Hultgren, Eldon Johnson and Ferdie Larson.

Mrs. Coffield, the former Sarah Elizabeth Coburn, was born Jan. 1906 at Lakeville to Walter and Mary Coburn. She attended school and grew to womanhood at Edina. She was married there on Sept. 6, 1922 to George T. Coffield. The couple made their home in Minneapolis until 1930, then they moved to a farm in Cannon township, Kittson county, near Lancaster. There they lived and farmed for 40 years. In 1970, they moved to Lake Bronson, where Mrs. Coffield had since resided. She was active in the Senior Citizens group at Lake Bronson.

She is survived by three sons: John and Jerry Coffield, both of Lake Bronson, and Pat of Takotna, Alaska; two daughters: Mrs. Ivan (Bernice) Olson, Lake Bronson, and Mrs. Myrtle Lawler, Minneapolis; 20 grandchildren, 26 great-grandchildren; four brothers: Walter Coburn, Sioux Falls, S.D., John, Harry and Melvin, all in California; a sister, Mrs. Lauretta Anderson, Anaheim, Calif.; and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in January of 1977; her parents, three brothers and three sisters.

Frank Grisanti Rites Held At St. Bernard's

Funeral services for Frank M. Grisanti, 17, of this city were held Tuesday at 11 a.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church. Grisanti died Saturday evening in an automobile-pedestrian accident near Warren.

Rev. James Bernauer officiated at the services with Christie LaCoursiere as organist. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Belmont Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Bruce Williams, Mark Waswick, Steve Besserud, Bruce Folkedahl, Tim Conners and John Monroe.

Frank M. Grisanti was born in Evergreen Park, Ill., on July 14, 1962 to Ames and Margaret Grisanti, Jr. He lived with his family in South Holland, Ill., until 1974, when they moved to Thief River Falls. Since then, he had made his home here.

Surviving are his parents, a brother, Ames Grisanti, III, and four sisters, Rose Marie, Regina, Leslie and Lisa, all at home; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Irene Grisanti, Deomotte, Ind.; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Giangrande, Monee, Ill.; and several uncles and aunts.

He was preceded in death by his paternal grandfather.

Clarence Eide Services To Be Held Here Fri.

Funeral services for Clarence Eide, 72, of Grand Rapids and formerly of this city, will be held Friday at 1 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Eide died unexpectedly Friday at Grand Rapids.

Rev. Richard Larson will officiate at the services. Mrs. Sherman Idso will be the organist and Mike McKinley will sing. Military honors will be accorded by members of the local BFW. Interment will be in the Bethlehem cemetery.

Serving as pallbearers will be Mike McKinley, Armond Sannes, Orville Eide, Edward Eide, Howard Kulseth and Robert Kulseth.

Clarence O. Eide, a son of the late Thomas and Hannah Larson Eide, was born Sept. 3, 1907 at Viking. He attended school at Newfolden and grew to manhood in New Solum township, Marshall county.

In April of 1932, he began working for William Collins and Son Construction company of Fargo, N.D. He entered the U.S. Army in 1942 and after his discharge in 1945, he returned to work for the same company. At the time of his retirement in 1974, after 40 years of employment, he was superintendent of the company. During his period of employment, he made his home in Thief River Falls. He continued to live here until 1977, when he moved to Grand Rapids.

He was a member of the Thief River Falls VFW and the Eagles.

Surviving are three sisters: Norma Grombo, McIntosh; Mildred Fjelstul, Eau Claire, Wis.; and Gladys McKinley, Grand Rapids; three brothers: Olaf Eide, Portland, Ore., Ted, Apache Junction, Ariz., and Elester, Bagley; and several nieces and nephews.

Two sisters and two brothers preceded him in death.

Home Heating Oil Supplies Should Be OK

In response to a letter by Congressman Arlan Stangeland, the department of energy has restated that home heating oil supplies in Minnesota should be sufficient for this winter and that supplies will be distributed as they are needed throughout the different regions of the country.

The letter states that the President has directed the department of energy to work with major refineries and suppliers to assure proper distribution as the number one priority. In addition, he also asked refineries to maintain heating oil and diesel production at high levels, to assure continued flow of adequate supplies throughout the winter.

"One of my major concerns," Stangeland said, "was that areas dependent on waterways for transporting fuel oil supplies would freeze before supplies could be moved. But, according to the letter, the President urged refiners to distribute as much heating oil as possible to those areas before winter condition made it impossible."

Available data shows that home heating oil supplies for Minnesota are greater this year than in 1978 and the DOE further states that supplies in Minnesota should be improved by the recent buy-sell emergency application approved for Murphy oil and Clark refining. Both companies have stated that the extra allocations of crude would significantly increase their allocations for November and December.

An interagency distillate management group, composed of the departments of energy, transportation and agriculture and the small business administration, has also been established to assure continued deliveries of middle distillates and to remain immediately responsive to shortage situation.

The Iranian crisis and President Carter's decision to end Iranian oil imports threatened to reduce Minnesota's oil production since Ashland Oil company, which produces 20 per cent of Minnesota's petroleum requirements, relied heavily on imports from Iran. Congressman Stangeland, however, appealed to the department of energy to approve the company's application for an exception to DOE allocation regulations. The DOE has since given its approval allocating 80,000 barrels per day of crude oil to Ashland from nine large companies at a price similar to that being paid to Iran.

"Maintaining sufficient supplies of home heating oil should not be a significant problem this winter. If problems should arise, however, the programs set up by the department of energy and supported by the President can be expected to rapidly come to our aid," Stangeland said.

ENERGY UPDATE

DIME-SIZED DEVICE CAN SAVE YOU DOLLARS

It may look like nothing more than a wet button, but it could be a good way to button up your budget as far as your heating and water bills are concerned.

What is it? It's a water flow restrictor that can reduce the amount of water used for showers in your home by as much as 50 per cent, but with little noticeable effect on shower heat or water pressure. You can't tell it's there till the bills come in — for less.

It takes only a few minutes to install with a wrench or pair of pliers, and it can improve your water and energy consumption immensely.

The water flow restrictor is so effective that Santee Cooper, a South Carolina electric utility and several other utilities around the country are giving them away free to customers who request them. That helps reduce electricity demand on the utility during peak periods and so saves them money, too.

Many people are finding it can save them the equivalent of one month's power bill over the course of the year.

To The Editor:

After receiving several telephone calls since Friday, I am inclined to think that more people who were unable to attend the meeting about the problem of "Drugs and Drug Pushers" (which was held at the Thief River Falls auditorium December 7) will be interested to know that we were very pleased with the outcome.

The meeting was well-attended. Many, many questions were asked and answered. Many ideas and suggestions were brought out and there was almost a 100 per cent participation in the discussions.

It was decided that, although the main object of the group is to get tough on drug pushers, that the public, both old and young, need to be educated in the effects of drugs, etc. Therefore, a few more meetings will be held so that a wider scope of information can be presented.

Some doctors, lawyers, drug control officials, counselors, etc., will be asked to come to a meeting or so to give the public the benefit of their experience with people who have fallen victim to drugs. Also, certain judges will be asked to present their role in the punishment of pushers and why judges rule as they do. Then, too, judges will be urged to set stiffer punishments for those who are convicted of drug charges.

It is also hoped that some of those who have had the experience of drug addiction will attend a meeting to give the rest of us the benefit of their knowledge in the way of drugs. A special young person's meeting is also planned (kids, we really need your advice on this one), but an open invitation is extended to everyone.

Due to the holiday season, the first of these meetings is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 4, 1980 at 8 p.m. at the Thief River Falls city meeting room in the auditorium, downtown Thief River Falls.

A phone number to call when anyone is in need of help or just someone to talk to in times of distress, is offered through Northwestern Hospital (681-7171). We hope to have this number published at regular intervals.

Sincerely,
Mrs. L. Carpenter

State Patrol's "Project 20" To Continue

Minnesota state patrol's "Project 20," which aims at increasing compliance with the 55 mile per hour national speed limit continues to operate successfully as its enforcement team moves throughout the state, reports the Minnesota department of public safety.

Project 20 team, which is headed by veteran trooper Sgt. James Lane and includes 10 first year volunteer troopers has just completed patrolling their third assigned site along highway 2 west of Bemidji to East Grand Forks. Prior to this eight-day stay, the team operated between Alexandria and the 494 junction for nine days. Initial project site was on highway 2 between Duluth and Bemidji. Though statistics were not yet available for the third site, the total arrests for the first two sites were 498, warnings totaled 1,043 and aid was given to motorists 373 times.

"Not all of these arrests or warnings were related to 55 mph enforcement since project 20 is a total enforcement program," Patrol chief Roger Ledding stated. "Our emphasis, however, is on increasing compliance with the 55 mph speed limit. By announcing our locations we are openly looking for voluntary compliance by Minnesotans and we are getting it. Number of arrests we make is not our most important measure of success. What is important is that people slow down to the speed limit. The fewer arrests we make along our patrol site, the more we know that we are meeting our goals of statewide observance of the legal speed limits."

Increasing the statewide observance of the 55 mph speed limit is considered an important goal by the state patrol for several reasons. "There is a safety factor in the 55 mph speed limit. We have fewer accidents and the fatal accident rate decreases. 55 definitely conserves fuel which is obviously important at this time," the chief said.

"Another factor that needs to be stressed is that the state is dependent on federal funds to accomplish our traffic safety and highway maintenance goals. Federal government has set mandatory cutoffs of federal funds for those states that are not adequately complying with the federally approved speed limit, making it in the responsible driver-taxpayer's own best interest to continue driving at legal speeds."

Next Project 20 site will be on highway 10 between Moorhead and Motley from December 5 to December 11.

Sierra Club Sees Danger In Acid Rain

Acid rain is the most pressing environmental problem facing Minnesota today, according to the North Star Minnesota chapter of the Sierra club. That conclusion was reached after a series of membership meetings conducted recently in the Twin Cities to set chapter priorities for 1980. Other highly rated issues were energy, copper-nickel mining, pollution and land use planning.

"Scientists have known about acid rain for years," said Nelson French, the chapter's chief lobbyist in Minnesota, "but only recently has the accumulation of acidity in lakes and streams begun to do real damage to fish populations. In some areas of the country acid rain has damaged agricultural crops, trees and even house paint."

Acid rain results from the passage of rain water through air heavily laden with pollutants such as sulfur and nitrogen oxides. The increased burning of high-sulfur coal in power plants has accelerated the problem, the Sierra club says.

French expects that the acid rain problem will unite environmentalists, sportsmen, farmers and timber interests in an effort to reverse the trend. "Our biggest concern," said French, "is that the energy crisis will lead to a further easing of air quality standards. If that happens, acid rain may become an even bigger problem, almost overnight."

"Speak Outs" Gather Family Information

Six regional "speak outs" in conjunction with the White House national conference on families will take place in Minnesota during the months of January and February. One of the sessions will be held February 2 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the University of Minnesota, Crookston.

These regional speak outs precede the national conference scheduled for Minneapolis in the summer of 1980.

Public is invited to speak out at the regional meetings, either verbally or in written statements. Anyone wishing to do so may express concerns regarding families, family life or thoughts on how Minnesota families can be strengthened and supported. Comments will also be welcome on the effects that public policies, the work place and other forces are having on families in the state and in the nation.

According to Pennington county agent Deborah Matero, pre-registration forms will be available at the Pennington county extension office. Those not pre-registering still may have an opportunity to speak out at the regional meetings.

Testimony is open to anyone and everyone — lay people, professionals, public officials," Miss Matero said. Anyone who would like to offer an idea, concern or viewpoint about families or family life or just listen is encouraged to attend."

Speak outs will take place in small group settings, in front of two or three members of the state White House conference on families advisory committee. An election of delegates who will attend the national conference will also take place. Individuals may attend any one of the six state speak outs, but may only vote and testify once.

The dates and places for the other five regional speak outs are: Saturday, January 12 (9 to 5 p.m.) Rochester — Rochester community college; Saturday, January 19 (9 to 5) Minneapolis — Metropolitan community college; Saturday, January 19 (9 to 5) Marshall — Southwest state university; Saturday, January 26 (9 to 5) White Bear Lake — Lakewood community college; Thursday, January 31 (1 to 9) Grand Rapids Holiday Inn;

Elections will be conducted over the noon hour at all the speak outs except for the Thursday, January 31 date in Grand Rapids, when the election will be at 6 p.m.

For more information about the regional speak outs or on the national conference on families, contact the Pennington county extension office.

U of M Board Of Regents To Meet Friday

Several changes in the way tuition is assessed at the University of Minnesota, and plans for the Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs will be voted on during this week's meeting of the board of regents.

Tuition plan, which has met with some opposition from student groups, will be discussed during the committee of the whole meeting at 8:30 a.m. Friday in 238 Morrill hall. Statements made by student leaders at the senate consultative committee meeting December 6 indicated that opposition has softened since the plan was discussed at last month's regent's meeting.

Plan would not change the amount of tuition collected, but would alter the way it is collected. Under the new plan, all freshmen and sophomores would pay a uniform rate and juniors and seniors would pay at rates based on the cost of instruction in their individual colleges.

Tuition would be charged by the credit up through 14 credits and beyond 18 credits. Students taking 15, 16, 17 or 18 credits would pay the same tuition as students taking 14 credits. Currently, tuition is charged by the credit only through the twelfth credit.

Regents will also study several aspects of the Humphrey institute at two separate meetings Thursday and Friday. At a special meeting of the committee of the whole Thursday, the regents will hear recommendations made by the Humphrey institute advisory committee.

That committee has recommended that plans for a statewide fund-raising effort be set, that the possibility of including an international conference center in the institute be studied, and that any request for legislative money for the institute be kept separate from other university requests from the legislature.

University president C. Peter Magrath will also present his own set of recommendations for the institute and the proposed institute building at that meeting, which is set for 9:30 a.m. Thursday in 238 Morrill Hall.

Regents will vote on the recommendations at the regular committee of the whole meeting Friday at 8:30 a.m. in 238 Morrill hall.

Other scheduled committee meetings and items on the agenda follow:

Legislative coordinating committee, 7:30 a.m. Thursday, Campus club, Coffman Union. The three-member committee, chaired by Neil Sherburne, will discuss its operating strategy for the coming legislative session.

Special committee of the whole meeting, 9:30 a.m. Thursday, 238 Morrill hall. Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs.

Faculty and staff affairs committee, 1:30 p.m. Thursday, 238 Morrill hall. Annual report on affirmative action, and a vote on a proposed computerized payroll system for University employees.

Physical plant and investments committee, 1:30 p.m. Thursday, 300 Morrill hall. A report on difficulties encountered in determining what each bit of University space is used for at any given time of the day. A comprehensive study of use of University space has been requested by the legislature.

Educational policy and long-range planning committee, 3:15 p.m. Thursday, 300 Morrill hall. A report on plans to use naturally occurring underground water systems as heat and storage areas.

Student concerns committee, 3:15 p.m. Thursday, 238 Morrill hall. The concept of the mandatory student services fee.

Committee of the whole, 8:30 a.m. Friday, 238 Morrill hall. Tuition policy, and Humphrey institute.

Full board meeting, 10:30 a.m. Friday, 238 Morrill hall.

At 4:30 p.m. Thursday, the regents will hold a non-public meeting to discuss cases under litigation.

Inflation, Gas Shortage Cause Road Problem

"Minnesota faces a highway disaster if inflation and reduced gasoline consumption continue to eat into road funding," according to Robert M. Johnson, executive director of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc.

At the annual state convention of the Asphalt Pavers association, Johnson said, "the gap between construction costs and income continues to widen at an alarming pace."

According to recently released figures, gas taxes collected in Minnesota in 1978 were $203.5 million compared with 1980 projected collections of $194.3 million — a 7.3 per cent decrease. Construction cost-price index, on the other hand, has increased 31 per cent since 1978, from 221 to 259 (index is based on 1976 construction costs).

"The situation in Pennsylvania may be an omen for Minnesota," said Johnson. Pennsylvania increased its gasoline tax by 2 cents a gallon over 1978, but reduced fuel consumption has negated the effect of the move. During the second quarter of 1978, gas tax collections at 9 cents a gallon totaled $127 million. During the same period in 1979, collections at 11 cents a gallon totaled only $125 million — a loss of $2 million.

"Minnesota faces the same dilemma," said John V. Boene, executive director of the Asphalt Pavers association. "Without increased funding, our road system will be in deeper trouble than ever, and could be facing abandonment — like railroads."

Birth defects strike 720 children born each day in the United States, says the March of Dimes. That's one child born every other minute with physical or mental damage.

U.S. Senator

Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

In these days of double-digit inflation and of rapidly increasing heating costs, the poor and the elderly on fixed incomes are of special concern.

I have long supported legislation to help them pay the higher heating bills in this time of emergency.

Unfortunately, the first batch of "heating assistance" money that went out to the states was distributed among all states, not just the cold northern ones, on the basis of general higher energy costs. A large share went to the south to help with, among other things, air conditioning bills.

This was clearly not the intent of Congress when the program was first established. After much persuasion by the northern Senators, the appropriations committee in charge of money for 1980 decided to use another formula, one that sent a far more fair and larger share to the north and to Minnesota.

Then came along another bill to provide program funds for 1981 and 1982. Once again, Minnesota seemed left out in the cold. Though the money for the program nationwide almost doubled, Minnesota would receive about the same in 1981 as the state did this year. Florida, in contrast, would have had their allotment increased over 300 per cent.

When this bill was being considered on the floor, Senator Muskie of Maine and I led a protest which even led at one point to a mini-filibuster. And we won.

The new formula, while still sending some money to the south, will significantly increase Minnesota's share. Presently, Congress has authorized $3 billion for this program in 1981. At this level of funding, Minnesota will receive $106,000,000 under my formula, rather than $78 million under the committee's formula. And in 1982, the state will receive $144 million instead of the committee's $106,000,000 designated for that year.

It was a successful and significant effort.

Beautician Is Recognized In Electrology

Mary L. Johnson of The Markee in Thief River Falls, has been awarded a "Certificate of Merit" by the international guild od electrologists. Of the over 10,000 members of the electrology profession, less than 400 electrologists have received this certificate.

Mrs. Johnson has been a practicing electrologist for over three years. According to Fino Gior, President of the international guild of electrologists, "during that time she has maintained the highest standards of the profession."

Electrolysis is considered the only effective and permanent method of eliminating unwanted hair from the body and face.

Murder Trial Enters Second Day Today

The caller, Paul Boman, accused him of carrying on with Colleen and asked to talk to her. When she took the phone the caller called her a slut and a whore, the prosecutor told the jury.

"I don't have to take this," he quoted Colleen as saying and hanging up the phone. A short time later she and Morben heard car wheels squealing and Morben got up, put on a pair of pants and went to the door. Colleen heard the door open and a voice demand to see her.

She was in the bedroom when a shot was fired and she could feel splinters of wood from where it hit the wall. She went into the living room area of the trailer and both she and Morben pleaded with Boman to put down the shotgun which he alternately pointed at Morben and her. Boman repeated to Morben, "You've been messing with my wife. . .you've been f----- with my wife!"

Morben motioned with his head for Colleen to leave, the attorney said, and as she turned toward him a second shot was fired. A charge of 00 buckshot struck Morben in the neck, almost severing his spine.

Colleen ran into the bedroom. Boman followed, saying, "Look what you made me do." She protested, "Paul, why are you doing this to me?" Boman then said he would kill himself. In a struggle for the gun it discharged a third time and Paul was slightly wounded on the side of the face. He then ran from the trailer.

Police were called and later found a 12 gauge shotgun under the Paul Boman trailer at Lot 65 of the trailer court. It had been partially disassembled. Boman was later found hiding under the trailer at Lot 65, and was taken into custody.

Attorney Coleman told the jury that the prosecution believes the evidence unerringly points to the fact that the defendant murdered Duane Morben.

Called as the first witness, Police Sgt. Melby gave his account of arriving at the scene, being met by a young woman who seemed hysterical, viewing the body through the door of the trailer and trying to calm the woman (Colleen Boman) and obtain more information.

Investigator Kiesow was on the stand until 4:05 p.m., describing his investigation and answering questions posed by both prosecution and defense. Chief Froschhelser testified on his involvement after being called to the scene and actions taken leading to the arrest of Boman.

Sheriff Richards testified on events when he was called to the scene. Max Graham testified on his assistance in investigation of the scene and Deputy Wright told of searching the defendant when he was brought to the law enforcement center. Linda Welk testified on drawing blood samples from the defendant at 10 a.m. June 11 and Fran Johnson testified regarding the inability to find identifiable fingerprints on the shotgun found under the trailer at Lot 65. Laura Nelson testified that her analysis of Boman's blood sample showed alcohol content of .005 — half of what is considered as intoxicating in driving violations.

been additionally concerned since elevators have added a drying charge per hundredweight to bring the sunflower seeds' moisture down to the 10 per cent standard.

An evaluation of moisture dockage from three elevators in the northwestern Minnesota marketing area indicates an elevator margin in excess of actual moisture reduction.

Using a five-ton load of sunflowers at a market price of 8.5 cents per pound (10 per cent moisture weight), the evaluation found an average value difference between high moisture price paid and standard moisture product of $29.12 per load at 15 per cent moisture, $58.33 at 20 per cent, $87.45 at 25 per cent, $116.57 at 30 per cent and $145.78 at 35 per cent.

Value of the five-ton load varied among the three elevators used in the evaluation since each had a different amount of moisture dockage at each percentage of moisture above the 10 per cent standard.

Custom drying charge averaged 35 cents per hundredweight for 15 per cent moisture sunflowers, 60 cents for 20 per cent, 85 cents for 25 per cent, $1.25 for 30 per cent and $1.80 for 35 per cent.

Because of the unusual circumstances of this year's sunflower harvest and the lack of prior experience in handling the product, it is impossible for elevator operators to determine at this time if their actual costs in handling the high moisture product are reasonable. A risk factor because of the danger of fire from drying is considered, as is the likelihood that some of the sunflowers may begin to heat and have to be dried a second time.

Further complicating the question, one elevator and manager said, is that there is no accurate way to test for moisture above 23 per cent. Beyond that point — and perhaps 75 per cent of the crop delivered was beyond 23 per cent moisture — elevators had to take a calculated guess at moisture content.

Possibility does exist that if experience proves the moisture dockage to be excessive, a rebate can be made by elevators to the producers.

Courneya and Penning, in discussing the situation, said it is their obligation to provide producers with the information to help them determine dry matter equivalent in high moisture product. Armed with that information, producers may then make their marketing decisions.

City Okays Distribution Of Revenue

association partial reimbursement for work done at the old arena. Decision was reached by council members during a special meeting Monday evening to accept the recommendation of the finance committee to partially reimburse the TRFAHA for expenses incurred in renovating the old arena. A third bill, set at $7,098, was approved for the 2,216 yards of gravel and leveling to be done on Barzen avenue from highway 59 to sixth street (east of Thomas Motors).

In other council action, liquor licenses for 1980 were given to the Best Western, Lon's and the Rusty Nail in Thief River Falls. Also, an agreement was entered into between the city of Thief River Falls and the Minnesota department of transportation (MDOT) concerning the matter of snow removal in the city. Resolution introduced by alderman Ambrose Wysoski to accept the Minnesota pollution control agency's state grant offer of $12,150 for the study of a sewage treatment system in Thief River Falls, was approved by council members. Total amount comprises 15 per cent of the $81,000 estimated cost, with 75 per cent to be paid by the environmental protection agency.

A pre-designed conference was scheduled with Dave Nybakken and Dagmar Runyon of the MDOT aeronautics division in regards to the revision of the airport layout plan. Discussion followed from a previous meeting in which Ray Oen had submitted a variance request from existing zoning to permit the development of housing in Zone B north and east of the proposed cross wind runway strip.

"What we are asking now is the status of the property if the zoning make-up is altered," Mayor Bob Carlson said.

Further discussion from a previous council meeting concerned the status of plastic refuse bags for 1980 which would be distributed for use by March 1.

"The sanitation committee recommends continued use of the bags for cleanliness, but we must realize the increased costs in this use," alderman Penning stated. "We are in the state of Limbo at this point. However, it seems the use of these bags must be limited in some way." Discussion of the topic was tabeled to the next council meeting.

Jack Quinlivan, city planner, discussed the rental survey that was conducted recently in Thief River Falls in an effort to study the condition of rental units in Thief River Falls.

"We missed only 75 houses in the city," Quinlivan said. "And we discovered that the rental situation was better than we had anticipated."

Conclusion was reached to continue with the present rental system in the city with complaints directed to Quinlivan or to Bob Bregier, building inspector.

"There are many people that cannot buy houses today so we have more and more people renting units," Quinlivan said. "We found in our survey that over 50 per cent of the rental units had over-all good living conditions, but this does not necessarily mean that the other 50 per cent were poor."

Arguments arose from council members concerning the critical factor of the rental unit study in Thief River Falls.

"The purpose of this survey is not to see if we have rental space but to solve the rental problems," Mayor Bob Carlson said.

Resolutions were adopted by council members to grant Tom Goddard of TG Sporting Goods space for selling incidentals in the sports arena including skate sharpening, during the Arctic tournament, and for the Thief River Falls skating club to be allowed to install lockers in the sports arena with standards set by the park department.

Proposed rate adjustments for electric services were discussed by city council members during the special council meeting conducted Monday evening.

John T. Anderson, superintendent of utilities, together with Robert D. Milne, electric utility analyst of Robert D. Milne & Associates, Inc. of Minneapolis, were present at the meeting to explain present and possible proposed utility rate adjustments for the future. Recommendations for rate adjustments discussed are those that would be beneficial to present operations, according to Milne. No final decisions were reached at the meeting and further discussion and analysis of utility rates as well as other items carried over from last evening were scheduled for a December 18 meeting — a replacement for the regular second council meeting of the month that falls on Christmas day.

of $38,200 in 1979-80 and $38,028 in 1980-81 with top hourly salary increasing from $5.76 to $6.20 and $6.63.

In other action the board approved the appointment of a work-study student coach for the sophomore basketball team for the remainder of the 1979-80 school year with a 10-game schedule recommended by the administration.

Dian Fay Johnson was hired as a pre-school management aide at Mark Twain school. Extra-curricular assignments include Leona Cerkowniak, girls' recreation at Knox elementary school; Larry Rickels, sixth grade girls' basketball; Lori Draxter, seventh grade girls' basketball; and Howard Thorson, elementary girls' activities at St. Hilaire.

Bid of Charles B. Lund for sale of a lot to the school district for its AVTI house carpentry project was accepted in the amount of $6,895. Other bidders were Kenneth R. and Carol V. Anderson, $7,950; and Julian Gunderson, $5,800 for an inside lot and $6,400 for a corner lot. Selection was made on the basis of location, size and price.

The board adopted a resolution not to serve the 0-3 year old handicapped population until such time as mandatory law and funding is changed. At present state aid is available for four-year-old handicapped and younger handicapped persons are the responsibility of the parents and county social services department.

Corn Growers To Establish Promotion Arm

A petition signed by more than the required number of growers and accompanied by an initial $5,000 contribution, filed last week with the Minnesota department of Agriculture, has set the legal machinery in motion for corn producers to establish a farm commodity research and promotion program.

Deputy Commissioner Rollin Dennistoun, who accepted the presentation from three officers of the Minnesota corn growners association, announced tentative plans for election of the statewide corn research and promotion council April 15, 1980, and for a referendum on a proposed marketing order check-off next August, 1980.

Petition and cost defraying contribution was presented by President Ray Thorn, Jr. of Mankato, Secretary Francis Andorfer of Willmar, and by Glenn Annextad of St. Peter who is chairman of both the Legislative and check-off committees, all representing the Minnesota corn growers association.

Minnesota farmers who would like to seek election or to nominate other willing corn growers for election to the new corn research and promotion council may submit their written nominations or applications to any of the above named officers of the Minnesota corn growers association. Candidates must be resident Minnesota corn producers.

It will be the responsibility of the council that will be elected April 15 to draft within 60 days thereafter a proposed marketing order and check-off payment provision that must by state law be submitted to a statewide referendum of corn producers.

A simple majority of the ballots cast in that referendum will determine whether or not the marketing order and check-off financing will be implemented. An estimated 85,000 Minnesota farmers are corn growers, making it the largest single commodity group in this state. Corn is Minnesota's leading field crop in acreage and volume of production.

If the marketing order is approved and established, check-off funds from growers would be used to finance corn and corn product research, foreign and domestic market development and promotion for the economic benefit of all Minnesota corn producers.

UMC Performs "Magnificat" For Christmas

Antonio Vivaldi's "Magnificat" will be performed at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, December 18, in Kiehle auditorium at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC) when the concert choir, pop choir, and Madrigal chamber singers present a Christmas concert.

Pop choir will sing Melissa Manchester's "Don't Cry Out Loud," and the all-time Christmas favorite, "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire," as well as a jazz version of "Deck the Hall."

16th century Latin sacred piece, "Cante Domino," by Hans Leo Hassler will be sung by the Madrigal chamber singers, who will also sing "The Coventry Carol."

Tickets may be purchased at the door for $1 or 50 cents for children. Senior citizens and UMC students are free.

One of five American deaths from heart disease, stroke, and related disorders each year occurs before retirement age, according to the American Heart Association.

Someday soon your mailman may deliver something besides bills!

Many makers of over-the-counter (OTC) medicines and cosmetics send free samples to consumers through the mail to promote these products. This is an economical and efficient way to introduce them to millions of people. It has been successfully followed for many years.

To strengthen the standards of care that have evolved in this practice, the OTC companies who make up the Proprietary Association have adopted guidelines for mailing samples to consumers, physicians and dentists.

The outer container of every sample is clearly and conspicuously labeled to show that it is a medicinal product. Before any mailing, the U.S. Postal Service should be consulted. Furthermore, packaging companies are consulted periodically to ensure that the latest advances in safe packaging are used. To keep track, The Association is sent some of each sampling at the same time the public is.

Under the guidelines, the container in which the sample is mailed must be designed to discourage opening by children.

The total amount of the product in any one sample is never large enough to cause injury to a child if swallowed.

The Proprietary Association is helping make sure that free sample in your mailbox is useful and not harmful.

The President of the United States has commended the Association for its efforts in establishing these guidelines, saying: "Your leadership in setting voluntary guidelines for sending sample products through the mails was a helpful step in industry-government relations."

Average Prices For Utilities Are Compiled

Bureau of labor statistics of the U.S. department of labor has released the average retail prices for gasoline, fuel oil, natural gas and electricity for October. These average prices are compiled from data collected by BLS in conjunction with the consumer price index.

U.S. average price for all types of gasoline was $1.006 in October. This price reflected a small monthly change of 0.8 cents compared to the August and September increases of 3.7 cents and 3.1 cents, respectively.

In October, prices of leaded regular gasoline averaged 98.2 cents; unleaded regular, $1.028; and leaded premium, $1.046. In the 28 cities for which gasoline prices are published, prices for all types of gasoline averaged highest in Honolulu, Chicago and Anchorage, and lowest in Dallas and Houston.

U.S. average prices per gallon of fuel oil (heating oil) was 85.6 cents. The October prices, 0.8 cents higher than in September, represents the smallest monthly increase in fuel oil prices this year. In the 15 cities for which fuel oil prices are published, the average price per gallon ranged from a low of 79.0 cents in Baltimore to a high of 92.4 cents in Buffalo.

U.S. average price for 500 Kilowatt-hours of electricity was $26.34, down 16 cents from September. The slight decrease represents a seasonal change to lower winter rate schedules in some areas.

In October, the U.S. price of 40 therms of natural gas was $15.51, up 43 cents from September. The U.S. prices for 100 therms was $34.72, up $1.12 from September.

THIEF RIVER FALLS EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

County DHIA Top Herds For Month Listed

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association (DHIA), places the following herds as tops in the association for the month of October:

Duane Krohn, 40 cows on test, average production of 48 pounds of milk and 1.80 pounds of butterfat per day; Mylo Carlson, 63 cows, 45 pounds milk and 1.73 pounds fat; Knute Nesland, 33 cows, 44.9 and 1.69; Gene Nelson, 34 cows, 43.2 and 1.71; Gordon Wetterlund and Son, 61 cows, 42.3 and 1.51; Gary Boughton, 24 cows, 40.5 and 1.48; Pearson Brothers, 41 cows, 38.6 and 1.52; Martin Hanson, 48 cows, 38.5 and 1.42; Duane Vatsaas, 52 cows, 37.6 and 1.45; Warren and Lowell Hamrick, 70 cows, 37.5 and 1.55.

There were 33 herds on test during October and 28 cows completed 305-day lactation with 600 or more pounds of butterfat produced.

Hamre also listed these herds as the top producing herds in September:

Gary Boughton, 24 cows, 56.3 and 1.99; Warren and Lowell Hamrick, 71 cows, 48.2 and 1.73; Duane Krohn, 40 cows, 46.2 and 1.76; Knute Nesland, 30 cows, 45.5 and 1.61; Gene Nelson, 34 cows, 44.3 and 1.78; Gordon Wetterlund and Son, 62 cows, 41.0 and 1.55; Martin Hanson, 48 cows, 40.1 and 1.42; Clarence Swanson, 38 cows, 39.5 and 1.44; Mylo Carlson, 63 cows, 38.1 and 1.46; Merle Lundeen, 43 cows, 36.8 and 1.31.

Hamre emphasized that herd averages are affected by the number of cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows, giving the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for that particular month. If many non-producing cows are included in the herd, the average for that month may be low although the cows which are milking are high producers.

During September there were 33 herds on test, including one new herd, and 56 cows completed 305-day lactations with 600 pounds or more of butterfat.

Use Artificial Blood To Save 'U' M Patient

"I feel real strong, just like I did 25 years ago," said a jubilant Haldor Mickelson, who was discharged from the University of Minnesota hospitals December 7. The 67-year-old Minneapolis resident (native of Elbow Lake) made medical history November 14 when be became the first person in the United States to receive a transfusion of an artificial blood substitute.

Michelson was given about four pints of the synthetic chemical Flousol when his life became threatened by severe anemia, a shortage of red blood cells. Robert Anderson, the university surgeon who headed Michelson's medical team, said the substance probably saved the man's life.

Mickelson, who was admitted to university hospitals in September for leg surgery, has always suffered from milk anemia. The condition became severe following loss of blood during surgery and a subsequent infection. When Michelson, who is Jehovah's Witness, refused a conventional transion on religious grounds, doctors obtained permission from the U.S. food and drug administration (FDA) to use the experimental solution.

Fluosol shares with the blood the ability to transport dissolved oxygen to living tissue, although it cannot perform blood's other functions, such as carrying hormones, antibodies and factors responsible for clotting. It is recognized as foreign by the body and removed in around 24 hours, but temporarily helps sustain tissue while the body replenished its own blood supply.

Fluosol was developed by the Green Cross pharmaceutical company of Japan, where it has been used on 55 patients, all of whom are doing well. Although a California subsidiary of Green Cross is importing it for research use, Fluosol has not received FDA marketing approval since animal studies on its long-term effects are not complete.

Researchers believe it hold promise for military, emergency and ambulance use since, unlike whole blood, it can be frozen and stored for up to two years and does not need to be matched or typed to the recipient.

Gift-Giving Ideas

Warm And Wonderful

A high-fashion, two-piece version of a jumpsuit or lightweight but oh-so-warm quilted bed jacket/topper could find favor with a favored woman on your Christmas list this year.

You can encourage your friends to save heating oil or gas by giving a gift that will help make winter warmer.

The jumpsuit — called a Snug Suit — allows freedom of movement with maximum comfort when the thermostat is lowered, and the topper can keep a lady warm as she reads in bed or wakes to a chilly morning.

The jacket/topper, called a Snug Shrug, matches a full line of designer-coordinated comforters, pillow shams and bed ruffles that complement any bedroom decor — modern, contemporary or traditional.

The jacket-with-pants Snug Suit, available in several colors and designs adds a compatible garment to the Heritage Quilts' original Snug Sack.

An added feature of all these Snuggables is their 100 percent polyester filling. They're machine-washable and tumble-dryable, too.

Congressman Would Double Farm Exports

Following a report by the agriculture council of America, Congressman Arlan Stangeland has urged the doubling of farm exports by 1985 in order to help erase the balance of payments deficit and restore international confidence in the dollar.

"We've got to begin thinking and working for a national export goal and farm exports should contribute in the range of $65 to $70 billion by 1985," Stangeland said. "Encouraging a stronger dollar is an important tool in the fight against inflation and increasing our exports will play a big role in eliminating or reducing the growing blance of payments deficit."

In fiscal year 1979, U.S. agricultural exports reached a record high of $32 billion exceeding imports by approximately $16 billion. Agricultural experts say U.S. farm exports could exceed $107 billion by 1990, which is more than triple the current level.

"Every American would benefit from increased agricultural trade," Stangeland said. "For example, it would provide more jobs for the agricultural community and related industries and act to produce a higher growth rate for our economy."

In 1979, farm exports provided employment opportunities for 1.6 million U.S. workers and generated $63 billion in domestic economic activity.

Stangeland says he would like to see an increase in farm exports of approximately $7 to $8 billion a year and, he added, "this will play an even more important role when the increases in outlays for imported oil and consumer goods are taken into consideration." He also stated that with increased agricultural activity the U.S. will have to place a high priority on upgrading transportation systems and negotiating the removal of trade barriers.

"The U.S. has the ability to produce high quantities of agricultural products for use around the world. Agricultural products are a commodity and with increased exports this nation will be able to reduce the trade deficit, reduce the growing inflation rate and begin stabilizing the U.S. economy, Stangeland said.

Former Pastor In TRF Speaks Here Dec. 17

Rev. Jack Marsh, former pastor of St. Bernard's parish in Thief River Falls and presently pastor of St. Paul's church, Seattle, WA, will speak at St. Bernard's parish December 17 at 8 p.m.

Rev. Marsh, also a former curate at St. Francis de Sales Catholic church in Moorhead, will give a public presentation December 14 at St. Joseph's parish in Moorhead at 8 p.m.

Marsh, an alcoholic, will speak on ideas expressed in his latest book, "Let's Talk," about how one can help others in dealing with their addiction to alcohol.

Marsh holds a master's degree in theology from the Sulpician Seminary of the Northwest and a certificate of advanced professional studies from the Berkeley center of alcohol studies at the Pacific school of religion. He is currently the alcoholism consultant for the Archdiocese of Seattle.

Rev. Marsh has written a previous book, entitled, "Freeze the Disease" — an autobiographical that describes his path to alcoholism and himself as a veteran of five alcoholic treatment centers. He was asked to leave several parishes and a diocese because of his alcoholism.

It was Rev. Kenneth Povish, bishop of the Crookston Diocese from 1970-75, who took him in and confronted Rev. Marsh about his drinking. Bishop Povish encouraged Marsh to take treatment at Keystone center, Canton, SD, or return to Seattle. Bishop Povish also assured Marsh of an assignment in a parish when he returned from treatment. Marsh took the treatment and when he got back Bishop Povish assigned him as pastor and curate at the Thief River Falls parish and its two missions in Goodridge and Grygla.

For five five years now, Marsh has been sober and despite being busy taking care of his parish in Seattle and a school of 244 children, he lectures twice a week and gives four retreats a year in his fight against alcoholism.

Dairy Farms In Minnesota Drop to 26,630

Minnesota's annual mid-year inventory of dairy farms revealed that 26,630 dairy farms were operating on June 30, 1979, reports agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

That is a drop of 1,384 diary farms from the mid-1978 count of 28,014 commercial dairy farms producing and marketing milk.

Commissioner Seetin said that the 1979 estimate of commercial dairy farms "now means that one in every four farms in Minnesota is involved in milk production. Thirty years ago, when the annual inventory of dairy farms in Minnesota was begun, three out of every four farms were producing milk." Just ten years ago, according to the records compiled cooperatively by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service and the field accounting and statistics divisions of the Minnesota department of agriculture, our nation's fourth leading milk producing state counted 46,289 dairy farms. This indicates a loss of nearly 20,000 dairy farms or 42 per cent of the total operating in mid-1969."

Commissioner Seetin said that the continuing decline in the number of dairy farms in Minnesota reflects the move toward specialized and more efficient agricultural production. Dairy farming is the leading source of Minnesota gross farm income.

"This year through October Minnesota's dairy farms produced 7 per cent more milk than did more than five times as many dairy farms with a two thirds greater inventory of milk cows in 1949," he noted. The number of Grade A dairy farms continued to increase in Minnesota during the past year, at the expense of dairy farms producing only Grade B milk. At mid-1979 Minnesota counted 9,291 Grade A dairy farms, up nearly 6 per cent from a year ago. Grade B bulk dairy farms dropped by nearly 4 per cent to 11,731, and Grade B dairy farms marketing milk in cans dropped by 20 per cent to a new low of 5,608. During the past decade the number of Grade A dairy farms in Minnesota has increased by almost 74 per cent while the number of Grade B milk can farms has declined by 76 per cent.

Survival Kits Aid Drivers During Winter

Minnesota department of public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic, has a Christmas gift suggestion that would be a "safe" gift for any Minnesota driver either to give or to receive.

"Putting together a winter survival kit designed for use in motor vehicles can be an easy to make gift that is thoughtful and practical," explains Sopsic.

Designed to be used by stranded motorists, most of the items needed for the kit are reasonably priced and easily available.

The items included in the kit are packed into an empty three pound coffee can. The coffee can, besides serving as the package for other items could serve as an improvised kettle for melting snow and heating foods.

Among the items that you may choose to place in the kit, you might consider:

—Work gloves or mittens, scarf and stocking cap tied around the can with a string; a flashlight, spare batteries, candles and matches or disposable lighter; bright red or orange cloth for signal banner, face mask or first aid purposes; small sharp knife, can opener, safety pins and spoon; facial tissue or paper towels; two dimes taped to top of container for phone calls; canned solid fuel (type used for heating fondues, etc); any high calorie food such as canned stews, honey, chocolate, raisins, candy bars or dried foods can be packed. Coffee, tea or powdered soup are other possible additions.

This coffee can survival kit should be kept in the passenger compartment of the car. A collision could make the trunk inaccessible. Other items such as a first aid kit, fire extinguisher, flares, booster cables, shovel, heavy clothing (such as snowmobile suit and boots), blanket or sleeping bag, tow cable, and sand (for traction if stuck) may be kept in the trunk, but should be moved into the car if you are threatened with severe weather while traveling.

Besides having this survival kit in the car, there are other measures that can be taken to be prepared in case you are stranded. Plan ahead before you travel by knowing the weather and telling someone the route you plan to take and when you should be expected to arrive. Emergency phone calls can be made to the Minnesota state patrol by dialing "O" and asking for Zenith 7000. Give you location and describe the trouble you are in.

If you are stalled, make yourself visible. Turn on your dome light in darkness so road crews can see you. Stay in your vehicle and avoid overexertion. Wandering in a storm is a very dangerous practice — so stay put. Make sure you are getting fresh air into your car, especially if you run your engine (which should only be done for short intervals). Above all, remember that the storm will end and you will be found.

PLUMMER . . .

Plummer Lions Host District Governor Jorgenson & His Wife

The Plummer Lions hosted district governor Ellsworth Jorgenson and his wife at the annual December ladies night meeting. Among the 22 couples present at the meeting were past presidents, treasurers and secretaries. President Ray Franklund introduced Plummer Mayor Howard Greenwald and his wife. The Mayor welcomed governor and Mrs. Jorgenson to Plummer. The Mayor then spoke briefly on the excellent spirit within the Plummer Lions club and the benefits a community can realize from such outstanding volunteer non-profit organizations.

Governor Jorgenson gave a short speech on his recent involvement in various sight and hearing international organizations. He spoke on numerous projects that are ongoing in the United States and the state of Minnesota. His remarks on the Vitamin "A" programs, Lion to Lion International correspondence, leader dog programs, eye bank and children's eye clinic in the University of Minnesota was enjoyed by all those present. Following the governor's presentation he and his wife were presented a Plummer 75th anniversary plate from the Lions club.

Upon completion of events at the Home Plate Cafe the meeting was adjourned to Hanson's cafe where Lion Art and Alma Hanson hosted a Christmas party.

President Franklund's committee for the evening's activities were: Master of ceremonies, Ernie Pederson; tail twister, Roger Hughes; singing coordinator, Russell Huotari; soloist (music-maker), Dwight Howard; impromptu chaplin, Mrs. Franklund; refreshments, Merle Jesme; and decorations, daughters of Lions.

Mrs. Jerry Skjerven, daughter Kathy and Ms. Cathy DuChamp provided an excellent meal for the occasion.

All past and present members are invited to the January 7th membership meeting to be held at the Home Plate cafe at 7:30 p.m. Persons that would desire information on lionism may call President Franklund at 465-4434 or secretary Helley at 465-4587.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rude returned recently from a two week's visit in Charlotte, N.C., where they were guests at the Stephen Schachner home. Mrs. Schachner is their daughter, Charlene. While there they were honored guests at a dinner given by Stephen and Charlene. Other guests were Eric, Michael, Stephen and Phillip, sons of Charlene and Stephen, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schachner and Virginia of Charlotte, N.D., and Susan Schachner of Appleton, Wis.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Herb Torstveit who are the proud parents of a daughter Heather Dawn, who was born Nov. 26 at Crookston.

The children and teachers of St. Pauli Sunday school are busy preparing for the annual Christmas program which will be presented Sunday evening, December 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the church.

The St. Pauli church women met Thursday evening at the Wallace Torkelson home. A program about foster parenting was presented by Rev. Fredine of Middle River.

Mrs. Ruben Nelson (Marianne), who has been a patient at the local hospital for the past ten days, has been transferred to a Minneapolis hospital for treatment. We all join in praying for her recovery.

Desirae Dellane Alberg, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myles Alberg, was baptized into the Lutheran faith at worship services on Sunday morning at St. Pauli church. Rev. Lloyd Heroff administered the sacrament. Mr. and Mrs. Don Burkel of Greenbush and Chad Alberg of Roseau were the sponsors.

After the services, Mr. and Mrs. Alberg entertained at dinner in honor of the baby. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Don Burkel of Greenbush, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Alberg, Chad and Kim of Roseau, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Alberg and family of Fergus Falls, Loren Wellen of Thief River Falls, Erica and Tammy Alberg.

Driving Thoughts

Heading east on the Capital Beltway from Virginia through Maryland I watch the sun — a bright orange ball — rise over the horizon and through the pine trees. The scene is reminiscent of early mornings in Minnesota, especially in the area north of Brainerd. The eight lanes of Beltway traffic, though, are sure different than Minnesota.

The traffic prompts a couple of thoughts. The Iranian crisis is one of them. We sure have wrapped ourselves in the American flag for the first time in a long time. But how much are we willing to do to keep the flag flying?

Eight crowded lanes of traffic, almost every car occupied by just one person and almost everyone going faster than 55 miles per hour. Makes me wonder if we really want to stay wrapped in the American flag and prevent the face-slapping from all the Irans of this world. President Carter underscored an important point when he cut off our Iranian oil imports — about 700,000 barrels per day (the equivalent of 29.4 million gallons of gasoline) or 10 per cent of our total imports. The President's decision won't really hurt Iran. There are plenty of customers for their oil. But, cutting U.S. imports will help America by making us less dependent on unstable foreign leaders like Ayatollah Khomeini.

Of course, if we significantly reduce our imports — which account for about half of all the oil we use in the U.S.— we're going to have to make some changes. Not major changes in our life styles, but adjustments in the day-to-day way we do things.

We'll have to adjust to the inconvenience of driving 55 mph, of sharing a ride to work, of combining trips into town or to the shopping center, instead of running in and out on a whim. We need 218 million contributions — one from every American.

We need to have enough U.S. energy — from conservation and alternative sources like gasohol as well as oil, coal and other sources we use today — so that foreign oil sources are competing with each other to make up the difference between what we can produce and what we need. Once we get to that point, the oil-producing countries will have to compete with each other — at a lower price — for our business. Then we'll be back to having America stand for something again and we won't be the paper tiger or the laughing stock or the hostage of a religious fanatic.

THE OTHER thought that strikes me while driving is the car I'm driving — a Chrysler. Some of my colleagues from Michigan, Indiana and the other six states with big Chrysler assembly plants have been telling me about the need to save Chrysler.

The one car production plant in Minnesota belongs to Ford, not Chrysler. The struggling car company employs only 3,200 people in our state, including the employees of the 149 dealerships and the zone and credit offices and parts depot in Minneapolis. In fact, there are fewer than 2,000 Minnesotans who own stock in Chrysler. So, I get a lot more letters, phone calls and advice from people telling me to let Chrysler go bankrupt than I do from people who have a stake in the company.

But, that's why I bought a Chrysler. I want to know firsthand what it's like to have a major financial stake in the bankruptcy of a major American manufacturer. How do I get my car repaired: Who will honor the warranty: How do I get spare parts: What happens to the suppliers, mechanics, assembly line workers, secretaries and all the other people now employed by Chrysler? And I bought it from a friend whose family's life is tied up in his dealership. So I'd have to think about them — about real people.

I've been wondering since I bought the car whether I'm too idealistic. The gas gauge doesn't work properly and the mileage performance is not exactly what I was promised. I bought a 1980 model rather than a 1979 in September when I could have received a $400 rebate because I wanted three or four miles per gallon better mileage.

Penny, my wife and checkbook balancer, informed me the other day that Chrysler is going to give $300 rebates to purchasers of 1980 Chryslers — but only to those who purchase after Nov. 1. The price of cars is going up.

George Romney, the former president of American Motors Corp., former governor of Michigan and chairman of the National Center for Voluntary Action when I was on his executive committee, recently testified before the Senate Banking Committee on Chrysler.

His testimony reminded me of the talks I've had with Governor Romney about Chrysler and the AMC parallel. He told me that he had the choice of taking AMC the way Studebaker-Packard went — accepting government financial assistance and government involvement. He refused it and AMC went on its own. AMC survived and Studebaker-Packard died.

The Chrysler bail-out is a tough problem. The decision of Congress will affect the company's 250,000 employees, every taxpayer (after all, it's their money that would be used to guarantee loans to Chrysler) and people like me who have a stake in the company.

Minn. Peatland Use Discussed

by Rebecca Judge
Peatlands Project Coordinator

Minnesota is investigating possible utilization alternatives for its 3.7 million acres of public peatlands.

With legislative action slated to begin this session, the Minnesota department of natural resources (MDNR) has prepared an exhaustive series of studies detailing utilization alternatives and describing the possible economic and environmental consequences associated with each alternative.

Various uses have been identified. Some, such as agriculture and forestry, are classified as nonconsumptive, that is, they can be used indefinitely without harming the peat itself. Others, such as horticulture and energy, require the peat to be extracted, thus causing the irrevokable depletion of the peat. This article will concentrate on nonconsumptive uses of Minnesota's peatlands.

Agriculture

Nearly 678,000 acres of Minnesota peatlands are used by agriculture. Most agricultural peatlands produce hay and pasture crops, but row crops (corn, soybeans and sunflowers), wild rice, turf grass, grains, vegetables and grass seed are also grown on peat soils throughout the state. Although the short growing season and lower temperatures found in northern Minnsota do not favor agriculture, Dr. Rouse Farnham of the University of Minnesota maintains that "high protein grass crops, seed crops, special vegetable crops and other crops especially adapted to the climate and soil conditions of these regions are possibilities for the future."

In order to be used for agriculture, peatlands have to be ditched and drained of their excess water. Large quantities of potassium must be added to the soil along with lesser amounts of phosphorous.

Agricultural development of peat soils is not without environmental consequences. Draining of the peatlands may increase the flow of spring flooding from excess runoff. While peatlands do not act as a sponge, as is popularly believed, they do tend to slow the flow of water percolating through them, thus preventing flash flooding. Draining peatlands would diminish this capability.

This required addition of nutrients (i.e., phosphorous and potassium) to areas characterized by such a high water table could be a dangerous proposition as ground water supplies could be easily contaminated.

Timber

Nearly one million acres of Minnesota peatlands are used for timber production, and supply 25 per cent of Minnesota's pulpwood. Black spruce, tamarack and white cedar flourish naturally on these wet acid soils, providing both an environmental and economic resource to Minnesota. In Koochiching county alone, peatland timber generated a return of over $5 million dollars in 1976.

Minnesota department of natural resources has recommended that more intensive forestry practices be applied to areas where commercially productive timber is presently growing and in areas where timber has been recently harvested. The MDNR also recommends that intensive forestry practices be applied to unproductive swamp-shrub areas by draining and converting them to the more productive black spruce forests.

These intensive management practices require some environmental tradeoffs. Logging roads would have to be constructed through ecologically sensitive areas. Intensive logging will lower the vapotranspiration rate, a factor which could lead to additional runoff and possible flooding. Drainage of some peatlands would be necessary to promote additional timber lands, with the same consequences as drainage of peatlands for agricultural purposes. Creating timberlands for marginal swamplands will necessitate the addition of soil nutrients such as phosphorous and potassium. As stated earlier, this could have an adverse impact on water quality.

Preservation

Third and final consumptive use of Minnesota peatlands is preservation. Currently, 57.5 per cent of Minnesota's peatlands are undeveloped. An additional 159,900 acres have been set aside as part of the national natural landmark program. Obviously, the preservation alternative can be chosen with little fear of environmental consequences.

However, through preservation, we would lose the benefits associated with peat development. Question before us is whether the environmental costs of these utilization alternatives are outweighed by the economic and societal benefits associated with peatlands development.

In preparing this article, we relied heavily on the following publications:

"Minnesota Peat Program: Legislative Status Report April 1979," "Effect of Peat Utilization on Water Quality in Minnesota" by R. L. Crawford, "Phase 2 Peat Program — Hydrological Factors of Peat Harvesting" by K. Brooks and "Status of Present Peatland Uses for Agricultural and Horticultural Peat Production" by R. Farnham. All are available from the MDNR.

If you have additional questions that you would like to see addressed in regard to the peat situation, please write or call Rebecca Judge, 101 Math-Geology Building, University of Minnesota Duluth, Duluth, Minnesota 55812 (218) 726-7201.

UND Reports On Title IX Guidelines

University of North Dakota athletic director Carl R. Miller recently said UND athletics is very close to meeting Department of Health, Education and Welfare Title IX guidelines as announced last week by HEW in regard to ending sex bias in athletics, including distribution of scholarship monies for men's and women's sports.

"UND has made an institutional commitment to Title IX legislation in which our men and women have equal opportunity to participate. We show this by providing an equal number of sports for men and women with adequate coaching and budget allocations to meet institutional levels of competition and all other travel requirements," Miller said.

He also said UND now awards scholarships in football, basketball, hockey, wrestling and track for men in basketball, volleyball, field hockey and track for women.

"We feel," Miller continued, "our program is close to meeting the HEW guidelines as recently classified by the government. Dr. Helen Smiley, our women's athletic coordinator and I discussed our compliance concerning the new guidelines and we are in total agreement that we are near to meeting these new guidelines."

Miller also presented the following figures. "We now have 91 scholarships for men and 48 for women. At present we have 138 women participants or 33 per cent on an intercollegiate basis. We have 283 men participating or 67 per cent of the total number competing in varsity sports," he said.

UND men's teams compete in the North Central Conference in all sports except hockey, in which UND is a charter member of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association. UND is a NCAA Division II member in all sports except hockey in which it is Division I. UND women's teams compete independently in Division II of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW), but plans more competition among North Central Conference members.

Electric And Phone Bills Rise In 1979

Farm electricity and telephone bills in Minnesota increased by over 19 per cent this year and together topped the $100 million mark for the first time for the state's agriculture industry, commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week.

According to the annual farm telephone and electricity survey based on June and July farm bills, the average Minnesota farm was looking at 1979 bills totaling $787.20 for electricity and $302.40 for telephone service.

These estimates compared with average 1978 Minnesota farm billings of $652.80 for electricity and $261.60 for telephone.

Multiplying those averages by Minnesota's estimated 104,000 commercial farms results in a statewide 1979 cost to farm operators of $81,868,800 for electricity and $31,449,600 for telephone service, or a combined bill totaling $113,318,400.

Minnesota's farm costs this year are averaging nearly 21 per cent higher for electricity and almost 16 per cent higher for telephone service.

In 1978 Minnesota agriculture's combined telephone ane electricity bill added up to $95,097,600. That did not include irrigation electricity costs, however, which have been excluded from the annual national farm utility costs survey. This year Minnesota farmers used their irrigation systems little if at all due to surplus rainfall.

Commissioner Seetin said that the Minnesota farm telephone and electric bills look reasonable when compared with other states, and Minnesota's unofficially estimated $176 million fuel bill for production and harvest of field crops.

Compared with the farm utility bills for all states, Minnesota's 1979 average bills ranked 14th for electricity and 35th for telephone service. Minnesota's farm electric bill was higher due primarily to a 9 per cent increase in consumption, and the telephone bill was higher due mainly to greater use of long distance service. Minnesota's mid-1979 average farm electricity rate at 4.1 cents per kilowatt hour was the 15th lowest in the nation.

Two From TRF On Honor List

North Dakota state school of science has named 493 students, including two from Thief River Falls, to the president's honor list during the fall quarter of the 1979-80 college year. Receiving a perfect 4.0 grade point average for the quarter was Randy Lambert, enrolled in civil engineering technology. John P. Kertz was on the honor list in architectural drafting and estimating.

To be included on the list, students must earn a 3.5 G.P.A. (B plus letter grade) while enrolled in no fewer than 12 credit hours of classroom, laboratory and shop work.

Senior Citizens

Its beginning to look a lot like Christmas at our center. Thursday, Dec. 6, we took out the tree and trimmed that. Had a lot of fun trimming and had a good chance to visit.

We had lots of company Thursday. Clara Nelson and Vera Peterson of Karlstad, Karen and Barbara Skadsem from Middle River area, Hulda and Mabel Stromberg, Ida Bruce, Anna Rud and Iola Rokke were all present. There were 19 that registered in our record book.

Mildred read the treasurer's report. We decided to have our Christmas party Thursday, Dec. 13, with an exchange of gifts about $2 value. Each member is to bring some food item for the lunch that day. We have invited a few guests. We also talked of having our center open on Saturday, Dec. 15. Santa Claus will be in town and anyone wanting to visit our center can do so that day. We will be open at 1 p.m. and there will be Christmas goodies and coffee, too. We have many nice items you could buy as a gift or just drop in for coffee.

Ruth Harper gave two door prizes that Evelyn and Irene received. Amanda donated a money gift as a door prize that Karen Skadsem won. She in turn, gave the prize to the senior citizens center. Thank you, Karen. Clara Nelson gave the center some good rummage. Thanks, Clara. Thanks, also, to Anna Rud, who is helping crochet on the afghan blocks. We sure appreciate that.

Amanda Johnson served a delicious lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Braff visited Linda Braff and Violet Lofstrom at Karlstad Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Nelson drove to Fargo Saturday and Laurel Klein accompanied them back home. We are happy to report that Laurel Kline is home again after being hospitalized at Fargo for about three weeks.

More Americans die from heart disease, stroke, and related disorders each year than all other causes of death combined, according to the American Heart Association.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland

An Overview of Hospital Cost Containment

No one can question the high prices required for medical care, and these prices will continue to rise. But what can be questioned is the desire by the current administration to place controls on hospitals.

The hospital cost containment act of 1979, defeated overwhelmingly by the House, would have established limits on annual increases in total hospital expenditures and provided for standby mandatory limits in hospital inpatient revenues. The bill provided for a mandatory Federal program that would have been triggered if hospitals collectively failed to meet the national voluntary limit calculated for that year.

This bureaucratic and economically unwise method of handling health care costs appears on the outside to be an effective way of keeping prices equal to or below the inflation rate. The truth, however, is that mandatory hospital cost containment would increase the already high cost of health care in the seventh district.

This legislation was an attempt by the Administration to convince the general public that something is being done by the government, instead of voluntarily by the hospitals, to control costs and it does not address the, true problem.

Year after year Congress has insisted on enacting unneeded rules and regulations as a defense against impending problems and necessary solutions. Imposing regulations does not develop a permanent cure, but acts to proliferate the problem, thus causing greater economic hardship on those who can least afford it.

Price controls have never solved the problem of rising prices in hospitals or in the free enterprise economy in general. Currently, nine states provide mandatory controls, and in these states hospital costs rose, on a cost-per-admission basis, by $259.00 in 1978. On the other hand, increases in states without mandatory price controls averaged $213.30, or six per cent less. Costs in Minnesota averaged $172. The ineffectiveness of mandatory hospital cost containment is demonstrated by the fact that in the state of New York, which has mandatory controls, three out of every four hospitals were operating at a loss in 1978. Similarly, in Massachusetts three out of five hospitals were losing money under mandatory controls.

Voluntary cost containment programs now in effect have reduced the rate of increase in hospital costs from 15.6 per cent to 12.8 per cent in 1978. As an alternative to the President's plan, I voted in favor of an amendment to continue this voluntary program and establish a national commission on hospital costs to make a comprehensive study of the underlying causes of hospital cost inflation. Even though I do not favor federal control of any kind, I felt it was better to continue voluntary controls instead of mandatory controls. I, however, did vote against final passage of the bill hoping to bring an end to government hospital cost containment programs. Continuing voluntary cost containment now goes to the Senate.

A major problem with mandatory controls is that hospitals would be forced to curtail service and lessen the quality of health care available. With improved technology the treatment is often more expensive and under mandatory controls hospitals could not economically afford to provide patients with the best possible care.

I do not believe more federal red-tape would be effective in controlling hospital costs. Government regulations and requirements already are estimated to confiscate 30 cents of every dollar charged by hospitals, and mandatory controls would certainly increase the cost. We should instead determine the causes of hospital inflation and correct them. People want good hospital care at reasonable prices, but we cannot deprive people of necessary care or provide second-class care for the poor and elderly in the name of hospital cost containment.

Federal regulations also act to lessen the quality and availability of good health care in the seventh district, and in the next column I will explain how.

Blastomycosis Source Eludes Researchers

Have you ever heard of canine blastomycosis? Is it severe or mild? Can it be transmitted to humans?

These are three questions that are answered in an article George A. Sarosi, M.D., department of medicine, Veterans administration medical center, Minneapolis, and colleagues have written in the November 1979 issue of 'The Annals of Internal Medicine'.

"Blastomycosis is still an enigma", Dr. Sarosi said, and "in recent years, more detailed understanding of the ecology of blastomyces dermatitidis has been elusive."

There have been four epidemics of blastomycosis to date and the fungus was not recovered from the patients' environment. Both humans and dogs are susceptible to this Blastomyces dermatitidis fungus. Canine blastomycosis is familiar to the veterinarian and its symptoms include severe weight loss, anorexia, and the appearance of ocular of cutaneous lesions. According to the article, cases of the disease among dogs should alert physicians to the possibility of an outbreak among people.

Dr. Sarosi describes the various treatments that he and other physicians gave to a sample group of six patients. The patients' most notable symptoms were coughing, weight loss, — and anorexia, and in each case either the patient's or a neighbor's dog had died of blastomycosis (revealed by autopsy). Canine blastomycosis is not a new disease. Its history goes back as far as 1898 when T.C. Gilchrist, who had described the disease in humans, along with a colleague reported that dogs could be innoculated with the fungus and developed an illness closely resembling human blastomycosis immediately after inoculation. The article goes on to say that amphoterician b therapy is effective treatment in dogs as well as humans.

Finally, Dr. Sarosi says, he doesn't believe that dogs infected the humans but that the fungus was in the same environment that both dogs and humans were exposed to. The fungus habitat in nature has not been discovered and recent work suggested that the fungus is found in bird droppings. Further studies will eventually pinpoint it exactly.

Girls Win Opener In Unusual Fashion

It wasn't very well played, but it was kind of fun Tuesday as the Lincoln high school girls basketball team opened its 1979-80 season with a 32-30 home court victory over Fisher.

Fourth quarter excitement overshadowed 24 minutes of mistakes as the Prowlers doubled their meager 16-point three quarter output in the final period for a remarkable come-from-behind triumph.

It won't happen very often where a high school basketball team will go an entire quarter without scoring and still come out a winner. But that's what the Prowlers did last night. After opening with a 9-5 first quarter lead, the Prowlers went nine-minutes, five-seconds before scoring again. A scoreless second quarter left them behind 14-9 at halftime.

But that's the kind of game it was. Thief River Falls, after making just seven of 46 field goal attempts through three quarters, suddenly found the basket in the fourth quarter and connected on five of six shots to win the game.

Ironically, Thief River Falls also scored 32 points against Fisher last year, but lost by 25, 57-32. However, the turnaround is due mostly to the Flyers' heavy graduation losses off last year's outstanding ball club, and not due to the Prowlers' improved play.

Maybe it wasn't pretty. But it was entertaining. Fourth quarter excitement made it a worthwhile outing. Give girls basketball a shot next time the Prowlers play at home. But don't leave early.

Miscellaneous

+Mick Metzer, who coached hockey at both the high school and college level in Crookston, is the new high school hockey coach at Greenway-Coleraine this winter. Metzer, who led an underdog Mount St. Benedict team into the Section 8 finals in 1977, served as an arena manager last year before moving to Coleraine this winter to succeed Mike Barle who watched a year ago when his highly regarded Raiders dropped a 4-3 decision in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Prowlers will face Greenway Sat., Jan. 12, in Coleraine where Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand served as an assistant coach before taking over the Prowlers in 1976-77.

+Georgine Troska, who scored 1,148 points in her high school basketball career at Goodridge and then set a new Northland community college record by scoring 732 points in two years with the Northwomen, is a member of the North Dakota State University women's basketball team, averaging 3.6 points coming off the bench for the 2-3 Bison.

Prowlers Open NWAC Schedule At Crookston

Illness, which has sidelined center Todd Young and Greg Miller this week and has slowed guard Kyle Hams, has Lincoln high school basketball coach Glen Peters concerned heading into the Prowlers' 1979-80 Northwest Athletic Conference opener Friday at Crookston. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

"We are not healthy," pointed out Peters. "We probably won't have a decent practice until Thursday.

A victory over Crookston would certainly make the Prowlers feel better. But they'll have to contend with the Pirates Tim Knotek, one of the area's top ball players. The 6-3 senior scored 20 points in a 52-48 loss to Bemidji Friday and followed that with 26 points in a 63-54 victory of St. Francis Saturday.

But Peters doesn't plan a special defense for Knotek. "He's a very fine basketball player," said the Prowlers coach. "It really doesn't seem to make any difference how you play him because everybody knows he's still going to get his 16-to-20 points. We'll play our basic defense and maybe try to concentrate on holding down the other players."

Crookston is 2-2, with the unexpected loss to Bemidji hanging over the heads of the Pirates, considered the preseason favorite in the NWAC basketball race.

"We beat Bemidji everywhere but on the scoreboard," said Crookston coach Marshall Olson who was happy with the way the Pirates came back to beat St. Francis, a Region 7AA school, Saturday on the road. "We beat a good ball team. They were 2-0 and leading their conference going into the game. We're beginning to get our confidence back, which is what we need."

Thief River Falls will take a 3-0 record to Crookston, site of the Prowlers' 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 tournament championship. "The kids are confident they can win over there," noted Peters. "We always seem to play well at Crookston. For some reason our kids like that floor."

Still, Peters is careful not to put too much emphasis on the game. "One game isn't going to make or break our season," he said. "We still get them at home and I'm sure we can beat them here."

The Thief River Falls-Crookston game is the only NWAC contest of the week. In nonconference games, early season conference leader Fergus Falls hosts Breckenridge Friday and Bemidji entertains Wadena Saturday.

Meanwhile, Northland community college basketball teams will be in North Dakota this weekend. The 4-0 Northmen will play Trinity Bible Institute Friday night at 7:30 and Saturday afternoon at 2 in Ellendale. The 0-1 Northwomen will participate in a Lake Region community college weekend tournament at Devils Lake.

GUARDED CLOSELY by Thief River Falls' Kim McFarland, Fisher guard Caroline Love looked for someone to pass the ball to during Tuesday's high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. Ann Goodrich of the Prowlers (31) was also involved in the first half play. The Prowlers opened their 1979-80 season with a 32-30 victory over the Flyers.

Lincoln Hockey Team Plays At Fergus Falls

Northmen Will Open Against State Champs

Defending MJCAA state champion Hibbing will be the opposition as the Northland community college hockey team opens its 1979-80 season with a weekend series in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Northmen and Cardinals will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. and again Saturday afternoon at 1.

"We're anxious to find out what we can do," said Northland coach Bob Lundbohm. "And since Hibbing should be one of the better teams in the league this year, we'll find out in a hurry how we stack up."

The Cardinals, who won the MJCAA state tournament played here last spring, swept a two-game series at Crookston last weekend, winning close 6-4 and 7-6 decisions.

Hibbing trailed 4-3 going into the third period of Saturday's series opener, but dominated the final 20 minutes until the Cardinals went ahead 5-4 on Dale Wright's goal with 2:40 remaining. Then with two Trojans in the penalty box, Jim Lawson iced the game with a power play goal at 19:48. The Cardinals out-shot the Trojans 55-28.

Crookston bolted to a 3-0 lead 12 minutes into Sunday's rematch, but Hibbing came out of the first period with a 4-3 lead. It was a 5-5 hockey game in the third period when the Cardinals' Dave Thune and Don Hanson scored just 42 seconds apart to decide the issue. Gaylen Erickson of the Trojans made it close by scoring with 6:15 remaining. Again the Cardinals out-shot the Trojans, this time 62-38.

Out of necessity, Lundbohm wouldn't mind getting into a shoot-out with Hibbing. The Northland coach figures his team is staffed by strong forwards, but he is sorely lacking defense.

"We're going to play wide open offensive hockey," promised Lundbohm.

Lundbohm said earlier his line-up would probably have Scott Bergland centering Steve Gentz and Jay Kverno; Mark Koehn between Lyle Johnson and Kurt Klosterman; with Bergland and Koehn alternating shifts as a third line center between Luke Noreen and Roger Ehrhorn.

Charlie Sehler will start in goal, with Mike Olson, Howard Beito, Dan Guenin and Rick Harger on defense.

Only non-Thief River Falls skaters in that group are Koehn (Devils Lake, N.D.), Ehrhorn (Grand Rapids,) Sehler (East Grand Forks), Beito (Hallock) and Guenin (Baudette).

Because of the holidays, Northland, after facing Hibbing, isn't scheduled to play again until a January 11-12 series here against Mesabi.

While Northland occupies the sports arena, the Lincoln high school hockey team will be on the road for a 7:30 p.m. game Saturday at Fergus Falls. The Prowlers, 1-0, opened at home last Saturday with a 7-3 victory over Mount St. Benedict of Crookston.

LHS Wins 32-30 With Fourth Quarter Rally

Fourth quarter excitement overshadowed 24 minutes of mistakes Tuesday as the Lincoln high school girls doubled their meager 16-point three quarter output in the final period to claim a remarkable 32-30 come-from-behind season-opening basketball win over Fisher.

The Prowlers, who failed to score in the second quarter, trailed 23-16 when Fisher sophomore Caroline Love sank two free throws to start the fourth quarter, matching the Flyers' biggest lead of the game.

But a makeshift Thief River Falls line-up that included only guard Ann Goodrich out of the Prowlers' original starting five, along with Stacey Sinn, Carla Ode, Rhonda Sanders and LeAnn Paetznick, turned things around by forcing five Fisher turnovers that were all converted into points.

Sinn put Thief River Falls on top for the first time since early in the second quarter when she controlled a jump ball in the Prowlers' zone, bulled through heavy traffic and scored for a 26-25 edge with 3:51 remaining.

"I just went down the bench until I found something to get us going," is the way Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg explained her fourth quarter combination.

Bev Beiswenger, a 5-10 center, made things tough on the Prowlers at the end with a free throw and a rebound basket in a crowd to put Fisher back on top 28-26 before she fouled out with 2:07 left. Thanks to her, Fisher finished with a sizeable 42-26 rebound advantage.

Thief River Falls didn't regain the lead until Paetznick, a sophomore, took a feed from Goodrich and dropped in a short base line shot from a tough angle — almost behind the backboard — for a 31-30 edge with 34 seconds to go.

Love missed the front end of a bonus free throw situation with 27 seconds left, then fouled Goodrich with 17 seconds on the clock. Game-high scorer with 12 points, Goodrich made it 32-30 by hitting her first free throw.

But the victory didn't belong to the Prowlers until captain Roberta Engel rebounded Mimi Hougum's miss from outside with six seconds on the clock.

Sjoberg warned earlier that the Prowlers weren't very good shooters, and they proved it by shooting a mere 15 per cent through three quarters. Making just seven of 46 shots, the Prowlers trailed 21-16 at the end of the third quarter. But a 5-for-6 turnaround from the field in the fourth quarter lifted the Prowlers to a 12-for-52, 23 per cent level for the game. "That's typical of the way we've been shooting," said Sjoberg.

Fisher fared even poorer, making eight of 38 shots for 21 per cent. The Flyers stayed close with 14 free throws, but they missed 20 others. The

Middle River, MCC Stars Face Each Other Monday

Setting the stage for a face-to-face confrontation Monday, two of the area's top players — Dawn Nelson of Middle River and Rosalyn Knutson of Marshall County Central — turned in outstanding performances earlier this week in girls high school basketball action.

Nelson, a 5-8 junior, continued her season-opening offensive show Monday with a 27-point performance that carried Middle River past Badger 40-36. That same night Knutson, a 5-8 senior, scored 18 points and pulled down 10 rebounds to lead Marshall County Central past Karlstad 50-38.

Both teams are unbeaten at this early stage of the 1979-80 season, and the two area rivals will clash Monday at Newfolden. But they'll both be in action before that, with 3-0 Marshall County Central playing at Warroad Thursday and 4-0 Middle River visiting Greenbush Friday.

Middle River coach Tom Neibauer used Dawn Nelson at three different positions in Monday's 40-36 home court win over Badger. "When they ganged up on her inside, we moved her outside," he explained. "Then when they spread out, we moved her inside again."

The 27-point game wasn't unusual for Nelson who has had 29 and 28-point games already this season. And she complements her 23.3 scoring average with 14-15 rebounds per game, according to Neibauer who says, "She can do anything."

However, it was still a struggle for the Skippers who trailed 17-16 at halftime and led by a single point, 28-27, at the end of the third quarter.

"We didn't play every well," admitted Neibauer who was disappointed in the lack of offensive production behind Nelson. "We're just not getting as much out of some of the others as we should."

A full court press defense used by Marshall County Central paid immediate dividends, supplying the Nordics with a 17-4 first quarter lead that led to a 50-38 win over Karlstad at Newfolden Monday. The Rabbits came back to within 27-20 at halftime, but fell behind 38-26 in the third quarter.

"Our defense looked really, really good," praised Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "All of our girls play good defense; they work hard at it."

With nine points apiece, Tammy Wilcox and Sue Olson combined to match Rosalyn Knutson's 18-point scoring for the Nordics.

Jill Saurdiff, Terri Holthusen and Sherri Anderson combined for 45 points as Grygla claimed a 58-39 victory at Lancaster.

Holthusen and Anderson did their damage before intermission as Grygla opened up a 32-17 halftime lead. Holthusen scored 14 of her 15 points and Anderson had 10 of her 14 points in the first half. Saurdiff took over in the second half, scoring 12 of her game-high 16 points after intermission.

Grygla coach Bill Radeunz said the Eagles' switch to man-to-man defense from a zone, while not yet improving their defensive play in the early stages of the change, has led directly to an improved offense.

"We're running more now," mentioned Radeunz. "The man-to-man defense has them moving all the time and it seems to generate more offense."

Grygla, 2-0, will play Lake of the Woods Thursday at Baudette. The Eagles host Badger Monday.

Gonvick 39

A full court press defense supplied Plummer with a 24-3 first quarter lead and the Cardinals breezed to a 57-39 victory at Gonvick Tuesday.

The press had the Cardinals leading 8-0 before the Bulldogs managed to cross the time line for the first time.

"We've been using the same press for three years now," pointed out Plummer coach

Peters Scores 27 Points In Nordic's 69-41 Win

Scott Peters scored 27 points Tuesday to lead Marshall County Central to a 69-41 North Border Conference high school basketball win over Warroad at Newfolden.

It was the Nordics' third straight North Border victory after a pair of season-opening nonconference losses.

Although he's just 5-11, Peters did most of his damage on the inside where he grabbed five offensive rebounds and hit 12 of 19 shots. "He's strong," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "He makes up for those extra couple of inches with his strength. He makes room for himself in there."

While no other Marshall County Central player reached double figures, 10 Nordics scored as they showed their bench strength. "Our depth is just awesome," said Ueland. "It doesn't make any difference who we play; they all do the job for us."

Liberal substitution keeps the Marshall County Central press in full operation. The Nordics forced 29 Warroad turnovers Tuesday. They lost the ball 15 times themselves.

Although they shot just 34 per cent on a 29-for-86 night from the floor, the Nordics led 14-10 at the end of the first quarter, pulled away 29-16 at halftime and enjoyed a 51-26 third quarter cushion.

"We just aren't putting the ball in the basket," noted Ueland, "and I don't know why. I know we're good shots. But we're certainly doing a lot of other things awfully well right now."

VFW Bantam A hockey team remained unbeaten with a championship performance in a weekend tournament at Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls Bantams opened with an 8-0 shutout over St. Paul West, then handled Roseau 6-1 in the semifinals to reach Sunday's championship game against always-strong Edina West. Thief River Falls built a 4-0 lead and won the title with a 5-3 victory.

Squirt A team split a pair of weekend games, beating Grafton 9-0 but losing to Warroad 4-3.

Games this weekend will find the Bantam B team hosting Crookston Saturday at 4 p.m. in the sports arena; Squirt A team faces Bemidji Sunday at 1 p.m. in the old arena; Pee-Wee A team will entertain Bemidji Sunday at 3:15 in the sports arena; the Squirt B and Bantam A teams will be on the road Saturday when the Squirts play at Bagley and the Bantams at Bemidji.

POWER FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS.
Here are two ways to make someone on your Christmas list very happy: A Honda portable generator. Or a Honda outboard motor.
Either way, you're giving a rugged, reliable gift that'll be around for years.
The lightweight EM-400 generator provides a maximum 400 watts of power when and where you need it. For the outdoors or as backup during power failures. It can also charge 12 volt batteries.
Honda outboards come in 7.5 and 9.9 hp models for both fishermen and sailors. They're 4-stroke engines that start dependably. Run quietly. And economically.
Make this a Merry Christmas with Honda.

Relays Start Swim Season

High School swimming — the boy's portion of it — will start here Saturday when Thief River Falls stages its annual Prowler relays at 2 p.m. in the Franklin middle school pool.

Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Moorhead, Fosston and Park Rapids will take part in the two-hour opener that features 11 relay events. The Prowlers and Lumberjacks shared the title a year ago, but Thief River Falls coach John Kopari said Tuesday, "I think Bemidji will win it this year." Why? "Because they're good," he said in simple enough terms.

Kopari is working with a group of 23 swimmers, "a good number for us," he said. "But we don't have three or four outstanding kids like we've had in the past. We're going to struggle a little bit; we're going to have to rebuild."

Graduation took Dave Beito, Bruce Storhaug, Kevin Murphy and Karl Kuyath from the Prowlers. Beito, Storhaug and Murphy almost always scored in at least two events last winter, with Kuyath performing as the team's top diver.

Lack of those guaranteed point producers will probably find Kopari placing more emphasis on individual goals rather than team results. "It's the clock," he said. "They're always racing against the clock. Individual goals should keep them going."

Dan Schoonhoven and Jon Pinkerton serve as Thief River Falls co-captains this season. Schoonhoven, Pinkerton, Dennis Booth and Dan Thorstad are the Prowlers' only seniors.

Closest thing Kopari has to sure points this year is the Steve Poissant, Keith Grochow and Nate Gjovik combination in the breaststroke, usually a weak link in the Thief River Falls line-up.

In addition, Schoonhoven is a top backstroker; Pinkerton and Booth are strong sprinters; Isaacson is the team's top distance swimmer; and Eckstein is a versatile performer who could contribute points in several events.

"I think the kids are fired up about the season," said Kopari who, after facing Bemidji in Saturday's multiple-team event, will send his Prowlers against the Lumberjacks again in a Tuesday dual meet here at 4 p.m.

With 203 doubleplays in 1979, the Twins set a league record, breaking the 162-game mark of 192, set by Kansas City in 1973. The overall league record is 217, set by Philadelphia in the 154-game schedule in 1970.

Understanding Your Child

Tips On Telling Tales To Children

The thermometer says "zero." Snow's been forecast for the fourth straight day. Everyone's wearing a wardrobe of sweaters to make the heat last a little longer and there's nothing but reruns on TV. What can you do for the winter doldrums?

Take a tip from the past. Spend an evening telling stories with your whole family around the fireplace. Those dancing flames and deep shadows provide a natural setting to let your fancy soar.

If you've never thought of yourself as Mother Goose or the Brothers Grimm, don't worry. One firelog manufacturer, Duraflame, has come up with the following suggestions for would-be tale spinners.

To find out what stories really appeal to children, go back to your parents' home, crawl around in the attic, open up a few old boxes and rediscover the books you liked when you were young.

Ask your parents, "What story did I want you to tell me, again . . . and again . . . and again?" They're sure to remember that one!

Don't forget that grandparents are a valuable storytelling resource in their own right. Children love to hear true stories set back in the "old days" about people they know right now—especially about people like Mommy and Daddy.

Children are fascinated, too, by stories about themselves when they were "little." How did they act when they were babies? Where did they go and what did they see? Your child will love playing the starring role in his own personal show.

Check your local library. Children's librarians are specially trained to help you find the right kind of story to suit your child's particular interests.

Most libraries also have a "story hour" once a week, so if you want some tips on how to tell that book story, stick around. But don't be bound by the written word. Feel free to adapt. Part of the fun of story telling is adjusting the tale to fit your very own family.

Don't make story telling a one-way street. Encourage your children to tell stories of their own. Ask them to tell you the plot of their favorite TV program or movie. Let everyone in the family share something that happened to him or her during the day.

And remember, whenever there are children and fire, follow a few simple safety precautions. Never leave children alone by the fire. Don't let them poke, prod or play with fire. Always use a fireplace screen.

If you'd like more information on things to do around the fire, including a 19" x 25" fire safety coloring poster, a 22" x 22" fire safety game, MASTER SWEEP, and a 12-page booklet with four additional games, fire-building tips and more, send $1.00 with your name and address to "Duraflame Fireside Kit," P.O. Box 24305, Dept. NM, Oakland, CA 94623.

Jump-Starting Car Can Pose Safety Hazard

More than 16,000 battery-related injuries occurred last year, and nearly three-quarters of them involved the eyes, according to the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

"Often these injuries are suffered by drivers and service station mechanics attempting to start a car with a dead battery without following proper safety procedures. An accidental spark can set off an eye-threatening explosion," warned Jim O'Neil, safety specialist for the society.

"Too few motorists realize — until it's too late — the potential dangers involved when they jump-start a depleted battery. And as winter temperatures drop, the problem is intensified, since car batteries weaken in cold weather," O'Neil added.

Car batteries contain a mixture of sulfuric acid and water, generating hydrogen gas, which is very explosive and easily ignited. Using matches or cigarette lighters to check fluid levels in the battery's filler ports or a spark from improperly used jumper cables cause most of the accidents, experts believe.

To minimize the risks involved, the society has prepared a safety sticker which gives motorists and mechanics easy-to-follow instructions for jump-starting a car with a dead battery.

Before attaching the jumper cables, the society advises, put out all cigarettes and flames. Making sure the cars don't touch, set both cars' parking brakes and automatic shifts to Park (manual transmissions to neutral). Turn both ignitions off and add battery water if needed. Don't jump-start if battery fluid is frozen or if the batteries of both cars are not the same voltage.

To attach the cables, clamp one cable to the positive (+) pole of the dead battery, clamp the other end to the positive pole of the good battery. At the good battery, clamp the second cable to the negative (-) pole. Then clamp the cable's other end to the stalled car's engine block. Start the car with the good battery and then the disabled car. Once the stalled engine is re-started, remove the cables, first from the engine block and booster car's negative terminal and then from the positive poles.

Protective goggles should be worn by everyone working with car batteries or standing nearby, O'Neil advised. They will keep flying battery fragments and chemicals out of the eyes. Inexpensive safety eyewear can be purchased at many hardware stores, or from "Industrial Equipment Supplies" or "Safety Devices" sources listed in the yellow pages of the phone book.

Should battery acid get into the eyes, immediately flush them with water continuously for 15 minutes, holding the eyelids open. Then seek medical attention without delay.

The recommended procedure for jump-starting is listed, step by step, on 4x8-inch yellow vinyl stickers which have a permanent adhesive. The stickers can be affixed to any clean, dry surface under the hood or kept inside the car's glove compartment. They are available for 25 cents each, with discounts for large orders. White Collar Crime Boosts Insurance Rate

Approximately 15 to 20 per cent of the annual increase in premium payment is the direct result of insurance fraud, says a representative of a major insurance company.

Insurance fraud, which costs honest policyholders an estimated $3 billion a year, is one of several major white collar crimes — committed by people we all assume are respectable citizens, he said. White collar crimes include forgery, the obtainment of money through false pretenses, mail fraud, perjury and arson for profit. The price tag on these crimes is estimated at more than $44 billion annually. Some white collar crimes, including insurance fraud, are committed by organized crime syndicates.

What is insurance fraud?

"Basically, it is deceiving an insurance company for financial gain," says the company representative. "Three major areas of insurance fraud are becoming more and more of a problem to the industry."

They include:

(1) Fraudulent damage in an auto accident: Auto-theft rings not only steal cars but stage accidents for profit. And many times rear-end collisions are planned for "multiple" gain. That is, the passengers riding in both vehicles fraudulently claim whiplash while property damage to the autos is grossly inflated by cooperating (ring-member) body shops.

Also, some auto repair shops have been found to charge the customer what the traffic will bear. And well-organized "chop shops" drain the industry by receiving stolen cars, dismantling them and selling the parts at handsome profits.

(2) Arson for profit: Crime syndicate leaders have organized large specialist pools of manpower as "arson cooperatives." Depending on the type of arson job to be performed, one or several specialists may be used. For example, a warehouse scheduled to be totally destroyed in order for a "respectable business" to collect insurance claim dollars requires a type of expertise different from that needed to torch an abandoned apartment building.

(3) Fraudulent bodily injury claims: Here, the malingering claimant takes an unnecessary amount of time off from work following an accident and passes the cost to the insurance company. Or, medical personnel file fabricated medicaid and medicare claims.

Sometimes, claims are made by masters of the slip-and-fall technique, who tap business liability insurance for a settlement. This type of claim involves the age-old stunt of pretending to slip and fall on wet or cluttered floors in restaurants, department stores, etc.

"Efforts are underway to halt these crimes. The insurance industry is working with state, federal and local authorities on white collar crimes, the company spokesman says. "We support and work with insurance industry groups such as the national auto theft bureau to stop fraud wherever possible. This is just one approach to curb rising insurance costs due to these crimes."

Heart Labs At U of M Honor Jimmy Stewart

Variety club of the Northwest, Tent No. 12, and the University of Minnesota have agreed to establish heart research laboratories honoring actor Jimmy Stewart.

The $6.15 million project was announced December 6 on "The variety club international tribute to Ingrid Bergman" (9 p.m. WCCO-TV). Jimmy Stewart, who has appeared in nearly 80 films, was honored on last year's program.

Jimmy Stewart research laboratories will be located on the thirteenth and fourteenth floors of the Phillips-Wangensteen building on the Minneapolis campus and will be administered by the departments of pediatrics and medicine.

Variety club of the Northwest has pledged to raise $3.2 million to complete the labs by June 1982. University will contribute $1.45 million and the medical school faculty has pledged $750,000. Estate of Esther S. Anderson will give $650,000, and Variety international another $100,000.

"The University's medical school faculty is pleased to continue its 34-year partnership with Variety club of the Northwest," said Dr. N. L. Gault, medical school dean. "Jimmy Stewart's contribution to 'healthy entertainment' of Americans is well-known."

Dr. William Krivit, professor and head of pediatrics, and Dr. Thomas Ferris, professor and head of medicine, said the laboratories would intensify their departments' research into cardiovascular diseases, including congenital defects, streptococcal infections, hypertension, and atherosclerosis.

Since 1945 the Variety club has raised more than $10 million for construction of the Variety club heart center on the University of Minnesota campus. University of Minnesota is internationally recognized for its contributions to heart research and care of patients with heart disease.

Among the University's successful "firsts" are open heart surgery using hypothermia (body cooling), surgical treatment of several types of heart defects, and the use of cardiac pacemakers. Many leading heart physicians, surgeons, and researchers were trained at the University of Minnesota Variety club heart center.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

How do you know if you have bone cancer? Is this a very common kind of cancer?

Walter

Dear Walter:

The most common symptom of bone cancer is pain. This pain is located most frequently in the knee, thigh, arm (especially the upper half), ribs and pelvic bones. A persistent ache in any part of the skeleton however, might indicate bone cancer.

Swelling and fever are also sometimes symptoms of bone cancer. Some patients also notice that they frequently stumble for no apparent reason.

The symptoms of bone cancer and other non-cancerous conditions may be similar, so any of these symptoms should be examined by a doctor. Several tests may be required to determine if cancer is present including a complete physical examination, studies of blood chemistry and x-rays. If the examination shows any sign of cancer, the doctor may order a biopsy. This is done by surgically removing a small piece of the tumor and examining it with a microscope, to see whether it contains cancer cells.

Cancer that starts within a bone is called primary bone cancer. This is most common in children and young adults between the ages of 10 and 20. In this age group, the annual number of new cases of primary bone cancer is one out of 100,000 persons; from 3 to 35 the number of new cases drops to 0.3 per 100,000. After age 35, the incidence rises slowly until, at age 60, it equals the adolescent rate.

So, as you can see, primary bone cancer is relatively rare. Secondary bone cancers, those that start in other parts of the body and spread to the bones, are much more common.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Are there any organizations that help with the costs incurred by a child with leukemia? We need help and don't know where to begin.

Linda P.

Dear Linda P.:

Yes, there are several kinds of assistance that may be available to you. Your hospital or clinic's social services department is a good place to start. They will be familiar with your state's medical assistance program and should know of any special catastrophic health expense programs available. There are some cancer-affiliated non-profit organizations that can provide limited financial relief, either directly or indirectly.

For example, the American Cancer Society provides transportation to treatment centers and hospital equipment on loan (beds, siderails, wheelchairs, etc.). The ACS supports Candlelighters, an organization of parents and families of children with cancer. This group offers education programs as well as comfort and emotional support. For information regarding additional services of the American Cancer Society, you should contact the division office in your state.

The Leukemia Society of America provides some assistance with reimbursement for transportation. In some cases this organization will help with payment for outpatient chemotherapy, radiation therapy, and part of the medical costs not covered by insurance. To obtain the location of the nearest Leukemia Society, write to: Leukemia Society of America, Inc., 211 East 43rd Street, New York, New York 10017.

Finally, the National Leukemia Association offers aid to leukemia patients and their families. According to their brochure, families are requested to submit an application to the Patient Service Chairman accompanied by a letter from their doctor stating that the patient has leukemia. After committee consideration, money may be allocated to cover drugs, lab fees, blood replenishment, and any other valid claim. For further information about this service, write to: National Leukemia Association, Inc., Roosevelt Field, Lower Concourse, Garden City, New York 11530.

One last idea — you might ask your child's doctor to inquire as to whether the pharmaceutical company that manufacturers your child's chemotherapeutic drugs ever provides them at reduced cost or no charge in cases of extreme financial hardship.

Dear Cancer Answers:

What does it mean when a women has a calcium spot in one of her breasts? This was accidentally found with a chest x-ray and then confirmed by a mammogram. Does this mean I have cancer? Why isn't this condition being treated? I've been told just to come for another exam in six months.

R.W.

Dear R.W.

Most small masses of calcium appearing as an isolated spot in the breast are not cancer. They usually represent changes in the milk ducts, small cysts, or walls of blood vessels.

The one type of calcification which may indicate cancer looks like fine grains of sand in an x-ray, it probably is not the sand-like variety. The calcification would have to be courser than this sand-like consistency to be picked up on this type of x-ray.

These differences, of which your doctor is surely aware, no doubt formed the basis of his recommendation.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I understand that even non-smokers can get lung cancer. Does this mean we should be asking smokers who are blowing smoke in our faces to please refrain from doing so? I find this difficult to do.

T.W.

Dear T.W.:

Although it is rare for a person who doesn't smoke to develop lung cancer, it can happen. There are no studies which prove that second hand smoke (that which comes from another person's cigarette, pipe or cigar) causes lung cancer, but it definitely can cause other lung and heart problems and seriously affects some people with asthma or allergies.

Even though it is often difficult to ask a smoker not to smoke in your presence or in a public place, it is definitely to your benefit and the benefit of others to do so.

Snowthrower Use Requires Extra Caution

Minnesota safety council reminds owners of snowthrowers to use caution in operating snow removal equipment.

Snowthrower injuries range from nicks and cuts to missing fingers and mangled hands. Most accidents apparently result from the user's attempt to remove snow clogging machines. Even though the machine is clogged. By removing snow with the hands, operators may unintentionally cause the machine to start again unless the spark plug has been uncoupled.

Safety council urges operators to read operating instructions carefully before running a snowthrower, and to pay special attention to learning how to stop the machine quickly. Be sure to keep hands and feet away from moving parts and be sure not to attempt to unclog the machine while it is running.

The machine's fuel tank should be filled only when the motor is shut off. Avoid fuel spills around a hot engine, and keep fuel away from any source of fire.

Shut the machine off when unattended, a remember to keep kids and pets out of the way of snow being thrown. And, if you're operating on sloping ground, be careful of slips and falls.

IRS Answers Questions On Its Operation

Some misconceptions about the Internal revenue service and its operations have sprung up over the years. Because these misconceptions can cause taxpayers needless worry and apprehension, the IRS has prepared the following questions and answers to allay any doubts these misconceptions may have caused:

Q. Is it true that if I get called in for an audit, I may wind up in jail?

A. An audit is not an adversary situation. It is really only a review of some specified parts of your tax return. Some audits are "no-change": IRS asks for substantiation, and you are able to provide the information.

Some audits results in additional refunds for taxpayers, and of course, a substantial number result in additional tax being assessed. You always have the right to appeal an outcome of an audit, if you are dissatisfied with the result. Only those persons who are guilty of willingly and knowingly refusing to pay taxes owed need worry about the possibility of jail.

Q. Why is everyone so afraid of a tax audit?

A. Most people are afraid of what they don't know. However, a tax audit is merely an examination of certain specific issues on a tax return.

Q. Is using my correct social security number all that important? After all, my name and address is on the return.

A. The correct social security number IS that important — it is the principal means of identifying taxpayers. However, if there is a problem with your social security number — you're not sure of it, or you lost your card and don't remember the number — only the social security administration and not IRS can issue the correct number, or verify that the one you believe is yours actually is.

Q. Does it really matter which social security number appears on the return?

A. Yes, it is very important that the husband's number be first and the wife's be second on a joint return, regardless of who prepares the return. Failure to list them in that order will result in a delay in processing the return.

Q. If we owe IRS, they charge us interest, but if IRS owes us, they won't pay interest to us. Why not?

A. Generally, the law requires that interest be paid at the going rate 45 days after the due date or the date of filing, whichever is later. Most taxpayers receive their refunds within 45 days, and consequently without interest.

DOT Shares Salt Surplus With Others

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) will share a 10,000-ton surplus of rock salt with 61 other governmental units around the state who have not been able to find a source for their winter highway de-icing operations, according to Mn-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Forecasts of salt shortage this year prompted Mn-DOT to bid early in June on 130,000 tons needed to maintain the 12,000 miles of trunk and interstate highways, Braun said.

Above-ground supplies had been depleted by three severe winters in a row and a three-month labor dispute in an Ohio Mine, Braun said. Just one day after the June bid-letting, one of five mines in Louisiana that supply the midwest, exploded and went out of production.

Despite two subsequent bid lettings, Mn-DOT was short 50,000 tons for one-third of it's 153 truck stations, he explained. Surplus resulted when Mn-DOT was offered and purchased 60,000 tons of undelivered rock salt stockpiled in three separate locations — Minneapolis, St. Paul and LaCrosse, Wis. — to complete the estimated tonnage needed.

Although Mn-DOT could have stockpiled the surplus for its own use later or could have returned the amount to the supplier, the department decided township, county and city governments facing the upcoming winter without salt contracts had the most immediate need for the surplus, Braun said.

County and city engineers were notified in mid-October through the Mn-DOT state aid office of the availability on a first come, first served basis from the LaCrosse site, Braun said. Mn-DOT made the salt available at the same price it paid, $23 a ton.

Orders were taken so that as many areas as possible would have a good supply to start the season, according to Mn-DOT maintenance office personnel.

Orders ranging from 10 to 1,500 tons have been filled, with each government unit transporting the salt at its own expense, the maintenance office confirmed this week.

Braun said careful analysis had been made of the salt supply available to the state before the decision to share the surplus was made. "Even with above normal conditions, we have enough salt to last through late February, at which time the severity and duration of winter weather conditions ease," he said. "We feel prepared at this point. With a normal winter, we'll have no problems."

Industry spokesmen say salt production will be back to normal before the next year's winter season.

Attitudes About Wildlife Are Reported In New FWS Survey

What do Americans really think about saving endangered species, hunting and other issues that affect wildlife? The first report on a comprehensive study of American attitudes toward wildlife has revealed some interesting answers — including some that might surprise you.

The report analyzes initial findings of a three-year study by Dr. Stephen Kellert of the Yale school of forestry and environmental studies. Kellert conducted the study under a research grant from the Interior Department's U.S Fish and Wildlife Service.

According to service director Lynn A. Greenwalt, "The results of this study are significant because, without a doubt, people's opinions and behavior can influence the success or failure of conservation programs as much as any wildlife management technique. Wildlife managers hear often from some constituent groups, but there are large segments of the public about whom we know little. Dr. Kellert's study gives us a great deal of information that will help us work with the public on conserving our nation's wildlife."

Greenwalt cautioned that the report will require careful study and analysis as more of the information becomes available. "Wildlife management can never be a popularity contest," he said. "Nonetheless, the results will provide helpful insights, suggesting broad policy guidelines and directions and providing further understanding of the public's need for greater awareness and education."

The study is based largely on an extensive questionnaire administered nationally in interviews with 3,107 people during the fall of 1978. The questionnaire dealt with specific issues, such as the tuna-porpoise controversy, as well as the general issues such as attitudes toward hunting. The survey population was selected through random sampling techniques that provided a representative sample of the American public. Supplementary samples were also taken in the Rocky Mountain states and Alaska to make sure that information about these important regions was based on an adequate number of interviews. Surveys of this type and sample size have a theoretical margin of error of less than three percentage points in either direction 95 per cent of the time.

Kellert's first report concerns American attitudes, behavior and knowledge about endangered species; animal damage control; habitat preservation; consumptive uses of wildlife, such as hunting and trapping; wildlife management; use of backcountry and parks; and miscellaneous issues. Responses are analyzed according to the respondent's age, occupation, place of residence, and other factors. On many questions, the respondent's level of knowledge was considered in analyzing results.

Among the study's findings:

+ Of eight selected wildlife issues, the public knew the most about "killing baby seals for fur" (43 per cent knowledgeable) and "effects of pesticides such as DDT on birds" (42 per cent knowledgeable). The least recognized issue was "use of steel shot versus lead shot by waterfowl hunters" (14 per cent knowledgeable). Only 34 per cent indicated that they had some knowledge about the endangered species act, and only 17 per cent were knowledgeable about the much publicized snail darter-Tellico dam controversy.

+ On a variety of questions, a majority favored protecting wildlife even at the expense of jobs, housing and development projects. Fifty-five per cent opposed the principle of building an industrial plant on a marsh needed by a rare bird species even if the plant would help solve an unemployment problem. Fifty-seven per cent disapproved of building houses on marshes used by ducks and other nonendangered wildlife. Seventy-six per cent thought cutting trees for lumber and paper should be done in ways that help wildlife even if it resulted in higher lumber prices.

+ Public's support for endangered species protection when it would increase costs for an energy project depended on the animal involved and the nature of the project. Americans overwhelmingly supported protecting the bald eagle, eastern mountain lion, American crocodile and an endangered butterfly. They opposed protecting an endangered plant, snake or spider if it increased costs for an energy project. On a snail darter type question, most people opposed blocking a hypothetical water project designed for essential uses such as drinking water, hydroelectric power or irrigation to protect an unknown fish species. But nearly 60 per cent opposed construction of a dam for "nonessential" purposes such as making a recreational lake if it would endanger a fish.

In general, support for protecting endangered species depended on such factors as the animal's attractiveness, close biological relationship to humans, reason for endangerment, economic value, and importance in American history and folklore.

+ In a surprising finding, 77 per cent said they thought it would be all right to kill whales for a useful product if the species hunted was not endangered. But on another intelligent sea mammal, the porpoise, 69 per cent said they would rather pay a higher price for tuna fish than see the tuna industry continue killing porpoises in their nets. The researchers said the apparently contradictory responses may be related to the tradition of whaling in the United States.

+ On the controversial issue of animal damage control, the public was not altogether opposed to controlling coyotes that prey on livestock, but strongly preferred nonlethal control methods or hunting only individual coyotes known to have killed livestock. Most were strongly opposed to poisoning, and were also opposed to shooting and trapping as many coyotes as possible.

+ Attitudes toward hunting depended on the purpose of the hunt. The public overwhelmingly supported traditional native American subsistence hunting and also supported hunting exclusively for meat, regardless of who hunted. Sixty-four per cent approved of hunting for recreation if the meat was used, but about 60 per cent opposed hunting just for sport or recreation. Over 80 per cent opposed hunting exclusively for a trophy.

+ Although some observers have linked anti-hunting sentiment with an anti-wildlife management attitude, results of the study did not support this. Sixty per cent of members of humane organizations and 61 per cent of those opposed to sport hunting supported government management programs to "control" populations of deer and ducks.

+ When asked about possible sources of funding for wildlife management programs, the public indicated stronger support for taxes on "consumptive" activities, such as buying fur, than on "nonconsumptive" uses such as bird-watching. Eighty-two per cent favored a sales tax on fur clothing from wild animals; 75 per cent favored entrance fees to wildlife refuges and other public wildlife areas; and 71 per cent favored a sales tax on off-road vehicles. Fifty-seven per cent favored increasing the amount of general tax revenues for wildlife management; the same number favored sales taxes on backpacking and camping equipment; and 54 per cent favored taxes on birdwatching supplies and equipment.

+ Most Americans wanted to preserve wildlife values on public lands. Two thirds — including 77 per cent of Alaskans — were opposed to hypothetical oil development in Yellowstone national park if it would harm the park's wildlife. Fifty-six per cent thought national forest land should be set aside to protect grizzly bears even if it resulted in some loss of jobs and building materials.

+ Attitudes toward many issues varied considerably according to the respondent's age, sex, educational level, place of residence and other factors. For example, support for protecting endangered species was strongest among the highly educated, people under 35, residents of areas with more than one million population, people with higher incomes, professionals and residents of the Pacific Coast and Alaska. Older persons, those with less than an eighth grade education, farmers, rural residents, and Southerns were more likely to oppose protecting endangered species. On the animal damage control issue, residents of the south — not the Rocky Mountain states, where predator damage is higher — expressed greatest support for shooting or trapping as many coyotes as possible. Residents of Pacific Coast states indicated the most protectionist sentiment.

+ Of all regions, Alaskans were the most knowledgeable about and supportive of wildlife. Their support was based on understanding of wildlife and ecology, rather than on emotional or sentimental notions about animals. As a group, Alaskans ranked third in level of knowledge, following only Ph.D's and those with other graduate education. They also expressed greater willingness to forego personal benefits such as recreation and jobs in order to preserve wildlife habitat and endangered species.

This report is the first of four being prepared for the Fish and Wildlife Service by Dr. Kellert. Future reports will deal with characteristics of wildlife users, analysis of socioeconomic differences in attitudes, trends in wildlife attitudes and uses over the last 75 years, and how children's attitudes toward wildlife are formed. The entire three-year study cost $450,000.

Single copies of the report are available from the Publications Unit, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240 (202-343-2982).

Poster Contest Sponsored By Wildlife Group

Alex Cho Metcalf of Princeton, Minn., was the winner of the third place prize in the senior division (grades 9-12) of the 1979 national hunting and fishing day poster contest.

A senior at Princeton high school, Metcalf will receive a $100 U.S. savings bond. His poster on the theme, "The Sportsman and Conservation ...A Tradition of Cooperation," had already been selected as a winner in a local NHF day poster contest sponsored by the Rum River citizen's league before being entered in the national poster contest.

Metcalf's poster was one of thousands entered in local NHF day poster contests sponsored by sportsmen's clubs, civic organizations and schools throughout the country. In addition to local prizes, there were 37 national awards totaling over $3,700 for youngsters who best illustrated the contest theme, "The Sportsman and Conservation. . .A Tradition of Cooperation."

Since the turn of the century, sportsmen have contributed more than $5 billion towards wildlife conservation in this country. Through license fees and special taxes, sportsmen have paid for habitat acquisition and fish and wildlife management programs.

For information about the 1980 national hunting and fishing day poster contest, contact NHF Day Headquarters, 1075 Post Road, Riverside, CT 06878.

DNR Water Regulations To Be Discussed

Public hearings on rules being proposed by the Department of Natural Resources to regulate the appropriation of waters of the state have been scheduled for the month of January.

Hearings will be held Tuesday, January 9, in Detroit Lakes at the vocational technical institute multi-purpose room; Thursday, January 10, in St. Paul, in room 123 of the state capitol building; Tuesday, January 15, in Marshall at the Southwest State University student center in rooms 158 and 159.

Each hearing will begin at 9:00 a.m.

Proposed rules include provisions governing the appropriation and use of water from waterbasins, watercourses and ground waters, involving conservation, allocation and development of waters of the state. The proposed rules provide standards and criteria for applications for new permits; review and decisions on the issuance or denial of permits; resolution of water use conflicts and well-interference problems; the review, modification, cancellation, transfer and termination of existing permits; and the delegation of DNR permitting authority to local government units.

Special requirements and conditions for specific types of appropriation are also covered: agriculture and wild rice, public water supplies, water level maintenance for basins, dewatering and mining and processing metallic minerals and peat.

One free copy of the proposed rules can be obtained by writing to the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Waters, 444 Lafayette Rd, St. Paul, 55101.

In addition, a "statement of need and reasonableness" will be available for review 25 days prior to the first hearing from the DNR and from the Office of Hearing Examiners, 1745 University, Av., St. Paul; phone (612) 296-8107.

At the hearings statements may be made orally and written material may be submitted without personally appearing at the hearings by sending them to the office of hearing examiners at the above address.

State regulations regarding lobbying will apply at the hearing. Questions on this subject should be directed to the State Ethical Practices Board, Room 41, State Office Bldg., Wabasha Street, St. Paul, 55155, phone (612) 296-1720.

POINSETTIAS and Puppy Dogs

Poinsettias for Grandmother, a puppy for brother Joe, stationery is perfect for Aunt Sue.

"Tis the season to be jolly," carol the loudspeakers in the department stores, but each year it becomes harder. Days are frantic with shopping, wrapping, and addressing. There's too much to do, too many things to remember; Sally's school play, a white elephant for Joe's scout party, the Kirby's gala on the twenty-second.

There's no time for thinking, but sometimes late at night; a moment for reflection. In the rush of doing all the right things have we forgotten our reasons for doing them? Have we come bearing gifts, like the Magi, with hearts empty of the wonder and awe that was theirs?

Perhaps we need to hear anew the age-old story of a tiny Babe wrapped and gently laid in a manger while shepherds quaked and angels sang. The door of your Church stands open. Worship there the newborn King this Christmas and every Sunday.

Orient Art Spreads To Western World

by Susan Bliss
Smithsonian News Service

Enter the Oriental picture-mounting studio at the Freer galley of art in Washington, D.C., and you enter another country. Straw Tatami matting covers the floor (visitors are asked to remove their shoes) and two men kneel, Japanese style, at large, low worktables.

The studio is one of only three places in the Western world where rare and delicate pieces of Oriental art are cleaned, restored, mounted and framed according to Japanese techniques handed down by generations of masters to their apprentices. Takashi Sugiura, 67, who has worked at the Freer for 26 years, is the only hyogushi, or master Oriental picture mounter, to practice outside Japan. His apprentice, Ryo Nishiumi, 28, arrived recently from Japan, where he completed 10 years of training at the Kyoto National museum.

Their materials — brushes, bowls, curved-edge knives — are simple and handcrafted. "Not chemical, natural," Sugiura says of the watercolors he must travel to Japan to buy. Or he may use powdered pigments — the brilliant blue-green one is ground malachite — on certain paintings. "Very expensive," he says. "Colors never fade."

He brings out two saucers containing puddles of dried gold pigment. One is 23-carat; the other has a darker, greenish tint. Many shades of gold appear in Oriental paintings, Sugiura explains, and the paint used to touch up a damaged area first must be blended to a perfect match.

Sugiura is currently repairing one panel of a large Chinese screen, a project he says will take about two months. The screen shows an elegantly coiffed lady, dressed in pink robe with a purple grape design, playing Wei-ch'i, a Chinese board game, with her companions.

With an ultra-fine-hair drawing brush, or kinaki, Sugiura is practicing one technique of hosai, or "touch-color," on the painting's raw sienna background. He applies one coat of watercolor — it appears almost transparent — then blotts it with the heel of his hand and lets it dry. He repeats this process over and over until he builds up enough layers of color to blend the tiny-chipped area perfectly with its surroundings. Then he moves on to another damaged spot and repeats the process.

Fine repair and mounting techniques which the two men use were developed about 100 years ago, Sugiura explains. They grew out of the methods practiced by 7th and 8th-century monks in Buddhist scriptoria, where sutras and other religious books were written and revered. In Japan, works of great historical and artistic significance are designated as national treasures, and only a hyogushi, using these traditional methods, would be entrusted with their restoration and care.

A hyogushi must learn and master many techniques, in addition to the application of paint. Few people know all of them, Sugiura says, but a master must be skilled in carpentry, sewing, use of lacquer and even the grinding of his own pigments.

"This work never finish. All the time study," says Sugiura, who has been practicing the art for half a centry.

Already the master has learned new techniques from his student. Nishiumi, working at another table, is building up air pressure in a bright chrome spray gun which he will use to dampen the silk fibers in an embroidered Japanese screen he is repairing.

"We used to use a brush," Sugiura says, pronouncing the new tool "Easy. Good." There's also the hard plastic board, a surface for cutting the bands of cloth, called oberi, which serve as borders for a screen or scroll. Nishiumi brought it from Japan, and now both men use it in place of a traditional wooden board.

The two work silently, independently. Nishiumi breaks off a lacy piece of dried-seaweed paste and dissolves it in steaming hot water. The screen he is repairing has wide splits in the silk, and Nishiumi, after carefully painting the fabric surface with the clear paste solution, meticulously straightens each fiber with tweezers.

He is now ready to replace the screen in its wooden frame, where the work will be completed. After spreading a cloth over the low table, he lays the frame on top, then rubs its inner surface with a beeswax disk and begins to slide the panel into place.

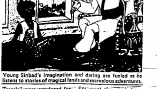
Sugiura, with his back turned, seemingly engrossed in his own work, never loses track of his student. His ears, fine-tuned by years of experience, pick up the sound of wood straining against wood. He joins the younger man, and together they remove the screen from the frame to confirm Sugiura's suspicion. A piece of the frame is too rough. After the spot is smoothed out, the panel is returned to the frame, and the men discuss the green brocade strip which will border the image of pine trees.

Choice of fabric, size and arrangement of the Oberi to frame a particular work of art is an important aspect of the art of the hyogushi. Several drawers in the studio hold bolts of imported silk brocades and gauzes interwoven with gold threads. Some have been at the Freer for 50 years and could not be bought today for any price. Those purchased more recently may have cost up to $50 per foot. The finest among them — the elegant, formal lotus patterns — are usually reserved for solemn Buddhist paintings, while lighter, more contemporary patterns harmonize with popular subjects from the 19th century.

Visitors to the 50-year-old Smithsonian museum who haven't been downstairs to the studio, or who haven't read about the art tradition practiced there, may not notice the variety of picture-mounting styles used to complement works which are exhibited in the galleries upstairs. They may not notice that the strip of brocade above the picture is wide, while the strip at the bottom is narrow, or that sometimes there are two vertical strips running down from the edge of the frame. On a screen, there may be no strips at all — just a narrow silk band setting the picture off from a feautiful brocade backing.

Most likely, as they walk around, visitors are aware of a harmony between the paintings and the way they are framed and mounted. They may not notice the oberi, but they experience a sense of order. They may even lose track of time. Visitors may not realize it, but their serenity is an achievement of the art of the hyogushi.

Kenner's Famous Classics Enters Tenth Year



Young Sinbad's imagination and daring are fueled as he listens to stories of magical lands and marvelous adventures.

The majority of television shows appearing on prime time TV are still produced by Hollywood film companies or network conglomerates. Producers depend on the networks to turn around and sell the programs to advertisers—to the tune of several hundred thousand dollars per show.

The advertiser, of course, pays the "markup" price of the production. A prime-time series may cost as much as $250,000 to $300,000 per episode—and the advertising rates may double if the show is a hit.

Recently, however, there has been a quiet move for advertisers to actually produce TV programs themselves. NBC president Fred Silverman has even encouraged it, saying that greater diversity in programming is needed. This gives the advertiser a cost break, but more importantly, the advertiser has more control over the content of the show, the script, the casting, production and editing.

Kenner Products, Cincinnati, a division of General Mills, Creative Products Group, has been in the production business for almost 10 years. A toy manufacturer which had sales in excess of $200 million last year, Kenner is responsible for an animated Fall mini-series called Famous Classics.

Since 1970, 21 well-known children's stories have been produced and aired on CBS. Two new shows, "The Adventures of Sinbad" and "Gulliver's Travels" were produced for this year's series. The first episode this year, "Black Beauty" airs on Sunday, November 11.

The most popular of these one-hour animated shows has been "A Christmas Carol," a favorite that has repeated every year since 1970. This year it will be seen on Sunday, November 25. A total of five Classics will run between November 11-25. The complete schedule is as follows:

"Black Beauty," 4 p.m. EST Sunday, Nov. 11;

"Gulliver's Travels," 4 p.m. EST Sunday, Nov. 18;

"The Three Musketeers," 3:30 p.m. EST Thursday, Nov. 22;

"The Adventures of Sinbad," 10 a.m. EST Friday, Nov. 23;

"A Christmas Carol," 4 p.m. EST Sunday, Nov. 25.

For exact time and channel watch your local television listings.

Kenner works directly with producers on the script, character renderings, animation style and voices. Two production facilities have been used: Air Productions International, in Sydney, Australia; and Hanna-Barbera in California. All the animation work has been produced in Australia, since Hanna-Barbera has a facility there for this type of work.

One of the shows, "Swiss Family Robinson," received a national Emmy nomination in 1979 and another show, "Prince and the Pauper," was awarded a 1973 Christopher Award. The Famous Classic Tales are regularly included in the "Teachers Guide to Television," designed to stimulate classroom discussion.

Dying Adolescent Needs Support Of Family And Friends

A teenager whose rumpled hospital gown reveals thinning arms lies quietly behind the half-opened door to his room. Someone on the staff opened the door a moment ago only to wave hello and quickly move on.

The boy wonders why the staff person, formerly a regular visitor, doesn't stop to talk much these days. Are people ignoring him because he doesn't look the same anymore? The boy knows he is dying though no one has told him. He sees through his family's forced smiles and refusals to discuss his illness.

But what can he do about it — he doesn't want to cause them any more pain. He feels frustrated, cheated, angry. And while it is awfully hard to maintain control, the boy is not sure who he can trust not to abandon him. Suffering the "conspiracy of silence," he faces his death alone.

Foregoing situation is what can happen when family, friends and health care professionals do not understand the special needs of a dying adolescent. According to Lawrence J. Singher, MD, pediatric hematologist and oncologist (blood disease and cancer specialist), children's attitudes and feelings about death change with their chronological development. The dying teenager is dealing with different issues and anxieties than the eight-year-old, explains Dr. Singher.

Babies are born into a "kingdom where no one dies" created by their parents who, because of fantasies or discomfort about it, try to hide death from their children. Children, however, are fascinated by the subject, continues Dr. Singher. First, understanding only that death is "less alive (age five and under), as they grow they learn that others will die (ages five to nine), and finally that "I will die" (age nine and older).

While the younger child is curious or superstitious about death, the older child becomes more anxious about it, notes Dr. Singher. The adolescent, who realizes the finality and inevitability of death, tries to deal with it intellectually and often is preoccupied with the subject, he adds.

Dr Singher considers it important to understand the major developmental tasks of adolescents. These "growing up" tasks cause special psychological problems of long-term illness for adolescents. Five major tasks are:

(1) Changinging body image — Adolescents body images are very fragile. Experiencing many body changes, they are concerned about looking the same as their peers, says Dr. Singher. He suggests this "quest for confirmation" is a key to understanding the teenager's vulnerability to prognosis. Their self-concepts suffer when they see themselves as different from their peers, and even having an IV can trigger an explosive response, says Dr. Singher.

(2) Intellectual growth — Adolescents' intellectual growth makes them capable of understanding their illnesses. Sometimes they will read all they can get their hands on to become "experts" on their illnesses, say Dr. Singher. When carried to the extreme, this can be a defense mechanism the patient uses to avoid facing the prognosis.

(3) Separation process — Adolescents are trying to separate themselves from their parents, Dr. Singher explains. They are developing their decision-making abilities and working toward increased independence. Security, however, still is important to them, and teenagers can experience a lot of conflict over needing to depend on their families — especially when they are ill — and at the same time wanting greater responsibility for self. Dr. Singher notes that interpersonal relationships can become strained during illness as the adolescent's trust level wavers.

(4) Individuation process - Striving to become an individual, the teenager becomes the center of his or her world. Tendency to behave self-indulgently makes it more difficult for the adolescent to delay gratification and deal with the frustration accompanying illness, says Dr. Singher. He explains teenagers might lash out in anger at the injustice of being ill, or they might fall into periods of deep depression.

(5) Ego-ideal development — Adolescents are on the brink of full adult responsibility and sexuality and are concerned with future plans. Dr. Singher says a question like, "Should I register for college?" might mean "Will I be alive then?" or "If I get well, will I be normal?"

Adolescents' understanding of death and their major developmental tasks combine to produce special needs when they are faced with illness and death.

Dr. Singher points out that dying adolescents need to be treated with warmth and openness and repeatedly shown they are OK. In a group setting, adolescent patients can sometimes help each other re-establish their identities and cope with the fact of death. Dr. Singher advocates returning the teenage patient to a normal routine as soon as possible because the all-important peer affiliation can help refurbish the patient's faltering self-esteem.

Dr. Singher also emphasizes that teen-age patients need to talk about their illnesses and be treated as viable individuals. Including them in decision-making regarding treatment can further help them combat feelings of helplessness.

Adolescent patients most likely will have a lot of questions, continues Dr. Singher, and they need honest answers without diminishing the hope treatment represents. He also cautions against offering false optimism. "It is merely an illusion that we don't tell someone the truth about their illness, because they already know. Furthermore," "Dr. Singher says, "honesty signals to the patient that he or she won't be abandoned while combating feelings of isolation and doom during the progression of the illness."

Communication, means listening, stresses Dr. Sigher. It means listening to your own feelings about death as well as hearing the patient's view of his or her illness: "It may even mean that life is not always preferrable to death," Dr. Singher continues. For health care professionals who often have developed sophisticated death denial mechanisms because their job is to cure and save, this concept may be particularly difficult, explains Dr. Singher. He says sometimes it is easier for staff to treat and console the grieving family, inadvertently ingnoring the dying patient and leaving him or her to face death alone.

Giving support to the dying adolescent rather than sympathy or suppression of feelings and facts means hard work, but Dr. Singher considers it vital to the patient's ability to cope with the prognosis.

USDA Tightens Fraud Control On Food Stamps

People who get food stamps fraudulently will have to pay them back under a rule proposed by the Department of Agriculture.

Currently, people convicted of fraud are dropped from the food stamp program for 3 to 27 months. The new proposal would require them to either repay the value of the stamps in cash or agree to have their food stamp allotment reduced until the amount is recovered before they can join the program again.

The proposed rule would implement legislation passed by Congress in August (Public Law 96-58). The final regulation is scheduled to go into effect in May 1980.

In addition to the repayment provision, the rule will allow states to keep 50 per cent of all money they recover from fraud claims to help defray their costs. Recovered funds presently are returned to the federal government. "We expect this change will be a significant incentive to states to prosecute fraud more vigorously," said Carol Tucker Foreman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

The rule also requires food stamp applicants to obtain and furnish social security numbers for all household members. Foreman said this will deter fraud by enabling states to use social security numbers to crosscheck food stamp applications with other wager and benefit records.

The department put other legislative reform into effect earlier this year to tighten eligibility standards and reduce abuse: income eligibility limits were lowered to the poverty level; the number of deductions allowed from gross income was cut from eight to three; participation by students was limited; and households are now dropped from the program if the breadwinner voluntarily quits a job. The legislation also increased the federal reimbursement to states for fraud investigation from 50 per cent to 75 per cent of their costs.

The new proposal also requires states to promptly reduce food stamp benefits to people receiving annual cost-of-living increases in social security and supplemental security income (SSI). This requirement would save between $30 and $50 million a year beginning in fiscal 1981. Each additional dollar in SSI or social security benefits reduces food stamp benefits by 30 cents.

"In the past, it has often taken states a number of months to reduce food stamp benefits when SSI or social security recipients' incomes rose because of cost-of-living increases. Now states will have to make these adjustments immediately, or, if they lack this computer capability, within three months," Foreman said.

The rule was published in the Federal Register on Wednesday, October 31 and Friday, November 2. There will be a 45 day comment period ending December 14.

Comments should be submitted to Alberta Frost, deputy administrator, Family Nutrition programs, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Pensioner Loss Revealed By VA Survey

A number of elderly Veterans administration pensioners in Minnesota may be short changing themselves because they haven't reported all their 1978, unreimbursed medical expenses, the agency said recently. And they have only until December 31 to advise VA of these expenses or lose forever pension money to which they are entitled.

Morris Nooner, Jr., director of the Veterans Administration center at Fort Snelling, said the pensioners are primarily veterans or their survivors who chose at the end of 1978 to remain under what is now called the "old" VA pension plan because it was to their advantage to do so. Their pension rates were frozen at the end of the year.

He said that a smaller group of pension recipients chose to switch to a more recent plan which offered higher rates to some pensioners, depending on individual circumstances. The law permits members of either group to advise VA by thde end of 1978 of any previously unreported medical expenses they had during 1978.

Nooner explained that by taking these bills into account, the VA may increase the amount of pension the individual receives. The fact that approximately 15 per cent of the 1.5 million veterans and survivors enrolled in the old pension plan have neglected to report all their paid medical expenses for last year was uncovered by a recent VA survey.

He said the potential loss to a pension recipient could run as high as $100 a month. Persons enrolled under the old plan who find they did not report all 1978 medical expenses may do so by contacting the VA Center at Fort Snelling.

Prematurity threatens the health and survival of many newborns. The March of Dimes, working for the elimination of birth defects, encourages early prenatal care to reduce the risk of prematurity.

Preserving Our Lifeline

Rep. Robert E. Bauman of Maryland, chairman of the American Conservative union, adds another component to the debate on the strategic arms limitation treaties (SALT II). Bauman says that the U.S. industrial machine and national defense apparatus is kept alive by an increasingly vulnerable jugular of oil imports over sea lanes. He writes as follows:

Between 30 to 40 per cent of the oil we use comes to the U.S. via an 8,000-mile route on the open sea. The massive Soviet naval buildup of recent years, combined with startling Soviet geopolitical gains in Africa, the Middle East and the Caribbean, have served to increase the possibility that the Soviet can, at will, cut off America's vital oil lifeline. This means that they could effectively throw the economies of the Western World into turmoil, bring the industrial machine to a half and render U.S. defenses impotent.

The primary sea route for the transport of Middle Eastern oil to the U.S. cuts a large swath from the Persian Gulf, around the Cape of Good Hope and up through the Atlantic to refineries in the U.S. This sea route now passes by no fewer than nine Soviet naval ports, anchorages and bunkering installations. A secondary sea route for our oil supplies, from the Suez Canal through the Mediterranean and across the Atlantic to our shores, runs an obstacle course containing no fewer than five such Soviet naval bases.

A third route for the transport of our crude oil, from the Alaksan North Slope to refineries on the Eastern seaboard, requires that trankers pass through the Panama Canal. This vital strategic corridor was foolishly handed over to Panama's Marxist dictator by the Carter Administration. Today it is increasingly susceptible to Soviet influence and could pose a further threat to our oil life line.

Add to this the fact that Soviet trawlers, which are often used for para-military purposes, now infest these sea lanes, and you have the very dangerous potential for a threatening Soveit military action against our oil supplies in time of war.

The proposed SALT II arms limitation treaty, which will soon come before the U.S. Senate, has the effect of consolidating and solidifying the dramatic Soviet strategic gains of the past decade.

Given the evidence that the Soviets can now threaten our precarious oil life line, this is a situation that must not only be halted, through nonratification of SALT II, but must be reversed, through a vigorous U.S. effort to bolster national defenses and our strategic footing in the world. Our life line depends on it.

Tail Wagging The Dog

Following editorial is from the Pope County Tribune:

The revelation that some members of the University of Minnesota football team don't attend classes during the fall quarter when the football season is ongoing shouldn't cause too many raised eyebrows.

We're sure that any investigation will disclose that in most "football factories" that play major football this is a common and accepted practice.

Youth athletes devote so much time toward football that there is little time left for scholastic endeavor.

The public has a legitimate right to question whether students go to college to learn or engage in extracurricular activities such as athletics.

The abuses in recruiting programs is enough to make any purist, and even some realists, blanch and reinforce the increasinglyly held view that in our major colleges and universities, the schools exist for the purpose of athletics with education playing second fiddle.

There are some schools where over 90 per cent of the football players graduate, but there are too many where the figure is far short of this figure. At the University of Minnesota, less than 23 per cent of the football players graduated with their class, and only about 35 per cent graduated even in five years. Far too many never received a diploma, despite what some athletic directors would have you believe.

Unfortunately, in this particular case, we live in a highly competitive society and the University of Minnesota has to live or die by the same practices as all other athletic factories throughout the land.

Athletics is overemphasized in our major universities, but not until there is a universal desire to stress academics more than athletics will the problem be rectified. We've reached the point where the tail is wagging the dog with expediency in athletics all too often dictating school policy and attitudes.

It's unfortunate, but that's the way it is, and nothing on the horizon indicates that the problem is going to be corrected in the forseeable future.

Short Memory

People have a tendency to remember the good things from the past and put out of memory the uncomfortable, depressing or less appealing aspects. That attitude is prevalent in the following editorial comment which appeared recently in a western Minnesota newspaper:

"The family household in the old days was a busy, happy place, with the big kids taking care of the little kids while mother was kept busy cooking, ironing and sewing.

"The father worked 12 hours a day for three dollars to keep the household going.

"For some reason, in those days folks paid their bills, the divorce courts had no business, folks did not sue each other for an easy 'buck', and they didn't have nervous breakdowns nor did they know what a tranquilizer was.

"Isn't it odd how they managed to live?"

There is some truth but a lot of fiction to that idyllic look into days gone by.

True, the home was the center of things and the woman of the house was expected to be there. Indeed, it was imperative that she be there, for the labor-saving devices of today's homes were non-existent. There were no permanent press fabrics, microwave ovens, pre-packaged foods, automatic washers, clothes dryers, food freezers, electrical appliances (or even electricity), hot water heaters and the like.

To do the household chores required constant attention to the tasks at hand. Added to the responsibility of the man of the house to earn enough by the sweat of his brow to feed, clothe and house his family were some of the yard and household chores at home.

But folks did not always pay their bills, as intimated. We recall an interview with an early day doctor here who said that most of his patients didn't pay their bills, not because they didn't want to, but because they couldn't. Poverty, and we mean poverty far beyond the government's present definition, was a way of life.

Credit was not liberally extended and barter was an accepted way of doing business. A person exchanged what he or she had in surplus for what others had to offer in trade. Recognizing and resigned to being poor, and expecting little if any improvement, people were compelled to live within their means and not seek things for which they could not pay.

There were nervous breakdowns and mental disorders brought on by stress of trying to cope. Tranquilizers were unknown but suicides were common, and many apparently sympathized with the state of mind that led to people taking their own lives. Divorce was rare but undoubtedly miserable marriages existed. Differences between individuals were settled in an alley or on a farm yard or a saloon rather than in court and consequences of such confrontations were likely severe.

The good old days really weren't all that good after all, if one would honestly recall everything about them. There are things about them which it would have been nice to project into present day living, but most of those things were a result of circumstances rather than a change in human nature.

We pay in many ways for the affluence which has come to our nation through the advancements of our economy. We deplore rising crime rates, complain about moral decay, worry over broken homes, even long for the "good old days" of our youth.

Perhaps to put things in perspective as we feel included to wish things would be as they were when we were young, we should look not at ourselves at that time but at our parents. Would we exchange our present lot in life for what they had to endure? Most people wouldn't, and that should tell us something.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The deer-hunting husband had finally relented and allowed his wife to accompany him on her first hunt. On opening morning he put her on post and made a swing through the woods. Soon he heard shots and rushed back to find her holding a gun on a man and shouting—"You leave that deer along! I shot it and it's mine!"

"Okay, oaky, lady, don't shoot; it's all yours," the man appealed with hands upraised. "But would you just let me get my saddle off it."

Understanding Your Child

If you're like most parents, you may be glad to know that there are some things you can do to help your youngster do better in school.

For one thing, the experts at the National Educational Association suggest, be sure he or she is up to par physically. Learning demands the best that's in him of effort, concentration, clear thinking. Have him examined regularly, and be sure his hearing and vision are perfect—or corrected.

For another, keep him in school regularly. Every absence can affect learning, particularly in the early grades.

Refrain from comparing him unfavorably with some other child. Children learn at different rates.

Make your home a haven of thought, books, ideas. Some parents have found that their children benefit from microcomputers like those that help make learning fun in increasing numbers of classrooms. The TRS-80 from Radio Shack, for instance, is relatively inexpensive and small enough to fit on a desk top. It can help expand your child's learning skills and tutor him in most school subjects.

Are you giving your child the things he needs to do well in school?

Another aid could be the child's own dictionary. Let him or her look up unfamiliar words. A typewriter can help, too, even for the fairly young. Authorities have found that children do more and better creative writing when using typewriters.

Encourage him to be a collector: of rocks, leaves, shells. Provide a place for his collection, even if it's just a drawer.

Take him to visit historical sites: zoos, museums and the like. Go exploring in the community: visit the firehouse, courthouse, other places of interest.

See that your child has a quiet corner for doing homework. Be sure it's well lit and ventilated.

Looking Backward

1929 — 50 YEARS AGO

Nearly a foot of snow fell in the city this past week. — County auditor C.P. Anderson resigned to accept an appointment as Thief River Falls postmaster. — A debate was underway here to discuss the necessity for increasing the capacity of the city power plant.

1939 — 40 YEARS AGO

S.C. Severson succeeded L.G. Larsen as master of the local Masonic lodge and Thora H. Nelson headed the Eastern Star. — Fred Myhrer was named head of the TRF Odd Fellows lodge. — More than 35 carloads of dressed turkeys left this city during the Christmas marketing season.

1949 — 30 YEARS AGO

A salesman for a St. Paul jewelry firm was robbed of $30,000 in gems which he had momentarily left in his car at Crookston. — L.Z. Ihle succeeded Arthur A. Johnson as master of the local Masonic lodge. — J.M. Roche, for the past two years secretary of the TRF Chamber of Commerce, was appointed acting post master, succeeding the late Moe Maruska.

1959 — 20 YEARS AGO

Lincoln high school students will offer a public Christmas program this week. — Carl Torgerson and Fred Koop were reelected as directors of the TRF Co-op creamery. — No TB infection was found in Thief River Falls schools this fall, with some 1,265 students being tested. — The city Nativity scene was lighted this week.

1969 — 10 YEARS AGO

Announcement of a 2-for-1 split in Arctic Enterprises common stock was made by Arctic President Lowell Swenson. — Voters in School District 447 (Grygla-Gatzke-Skime) expressed overwhelming approval of a $696,000 bond issue for high school construction at a special election. — Problems caused by increased enrollment anticipated in 1970-71 were discussed at the December meeting of the TRF board of education, with enrollment for the month ending Nov. 26 this year showing an increase of 187 students from a year ago. — Army Spec. 4 Robert J. Swenburg, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Swedenburg of TRF, died of wounds received in hostile action in Vietnam. — In reviewing operations of the company at the annual stockholders meeting, Arctic Enterprises, Inc. president Lowell Swenson listed the consolidated sales for the eight months ended Nov. 30 as $30,274,741 as compared to $12,367,869 in 1968. — George W. Eastman TRF's oldest resident, died at Northwestern hospital at the age of 102.

Earnings Gap Wider Between Men & Women

Women's bureau of the U.S. department of labor has issued a revised edition of "The Earnings Gap between Women and Men." According to the publication, women have to work nearly nine days to gross the same amount that men gross in five days.

Latest earnings data, which are for 1977, show that among full-time workers employed throughout the year, men earned $14,626 while women earned $8,618. This indicates that women earned only 59 cents for every dollar men earned.

Data also shows that the differential has remained at about its present level since 1961, in spite of the employment gains women have made in recent years. The gap is wider, however, than it was in 1955, when women earned about 64 cents for every dollar men earned.

Publication discusses factors related to the earnings gap, such as the concentration of women in low-paying traditional jobs and the large number of new entrants to the labor force who are in or near the entry level of jobs. Differences in the occupations and industries in which women and men are employed, their educational attainment, and work experience are highlighted.

Singel free copies of the publication are available from the Women's bureau, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210. Publication is for sale at $1.50 a copy from the superintendent of documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Tips Given For Bird Feeders And Feeding

"A bird feeder in the yard can provide hours of interesting observation for the entire family. Just make sure not to overdo a good thing," says, extension wildlife specialist James Kitts.

"One shouldn't undertake a major feeding program only to stop suddenly when vacation time rolls around. On the other hand, you don't want to make it too easy on the birds, which have plenty of natural foods to eat in the winter. Sympathy is the wrong motivation for feeding our feathered friends."

Food provided should be just a supplement to nature's plentiful food supply for two reasons, Kitts says. First, don't strain the budget by buying pounds and pounds of bird food. Second, don't aid in creating an artificially high bird population.

"Don't interfere with nature's selection of the strongest and healthiest individuals best suited to survive," he said.

To avoid any number of potential problems, Kitts recommends placing your feeder at least 60 feet away from your house.

"When you feed birds, or any animal for that matter, you're actually retraining their natural movement," he says. "If you place a feeder on a porch, for example, birds will flock there whether or not you've put out food. Their noise and droppings can cause problems; the once beautiful birds become no more than a nuisance."

"Birds can be fussy eaters and will dig around in a pile of mixed seed for their favorite snacks. In the process, food spills on the ground creating a haven for hungry mice, rats and other small animals, one more reason to keep the feeder away from the house.

"Exterior wood siding may attract woodpeckers if a feeder is placed too close to the house since the woodpecker cannot distinguish the wood from a tree," he added. "If you have plywood cedar siding, be especially cautious. "In the fall, this type of siding is often the site of leaf cutter bees' egg deposits. While the eggs won't harm the wood, the larvae is a favorite food of many woodpeckers, who can do serious damage in a matter of minutes."

Common birds' feeds are beef suet, a high energy food, and seeds — cracked corn, sunflower, millet, Nigerian thistle. Although many grocery and hardware stores sell bird feed, grain elevators or farm co-ops sell bulk seed at economical prices. Corn cobs or pine cones spread with peanut butter and rolled in seed will also attract birds at little cost. Many of the trees and shrubs in your yard will also attract birds at no extra cost.

A list of common native Minnesota birds and their preferred foods includes: the cardinal — sunflower, wild grape, dogwood, sumac; goldfinch — sunflower, Nigerian thistle, ragwood (and remember, the male goldfinch is a drab olive green color this time of year!); junco — small seeds, such as millet, oats, barley, thistle; chickadee — suet and sunflower seeds; nuthatch — suet and smallish seeds; woodpecker — prefers suet almost exclusively; blue jays and sparrows — either suet, or seeds.

(ASR) — There's more to owning a bike than time spent on the road; it's at-home care that really counts. To lubricate chains and cables and protect metal parts and chrome from rust and corrosion, spray them regularly with a product such as WD-40. The non-oily product helps minimize wear and tear and keeps bikes riding and looking like new.

Available! Low Interest Energy Saving Loans

Ask how you can qualify for a low interest loan from Minnesota Housing Finance Agency and Northern State Bank.

With the coming winter months and dropping temperatures, you may be thinking about making some energy-conserving improvements on your home. If you qualify for an MHFA loan, you can make those changes, and pay low interest! The interest rate on an MHFA loan is from one to eight per cent depending on your income; you can't get much better than that!

To qualify: you must own the property you want to improve, you must be a reasonable credit risk, and have an annual adjust gross income not exceeding $16,000.

Here's how and where to apply: Decide what home improvements you wish to make. Get bids from the contractor(s) you have selected or cost estimates of materials needed.

Take this information to Northern State Bank, and they'll give you the appropriate forms to fill out, and answer any questions you might have.

Reduced Speed Necessary On Winter Roads

Should motorists always observe the national 55 mile an hour speed limit — or any posted speed for that matter?

An affirmative answer to such a question from a national enforcement authority might be expected; but Norman Darwick, acting executive director of the International association of chiefs of police, points out that there are times when even these speed limits are entirely too fast for road and weather conditions.

"IACP is urging stricter enforcement of the 55 mph limit," Darwick emphasized. "But—during the winter months when pavements may be slippery, speeds must be reduced still further."

Darwick cited motorists' problems during last winter's unprecedented winter storms as a case in point. "Skidding and ditched cars were evidence that all too many motorists have little or no idea of stopping or cornering ability on snowy or icy pavements.

"What drivers seemed to ignore was the fact that they should cut their speed by as much as two thirds when slippery pavement conditions prevail!" he said, citing these findings from the National safety council's committee on winter driving hazards skid tests:

At the legal speed of 55 mph — intended for ideal road and weather conditions — the average car can be braked to a stop in approximately 150 feet. In contrast, it takes almost this same distance to stop on glare ice from a speed of only 20 miles an hour!

Darwick, who in addition to his LACP duties is also a director of the Safe Winter Driving league, headquartered in Chicago, reviewed recommended personal driving techniques:

—When slowing or stopping on slippery pavements, "pump" your brakes. An intermittent pumping, on-off action helps maintain steering during those times your wheels are rolling. Locked wheels are sure to throw your car into a skid.

—If you misjudge stopping or cornering ability and your car does go into a skid, steer into the skid — turn your wheel in the same direction the rear of the car is skidding. When you feel the car start to recover, straighten your front wheels. Above all, don't hit the brakes when the rear end starts to slide. You can't steer a car when all four wheels are locked and not rolling.

—Get the "feel" of the road whenever there is any question as to how slippery the pavement is. By gunning the engine or by jabbing the brake pedal you can determine how much traction is available. Reduce your speed and increase your following distance accordingly.

Darwick quoted NSC skid-test findings related to traction aids when trying to stop on ice slick surfaces, in the order of their effectiveness.

—Reinforced tire chains on the rear wheels reduce braking distance on ice by 50 per cent as compared with regular tires.

—Studded snow tires (where permitted) on the rear wheels reduce braking distance on ice by 19 per cent compared to regular tires.

—Conventional snow tires (without studs) offer no advantage over regular tires in stopping on ice.

—When used on the rear wheels only, these traction aids do not materially improve the cornering capacity of a vehicle. With studded tires on all four wheels, however, cornering speed is increased about 25 per cent.

"However," Darwick concluded, "regardless of these improvements, in no instance is the resulting traction close to that of conventional highway tires on a dry or even wet pavement.

"Your best course of action is to slow down and adjust your speed to conditions — regardless of what the speed sign on the post says!"

Clothing Care ALERT!

LIFE IN THE OLD RAGS YET?

Are you getting the years you deserve from your clothes? With clothing costs rising, how long can you expect to "hold off" before you need to replace items in your wardrobe? How many years of service should you expect before a garment has "had it"?

The International Fabricare Institute (IFI), the global association of launderers and drycleaners, has estimated the life expectancy for clothing, taking into consideration normal fabric wear and tear as well as changes in fashion.

Five years generally is the maximum time a fabric garment can be expected to be fully useful—meaning attractive, colorful, structurally sound and warm. Beyond that, thank quality workmanship and skillful maintenance for any added years of service you receive. A fine wool shirt clocking 10 or 12 years of wear, or a dress coat that sees many seasons without showing signs of stress, can happen. Appreciate the phenomenon. Realize that you own a rarity.

More common are the following life expectancies: a leather jacket or coat—five years; a basic evening gown—five years; a fur scarf—five years.

A man's or woman's cloth jacket can be expected to last four years; men's wool and wool blend slacks—four years (women's are expected to last only two years); a sport coat—four years if it is wool or wool blend, otherwise, two; winter weight suits—four years (two to three years if summer weight); women's suits—three to four years.

Fabric rainwear should last three years; sweaters—three years; blouses—two to three years; afternoon and street dresses—two to three years; heavy robes—three years.

Expect two to three years from a shirt; skirts—two years.

Children's wear understandably has the shortest life span. Coats, dresses, snowsuits and little boys' suits are listed at a two-year maximum.

These wear periods are the time spans within which you can expect an outfit to look its best.

Beyond those years, you can't be as sure. The fabrics may be less firm, won't look as sharp. Clothes will soil easier. You can't depend upon them to be party perfect.

Cherish and care for them still because they probably will remain the backbone of your wardrobe, supporting the planned periodic new additions that make you feel fashion secure.

Trend Noted To Smaller, Lighter Autos

Clarence Mosher is the kind of person who keeps his fingers on the pulse of what's going on out on our streets and higways. He is the newly elected chairman of the national safety council's highway traffic safety division (formerly the traffic conference) and the director of the traffic records project of the New York state department of motor vehicles.

From these perspectives, Mosher commented on a trend that can be both good and bad news for drivers — the trend to smaller and lighter vehicles.

"Downsizing of our cars can have important implications in fuel economy," he pointed out. "At the same time, whether you drive a conventional, compact or subcompact car makes an important difference in stopping and starting on ice slick winter roads!"

Mosher cited findings from test programs that have been conducted by NSC's committee on winter driving hazards over a number of years.

"The heavier the vehicle, the longer the distance required to slide to a stop on ice," he reported. "This relationship between vehicle weight and locked-wheel stopping distances on ice is at odds with the reported behavior of vehicles on either wet or dry pavements."

Mosher commented that once the wheels are locked, vehicle weight shouldn't make a difference. But in the case of vehicles on glare ice, a difference has been well established.

Stopping distances on ice for compact and sub-compact cars can be as much as 25 per cent shorter than for a full size vehicle, supposedly a plus for drivers of these cars, according to Mosher, who then turned the coin to the minus side.

"Once stopped, however, the smaller, lighter cars have notab[illegible] difficulty getting back into motion again. This is particularly true at warmer ice temperatures or when ice has become highly polished, such as at intersections."

Tires used in the NSC tests of the three different sized cars were original equipment as provided by the manufacturer. Different tires, with different treads and compounds, could affect stopping and traction ability appreciably, regardless of the size of the vehicle.

In this connection, Mosher reviewed the following NSC skid-test recommendations relating to traction aids:

Reinforced Tire Chains — Tops for severe snow and ice conditions — four to seven times as much traction as regular highway tires on glare ice and deep snow.

Studded Snow Tires (where permitted) — Next best for ice. New studs provide about three times the pull of regular tires.

Regular Snow Tires — Half again as much pulling power as regular tires in loose snow; but only 28 per cent improvement on glare ice.

Radial Tires — The traction performance of radial tires in snow varies widely and is dependent on the tread configuration; that is, a radial tires with a snow tread will provide better traction than one with a regular tread.

Mosher concluded with two common-sense suggestions for coping with adverse conditions regardless of the size of car you drive:

(1) Slow down and stay well back of traffic ahead on ice and snow-slicked roads. Regardless of efforts to improve traction, in no instance is the way you can stop and maneuver your car close to that of conventional highway tires on either a dry or wet pavement;

(2) Always buckle up! Use the safety restraints in your car — for yourself and your passengers. If you have children, equip your car with the proper type of restraints recommended for your child's age and weight.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Let's Take the Profit Out of Doing Nothing

With a touch of brilliance, former President Calvin Coolidge once observed: "When more and more people are thrown out of work, unemployment results." Were he alive today, he might add that when unemployment compensation is sufficiently generous, many recipients lose their incentive to work.

Unemployment compensation was not meant to become a giant giveaway program. It was designed as a needed safety net during the 1930's to protect the millions of people who were plunging toward financial disaster, or who had already been wiped out. Regular unemployment checks helped families pay their bills until the crisis subsided and the breadwinners could return to work. That, at least, is the way the system used to work.

Times have changed. Today, unemployment compensation is no longer just a financial safety net. For more and more Americans it has become a semi-permanent way of life. Some of the abuses even seem commonplace.

—There is the young college graduate who could work, but who would rather stay home and play the guitar while collecting unemployment compensation.

—Or what about the man who is weary of his work, wants a change and doesn't mind the public picking up his tab while he decides what to do?

—And, of course, let's not forget all those who head south each winter to frolic in the surf while pretending to look for jobs.

The point is not that Americans, by nature, are dishonest. Certainly some people do deliberately cheat, but the majority are still honest. The real problem is with the unemployment compensation program itself. People tend to respond rationally whenever they are given incentives to work more — or less. The message the unemployment compensation program now sends is clear for anyone willing to listen. In so many words it is saying: "Do not be concerned about substituting subsidized leisure for taxed work. In fact, be our guest!"

The General Accounting Office, Congress's official watchdog agency, recently issued a report explaining how this problem developed, why it is so serious and how it can be corrected. The GAO notes that the program's benefits were originally set at 50 per cent of gross wages back in the 1930's — a time when little or no difference existed between gross and net wages. The interim years have witnessed huge increases in federal, state and local income taxes as well as Social Security taxes. So today, a tax-free check amounting to 50 per cent of one's gross pay does not represent nearly as big a loss as it did when the program began.

Result? GAO interviews with 3,000 unemployment recipients nationwide established that, on average, people can expect the program will replace almost two-thirds of their former weekly net pay. Fully seven per cent of the receiplents actually recieved more money from unemployment compensation than they took home from their former jobs. GAO investigators also reported "the absence of work-related expenses during unemployment increases the net value of unemployment compensation. Such expenses as transportation (and) child care are quite substantial while working and cease during periods of unemployment."

That's not all. The GAO survey demonstrated just how well individuals respond when the government makes it profitable not to work. The survey found that the closer a person could come to replacing a prior salary, the more apt he or she would be to voluntarily quit a present job, to collect unemployment compensation relatively longer than other workers, and to refuse new jobs that are available. During the first 42 years, the program paid out $51.2 billion in benefits; during the last nine, it has paid out $84.3 billion. Get the picture?

The report urged strong measures to rid the program is its existing inequities and disincentives. These include making unemployment compensation subject to the personal income tax and reducing benefits by the amount of retirement income an individual is receiving.

Two years ago, I warned that while we need a short-term jobless program to assist those in need, we cannot afford permanent subsidies to create a new leisure class. Congress has still not grasped that distinction. Until it does, those who work will be hit with higher taxes and inflation to support those who seek a profit for doing nothing.

BRING 'EM IN FOR BRUNCH!

Have your bunch over for brunch this weekend! Quiches, crepes and waffles make for elegant, yet economical, menus. And, as Pat Jester proves in her new book, Brunch Cookery, your choices for menus and the manner of presentation are wide enough to match any mood or theme.

Here, for instance, is a tempting and unusual quiche from Brunch Cookery.

TOSTADA QUICHE

1 (9-inch) frozen deep-dish pastry shell
2 avocados, peeled, seeded, mashed
1 garlic clove, minced
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tomato, peeled, seeded, chopped
1 (4-oz.) can whole green chilies, seeded, chopped
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
8 oz. ground beef
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 to 2 tablespoons taco seasoning mix
1-1/2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese (6 oz.)
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1-1/2 cups half-and-half
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Shredded lettuce
Corn chips
Chopped tomato

Preheat oven to 400° F. Let frozen pastry shell stand at room temperature 10 minutes; do not prick the pastry shell. In a small bowl, mix avocados, garlic and lemon juice. Stir in 1 chopped tomato, 1 tablespoon green chilies and hot pepper sauce. Cover and refrigerate. Bake pastry shell 7 minutes. Remove from oven; set aside. Reduce oven temperature to 375° F. In a medium skillet, combine ground beef, onion, remaining green chilies and taco seasoning mix. Cook over medium-high heat, stirring occasionally, until ground beef is browned and onion is tender. Drain ground beef mixture. Layer cheese and then ground beef mixture in the pastry shell. In a medium bowl, combine eggs, half-and-half, salt and pepper. Beat with a fork or whisk until mixed well but not frothy. Pour egg mixture over ground beef mixture. Bake 45 minutes or until a knife inserted off-center comes out clean. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Garnish with shredded lettuce, tomato and avocado mixture. Or place dishes or shredded lettuce, corn chips, additional chopped tomato and the avocado mixture on the table for your guests. Makes 6 servings.

Free Pamphlet Provides Fuel Saving Tips

Motoring public, barely again accustomed to ready availability of gasoline, should be aware that energy-watchers are making dire predictions about shortages next summer.

Officials from government, the oil companies and independent researchers share the pessimism, citing statements by oil-exporting countries that they will reduce shipments next year.

Automotive information council (AIC) therefore advises motorists to revert to the gas-saving driving practices they adopted during the crunch but which have since been abandoned.

To help drivers do this, AIC offers a free pamphlet which provides 30 fuel-saving tips. Single copies can be obtained by sending a stamped addressed envelope to Automotive information council, P.O. Box 273, Southfield, Mich. 48037. Bulk copies are available at cost, $4 per hundred, which includes postage.

AIC said that if motorists follow the tips provided the predicted shortage will not interfere with our freedom of mobility because commonsense motoring will permit the build up of reserves.

Some of the tips offered in the folder include:

For every five miles per hour over 50 there is a loss of one mile per gallon.

Don't stomp on the accelerator when the signal turns to green. Sudden surges of power take a big gulp of gas. Sudden stops don't do your gasoline expenses any favor either. Try coasting to a halt.

Plan multi-stop local trips because a car doesn't reach operating efficiency until the oil, differential, grease, engine, transmission, wheel bearings, tires and other components get warmed up.

Avoid prolonged idling. Your car gets zero miles per gallon while idling. Just 30 seconds consumes as much gasoline as it takes to start the car.

Folder also illustrates how lack of proper maintenance call pull down the miles-per-gallon average.

History's Greatest Gifts

Hundreds of years ago, when a Persian emperor received a potato, he thought it was one of the greatest gifts ever given him. Persia was then suffering a famine, and from one potato enough seed potatoes could be grown to feed the entire nation. No wonder the emperor was impressed.

King Nebuchadnezzar created one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World — the Hanging Gardens of Babylon — as a gift for his bride who longed to recapture the beauty of the green hills of her former home. The King, the bride, and the gardens live on in man's memory.

Another well-known lover who set a shining example was Napoleon: he gave Josephine a tiara blazing with 880 diamonds and moved nations for her.

One gift that many people today are finding is always appreciated is a 110 camera. Even people who already own full-sized cameras like 110 cameras for their great convenience. The versatile Minolta 110 Zoom SLR MARK II offers a zoom lens ranging from normal to telephoto along with automatic exposure and accessory automatic flash. This compact camera fits in the palm of your hand and produces high quality 110 photos and negatives that can be beautifully enlarged.

A hotel baron named George Boldt tried to recapture his youth by means of an unusual gift to his wife. He bought one of the Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence River, then had it carved in the shape of a heart. He also built a castle similar to those on the German Rhine River where he had lived as a boy.

But good advice to gift-givers searching for a perfect present for a loved one is this from Ralph Waldo Emerson: "The only gift is a portion of thyself."

SILVERTON . . .

"PESKY PEAK"
As They Initiate The LOAD CONTROL PROGRAM

Dear Customer:

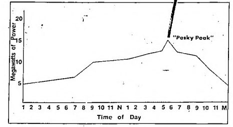
Did you know that about 40% of our wholesale cost of power is based on the peak demand created by us last winter?

We can save resources and money by installing a Load Control Device to control electric heat and water heaters. This switch activated by your utility at times of peak demand will artificially create a diversity in the electric heat and water heating loads by preventing these units from operating the same time at peak times.

You can help your City make load management a complete success by taking time to understand this important program.

If you have further questions concerning the Load Management Program, please call

681-5816



"Pesky Peak" Is Our Largest Power Usage For Any Day Of The Winter Heating Season

Are You As Concerned About The Increasing Cost Of Electricity As We Are??

Do you know that your City pays an electric bill just as you do?

Do you know that the City's bill for electricity is 40% for the peak demand (maximum usage) which we experienced last winter?

Well, together we can do something to at least slow down the rising cost of electricity! But to accomplish this it will take everyone working together. We know we can count on your help. We are also going to get some help from the use of Load Controllers.

Together we will be able to stop this increasing cost. The program we will use is called — LOAD MANAGEMENT.

Ten Most Asked Questions About Load Management

1. WHAT WILL THIS COST ME?
   Those customers not able to use the controls as furnished by the City will have to provide the necessary auxiliary material to implement load management.
2. WHAT IS LOAD MANAGEMENT?
   Load management is a technique used to reduce peak demands for electricity caused by simultaneous operation of equipment using electricity.
   In Thief River Falls, we experience periods of peak demands during the winter when electric water heaters and electric heating systems are in use.
   Simply stated, load management diversifies operation of this equipment.
3. WHY IS THE DECREASE OF PEAK DEMAND IMPORTANT?
   Electricity cannot be stored and is produced at the time it is used. Power plants must be built to supply all demand for electricity during peak periods.
   Reduced peaks means reduced needs for power plant capacity, and this is reflected in lower wholesale cost of power.
4. WILL THIS RAISE MY ELECTRIC RATES?
   No, but the system will keep rates from rising as fast. We can't do anything about OPEC but we can help hold down rates in Thief River Falls if everyone will take time to understand and use this important program.
5. IF MY WATER HEATER IS SHUT OFF TEMPORARILY, WON'T IT COST MORE TO HEAT THE WATER?
   No, it costs less. Many people are installing time clocks of their own to cut off the electric water heater when not in use. This has saved on electric bills.
6. WILL THIS HARM MY ELECTRIC WATER HEATER OR ELECTRIC HEATING SYSTEM?
   No, it will be no different than normal operation of this equipment.
7. WILL MY HOUSE GET COLD WHEN SOME OF MY ELECTRIC HEAT IS CYCLED?
   No, the cycling times for the heat will be timed so that little, if any, change in temperature will occur. The heat will only be cycled during those few hours of peak energy demand.
8. WILL A SWITCH REDUCE MY POWER BILL NOW?
   No, it will help us keep down or reduce future peak demand charges. Your City's current wholesale demand changes have been set last winter based on last winter's peak and to be paid until next winter.
   But control on future demands will control future demand charges reducing future wholesale power cost to Thief River Falls. This will be reflected in a lower purchase power cost adjustment factor on your bill.
   The cost of power will be lower with the use of load management than it would be if load management were not used.
9. WHEN WILL SWITCHES BE INSTALLED?
   Some time after December, 1979.
10. WHO SHOULD PARTICIPATE IN THE LOAD MANAGEMENT SYSTEM?
    All customers with electric heat.

HELP YOUR CITY SAVE YOU MONEY!!!

Wind Becoming An Alternative Energy Source

Wind energy systems are part of Minnesota's past, present, and future. Early role of wind system is well known. American water pumping windmills played a large part in greening the prairies for agriculture. Nearly every homestead had a water pumper between the house and the barn, and railroads used windmills to supply water for steam locomotives. We also know there are many wind energy systems currently operating in Minnesota today. But, we don't know how many, what function they serve, or how well they perform

In an effort to get more accurate information on the performance of wind energy system, the Minnesota energy agency would like to contact owners of these existing systems. Whether you have a water pumper, an electric generating system, or a wind system serving any novel use, the energy agency would like to hear from you.

Write John Cuddy, Wind Energy Programs, Minnesota Energy Agency, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55101; or call (612) 297-2327.

Many people think wind energy is a fairly new technological development. It's a fact that in the 1930s and 40s Minnesota was a major center in the development and production of wind electric generating systems with several manufacturers producing wind generators. This activity continued into the 1950's until federally-subsidized rural electrification made penny-cheap electricity available to most rural areas. Today traditional energy sources are no longer penny cheap, causing a renewed interest in wind as a source of energy.

If you're thinking about wind energy as a way to economize, you must first determine if wind energy can meet your specific needs. You need to know three things: first, the average available wind power in your area; second, the cost of the energy source you would replace with wind energy; third, the efficiency of wind-generated power.

Simply put, if you live in a windy area and can use power generated by a wind system to augment or replace an expensive form of energy (such as oil or electricity), then a wind energy conversion system may be an attractive investment.

On the other hand, if the area you live in is not very windy, or if you are trying to replace a less expensive form of energy (like natural gas or coal), then wind systems are not a very likely alternative for you.

A good wind system in the best wind areas may produce electricity at three to five cents per kilowatt hour. A good system in a less advantageous wind area may produce electricity at 15 cents or more per kilowatt hour. Obviously, as the cost of other forms of energy rise, the range of applications where wind energy conversion systems will prove effective will increase.

There are several good uses of wind power. The most obvious is to provide electricity for lights and appliances in our homes. As electricity prices exceed six to seven cents in good wind areas, wind energy conversion systems become an attractive alternative power supply.

Another application which may seem less obvious is space heating. As heating fuels such as fuel oil or electricity increase in price, wind systems look better and better.

In summary, we can say that widespread use of wind systems is not a here and now sweeping solution to our energy problems. But, there are applications where wind systems can and will replace expensive forms of energy like oil and electricity at their current and rising prices.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My father has a spot of skin cancer on his nose. The doctor plans to use chemosurgery on it. Can you tell me what this is?

V.L.

Dear V.L.:

Chemosurgery is a technique for treating skin cancer that combines the use of chemicals with surgery. After surgery on the affected area, a chemical agent is put on the site. This chemical is an indicator of cancerous tissue, not a treatment agent. The use of the chemical will show if there is any more cancerous tissue in the wound, and if so, it can be removed. It may be necessary to go through this process more than one time to determine the presence or absence of additional cancerous tissue. This procedure can be done in a doctor's office or in a hospital, depending on the size of the area to be treated.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I'm leaving for a two week winter vacation in Mexico soon. What kind of sun lotion will give the best protection from sunburn (and skin cancer) while helping me get a good tan?

Jean

Dear Jean: Neither sunscreens nor "suntan lotions" promote tanning, give a deeper suntan, or give a longer lasting tan, according to a panel of non-Government experts assembled by the Food and Drug Administration to review the safety, effectiveness, and labeling of all nonprescription or over-the-counter drugs.

The panel stressed that sunscreens only extend the time it takes the sun to produce a burn. Sunscreens work by absorbing, reflecting, or scattering ultra-violet light, thus reducing the amount that reaches the skin. To help consumers pick the appropriate sunscreen for their skin type, some manufacturers specify the "Sun Protection Factor" of their products on the label. The SPF usually ranges from 2 (minimal protection) to 15 (super protection). Since the techniques used to measure the SPF have not been fully standardized, the SPF values for similar sunscreen products may vary.

A sunscreen product is most effective when it is applied an hour before sunning and reapplied generously several times while out in the sun, particularly after swimming or sweating.

Tanning without burning can't be rushed. However, many people can obtain a nice tan with about two weeks of careful sunbathing.

Overexposure to the sun over a period of years can lead to premature aging of the skin (wrinkling, changes in pigment), precancerous spots, and skin cancer. Generally speaking, people most susceptible to skin cancer are those with light-colored skin and eyes and a Northern European background.

Seek Members For Regional Committee

Judy Alderson of Middle River, chairperson of the Agassiz regional environmental education council, said that applicants are being sought to fill four vacancies on the council.

Interested persons should contact either Howard Teague, Northern Minnesota regional coordinator, at 1705 Hwy 2 West, Bemidji, (phone 755-2732) or any council member.

A state environmental education board and 13 regional councils were established in 1973 by the Minnesota legislature. Law mandates that each 12-member group include representatives of seven major segments of society: kindergarten - 12th grade education, post-secondary education, voluntary organizations, business - industry - agriculture, labor, elected local officials and regional development commissions.

Applicants representing the categories of regional development commission, voluntary organizations, and business - industry - agriculture are currently needed for Region one which serves the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

Appointing power, which previously was vested in the governor, has been transferred to the chairperson of the Minnesota environmental education board, Jean Replinger of Marshall. However, Replinger has said she will rely heavily on the recommendations from the regional councils and other interested organizations in the regions.

In addition to the need to meet requirements regarding broad-based representation of major segments of society, there are several key factors which will be considered prior to appointment, Replinger said:

(1) An attempt will be made to provide equitable balance of members regarding sex, age and geographical location; (2) strong consideration will be given to persons who demonstrate a deep interest in environmental education and a willingness to serve and become involved in council activities; (3) familiarity with the state and regional environmental education organization and the Minnesota state plan for environmental education, while not required is nevertheless desirable.

Application forms of interested individuals not appointed at this time will be kept on file for reconsideration whenever a vacancy occurs.

The following persons are currently serving on the Region one environmental education council: Judy Alderson, Middle River; Wayne Alfveby and John Steidl, Thief River Falls; Arlyne Hedemark, Gatzke; Peggy Henry, Crookston; Foster Hudson, Lake Bronson; Betty Johnson, Roseau; and Gladwin Lynne, Warren.

Holiday Hints

GIVE A MIDNIGHT SUPPER THIS CHRISTMAS EVE

Make Christmas Eve a night to remember with a midnight supper for two or twenty. Baked Red Snapper in Wine Sauce will whet holiday appetites, prepared with equal parts holiday magic, good cheer, spices and a dry white wine such as Buena Vista Chablis, the perfect aperitif. Conclude the meal with Bread Pudding au Sabayon, the sweetest gift of all.

BAKED RED SNAPPER IN WINE SAUCE

1 two-pound red snapper, cleaned and scaled
Salt and pepper
1 1/2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large tomato, cut into wedges
1 small onion, sliced and separated into rings
1 lemon, sliced
3/4 cup Buena Vista Chablis, dry white wine
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/3 cup heavy cream
1/4 teaspoon oregano, crushed
Dill sprigs
Lemon slices

Place fish in well-buttered shallow baking dish. Season with salt and pepper. Place tomato, onion and lemon on top of and around fish. Pour wine over all. Bake at 400°F. about 20 minutes per pound, until fish flakes and is translucent near the bone. Transfer the fish to serving platter. Strain pan juices into saucepan. Blend cornstarch into cream. Add to saucepan with oregano. Cook, stirring, until thickened and smooth. Pour over fish. Garnish with dill and lemon slices. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

BREAD PUDDING AU SABAYON

1/2 cup golden raisins
1/4 cup Bacardi dark rum, heated
6 slices white bread, crusts removed
3 cups milk, scalded
2/3 cup sugar
4 eggs
2 egg yolks
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
4 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
1 cup Buena Vista Chablis, dry white wine

Blend raisins with rum. Let stand about 15 minutes. Drain well. Butter bread lightly and place over raisins in buttered 8 x 11-inch shallow baking dish. Dissolve 2/3 cup sugar in milk. Beat 4 eggs and 2 egg yolks together. Gradually beat in hot milk, beating constantly. Add vanilla and pour over bread. Place dish in pan and pour hot water around baking dish about 1-inch high. Bake at 350°F. for 40 minutes or until knife inserted about 1-inch from edge comes out clean. Cool on wire rack. To make sauce, combine remaining 4 egg yolks and 1 cup sugar in top of glass double boiler. Beat with electric mixer for 2 minutes. Slowly beat in wine. Cook over hot (not boiling) water, stirring constantly for about 8 minutes until creamy and spoon leaves path when pulled through sauce. Pour immediately into serving bowl. Serve warm with bread pudding. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Clay Fruit Ornaments Brighten The Tree

Add to the fun of trimming the Christmas tree by making your own ornaments. Using this recipe for "clay," made with corn starch, baking soda and water, it's not only easy but inexpensive. For a free folder of other creative craft ideas, write to Play Clay Play, Dept. PCP-T, Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

PLAY CLAY

1 cup Argo or Kingsford's corn starch
2 cups baking soda (1 pound box)
1 1/2 cups cold water

In medium saucepan stir together corn starch and baking soda. Add water all at once; stir until smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is consistency of slightly dry mashed potatoes. (Mixture will come to boil, start to thicken, first in lumps, then in thick mass that holds its shape.) Turn onto plate and cover with damp cloth. Cool enough to handle. Knead thoroughly on corn starch dusted surface until smooth and pliable. Remove enough for one ornament at a time; store remainder in sealed plastic bag. Clay keeps in cool place up to two weeks; knead before using.

To make ornaments, roll dough 1/4 inch thick and cut out with cookie cutters or cardboard pattern pieces or shape as desired. Insert leaves made with thin brass sheeting. For hangers, twist two pieces of fine brass wire; loop and insert. Dry at room temperature, turning occasionally. (It may take up to 8 hours.) When thoroughly dry, paint with water base paint or felt tipped pens. Glue on gold paper dots for grape ornament. Shellac or brush with clear nail polish; hang to dry.

Covenant Christmas Party

Viking Covenant women held their annual Christmas party at the church Sunday evening in the setting of candlelight and Christmas trees. Mrs. Halward Anderson, chairwoman, opened the program with a welcome and led the congregational hymn sing of "Oh Come All Ye Faithful" after which the program was turned over to the men of the church with Lloyd Ranum, chairman in charge. Devotions were by Clarence Tangquist who read the Christmas story from Luke. Timmy and Tricia Olson sang "C Is For the Christ Child" and were accompanied on the guitar by their father Danny Olson. Halward Anderson gave a reading entitled "Home For Christmas" after which Clarence Gustafson played a violin solo, "Star of The East", accompanied at the piano by his daughter, Mrs. Wallace Hanson. Paul Tangquist gave a reading of "How Silent Night Began", after which his son Jason sang as a solo, "Silent Night" and was accompanied on the guitar by Diane Anderson. Dennis Skjerven gave a reading entitled "Too Involved", a quartet member consisting of Rev. Sheldon Lorenson, Danny Olson, Danny Sustad and Keith Ranum sang "There's a Star in the Sky", with Ann Hanson at the piano. All the men of the church sang as a chorus "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem", with Mrs. Virgil Hjelle at the piano. Clarence Gustafson, and Jon Hanson rendered an instrumental duet, "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem" after which Rev. Sheldon Lorenson brought the Christmas message. The offering which was taken will be sent to the Wisconsin rural missions and in closing the audience sang, "Joy To The World". The potluck luncheon was served by the Son Shine Singers. Ladling the punch was Julie Gustafson and pouring coffee was Ann Hanson and Tamie Anderson. After lunch there was the distribution of Christmas cards.

March Of Dimes Supported Program Aims To Prevent Prematurity

Robert Creasy, M.D.
Professor and Chief Obstetrical Service and
Susan Krowley, R.N., M.S.N.
Maternity Nurse Practitioner
University of California
San Francisco, California

A KEY FACTOR to prevention of prematurity is recognizing early labor signs. Supported by March of Dimes funds, Dr. Robert Creasy and Susan Krowley, R.N., teach patients about these signs at the University of California in San Francisco.

For most expectant parents, waiting nine months for their baby's birth seems long. But the thrill of childbirth can be tarnished if the baby is born too soon.

An infant who emerges from the womb ahead of schedule is usually in jeopardy. In most cases his or her organs have not matured sufficiently. The newborn may have problems with breathing, heart action, and control of body temperature and blood sugar. Survival is a struggle, one which many premature babies lose.

Although only six to eight per cent of births are pre-term, they account for nearly 75 per cent of all newborn deaths other than those due to abnormal fetal development. Prematurity or low birth-weight are birth defects which threaten the well-being of those babies who survive.

Extra Time

For some infants, just two or three more days in the womb might make the difference between being born healthy or being born with immaturity defects, often the difference between life and death.

The March of Dimes, dedicated to the elimination of birth defects, sees prevention of prematurity as a way to accomplish its goal of giving all babies the best chance for a healthy start.

Prevention of prematurity is one of medicine's greatest challenges. With the help of March of Dimes funds, we are trying to meet that challenge by providing special care to high-risk patients —pregnant women in danger of a premature delivery. A vital component is educating patients in self-detection of premature labor.

Basically, our job is to put women in better touch with their bodies, so they can recognize subtle signs of early labor: cramping, low backache, pelvic pressure, or mucous vaginal discharge. We also teach them how to "self-detect" regular uterine contractions by feeling the abdomen.

Several factors are associated with premature delivery, such as previous history of it, multiple conception (twins or triplets), and maternal health problems that include uterine abnormalities. Also, a woman who smokes or who is malonurished is often at risk.

Evaluation

To identify women at risk we use the Obstetrical Problem List, a system which assesses socioeconomic status, past medical history, and daily habits.

Although it is not the perfect way to identify all high-risk patients, the list is an excellent tool. Women who receive a score of ten or more are considered to be at high risk.

These women are entered into our program and seen regularly for prenatal care. After the 26th week, they are examined weekly for signs of cervical dilation.

Some never experience premature labor symptoms and deliver full-term babies. Others do go into premature labor. For them and their infants, our program can be a lifesaver.

Here, as at other medical centers throughout the country, we use medication to inhibit uterine activity. If administered early enough, certain compounds can effectively inhibit premature labor without causing serious maternal side-effects. The key is timing and early detection.

Unfortunately, the unprepared premature delivery patient, unaware of early labor symptoms, often enters the hospital too late for help. Her membranes may have already ruptured or her cervix may be dilated beyond 3 or 4 centimeters. At this point medication is usually ineffective in prolonging the pregnancy.

Better Prepared

Because they have been coached on the early, subtle symptoms of premature labor, our patients call us and we get them into the hospital. If administered early enough, medication can delay delivery anywhere from several days to a few months, buying time for the infant to develop.

Nationally, only about 15 per cent of mothers at risk are considered good candidates for labor-inhibiting medical treatment by the time they reach the hospital. With our patients that figure more than triples. Almost 50 per cent of our high-risk patients threatened by premature labor are helped by treatment.

Education plus timing usually adds up to a healthy baby for our patients.

Mrs. Clara Jaennette treated Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ranum of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Adam Lendobeja of Smiley to breakfast at the Best Western Saturday morning in honor of Dale's birthday which is December 9.

Mrs. Amy Jorde, Mrs. Donald Jorde, Mrs. Belle Austinson, Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf and Mrs. Alfred Solem attended the Christmas meeting of the Rebekah circle of Trinity ALCW at the Fireside room of the church Thursday afternoon.

The East Steiner homemakers and their families enjoyed their Christmas party Friday evening at the Northrop school gymnasium. Following supper and games Santa Claus arrived with treats of apples, peanuts and candy for all the youngsters.

The Christmas season is a time to celebrate the birthday of our Savior and to give of ourselves. Why not remember Robert and Mavis Hillyer with belated greetings for their 30th wedding anniversary which they noted Dec. 4 as well as with personal Christmas greetings? Mr. and Mrs. Hillyer, who are not very well, send greetings to all their acquaintances in our area when Mrs. Amanda Russell visited with them by telephone the latter part of November. Their new address is 115 S. 75th Place, Mesa, Ariz. 85205.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke and David were Friday evening visitors with Mrs. Lydia Lubitz at her Skylite Apartment.

Dean Lubitz Six Years Old

Helping Dean Lubitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lubitz celebrate his sixth birthday after school and in the evening Friday at his home were Mrs. James Bass, Jeremy, Jan and Jason, Mrs. Deanna Sourdif and Laird, Jason Yonke, Mrs. Jerome Engen, Jason, Lexlie and Jeremy, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Augustine, Matthew and Mark, Pastor Richard and Pastor Nancy Lund, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Giles, Mary and John, Mrs. Larry Gustafson, Stacy, Susan and Tony and Roxanne, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moen, Layle, Lee and Londa, Donald Sourdif and Mrs. Angeline Larson.

Marvin Yonke of East Grand Forks spent Saturday at the home of his folks, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke.

Saturday afternoon luncheon guests at the John Lubitz home were Mrs. Deanna Sourdif and Laird.

Visitors at the Mrs. Helen Russell home the past weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Larson, Ronda and Ryan of Carrington, N.D. and Mrs. Dale Grondahl and Loren of Buffalo.

Dinner guests Sunday at the home of Jack and Denise Chrzanowski were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Larson, Ronda and Ryan, Mrs. Helen Russell and Mrs. Dale Grondahl, Kathy, Kim and Loren. In the afternoon they all attended the open house at St. Bernard's Catholic church in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Panek's Silver Wedding anniversary. Among others who attended the open house were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Russell, Cindi and Brenda and Dale Grondahl.

STRANDQUIST...

Senior Citizens

It was a cold and cloudy Thursday, November 29, when the senior citizens held their weekly meeting at the center.

Only 14 registered. Our guests were Leonard Torkelson, Ray Duvos and Ida Bruce.

Those of us members there enjoyed visiting and a bit of work.

Polly and Amanda crocheted around the afghan blocks while Mildred and Ella sewed around another piece quilt. This one is made of woolen pieces and is it ever a beauty. It won't stay around long. Someone will buy it to wrap themselves in to save on the fuel bill.

This was the last Thursday in the month of November so we played bingo until all had won two prizes each. We finished playing blackout and Polly was the winner.

Two door prizes were given away. Ruth Harper received the one Amanda gave and Irene gave the prize Amanda received.

Ruth Harper was our hostess Thursday.

Creative Cooking

MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR INGENUITY

You can create beauty, flavor, smiles and happiness—plus solid savings—by serving elegant meals that cannily cut down on complex methods of preparation.

Don't automatically eliminate old-fashioned, hearty dishes — or fancy foreign ones—just because of time-consuming preparation. Instead, use your ingenuity and take advantage of modern timesavers. You could, for instance, make an exotic curried shrimp in minutes by using a can of condensed chicken soup as your starting point.

In fact, condensed soups can be a short cut to many courses on the menu. A new cookbook, The Creative Cook, from Campbell Soup Company, is chock-full of recipes for old favorites and exciting new ideas that can be prepared quickly, easily and economically with condensed soups.

Having a way with sauces, for instance, is one sure way to take the monotony out of mealtime. Sauces impart new tastes, as well as enhance and enrich the flavors of the foods with which they are used, but Hollandaise or Mornay sauce can be time-consuming—and tricky—to make. Yet, by using condensed cream of asparagus soup as your starting point, you can, for example, create an elegant Blender Hollandaise Sauce with this recipe.

Modern short cuts make these memorable main dishes easier: Clockwise: Beef Ragout, Stuffed Cabbage Rolls, Shanghai Chicken and Vegetables, Veal Mediterranean, Hungarian Pork Roast.

At the pinnacle of culinary art are sauces: Clockwise: Spaghetti Sauce Abruzzi, Mock Tartar Sauce and Mornay Sauce.

These versatile vegetables can add appeal to any meal. Clockwise: Cauliflower Au Gratin, Vegetables a la Grecque and Vegetable Melange.

BLENDER HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed cream of asparagus soup
3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Generous dash hot pepper sauce
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted

In blender, combine all ingredients except butter. Cover; blend on high speed a few seconds. With blender still on high speed, remove cover. Very slowly pour butter in a steady stream into soup mixture. Blend 3 minutes more or until thick. Serve over cooked fish or vegetables. Makes about 2 cups.

Mousseline Sauce: Prepare as above. Fold in 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped. Serve over cooked fillet of white fish.

Another idea from The Creative Cook that can tickle your taste buds and your ingenuity includes creating combination vegetable dishes—an assortment of greens simmered in condensed chicken broth. The book also suggests you transform old standbys such as hamburgers into tempting stuffed cabbage rolls. Condensed tomato bisque makes it a snap.

The Creative Cook is available for $2.50 from: Creative Cook, P.O. Box 9097, Clinton, Iowa 52732. Allow eight weeks for delivery.

CUT ALONG DOTTED LINE

Danger In Transporting Chlorine Rises

by Mark E. Canney
University News Service

April 22, 1915, 600,000 pounds of it was spread along a two-mile front in Europe by the German army, devastating an unprepared opposing force. November 12, 1979, 220,000 persons fled their homes in Mississauga, Ontario, to get away from it. The culprit, which is as deadly as it is useful, is chlorine gas.

Chlorine, a heavy green gas, has many uses as an industrial chemical. But it is also lethal — humans can inhale only one part per million safely.

"It's really nasty stuff," said Kent Mann, professor of chemistry at the University of Minnesota. "I would be hard pressed to come up with a more lethal industrial chemical than chlorine."

When it comes in contact with skin, chlorine forms acids and causes irritation of the skin, eyes and mucous membranes. Inhaled, chlorine causes choking, nausea and vomiting. Larger doses cause death by pulmonary edema — the gas draws water out of the lung tissue and victims literally drown in their own fluids.

Heavier than air, chlorine gas does not disperse as readily as lighter gases, such as propane. The gas will lie in low spots on the ground until winds sweep it up into the atmosphere. Chlorine gas can be neutralized by spraying it with water, which transforms it into a bleach. Bleach is not harmful to humans.

Discovered in 1810 by a British chemist, chlorine is used in the manufacture of plastics, antifreeze, pesticides and bleaching agents. The gas has also been used as an antibacterial substance in water and sewage systems.

Major use of chlorine gas is in the manufacture of vinyl chloride, a type of plastic, and increased demand has raised production from 205,000 tons in 1930 to 11.5 million tons in 1978, according to figures provided by the Chlorine Institute of New York.

Chlorine is produced by sending an electric current through a salt-water solution. Drillings are made into salt deposits beneath the earth and water is pumped into the drill hole. Resulting mixture, called brine, is taken out of the drill sites and the chlorine gas is collected.

Although a gas under normal conditions, chlorine will change to a liquid when put under pressure, making it easier to transport. But when a tanker carrying chlorine ruptures, the escaping chlorine changes back to a gaseous form and expands dramatically. An 80-ton tanker, such as those used by the railroad industry, carries enough chlorine to cover 10 square miles if the tanker should rupture.

Fay Thompson, professor of public health at the University of Minnesota, is critical of the way chlorine gas is transported by rail. "Handling chlorine gas takes attention to detail," she said. "In handling all toxic materials, the rail transportation system must be improved."

Both Mann and Thompson feel that railroad beds must be improved as the number of shipments of chlorine and other toxic materials multiplies.

Figures from the federal railroad administration show an increase of more than 3,000 derailments in the past 10 years. Not all of the derailments involved the release of toxic materials, but the number of trains carrying chlorine has increased. In 1978, 3.4 million tons of chlorine were transported by rail, an increase of almost a million tons in the last 10 years.

Because of the large amount transported yearly, Thompson said, chlorine could pose one of the most serious threats to human health.

UND Sponsors Centennial Design Contest

University of North Dakota is sponsoring a design competition to select an official logo to be used during UND's centennial observance.

According to Dean Emeritus D.J. Robertson, chairman of the UND centennial committee, the logo will be reprinted on stationery, announcements and other centennial-related items, beginning in 1980 and extending through 1983.

The University of North Dakota at Grand Forks was founded on Feb. 27, 1883, when Dakota Territorial Gov. Nehemiah Ordway signed into law a bill establishing the school. It was the first official use of the expression "North Dakota," since statehood did not come until six years later.

Robertson said cash prizes will be awarded for the top submissions in the logo design competition. The best entry earns a $300 prize, and there also will be a $100 prize for the second best entry, and $25 awards for the four next entries.

There are no restrictions on the content of the proposed logo, he said, although entrants may wish to make use of the thought, "By the light of knowledge, we read the laws of life." This motto, chosen as the theme of the 100th anniversary observance, was written by retired UND English Professor F.Y. Saint Clair, who now resides in Tucson, Ariz.

Any person living in the United States may enter the logo competition, and there is no entry fee or limit on the number of entries. Each entry must be submitted before March 1, 1980, as a mounted black-and-white photostat with a 10 by 12 inch image size.

Entries should be mailed to the Department of Visual Arts, Hughes Fine Arts Center, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, ND 58202.

entries will be judged by Russel Mroczek, chairman of the division of design at the Minneapolis college of art and design. Entries will not be returned, and the winning design will become the property of the University of North Dakota.

Find Carbon Monoxide In Ice Arenas

Minnesota department of health is urging patrons and operators of ice arenas in the state to be alert for health problems caused by carbon monoxide exposure in those facilities. Department issues its warning following recent reports of carbon monoxide-related illness in ice arenas.

Carbon monoxide can accumulate in ice arenas which use automatic resurfacing machines, according to Dr. Roger DeRoos, head of the department's environmental health division. Resurfacing machines are powered by internal combustion engines, fueled by propane or gasoline.

Symptoms of carbon monoxide exposure can include headache, nausea and vomiting, Dr. DeRoos said. He noted that children are especially vulnerable, particularly when they are physically active. He urged that suspected cases of carbon monoxide exposure be reported to the arena operator, or to state or local health authorities, if necessary.

Department must issue a special certificate before an arena operator can legally use a resurfacing machine, and the certificate must be posted "in a conspicuous place" at the arena. To obtain a certificate, the operator must maintain the resurfacing equipment properly and provide adequate ventilation, so carbon monoxide can't build up inside the facility. The operator must also take air samples periodically, to make sure carbon monoxide levels remain below the 30 parts per million limit set by the department.

Set Elementary Yule Program At Goodridge

Goodridge elementary school will present its annual Christmas program Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Goodridge school gymnasium under the direction of Jodi K. Bergland. Costumes and language from around the world will be featured in the program.

Kindergarten youngsters will represent England and sing "Here We Came a Wassailing" and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas".

First graders representing Mexico will present "At the Door a Babe Is Knocking" and "Foom, Foom, Foom" with maracas being played by Melanie Martin, Dena Prestebak, Lyle Miller and Karla Quam. The grade will also present a pinata-breaking demonstration.

Second graders will portray the children of Germany and sing "O Tannenbaum" and "O Come Little Children" with Ross Ryan portraying St. Nicholas as part of the group's skit.

Third graders will be costumed in Russian dress as they sing "Kolyada" and "In A Manger". A Russian dance with rythm instruments and recording will be presented by Shelly Cullen, Denise Hermansen, Stephanie Howard, Paul Henrickson, Brian Grabowska and David Vigen.

Oriental Christmas will be presented by the fourth grade with songs including "Huakuko" and "Midnight Sleeping in Bethlehem." Bells will be played by Leslie Ostlund, Shawn Groven, Michael Johnson, Ruth Pittman, Tracy Aandal and JoAnne Naeseth with Dean Wiskow operating the cymbals.

Fifth graders will sing "Domine Deus" and "Sleep O Holy Child of Mine" with flutophones played by Karla Dahlen, Tami Quam, LaNae Olson, Jeff Joen, Shelly Swanson and Richard Troska and autoharp played by Jeff Berg.

Grade six will feature Tami Miller as St. Lucia and will sing ~~"Were You There On~~ That Cristmas Night" and "A Child Is Born in Bethlehem".

All grades and the audience will join in singing "Jingle Bells" and "Silent Night".

Recover Furs, Make Arrests In Local Theft

Recovery of approximately $17,000 in prepared furs and apprehension of two local men and a local juvenile in connection with their theft resulted from use of law enforcement communications network and alert investigation last week.

Bud Evans of Evans Seed, Wool and Fur of Thief River Falls reported about 8:39 a.m. Friday that appxoximately 225 to 230 fox and wolf furs had been stolen from his warehouse in Thief River Falls. Entry had been gained by cutting in the floor from under the building.

Local law enforcement officers sent a description of the lost fur over the teletype to law enforcement agencies in Minnesota and neighboring states, advising officers to be on the lookout for the stolen articles.

Conservation officer Bob Clarey of Ino, Wis., read the message and checked with fur dealers in his area. He found one dealer who had purchased 15 furs and issued a check to a Thief River Falls resident. He had also taken down the license number of the vehicle which registered to another Thief River Falls resident.

Arrests by local police were Randy Lee Bert, 18, 318 Kinney av. N., and Michael Charles Acker, 18, rural Thief River Falls. A 17-year-old juvenile will also be charged in the theft. Berg and Acker will appear in county court today on burglary and possession of stolen property charges.

Recovered were the 15 furs in Wisconsin, 159 furs found after a search warrnat was obtained for a rural Thief River Falls farm, and 54 furs sold in Grand Rapids.

Investigation revealed that the theft occurred Wednesday of last week and was not noticed until Friday when it was reported.

Hamerlinck In MASSP Post

Frank Hamerlinck of Thief River Falls, principal at Lincoln high school, has been appointed chairman of the resolutions committee for the Minnesota association of secondary school principals.

GOODRIDGE ELEMENTARY students will present their annual Christmas program Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Goodridge school gymnasium under the direction of Jodi D. Bergland. The program will feature each child in costume from a foreign country and speaking some of the native language. Caught by the Times camera as they were in rehearsal for the program were the students above. They include John Hedeen (top photo), Tracy Aandal (middle left), Karla Quam (middle right), Denise Hermansen (bottom left) and Ross Ryan (bottom right).

High Demand For Assistance Under Fuel Plan

Approximately 350 applications have been received to this date from Pennington county residents who are being aided by the fuel assistance plan now in operation through June 30, according to Bob Melby, director of housing and energy programs at the Inter-County community council in Oklee.

Over 1,300 applications have been received from low-income residents in the four-county area served by the Inter-County council, he added. Counties include Red Lake, Pennington, East Polk and Clearwater.

Applications will be taken until next spring, he said, with the date for checks to be written to various fuel companies terminating June 30.

"We are quite flooded with applications," he said. "We have more applications than we expected this year. But with fuel oil costs almost doubling this year, and because the fuel assistance program is well advertised, the demand for assistance was somewhat expected this year over previous years."

Applicants must be sent to the site nearest them to obtain an application or, in the case of a person confined to his home a visit is arranged with an out-reach worker in that area to visit the home. Applications cannot be sent out since verification of income must be brought along by the applicant, Melby said.

Once an out-reach worker has checked through the person's application for verification of income, other general information is submitted, and the fuel company's name with which that person is dealing is obtained. The council then looks at the money in the budget, Melby said, and takes into consideration high and low priority people.

"Right now we are looking at the high priority people," he said. "We are limiting payments to $150 to each

Four Nominated For Chamber Directorship

Four names have been placed in nomination to become directors of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce by the nominating committee of the organization, according to Bud Evans, president of the chamber.

Nominated are Bill Duckworth, J.C. Penney company; Ken Meyer, K Mart; Grant Oppegaard, Arctic Enterprises, Inc.; and Ron Martin, Midwest Motor Express. Directors to be elected will serve three-year terms beginning Feb. 1, 1980.

In accordance with by-laws of the chamber of commerce, any member in good standing may nominate any other member in good standing to become a nominee for the board of directory by notifying the office no later than 10 days from the date of a letter reporting nominations by the nominating committee. Effective date for nominations by the membership this year is December 22.

Any such nominees will be placed on the ballot if they are qualified under by-laws of the chamber and are willing to serve if elected. Four directors will be elected by mail ballot.

In Paul Boman Murder Trial . . . .

Defense Claims Morben Attempted To Grab Gun

Defense of Paul Walter Boman, charged with murder in the first degree in the shotgun death of Duane Morben in Thief River Falls June 11, will rest heavily on the testimony of a firearms expert, according to the opening defense statement made this morning in Pennington county district court by defense attorney Douglas Thomson.

Thomson told the jury of seven women and five men with one woman as an alternate that the expert's testimony will show that the muzzle of the shotgun was within one to two and one-half feet from the neck of Duane Morben at the time he was killed. He said the evidence will prove Duane Morben was killed as a result of reaching out in an attempt to grab the shotgun as Paul Boman was following his former wife, Colleen, into the bedroom of the Morben trailer.

A friend of Boman's who had hunted geese with him handloaded the shotgun shells used in the shooting. Thomson said additional shells had been loaded to the same specifications and fired through the shotgun admitted into evidence to obtain ballistics information. He asked the jury to pay particular attention to the evidence to be presented in that respect.

The defense attorney said this case is unique in that there is no witness who can testify to the actual happening at the trailer. The victim is dead, Colleen Boman testified that she did not see Duane shot, he said, and the defendant has a complete lack of memory as to what happened and has no recall of that event.

Thomson reminded the jury that the prosecution's opening statement on its intention to prove guilt was not evidence, and that the opening statement of the defense on its intent to prove innocence for lack of substance to the charge was not evidence. He also reminded the jurors that they were instructed to keep an open mind during both the prosecution and defense presentations of evidence, and to make their decision on that basis.

Much of the evidence presented by the defense will dovetail with that presented by the prosecution, he said, noting that under our system of justice the defense does not present its evidence until the prosecution rests its case.

Prosecution rested its case Thursday about 4:10 p.m. after calling its last witness, Colleen Boman, who was present in the Morben trailer when the fatal shot was fired.

She testified that she had been hit by splinters after a shotgun blast struck the wall of the bedroom while Paul Boman and Morben were in the living room. When she went into the living room, both she and Morben told Paul to put down the gun, she said, and Morben told him he would have to pay for damage to the wall.

Mrs. Boman said she did not see her former husband fire the gun, but that she did see Morben's arms and shoulders "jerk" and saw him fall. He had motioned with his head for her to go into the bedroom, she said, and the shot was fired as she turned to leave.

TRF Per Capita Debt Is $1,058 In Calendar '78

Per capita debt of the city of Thief River Falls in calendar year 1978 was $1,058, substantially more than Bemidji, Crookston, Detroit Lakes and Brainerd but less than East Grand Forks or grand Rapids in comparative size cities in Northern Minnesota.

Among smaller northwestern Minnesota cities, Warroad has the highest per capita debt at $3,411.60 while Brooks, Holt, Strandquist, Strathcona and Viking are debt free. Karlstad and Lancaster both had per capita debt in excess of $2,000.

In releasing the list of cities and their per capita revenues, current expenditures, capital outlay and outstanding indebtedness, state auditor Arne Carlson noted that municipalities "appear to be keeping per capita debt in line despite heavy inflationary pressures."

The state auditor's report covering 1978 indicates that per capita debt increased 4.6 per cent, a figure which Carlson called "an encouraging sign".

(See accompanying table for statistics regarding Thief River Falls and comparable communities in northern Minnesota as well as a listing of Times area cities.)

"Per capita revenues increased 11.9 per cent during 1978 while expenditures rose only 11.1 per cent," Carlson also noted. "This is another favorable indication that Minnesota's municipalities are trying to maintain sound financial management."

Overall, the average per capita current expense for 1978 was $258.84, an increase of $26.86 over the previous

GARY RUX, chairman of the operation Christmas project conducted recently in Thief River Falls to aid financially under privileged families in the area, questions two of the 30 children involved on what their "special" gifts are. This year's project was one of the most successful so far, according to Rux.

30 Children Take Part In Operation Christmas

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

It seems that most of the children had no trouble deciding upon a gift for themselves or their families during the operation Christmas project sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycees Saturday.

Operation Christmas project has been done for the past 12 years, according to Gary Rux, chairman of the project and Jaycees director. The programs are conducted to help out financially underprivileged families in Thief River Falls. Youngsters in the families are given money to purchase gifts for other members of the families and a small gift for themselves.

"I cannot think of a more beneficial program than this one," Rux said. "This, to me, is one of the most admirable programs there is."

Money for this year's program came from the Jaycees funds and from the L.B. Hartz foundation. This is the first time that outside funds have been used for a project such as this one, Rux said.

"The program was ten times better this year than ever, especially with the help of outside funds recieved," he said.

Approximately 12 families were involved in the program this year, which resulted in 30 children Christmas shopping throughout the K-Mart store in Thief River Falls Saturday for those "special" gifts. Arctic Enterprises, Inc. in Thief River Falls donated Arctic

SOCIETY and CLUBS

BPO Does Elect Officers; Hear Donation Report

Officers were elected and the year-end report of the charitable and benevolent projects was made at the meeting of the Thief River Falls BPO Does, drove 65, held December 11 at the Elks club. This was the drove's final meeting for the year.

Officers elected for 1980 were Mrs. Don Barth, president; Mrs. Guida Selheim, first counselor; Mrs. Irvin Wilson, senior counselor, Mrs Elmer Pischer, junior counselor; Mrs. Roy Jorgenson, Secretary; Mrs. Russ Williams, treasurer; Mrs. Ferdie Mandt, inner guard; Mrs. Glenn Peterson, outer guard; Mrs. Arne Lee, conductor; Mrs. Bill Youmans, musician; Mrs. Robert Looker, three-year trustee, and Mrs. Jim Berg, installing deputy president.

Installation will take place Tuesday, January 8, at the Elks club.

The charitable and benevolent report revealed that over $700 had been donated during the year. Donations included $25 checks to four families suffering losses in mobile home fires; $100 for Senior Citizens transportation to the Winter Shows in Crookston; $100 to the Falls Day Activity center for expenses in sending young people to Moorhead to participate in the athletic competition; $100 to the Jerry Lewis muscular dystrophy telethon, $100 scholarships for students at AVTI; $100 scholarships to students at Northland Community college; $100 for purchasing clothing for a needy family for Christmas; and $40 for gifts for the Friendship club members. It was also noted that the Drove had served lunch for two meetings of the Friendship club.

A membership turkey dinner preceded the meeting. During the social hour that followed the business session, members exchanged gifts and the 1979 officers were presented with gifts from retiring president Mrs. Robert Looker.

Turbes and Bolstad Vows Said At Rosemount

Marriage vows were exchanged at St. Joseph's Catholic church at Rosemount on October 13, at 2 p.m., by Miss Kathryn Ann Turbes of that city, and Roy Henry Bolstad of Thief River Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Floyd J. Turbes of Rosemount and the late Virginia Turbes; and the groom is the son of Gertrude Bolstad, rural Thief River Falls and the late Henry Bolstad.

The altar was graced with an arrangement of fresh gladioli, tipped in peach, a unity candle, which was lit after the exchanging of the vows, and long-stemmed red roses, which were presented to the parents.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. For her wedding she wore her mother's wedding gown and veil. The gown was fashioned of a white brocaded satin with long, tapered sleeves featuring a lace cap. The fitted bodice was complemented by a shirred inset panel edged with wide lace, that extended over the shoulders, accenting the V-neckline. Lace inserts trimmed the front of the skirt and a coordinating lace ruffle edged the cathedral length train. A coronet of seed pearls held her finger-tip veil of silk tulle. She carried a nosegay of peach silk roses, white carnations and babies' breath, backed by a lace ruffle.

Barb Turbes, a sister-in-law of the bride, was personal attendant.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Becky Sterner-Turbes of Apple Valley. Other attendants were Therese Moeller, Eagan, a friend, and Joni Turbes, Inver Grove Heights, a sister-in-law. Their identical, halter-styled gowns of a peach polyester were accented by capes in a floral design in peach and brown. In their hair, they wore a peach rose. They carried peach silk carnations in a mist of babies' breath.

Best man was Herb Torstveit of St. Hilaire, a friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Dean Gunsch, Moorhead, a nephew of the groom, and Art Anderson, Thief River Falls, a friend of the groom. Scott Turbes, Inver Grove Heights, a brother of the bride, and Carl Peterson, St. Hilaire, a friend of the groom, served as ushers. The groom wore an all-cream colored tuxedo with brown trim and a peach silk rose boutonniere. His attendants wore cream colored jackets with brown trim, brown vests and trousers, and peach silk carnation boutonnieres. The bride's father wore an all-brown tuxedo with a peach carnation pinned on his lapel.

The mother of the groom, who was escorted into the church by her son, was attired in a light blue floral, street-length dress accented by a corsage featuring a peach tipped silk rose, white carnations and babies' breath.

Following the ceremony, the bride's father hosted a wedding supper and dance at the Knights of Columbus hall in St. Paul. Approximately 125 relatives and friends attended.

Katheleen Eisenbacker, godmother of the bride, and Marie Kleinvachter, aunt of the groom, cut and served the three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white with peach trim and topped with peach roses, white carnations and greenery. At the gift table were Dareene Torstveit and Sue Keller, friends of the couple.

The couple is now at home in St. Hilaire. The bride is a graduate of Rosemount senior high school and is employed in this city at North Star transport. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is currently self-employed. A wedding trip in January is planned. Photo, Tom Murphy, Rosemount

Trinity Church Women Will Meet Wednesday

Trinity Lutheran Church Women will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., in the church parlors. This meeting will end the year's education theme, "Stewardship is the proof of your love for Christ."

The evening's activities will center on Education, inspiration and worship based on the month's theme, "Why trim a tree at Christmas?" The women will participate in the program by trimming the tree with decorations made at the November meeting.

Many carols will be sung. Special music will be provided by Rev. Carl Andersen, Jan Peterson and Melba Penning.

Members of the Priscilla circle will serve as hostesses. Joanna circle will be in charge of hospitality and the Rachel circle will give the mission emphasis.

Catholic Daughters Announce Scholarships

Scholarship winners were selected at the meeting of the Catholic Daughters, court 2023, held Tuesday evening, December 4.

The winners were Michelle Lasha and Kevin Mandt. Rev. John Kleinwachter made the announcement.

The meeting began with a potluck supper and concluded with the court's annual Christmas party.

This year, heart disease and stroke will kill nearly 200,000 Americans before age 65, according to the American Heart Association.

News At Valley Home Reported By Ella Overum

Highlighting events at Valley home during the month of November was the home's annual bazaar. According to the Valley Home news reporter Ella Overum, a resident, the bazaar was well attended. Residents participated in the event by serving as cashiers and selling popcorn, coffee, doughnuts and barbecues. The men were in charge of the fish pond.

The monthly birthday party also created a great deal of interest as 13 residents having birthdays in November were honored. Birthday honorees together with the date of birthdays were: Alice Jesme, November 2; Hilda H. Johnson and Martin Swenson, November 4; Margaret Johnston, November 6; Tillie Anderson and Ole Olson, November 10; Ella Overum, November 13; Fred Protz, November 19; Hans Elken, November 22; Joe Havlik, November 24; Jeannie Horter, November 26; and Laura Lund and Joann McCann, November 28. Each received a card and cash gift from the home as well as a card from the Catholic Daughters.

The birthday party was held November 30, with Gail Zacharias and Olive Lunke in charge of the game, "The Price Is Right." Contestants were Leo Schiefert, Hazel Anderson, Gertrude Kuznia and Blanche Protz. As a special treat, cinnamon rolls were served with the afternoon coffee. At the noon meal ice cream was served by Alice Jesme, Hilda H. Johnson, Martin Swenson, Ella Overum, Hans Elken, and a number of employees at the home. On their actual birthday, Margaret Johnston, Fred Proyz, Ole Olson, Joe Havlik, Jeannie Horter and Laura Lund served ice cream. For Mrs. McCann's birthday, her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Borgen served birthday cake and ice cream to all at the home.

Church services during the month included Mass every Saturday at 9 a.m., with the priests at St. Bernard's Catholic church in charge; Bible study every Tuesday morning, led by Mrs. Knute Jore; and Wednesday afternoon services with Rev. J. Hovland of Trinity Lutheran, who also serves Holy Communion the last Wednesday of the month. Devotional programs were given by Rev. J. Mattson of Zion Lutheran church with Jerry Joringdal as organist; Rev. Keith Prekker of Redeemer Lutheran church, Rev. DeWall and family of the Bible Baptist church, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dyrud and Mrs. Merle Knutson of Newfolden.

In charge of Tuesday evening devotional programs were Dave Crowser, Dean Paskewitz, the Don Johnson family, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Trochmann and Norris Trochmann and daughter, Laurie. A program was also presented one Saturday afternoon by a musical group from the Pillsbury Baptist Bible college at Owatonna. The Martha circle of Trinity also visited with the residents and served baked goodies with the afternoon coffee.

As a special treat, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dargus served cake to all the residents and staff in observance of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Two programs with a Thanksgiving theme were given. Tammy Rude was in charge of one and the CAP students from Lincoln high school provided the other. They also led in group singing.

A number of residents spent Thanksgiving day with relatives and friends. For those who remained at the Home, a traditional Thanksgiving day dinner was served. Included on the menu was lefse, made by the residents. The residents also made and sold lefse at the bazaar.

To publicize the bazaar a number of residents and staff appeared on Sylvia's Coffee Time program. They were Tammy Rude, Olive Lunke, Maynard Morrisey and Carl Ryan. A number also attended the bazaar at Oakland Park Nursing home. They were Tammy Rude, Maynard Morrisey, Joe Pletchett, Einar Ness, Earl Yonke, Tillie Anderson, Olga Grothe, Gunhild Syrtvedt, Minnie Olson, Alice Jesme and Ella Overum.

To prepare for the Christmas season, the choir began practicing Christmas carols. Practice is held every Saturday morning. Also in preparation for the Christmas holidays, the home received a Christmas tree, a gift from Ron Gerardy of Coast to Coast.

Mrs. Mike Larson
310 Cardinal Drive
Thief River Falls
Caramel Lite Bars

32 light caramels
5 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk
1 cup flour
1 cup oatmeal
¾ cup butter
¾ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chocolate chips
½ cup pecans

Method: In a heavy sauce pan, heat caramels with cream until melted. Cool slightly. In another bowl, combine all ingredients except chips and nuts. Press ¾ of crumbs in a 9x13 inch pan. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 10 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle nuts and chips over top. Dribble caramel mixture over nuts and chips and top with reserved crumbs. Bake for 15-20 minutes or until light brown. Cut into bars while slightly warm.

Community Committees Are Elected

Six communities comprised of three or four townships each elected ASCS committees at a mail election held between November 23 and December 3, according to Harold Kalsnes, chairman of the county ASCS committee.

Among the first duties of the community committeemen will be the election of a member to a three-year term on the county committee. Election will take place at a county convention being held today at the Northwest regional library meeting room in Thief River Falls.

"These 18 members of the community committees (chairman, vice chairman and regular member from each of the six communities) and their alternates will be invited to a series of meetings during 1980 to advise the county committee on matters of farm program implementation," Kalsnes said.

"They will also meet with members of the state ASCS committee during the year to make grass roots recommendations for the development of new agricultural programs."

Elected at the community elections were the following with townships for each community, chairman, vice chairman, regular member, first alternate, and second alternate listed respectively:

Numedal, Bray, Sanders and Polk Centre — Irwin Aaseby, chairman; Vernon Anderson, vice chairman; Clarence Swanson, regular member; Charles Naplin, first alternate; and Herbert Swenson, second alternate, all rural Thief River Falls;

Norden, North and Rocksbury — Kermit Finstad, Duane Vatsans, Dake Ayers, Clayton Mathson and Scott Olson, all rural Thief River Falls;

Smiley, Wayandotte, River Falls and Black River — Arnold Hammer and Verdeen Grove, rural Thief River Falls; Kenneth Schroeder, St. Elected at the community Lake Falls; and Curtis Christensen, Thief River Falls;

Silverton, Cloverleaf and Kratka — Donald Longevan, Thief River Falls; J. Duane Nelson, Goodridge; Clayton Hanson, Thief River Falls; Carl Lindblom and Ivan Downs, Goodridge;

Mayfield, Deer Park and Hickory — Orlan Stolaas, Oklee; Ernest Mostrom, Trail; Lester Vad, Oklee; Harry Hanson and Loren Vettleson, Trail;

Goodridge, Reiner, Star and Highlanding — John Kotrba, Selmer Holen, Kenneth Coan, Richard Tharaldson and Howard Sjulestad, all of Goodridge.

The Youth Development Committee of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped is concerned with the proper preparation of young handicapped people for employment.

Inspectors At Airport Must Open Packages

Republic airlines personnel at the Thief River Falls regional airport remind the public that any carry-on baggage, including Christmas presents, must be opened at the inspection station in the terminal prior to boarding.

Gifts which will be checked through as baggage may be wrapped and will not be opened. Travelers are advised to pack and securely tie any such bundles at home since the airline has exhausted its supply of cartons and presently has none available. Passengers are generally allowed three articles of baggage, one carry-on item and two to be checked.

Travelers are also advised that carry-on garment bags should be limited to two suits or dresses and must be small enough to fit under the passenger's airplane seat. Space under the seat is 8x21x8 inches.

TRF To Marcoux Route Open To 10-Ton Loads

A segment of highway 32 from Thief River Falls to highway 2 at Marcoux corner was added to the system of 10-ton emergency routes effective December 11. Mn-DOT commissioner Richard Braun has designated this additional route in order to facilitate the movement of grain and other agricultural products.

This route is being added to the 10-ton system at this time because the winter freeze-up has stabilized the road substructure, according to Bob Wolfe, district engineer. "When the substructure is frozen, the highway can better support otherwise potentially damaging loads. The 10-ton designation will end in February when the road begins to thaw", Wolfe said.

With the addition of this route to the emergency 10-ton route system, a vital link in the system has been provided for the movement of grain in northern Minnesota.

Monthly permits may be obtained at the Mn-DOT permit offices in Bemidji and Crookston.

$100 DONATION was made by the BPO Does of Thief River Falls recently to the Pennington county historical society. Mrs. Inga Geving of the historical society (left) accepted the check from Mrs. Bernice Looker of the Does, who noted that the funds came from the state convention hosted by the local organization.

Steve Easton On Dean's List At Dickinson

Steve Easton, Thief River Falls, was named to the dean's list at Dickinson state college for fall quarter, according to Dr. Paul Larsen, vice president for academic affairs. Easton received a 4.0 grade average for the quarter.

He also recently competed in a collegiate forensics tournament in Brookings, SD, where he was involved in informative public speaking and duet oral interpretation, and was chosen as an eligible bachelor during the Dickinson state college Zeta sorority club meeting conducted at the Eagle's club in Dickinson.

Defense Claims Morben Tried To Grab Gun

She ran into the bedroom and telephoned the operator for assistance, she said, and Paul came into the bedroom after she had made the call. He turned the shotgun on himself, she said, and it discharged when she grabbed for it, wounding him slightly in the face. They went back into the living room in a struggle for the gun, she testified, and Paul then said he was going to his own trailer to kill himself. He then left with the gun.

Previous witnesses called by the prosecution since the last Times story was published Wednesday were Janice Twetye, crime lab analyst for the Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension; Deputy Robert Wold, present at the law enforcement center when Paul Boman was brought in after arrest; Dr. E.O. Thorsgard, Pennington county coroner; Dr. Robert Carter, radiologist at Northwestern hospital; Vernon Klaven, police patrolman who was at the scene of the shooting;

Also Orin Green, mortician; Donald Fanfulik, friend of Paul Boman who visited with him at the Fanfulik farm Sunday afternoon prior to the shooting; Susan Morben, wife of Dunne Morben, now living in Martinsville, Ind.; Charlene Pearson, younger sister of Colleen Boman; Barbara Pearson, Colleen's mother; Brad Johnson, emergency medical technician who was an ambulance attendant in the ambulance called to the shooting scene; Roy Erickson, resident of Lot 12, adjacent to the Morben trailer; and Jan Westra, resident of Lot 32, whose trailer window is adjacent to the Morben trailer.

WHO HAS THE 3RD HIGHEST PAID SCHOOL BOARD In MINNESOTA?

TRF — Only Behind Minneapolis & St. Paul

DOES THIS HELP YOUR CHILD'S EDUCATION?

- Is it right that the 3rd highest paid school board in the state spend $48,000 plus to hire a St. Paul attorney to do their negotiating?
DOES THIS HELP YOUR CHILD'S EDUCATION?
- Is it right that the 3rd highest paid school board in the state has told their teachers that, even though money is available, they will not pay their teachers a salary comparable with teachers in this region?
DOES THIS HELP YOUR CHILD'S EDUCATION?
- Is it possible that this board is more interested in vindictiveness toward teachers than your child's education?
DOES THIS HELP YOUR CHILD'S EDUCATION?
- Is it possible that the boards reason for not settling negotiations with teachers is because they do not want a first class faculty for your children??

30 Take Part In Operation Christmas

stocking caps for all the young shoppers while the Jaycee women made Christmas stocking for each child to take home. Each stocking was filled with toys and candy for an extra Christmas treat on Christmas eve.

Children qualified for the project usually can be between four and six years old, Bux said, but the bulk of this year's project involved children from four to 11 years old.

Churches, the welfare department and the comprehensive employment training center (CETA) are contacted to obtain the names of those families which are financially underprivileged. People contacted through the welfare department automatically qualify for the project and just need to be told where and when the shopping will take place. Those people recommended by churches and the CETA office are notified of the program through a letter or by telephone in which Jaycee members explain the program to the families and ask them if their children would be allowed to participate in the program.

Two of the children involved in the program Saturday were members of a Laotian family in Thief River Falls sponsored by Zion Lutheran church. Ma [illegible] and Mee [illegible], two of the three children in the family that arrived in Thief River Falls November [illegible], had no trouble in selecting their gift, Allen Bux, Jaycee member said. They speak no English but readily pointed to the gift they desired. Christmas and the idea of Santa Claus must be an entirely new experience for them, he said.

Fifteen Jaycee men and women helped with this year's project, including Gary Bux, Allen Bux, John Albert, Tom Wang, Tim Wang, Terry Wang, Randy Adamson, Dale Olin, Mary Jo Naplen, Rose Wold, Judy Everson, Marie Olin and Judy Adamson and Sharon Humphrey, and Sue Schulthorp, the two co-chairwomen of the program.

Local businesses participating in the operation Christmas project include K-Mart, McDonald's, Hardees, Tony Downs, Arctic Enterprises and the Hartz foundation. The Jaycees thank all of these businesses immensely for making the project this year one of the most successful.

High Demand For Assistance In Fuel Plan

household desiring fuel assistance.

This amount is paid to the fuel company with a check in the person's name while the person needing assistance is given notification of the payment made.

"The maximum we can give is $150," he said. "But we are trying to limit our payments. We go over the $150 mark in emergency situations," he said. "There have been four or five occasions where we have had to do this so far. In some cases fuel companies have requested more than the $150 given them. There are some customers who still have payments from last year's bill to be paid. In situations such as these, we may allow the resident more than the $150 limit that has been set," he concluded.

John B. Olson Dies Dec. 3 In Cannon Falls

John Burton Olson, 50, of Cannon Falls, and formerly of Thief River Falls, died unexpectedly at his home on Monday, December 3.

Funeral services for John Burton Olson were held December 7, at St. Ansgars Lutheran church in Cannon Falls.

John Burton Olson was born at Gatzke on Nov. 29, 1929 to John V. and Adele Olson. He grew up and attended school in Thief River Falls and was a graduate of Lincoln high school. After graduation, he enlisted in the Air Force. He served in the U.S. Army during the Korean war. At the time of his death, he was employed at Cenex at South St. Paul, where he had been employed for 12 years.

He is survived by his wife, Jeanetta, daughter Laura and sons, Michael and Tony.

Also surviving are his mother, Mrs. Adele Olson, two sisters, Mrs. Arne (Louise) Espeseth and Mrs. Stan (Mary Jane) Gibson, all of Thief River Falls; and one brother, Bill Olson, Ishpeming, Mich.

He was preceded in death by his father.

Services Here Today For Walter Asp

Walter Asp, 75, of Goodridge, died Thursday at his home in Cloverleaf township, Pennington county.

Funeral services for Walter Asp will be held today (Monday) at 2 p.m., at the Assemblies of God Tabernacle in this city. Rev. James Hagemiester will officiate. Music will include a solo by Rev. Hagemiester and a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Hagemiester with Mrs. Hagemiester serving as organist. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers will be Caylon Phelps, Eldon Phelps, David Sheridan, David Brown, Duane Syverson and Michael Eklund.

Walter Asp was born Jan. 22, 1904 in Alden township, Polk county, Wis., to Ole and Caroline Asp. He attended school and grew to manhood in Wisconsin and farmed there for a time with his father. Later he moved to the Hazel community where he worked for [illegible] Asp from 1924 [illegible].

He was married to Muriel Phelps on July 24, 1935 at Thief River Falls. Following his marriage he worked on farms and with the WPA. In 1942 he went to Missoula, Mont., where he was employed by the Northern Pacific railroad. He returned to Thief River Falls in June of 1942 and was employed by the Soo Line railroad until 1969. He continued to live on his farm in Goodridge until his death.

He is survived by his wife, three sons, Jimmy Asp, Thief River Falls, and Joseph and Jonathan, both of Goodridge, three daughters, Mrs. Arnold (Maradeen) Christensen, Fargo, N.D.; Mrs. Kenneth (Caroline) Carlson, Farmington; and Mrs. Larry (Johanna) Krueger, Twin Valley; 17 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are a brother, Albert Asp of New Hope, and five sisters: Mrs. Ed (Hazel) Olson, New Richmond, Wis.; Mrs. Mabel Bekkum, Amery, Wis.; Mrs. Vern (Minnie) Branjord, Forest Lake; Mrs. Frances May Faye, St. Paul; and Mrs. Tony (Blanche) Piaszak of Milwaukee, Wis.

He was preceded in death by his parents, two sons, Walter, Jr.; and Frank, who died in Viet Nam; and one brother, Herbert Asp.

Mrs. Bertha Mae Jorde, 74, of 4134-15th Avenue South, Seattle, Wash., mother of Irvine F. Forsberg of Thief River Falls, died December 11, at Seattle, at the home of her daughter, following a heart ailment.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jorde were held Saturday at 1 p.m., at the Washington Memorial Park at Seattle.

She was born May 13, 1905 in Winnipegosis, Manitoba, Canada. She came to Thief River Falls in 1933 and resided here until 1943 when she moved to Seattle. There she was employed by the Virginia Mason and Veterans administration hospitals for several years. She retired in the early 1960's.

She was a member of the Hot Island Golf and Yacht club, Rainier VFW post 2289, the Washington State Square Dancers association, and St. Mark's Lutheran church of Seattle.

Surviving are a daughter, Irene B. Forsberg Plough, Seattle, Wash.; one son, Irvine F. Forsberg, Thief River Falls; 13 grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Christine Clarkson, Dauphin, Man., Canada.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Melvin Jorde, formerly of Thief River Falls, who died in May of 1976.

Services Held At Fosston For Nora Krohg, 86

Mrs. Nora Krohg, 86, of Fosston, mother of Mrs. Agda Klinke of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Palmer Forsberg of St. Hilaire, died Tuesday at the Fosston Municipal Nursing home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Nora Krohg were held Friday at 2 p.m., at the Hope Lutheran church at Fosston with Rev. Arlen Hermodson officiating. Dale Jackson was the soloist and Mrs. Terence Stout, the organist. Interment was in the Kingo Lutheran cemetery at Fosston with the Carlin Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Gerald Slough, Arvid Clementson, Keith Chase, Dr. George Sather, Orville Dietel and Everett Myhrum.

Mrs. Krohg, the former Nora Ness, was born Feb. 13, 1893 at Emery, Wis., to Edward and Gunhild Ness. As a child, she moved to the Clearbrook area, where she grew to womanhood. She was married Oct. 1, 1911 to Emil Nelson. To this union eight children were born.

On March 14, 1930, she married Chris Krohg and to that union two children were born. The couple moved to Fosston in 1932 and since then, Mrs. Krohg had made her home there, residing for the past 10 years at the McIntosh Manor nursing home and the Fosston Municipal nursing home.

She was a member of the Hope Lutheran church at Fosston.

She is survived by eight children, Selmer of Fosston, Henry of Brandon, Mrs. Palmer (Ethel) Forsberg, St. Hilaire, Mrs. Arvilla Ento, Santa Barbara, Calif., Mrs. Agda Klinke, Thief River Falls, Walter of St. Paul, Bill of Minneapolis, and Mrs. LeRoy (Arnelda) Southworth, Cloquet, 31 grandchildren, 76 great-grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren.

Also surviving are two brothers, Mervin Ness, Bagley, and Carl of Clearbrook and one sister, Mrs. Ellen Franforter, Miles City, Mont.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, Chris Krohg, who died in 1934; a son, Edwin; a daughter, who died in infancy; three grandsons, three brothers and two sisters.

The first Christmas found shepherds in adoration and wise men bearing gifts for the new-born Saviour. This same Jesus Christ later said, "What you do for these, the least of My brethren, you do so also unto Me". A true commemoration of Christ's birth should include generous gifts to the poor and needy so they too may know a Merry Christmas.

Local Teachers Attend Science Foundation Trip

Sixty-one Minnesota mathematics and science teachers, including several Bemidji state university faculty and students, participated in a field trip to San Francisco December 5-8. Arranged as part of the ongoing National science foundation in-service institute, the event included visits to Ames research center and the university of California — Berkely. All left from the Bemidji Airport by a U.S. Air Force cargo plane and were led by Institute directors Gerald Smith and Duane Sea.

Joining the group from Thief River Falls were William Fogarty, Randy Johnson and Robert Michalicek.

At the Ames research center, a field laboratory of the National aeronautics and space administration responsible for the search for extraterrestrial life, tour members received lectures on primary research as well as being briefed on the Pioneer and Voyageur Probes' recent information on Jupiter and Saturn. Operating under a capital investment of approximately $337 million, the Center has a staff of 800 professional research specialists and includes such major research tools as wind tunnels, arc jets and flying observatories.

Second stop on the itinerary was Lawrence hall of Science at the university of California, an active curriculum development center.

According to Smith and Sea, the value of the trip should be long-term. "Too often teachers of mathematics and science have been accused of making the subject too abstract, of not relating what they teach to the real world. This visit to one of the key math and science research centers in the country will give you a unique opportunity to learn first hand as to what is used, to learn how it is applied, and the importance of it as a tool. We are sure the participants will return with a renewed respect for the importance of their subjects and a deeper understanding of value in the school curriculum. We fully expect this enthusiasm and gain in knowledge will be passed on to their students," Smith commented.

Fifty-five Minnesota junior high school instructors are currently involved in the National science foundation-funded in-service institute. A $32,000 grant is enabling Bemidji state university's division of science and math to sponsor the program, which includes campus courses and interaction within participants' home classrooms. Selection of the institute students was based on candidates' potential for instructional improvement.

25 Legislators Attend I-94 Progress Tour

Twenty-five state legislators from both the House and Senate transportation committees, the House agricultural committee and Senate agricultural subcommittee, along with union officials, association directors and contractors, attended a highway tour on the progress of I-94 located north and west of 35W, on Tuesday, December 11. The tour also included the Elk River concrete facility where the bridge beams for I-94 are constructed.

Tour provided the opportunity to see firsthand what is entailed in a major highway construction project — the largest highway project let in the state of Minnesota. A luncheon at the IDS University club concluded the activities with a road update from Mn-DOT commissioner Dick Braun. Braun told the group, "After many years and many problems — environmental, right-of-way and other obstacles — I was extremely pleased to see this project get underway."

Stanley Fudro (DFL-Minneapolis), chairman of the House transportation committee, and Clarence Purfeerst (SFL-Fairbault), chairman of the Senate transportation committee, agreed that completion of I-94 will bring Minnesota closer to completion of its freeway mobility system, a key link in the state's overall transportation system.

Robert M. Johnson, executive director of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc., commented that the legislators were impressed with the magnitude of the project and with the critical need for additional dollars from some source for future highway funding.

Minnesota Good Roads is an association of 1,500 concerned citizens working together to insure adequate funding to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system.

Barley Day Set In Grand Forks January 10th

Malting barley improvement association has scheduled the biennial Red River Valley Barley day for January 10 at Grand Forks, N.D., in the Armory-auditorium.

Program for this one-day meeting will be concerned with production practices, marketing, and new varieties. There will be a panel discussion regarding barley marketing in which the audience will have the opportunity to participate.

A complimentary noon luncheon will be sponsored by Malting Barley improvement association for all in attendance. Honorable Arlan Stangeland, congressman, Seventh District of Minnesota, will be the luncheon speaker.

All barley producers, elevator managers, barley shippers, and others interested in malting barley are invited to attend.

Winter Shows Photography Contest Set

Crookston winter shows photography contest is open to amateur photographers of the Red river valley. Contest theme is "Pictorial in the Red River Valley." Photography exhibits should provide the winter shows visitors with a pictorial glimpse of the Red river valley, according to LeRoy Stumpf, a member of the photography committee.

An important objective of the contest is to make available an activity whereby anyone in the valley can exhibit something of his or her own creation.

There are two divisions. The adult division is for those 16 and older. Photo must be taken in the last year and must be a 5x7 minimum and a 16x20 inch maximum black and white mounted photo.

There will be brochures containing the contest rules at local stores where film is sold or contact LeRoy Stumpf at 465-4274 for more information.

Soo Declares $1.03 Dividend Paid Jan. 29

Dividend of $1.03 per share on the capital stock of Soo Line railroad company was declared Wednesday by the company's board of directors meeting in Minneapolis, at which anew chief executive officer was also named.

The dividend will be paid on Jan. 29, 1980 to holders of record Jan. 11, 1980.

Soo Line's common stock was split three for one on Jan. 31, 1979. The dividend declared today compares to a dividend of 86 and two-thirds cents per share on a restated basis which was declared in December of 1978, and paid Jan. 25, 1979. During 1979 Soo declared total dividends of $1.79 per share compared with total dividends declared on a restated basis of $1.53 and one third cents per share in 1978.

Soo's board of directors has not established a fixed dividend rate for the company's common stock. The board, however, considers the matter of dividends at its regular June and December meetings.

The company currently has 7,595,455 shares of its single class of stock outstanding among the approximately 4,600 shareholders.

Thomas M. Beckley, president and chief operating officer of the Soo Line railroad company, will assume the responsibilities of chief executive office on Jan. 1, 1980 with the title of persident.

He will succeed Leonard H. Murray, chairman and chief executive officer who will retire December 31, after 35 years of involvement with railroads. Murray will continue to serve on the company's board of directors which designated him chairman of the executive committee. The position of chairman of the board will not be filled upon Murray's retirement.

Soo's new chief executive officer has been president and a member of the company' board since October of 1978. His association with railroads began in 1952 when he was appointed assistant general solicitor of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroad company, a predecessor of the Soo Line.

He became general counsel of the DSS&A in 1958 and served in that capacity until his appointment as assistant to the president and secretary when the Soo Line merger became effective on Jan. 1, 1961.

Beckley was appointed vice preisdent — staff of the company in 1968 and served in that position until being named president and chief operating officer in 1978.

He is a 1948 graduate of the Harvard law school and earned his undergraduate degree from Yale in 1943. The Minneapolis native was associated with a Minneapolis law firm from 1948 to 1952.

Eye Safety Should Be High On Gift Lists

If gifts for children are on your holiday shopping list, the National society to prevent blindness (NSPB) cautions you to select them with safety in mind.

Toys were responsible for 6,409 eye injuries last year, the society reports, and more than three-quarters of these accidents occurred in children under the age of 15. Another 1,913 youngsters in this age group suffered eye injuries from BB guns, darts and bows and arrows.

"Ninety per cent of these injuries could be avoided," stressed Virginia S. Boyce, executive director of NSPB. "Parents can help prevent eye damage — and even the loss of an eye — by selecting toys and games with care and by keeping an eye on their children while they play.

"The best gifts are those which can help children have fun as they learn — without endangering themselves," Mrs. Boyce asserted. Playthings with projectiles or sharp edges have a built-in threat to eyes and should be avoided. These kinds of "toys" can and do cause accidents.

Figures based on a survey of hospital emergency rooms by the U.S. consumer product safety commission indicate that in 1978 children under 15 experienced:

—Over 90 per cent of the 116 eye injuries related to toy guns and other toy weapons with projectiles;

—77 per cent of the 1,335 eye injuries associated with gas, air or spring-operated guns;

—All of the 137 estimated eye injuries from slingshots and other sling-propelled toys.

Toys and games with less obvious eye hazards can also cause damage. Even skateboards, toy cars and trucks were responsible for eye injuries last year and almost all were suffered by children under 15. Sometimes it's just that the child is too young to handle the toy safely. Often, too, play becomes rough and youngsters accidentally hurt themselves or playmates.

"Three-quarters of eye accidents occur while children are not supervised," Mrs. Boyce noted. "It's vital that parents know what their youngsters do at play. Do they take a 'safe' toy and make it unsafe — for example, by pulling rubber tips off darts? When safety risks and dangers are explained, does the child understand and avoid them? Do older children keep their more complex toys and games out of reach of younger family members? Be sure to show your youngsters how to use their gifts properly.

"Keep these tips in mind and your children will play in greater safety — during this holiday season and year 'round," Mrs. Boyce concluded.

Library Will Install Public Photo Copier

New photocopy machine will be installed on an experimental basis in Northwest regional library's headquarters in Thief River Falls and should be fully operational after January 1. Whether or not the copier becomes a permanent fixture will depend on whether or not income from public use will meet the copier's costs.

The copier will make good, clear copies on paper of either 8½x11-inch or 8½x14-inch size, according to Wayne Alfveby, librarian. The machine is self-service and coin operated (bring change — it will give change for quarters).

"It is hoped that this experiment will work," Alfveby said, "since this will provide a dependable, convenient photocopier for residents during the 68 hours per week that the library is open — 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Friday and Saturday.

Warn Against Border Clinics For Arthritis

Now that the chills of winter are approaching, the Arthritis foundation is renewing its warning to people suffering from arthritis who may be considering treatment of their disease at one of the clinics along the Mexican border.

According to the foundation, greater damage to health and, in some cases, even death can result from the medications prescribed by the border clinics.

Hazards of these treatments are described in the Arthritis foundation's free booklet, "Mexican Border Clinics." The booklet may be obtained through the foundation's toll-free message center by calling 1-800-522-1270.

Publication of the booklet and the operation of the message center are among the services of the Arthritis foundation made possible in most Minnesota communities by United Way support.

USDA Awards Nutrition Grant To Minnesota

U.S. department of agriculture is making $357,707 available in a grant to Minnesota to teach children, teachers and school food service personnel about nutrition.

Monroe Woods, midwest regional administrator, food and nutrition service, USDA said, "The grant was made available through the nutrition education and training (NET) program that was enacted into law two years ago. Minnesota will use the grant to develop and carry out nutrition education and training programs in schools, and for projects that provide information on the important relationship between nutrition, food and health."

Congress recently provided $20 million in the agriculture appropriations act for fiscal year 1980. Grants will provide 40 cents for each child enrolled in schools and child care institutions. Each state will receive a grant and no state will receive less than $75,000.

A notice announcing how much money each state will receive appeared in the December 7 Federal Register.

Family Center Opens Nov. 26 At Crookston

Following article was written by Michael Krause of the Carver County Herald and covers some of the opinions given by novelist David Halberstam in a Minneapolis appearance:

David Halberstam, author of the bestsellers "The Best and the Brightest" and "The Powers That Be" and Pulitzer prize-winning journalist for his dispatches from Vietnam for the New York Times, spoke to an evening audience at the Minneapolis Public Library and offered his thoughts on Iran, the media and our quadrennial political circus. Some of his thoughts:

We have developed in this country "a media Ayatollah" whose control over us is supreme, according to Halberstam. Television is Halberstam's persistent Nemesis. It has become, he says, "an unwritten amendment to the U.S. Constitution."

An increasingly complex world is becoming more and more dependent on information and it is our access to the "electronic media Grind" that supplies our information and determines so much of our lives. Of course, most people don't have any access to the grid and those who do, the political establishment and the press, use it irresponsibly.

Halberstam uses Iran as an example of how television warps our perceptions. An "incendiary effect" comes from a television camera being aimed at the Iranian students in the American embassy according to Halberstam. Suddenly, the students and the Ayatollah have been catapulted into a media arena that puts them on a par with one of the world's great nations. We see Iranians burning Old Glory and the acts of a small nation thumbing its nose at us makes us all participants.

What the cameras fail to tell us about the Iranians is "why are they so angry at us as a people? I don't think television likes to explain things," said Halberstam. "It doesn't like history."

If it did, we would hear about the CIA-sponsored overthrow of Iran's legitimate political ruler in the 1950's. We would hear how that same intelligence agency manipulated the Shah back onto the throne in Iran. And we would hear how our technology, training and equipment had been used for years by the Shah to strike fear into the hearts of his own people, said Halberstam.

If we do get an inkling of these historical events, it is from printed media like the Washington Post, New York Times, Newsweek, etc. Fortunately, says Halberstam, print media acts as a check on television. Respected publications "define and television amplifies." If television has one advantage it is that it gives the printed word far greater audiences, according to Halberstam.

But TV "continues to cheat us," said Halberstam. It gives a "film version of the front page" every day for its evening news but rarely takes us past the headlines.

Perhaps more critical to our society than our news, the television's distortion of it, is the effect on our political process. The major political parties are only skeletons structually, according to Halberstam. Everything in the political arena is for the benefit of the TV camera and an easy, confident manner before the camera is more important than any foreign policy position.

"We love the drama of the presidency," said Halberstam. Americans follow the process from some insignificant county caucuses in Florida right up to the national nominating convention, the biggest hoopla of all. It presents a kind of Catch-22 for candidates, according to Halberstam, because they need media attention to get money, and they can't get media attention without money. The consequence is that only dynamic media heroes, like Ted Kennedy, have access to the national electronic grid.

We can see this phenomenon also in the way Jimmy Carter ran for president and how he operates in office, according to Halberstam. "Carter is a media president," he said, "and when he is in trouble, his response is to go to the media."

Carter's actions in Iran consist of carefully orchestrated media images probably masterminded by "your friendly neighborhood Rafshoon." But it remains to be seen, according to Halberstam, whether Carter can follow these images with something concrete. "Can the President follow up his gestures with the gritty work of retooling this society to consume less oil?" he asks.

As a solution to these media excesses, Halberstam suggests we turn to the "poor print wretches." "I am enormously optimistic about the future of writing in this country," he said. The printed word, he concludes, can free us from some of the "lowest common denominator" which is television.

Land Loss Problem

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

There has never been a time when it was so easy to understand that millions of people on this earth are suffering from lack of food.

Television brings the sad plight home so effectively with its pictures of tiny children with ribs threatening to break through the skin covering their scrawny bodies. Mothers hold deformed children with sunken and glazed eyes. Older children sit listlessly, too weak to run and play. It is enough to tug at the hardest heart.

American farm products feed us and already mean the difference between life and death for millions of less fortunate people whose lives are marred by chronic hunger. Attention is now being focused on a growing problem which could have far-reaching and disastrous effects on the future — and continuing loss of this nation's prime farm lands to urban sprawl.

How long will it be before the farm land loss severely cripples farm land production? A series of meetings on that question will be held in 17 states this month by the federal interagency National Agricultural Lands Study.

"We are especially interested in the effects of agricultural land losses on present and future food supplies," says Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland of Minnesota. "The U.S. is losing one million acres a year of the world's best and flattest agricultural land to urban sprawl. In my lifetime, we've paved over the equivalent of all the cropland in Ohio. . . I don't know where it's going to stop. But stop it must. Continued destruction of cropland is wanton squandering of an irreplaceable resource that invites future tragedy, not only nationally but globally."

"Ten years from now," a conservationist says, "Americans could be as concerned over the nation's loss of prime and important farm land as they are today over shortages of oil and gasoline."

One million acres of America's prime farm lands are urbanized each year in the steady battle between the bulldozer and the plow. That million acres would equal a half-mile-wide strip of land reaching all the way from New York to California. And when it's gone, it's gone — nobody ever seems to dig up a highway or a parking lot and plant crops. Losses have been enormous in California, Washington Maryland, Florida, Michigan, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New York and Virginia.

Minnesota has probably suffered less than many states, but there are steady inroads in farm land around metropolitan areas. Hennepin county, for example, is looking for a sanitary landfill site. The 840-acre site proposed would include several farms and would border others. Eighteen property owners have organized as Preserve Green Acres, Inc., in an effort to save the farm land.

Washington correspondent George Anthan of the Des Moines Register makes an interesting comparison: "Every time a baby is born in the United States, agriculture loses one and one-third acres of cropland. The connection isn't direct — it's a mathematical comparison of population and land-loss trends — but it dramatizes a problem: our population is growing, our available farm land is shrinking, and our per-acre crop yields are leveling off."

Sec. Bergland is convinced that we must examine in detail the question of land use now. There are indications that global cropland losses are threatening to undermine the balance between food and people. The United States must not cripple its ability to feed its own people and help those in other parts of the world where food is scarce. Special attention must be given to prime agricultural land and how its retention or loss will affect the nation and the world.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Tell me, Mr. Smith," said the marriage counselor after several sessions with his client, "did you wake up grouchy this morning?"

"No, sir," the man replied. "I figured it was better to let her sleep."

The pilot of a small plane radioed the control tower: "I'm about 15 miles out, flying at 6,000 feet and out of gas. What shall I do?"

"Repeat after me," the controller radioed back, "Our Father, who art in heaven. . .

NEWEST MEMBER of the soil survey crew working out of Thief River Falls is Dan Hanson, a native of Owatonna. He is shown as he worked earlier this fall, using an all terrain vehicle to reach areas where other vehicle travel would be impossible. Only 15 per cent of Pennington county remains unmapped at the end of this year and the survey is scheduled for completion by August of 1980. Hanson and Mike Oja will work part time this winter in the bog area of northwest Beltrami county, using the vehicle pictured above.

Apprehension About IRS Is Often Needless

Unfortunately, many taxpayers have come to believe as fact some misconceptions about the internal revenue service, and because of this, have caused themselves needless worry and apprehension. To clarify some of these issues, and hopefully to allay the doubts these misconceptions may have caused, the ITS has prepared the following questions and answers:

Q — Is it true that if I use the peel-off address label, I will more likely be audited?

A — No. The coded symbols on the address label have nothing to do with the audit process. They simply speed up processing by helping to identify taxpayers and the kind of forms contained in the tax package they receive.

Q — I was audited last year because of my large medical bills. Does that mean I can expect to be audited every year?

A — Not necessarily. IRS has a program called the Repetitive audit procedure, the purpose of which is to see to it that no taxpayer is audited two years in a row on the same issue when there was no change the previous year.

Q — I've heard that I can claim more deductions if someone outside IRS prepared my return. Is that so?

A — IRS taxpayer service personnel will give taxpayers the benefit of every allowable decuction made known to them by the taxpayer.

Q — Does the IRS really have a way of knowing that what I report is correct?

A — The computer system used by IRS does match most wage, dividend, and interest reports. For example, if you forgot to report interest you received on your saving account, you will probably receive a letter from IRS asking about your unreported income.

Q — Do IRS employees receive a commission on the money they collect?

A — IRS employees, like other government employees, work on a salaried basis. The amount of money they collect has no effect on the amount of their paychecks.

Q — If I owe IRS and can't pay right away, will they seize all my property?

A — If you receive a notice from IRS that you owe money, don't ignore it even if you can't pay right away. Make arrangements with someone in Collection to pay as much as you can afford — its called an installment agreement. On the other hand, if you simply ignore all notices and don't arrange for payment, your wages and property may be subject to levy and seizure.

1,000 Attend Ag Activities Day At UMC

Nearly 1,000 students and advisors from Minnesota and eastern North Dakota attended the eleventh annual Ag activities day, sponsored recently by the agriculture division of the University of Minnesota technical college Crookston (UMC).

Students were from 4-H clubs, high school agriculture departments and Future Farmers of America (FFA) chapters.

Judging contests and workshops were held in the areas of crops, dairy cattle, general livestock, horses, agriculture mechanics, a dairy products, farm management, wildlife, horticulture, meats and soils.

Plaques were given to first, second and third place teams; ribbons to fourth, fifth and sixth; a plaque to first individual and ribbons to second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth individuals.

SBA Suggests Attorney Use To Incorporate

"We are thinking about starting a new business and know we should incorporate, but do not want to pay a lawyer to do it. Can we do it ourselves?"

When asked this question, Paul Jansen, SBA District Director replied with the following statement.

First of all, you must address the question of whether incorporation is indeed the proper form for your company. The Small business administration has a publication, "Selecting the Legal Structure for Your Firm."

If the decision is made that incorporation is the best method for your specific firm, we also have a publication "Incorporating a Small Business". Both of these publications are free and available from the Small Business administration, 12 South Sixth Street, Minneapolis, MN 55402.

Incorporations are filed with the secretary of state's office and they do have sample forms available designed for simple incorporations. The minimum fee to incorporate in Minnesota is $75.50; including a $10 state filing fee, $62.50 for stock certificates and $3 for the county recorder's fee.

Although incorporation can be accomplished that cheaply and easily, both the Small business administration and the secretary of state's office suggest it is wiser for businesses considering incorporation to use an attorney. Although filing may not be difficult, problems may develop in the future which could be costly and easily solved at the beginning if an attorney is involved.

Foreign H.S. Students Seek Host Families

Would inviting a teenager from another part of the world to live with your family, share ideas, cultures, customs, and language be of interest to you? If so, you may be interested in being a host family for an exchange student through the Youth for understanding international student exchange program.

Minnesota will be welcoming 40 South American students from Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Colombia, Uruguay and Paraguay this January as part of the Youth for understanding program. Although many of the students do have homes, host families are still needed for several girls and boys.

Youth for understanding would like to have the students placed with families by Christmas so that the student and family may correspond before the student arrives. Perhaps your family would like to learn more about the world, its cultures, and peoples. If you enjoy teenagers and would like to share your life with a new son or daughter, then being a host family for an International student may be just the answer.

For further information contact the Youth for Understanding Regional Office, 4829 Minnetonka blvd., Minneapolis, MN 55416, 612-920-2415.

International Teenagers Seeking Host Families

Rossana Inostroza is 15 years old and from Chile. She is a member of a girls choir, is active in school sports and is a member of the school council. Her hobbies include drawing, painting and reading. She is interested in chemistry, history, Spanish and English which she has been studying for ten years. She enjoys meeting people.

Maguel Marini is 16 years old and from Brazil. He describes himself as being "cheerful, honest, loyal and studious." He collects stamps and postcards and enjoys bike riding, sculpture, sailing, rowing and soccer. He would like to be a doctor.

Maria Suarez is 17 years old and from Chile. She is very active in volleyball, loves tennis, ping pong and puzzles. Her hobbies include sailing, reading, playing the piano and singing in the school choir. She hopes to become a lawyer.

These three students are among 40 teenagers who will be arriving in January from six Latin American countries Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Paraguay and Uruguay for a six month stay with an American family, through youth for understanding, a private, non-profit student exchange program, dedicated to promoting international understanding. The family living experience offers the students and the families, the opportunity to develop an appreciation of cultural, social and economic differences. Students attend local high schools during their visit and are expected to be conversant in English. They are responsible for their own personal expenses, spending money and insurance. Host families provide room and board, companionship love and guidance. By opening the door to your home, you invite the world into your life. Families who are intrested in hosting an International teenager are urged to contact: Youth for Understanding, 4829 Minnetonka Boulevard, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55416 or call collect 612-920-2415.

Sec. Of State Seeks Agency Applicants

Minnesota secretary of state's office is seeking applicants for vacancies on multi-member state agencies. In accordance with the Minnesota open appointments law, application forms may be obtained at the Office of the Secretary of State, 180 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155; (612) 296-2805. Application deadline is Tuesday, December 25.

Governor's council on Minnesota Career Information Service, established by Executive Order No. 79-35, has 15 vacancies open for members representing the users and producers of occupational and career information services. For additional information on the council, contact Carol Magee, (612) 296-4030.

Board of Residential Utility Consumers has 2 vacancies open January, 1980; one vacancy for a resident of the fourth congressional district, one vacancy for a member-at-large. Dr. Samuelson Presents Paper On Midge Study

Dr. Charles Samuelson, biology instructor at Northland community college in Thief River Falls, was in attendance at the national convention of the entomological society of America. Convention was held at the Denver Hilton hotel in Denver, Colo., on November 25-29.

In addition to participation in the convention, Dr. Samuelson was invited to speak at a special sunflower entomology workshop dealing with sunflower insect pests. Many specialists on sunflower insects were in attendance from all over the United States and heard speakers report on their research.

Dr. Samuelson reported on his original research of the sunflower midge, an insect that destroyed several thousand acres of sunflowers in the Warren area during 1979. The sunflower midge was first reported in Norman county in 1971 where it caused considerable damage to sunflower seed production. Samuelson reviewed the life cycle of the midge and the environmental factors which influence its reproductive capacity. During his research on the sunflower midge, Dr. Samuelson discovered what may be a new insect species which is a parasite on the sunflower midge.

Samuelson received his doctor of philosophy degree in entomology from North Dakota state university in 1976 and has been a biology instructor at Northland community college since it was founded in 1965.

The paper Dr. Samuelson delivered to the sunflower insect workshop was entitled "The Biology and Economic Importance of Contarinia Schulzi Gagne on Sunflower Cultivars, Helianthus Annuus L. in the Red River Valley."

Employers To Compete As Energy Savers

Minnesota employers who have implemented energy-saving programs are being sought for the 4th annual energy saver's award of excellence competition. Competition is co-sponsored by the Natural Gas council of Minnesota (NGCM) and the Minnesota energy agency (MEA).

Purpose of the competition is to recognize employers for their outstanding efforts to use energy wisely and to encourage an exchange of energy-saving ideas among organizations.

"The wise use of energy is becoming more crucial each day both in our personal lives and on the job," comments Al Johnson, director of the energy agency. "Some very exciting and innovative things are already being done by Minnesota employers to save energy. We'd like to recognize those efforts through this competition.

"Another, and even more important, part of the competition is the wealth of useful energy-saving ideas submitted, ideas which will be shared with employers throughout the state," Johnson says.

Competition is open to any Minnesota employer who has begun or completed an energy conservation program during 1979. Entry deadline is Jan. 31, 1980.

Winners will be selected in five categories depending on size and type of business. Category winners will then compete for the statewide award. Entries are judged on innovativeness, effectiveness and reusability of programs.

"Total energy savings is not the only criteria we'll judge," explains Mark Hallgren, NGCM representative from Northern Natural Gas company. "We're even more interested in seeing what unique application of existing technology employers have used to save energy and how thorough a program was implemented."

NGCM is a non-profit organization composed of representatives of various investor-owned gas utilities to promote the wise use of energy.

Employers interested in obtaining a brochure explaining the competition should contact the Energy Saver's Award of Excellence competition, 529 West Butler Square, Minneapolis, MN 55403 or call (612) 336-3648.

Oklee, Goodridge Plan Holiday Tournaments

Eighth annual Red Lake county high school Christmas basketball tournament will be played at Oklee this week, with Red Lake Falls playing Erskine at 7 p.m. and Oklee facing Plummer at 8:30 in Thursday's first round games. Third place and championship games will be played Friday at 7 and 8:30 p.m.

A week later Goodridge will stage its annual holiday basketball tournament. First round games Fri., Dec. 28, will find Mentor playing Gonvick at 7 p.m. while Goodridge takes on Badger at 8:30. Third place and championship games will be played Sat., Dec. 29.

"Grygla played Warroad even from the field Friday, but lost ground at the free throw line in a 53-48 North Border Conference high school basketball loss at Warroad.

Both teams collected 20 field goals and both teams shot 24 free throws in a statistical stand-off. However, the Eagles made good on just eight of those free throws while the Warriors sank 13. And as a result Grygla extended its season-opening losing streak to six games.

"We're not good free throw shooters," admitted Grygla coach Jerry Maki. "It's as if they're holding back on their shots."

Warroad steadily built up an ever-increasing point spread for three quarters, reaching a 40-28 cushion as the third quarter ended. Grygla made it close at the end with a strong finish.

Randy Larson scored a game-high 23 points for the Eagles in a starring role. "He really hustles," praised Maki. "He hustles after his own shots, gets the rebounds and scores."

Sacred Heart 64
Goodridge 54

East Grand Forks Sacred Heart found the number 16 to its liking, hitting that point total every quarter en route to a 64-54 Polar Conference win over visiting Goodridge Friday.

The Eagles got 44 points from John Logan and Terry Vanyo, with the 6-10 Logan, a sophomore, scoring 23.

Goodridge, down by ten points in the fourth quarter, had an opportunity to get back into the game, but the Huskies, after forcing several turnovers, had five straight possessions without scoring.

"We had our chances down the stretch," noted Goodridge coach Rick Nelson who wasn't happy with the officiating after watching three of his players — Mark Grabowska, Kurt Wiseth and Carroll Bishop — run into early foul problems. He said all three played strong games despite the foul trouble, with Bishop tying Rick Cullen for team-high scoring honors with 12 points. And Cullen played just half the game because of sickness.

The fouls sent the Eagles to the line for 35 free throws. They made 18. Goodridge had half as many chances — 18 — and made 10.

Goodridge, 1-5, will entertain Stephen Friday.

High-Scoring Grygla Girls Top Bears 71-44

Guard Sherri Anderson and forward Jill Saurdiff combined for 48 points Thursday to lead the high-scoring Grygla girls high school basketball team to a 71-44 win over Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

Anderson scored 26 points and Saurdiff had 22 in a devastating 1-2 attack for the unbeaten Eagles who improved their record to 3-0 heading into a home court assignment against Badger tonight (Monday).

"We went to work on them," said Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "We pressed them in the second quarter. That really got us going."

That press enabled Grygla to take a 15-12 first quarter lead and turn it into a 39-20 halftime bulge. It was 58-29 after three quarters before Radeunz was able to use his bench, which consists of junior varsity players who used up all but one quarter of their MSHSL one-night eligibility in a closely played preliminary encounter.

With Anderson and Saurdiff accounting for 21 field goals, Grygla shot at a 41 per cent clip from the field by hitting 31 of 74 shots. Anderson scored several times after picking up a steal on the press while Saurdiff "just works hard for her shots," explained Radeunz. "She (Saurdiff) could have scored more, too, but she passed off a lot — maybe more than she should have."

Plummer 46

Goodridge and Mary Jo Kiesow once again used the free throw as a means to victory in a 47-46 squeeker over Plummer Thursday. The Huskies, who sank 17 of 21 free throws two days earlier in a 53-29 decision over Crookston Mount St. Benedict, connected on 19 of 30 gift tosses to turn back the visiting Cardinals.

And Kiesow, 12-for-14 against the Blue Wave, was 12-for-18 against the Cardinals.

"Our free throws held us in there again," acknowledged Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff. "We hung in there. The kids really wanted it."

With Plummer standout Diane Fisher scoring 18 points, the Cardinals opened a 25-16 halftime lead. But a Goodridge defensive switch checked Fisher to just four third quarter points as the Huskies pulled ahead 36-33.

"We switched to a box-and-one, with one person dogging Fisher," noted Saurdiff. "It helped."

Fisher still scored 28 points and collected 13 rebounds, but had little offensive support. It was the second one point loss of the season for the 2-2 Cardinals who fell to Fisher 37-36 a week earlier.

"I feel we're better than both of the teams that beat us," said Plummer coach Rick Kolvisto. "I just don't know what happened."

It was a nail-biter at the end, with Vicki Troska finally settling the issue with two free throws — what else? — in the final seconds. Plummer, on the other hand, missed the front end of a bonus free throw situation that could have tied it down the stretch.

"We had chances to win it," sighed Kolvisto who will have to wait until January 10 to get back into action as the Cardinals break for the holidays.

Goodridge, 3-1, will host Stephen Friday.

Marshall Co. Cen. . . . 52
Warroad 31

Overcoming what coach Tom Mjelde called, "By far our worst game of the year," Marshall County Central defeated Warroad 52-31 Thursday.

"We played pretty well in the first half, but in the third quarter we just stood around and let them get back in the ball game. I'm glad we got that one out of our system," said Mjelde whose Nordics started with a 20-9 first quarter lead.

Sue Olson scored 15 points and Rosalyn Knutson had 13 for the winners who shot just 29 per cent from the field. Still, it was better than the host Warriors who shot only 26 per cent.

Marshall County Central will carry a 4-0 record into tonight's game against rival Middle River in Newfolden.

Greenbush 57
Middle River 46

Unbeaten status of Middle River ended Friday as the Skippers lost a 57-46 game at Greenbush.

Mary Sovde and Shellie Taggart scored 24 points apiece for the Tigers as they built a 26-18 halftime lead over the visitors who began the year with four straight wins.

"We didn't play well at all," mentioned Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "We shot poorly and we turned the ball over too many times."

Neibauer praised the play of Sovde, a 5-11 senior who plays a guard position. "She's really quick. She scores both inside and outside," he said.

Dawn Nelson scored 18 points for the Skippers who will play at Marshall County Central tonight (Monday) and host Grygla Thursday.

Hibbing Beats Northland Six

Thune and Jim Underwood scored three goals apiece in a 15-3 rout for the Cardinals.

Put your tongue deep enough into your cheek and you could call it a come-from-behind victory since Northland's Steve Geatz opened the scoring 21 seconds into the first period.

But Hibbing had a 4-1 lead before the first 20 minutes expired and it was 12-1 after 40 minutes.

Winter Crappies

Crappies have beem making news on Bald Eagle Lake near White Bear where the ice is six to 6½ inches thick. The fish are hitting on crappie minnows, with many crappies weighing from two to 2½ pounds. Northerns weighing five and six pounds are being caught on sucker minnows.

The story emphasizes the importance of the crappie in Minnesota's winter picture. In fact, many fishermen believe that the crappie is Minnesota's most popular fish and you'll find them in most Minnesota lakes. Best bait, strange as it seems, is the minnow on a hook. But never use minnows more than two inches in length. The most popular minnow is 1½ inches. State record crappie if five pounds, a beauty caught by Tom Christenson bach in 1940 in the Vermillion river in Dakota county.

Crappies begin to breed when they are two to three years old. Spawning usually occurs in May and June in Minnesota. The male excavates a nest, often where there is some vegetation, in water several feet deep and on various types of bottom soil. They spawn deeper than other members of the sunfish family, a habit which probably helps them survive in carp infested lakes. A female may lay more than 2,000 eggs.

Northwomen Lose Twice

Sixty-four turnovers in two games spelled defeat for the Northland community college women's basketball team as the Northwomen lost to the Jamestown college junior varsity 71-43 and fell to the Devils Lake Independents while participating in a weekend tournament in Devils Lake, N.D. hosted by Lake Region community college.

"I was a little upset with the turnovers," mentioned Northland coach Deb Jacobson, "especially the way we committed them. We brought the ball downcourt all right, but then we wouldn't get the shot off. We had bad passes, traveling and lane violations."

The double setback dropped Northland's season record to 0-3. The Northwomen will stage their 1979-80 home opener Friday with a 5 p.m. game against Willmar.

Jamestown 71
Northland 43

Jamestown college junior varsity built a 43-16 first half bulge and coasted to a 71-43 Friday victory over Northland.

The Northwomen turned the ball over 36 times and shot just 25 per cent from the field, 18-for-71.

Kathy Fisher poured in 34 points for the winners. Jacki Nelson led Northland with 15 points while Julie Easton scored 11 points and pulled down 15 rebounds.

Jamestown made 31 of 67 shots for a strong 46 per cent shooting night. Northland was 7-for-11 at the free throw line where Jamestown was 9-for-16.

Devils Lake 57
Northland 41

Devils Lake Independents lost half of its six-member squad to fouls, but still held off Northland to win 57-41 Saturday.

Twenty-eight turnovers hurt the Northwomen who trailed 28-19 at halftime. Northland pulled within four points and had Devils Lake in foul trouble with about eight minutes remaining, but the winners avoided any player losses until the very end when they finished with three women on the court.

Christy Engelhart scored 20 points for the winners while Jean Stukel had 12 for Northland. Jacki Nelson grabbed 19 rebounds for the Northwomen who were 17-for-75 from the field (23 per cent) and 7-for-20 at the free throw line. Devils Lake was 20-for-74 from the floor (27 per cent) and 17-for-32 at the line.

ONE OF THREE wins Saturday for host Thief River Falls in the fifth annual Prowler relays was recorded in the 200-yard backstroke relay where Tom Eckstein, Dennis Booth, Jon Pinkerton (shown here) and Dan Schoonhoven swam a 1:57.2. Bemidji won the season-opening high school swimming meet with 42 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 34, Fosston 26, Park Rapids 23 and Moorhead 19. The Prowlers and Lumberjacks will meet again tomorrow (Tuesday) in a 4 p.m. dual meet at the Franklin middle school pool.

Hockey Will Be Featured

Area hockey fans must be smiling following the announcement that hockey will play a major role in ABC television coverage of the 1980 Winter Olympics from Lake Placid, N.Y. in February.

According to an Associated Press story, two-thirds of the 51 hours of ABC Olympic coverage will come in prime time, and since hockey and figure skating are the only nighttime Olympic events, those two sports are expected to log most air time. They're scheduled throughout the games on alternate nights.

With Minnesota players dominating the United States Olympic team hockey roster — including Section 8 graduates Neal Broten of Roseau and David Christian of Warroad — the hockey coverage will be well-received in this area.

The United States team will be in Warroad Sun., Feb. 3, to face the Warroad Lakers in one of their final pre-Plympic tune-up games. Advance sale tickets to that game, priced at $5, are on sale at TG Sporting Goods in Thief River Falls. The 2 p.m. game is expected to be a sell-out.

Later that same week, on Fri., Feb. 8, the Lakers, with Thief River Falls skaters Tom Goddard and Scott Sabo in the line-up, will play the Japanese Olympic team in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The game here will be sponsored by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), with proceeds going to the Thief River Falls youth hockey program.

Enderlein On Duluth Squad

Steve Enderlein, a WCCO radio all-state selection with the Lincoln high school basketball team last winter, has earned a spot on the University of Minnesota-Duluth basketball squad, although the freshman guard has seen very little playing time with the Bulldogs.

Fifth on the all-time Lincoln high school career scoring charts with 945 points, Enderlein was a starter for the UMD junior varsity in a win over Mesabi, considered one of the top teams in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northeast Division this season.

Another Lincoln high school graduate, Jeff Neelan, who developed into a strong center the past two years while playing at Northland community college, is also working out daily with the Duluth squad even though the 6-6 junior won't be playing with the Bulldogs until the 1980-81 season.

Redshirted this season (held out of competition to save a year of eligibility), Neelan will be counted on to help fill the gap when graduation losses hit the Duluth front line at the end of the 1980-81 season.

Carriere Returns To NCC Team

Mike Carriere, a sophomore from Middle River, returned to the Northland community college basketball line-up over the weekend after missing a tournament in Winnipeg when he broke a finger in a 102-85 season-opening win over the Northland alumni.

The return of Carriere, one of only two returning starters off last year's Northwest Division co-championship team, was obviously good news to Northland coach Chet Engelman who already lost the services of three northwestern Minnesota high school products this winter.

Before the season started the Northmen lost Joe Kraska of Lancaster, injured while playing football this fall; Mike Singer of Roseau, who decided to leave school; and Randy Lindfors of Fosston, who left to take care of family business.

All three of those players would have been valuable team members who, combined with the current talent, would have made the Northmen a very strong, very deep ball club that might have easily walked away with the Northwest Division pennant. The loss of Carriere on top of those earlier personnel losses, would have been tough to take.

"It was good to have Mike back in the line-up," said Engelman after the weekend sweep of Trinity Bible Institute in Ellendale, N.D. "He can do a lot of things for us out there on the court. He's a smart basketball player."

Northland is still expected to challenge for a berth in the MJCAA state basketball tournament where they have appeared four times in the past six years.

"If we had Lindfors, Singer and Kraska, we could have been really tough," mentioned Engelman. "I still think we'll be all right as it is."

It'll be guard Vince Parker and center Terry Harris, both Inkster, Mich. ball players, leading the way for the Northmen when they begin their MJCAA play. Parker, who did not play high school basketball, is a strong ball handler who can break open games with a hot shooting night from the outside. Harris has been nothing short of sensational to date. With a 42-point game already under his belt, he scored 61 points in the 79-76, 90-65 sweep of Trinity with 31 and 30-point outings.

And Engelman can call on the likes of area players Dave Spilde of Karlstad, Craig Pietrszewski of East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, Chris Kays of Thief River Falls and Dave Furbish of Baudette to help them in their title quest. Spilde and Pietruszewski have already turned in key performances to earn the praise of Engelman. "Those two have come in and really done the job for us," he pointed out, with Spilde playing guard and Pietruszewski a strong front line performer despite being only 6-1.

Miscellaneous

Ada, Waubun and Fertile-Beltrami are considering withdrawing from the Pine-to-Prairie football conference with the idea of forming a new Class C conference with the likes of current Heart O'Lakes members Dilworth, Hawley and Glyndon-Felton. George Thompson reported the possibilities in the Norman County Index at Ada following the discussion of such action at a school board meeting there. All six teams would like to drop a notch from Class B to Class C football competition. "We just can't compete in Class B football," explained Ada superintendent Tom Hanson. "We're only going to have 135 kids in the top three grades in 1981-82."

Pirates, Turnovers Defeat Prowlers In NWAC Opener

Thirty-two turnovers did in the Lincoln high school basketball team Friday as the Prowlers lost both their unbeaten status and their 1979-80 Northwest Athletic Conference opener in a 62-55 defeat at Crookston.

"Turnovers told the story of the game," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "We didn't play good ball. We just turned the ball over too many times. There was pressure (defense), but we should have been able to handle it."

Crookston improved its record to 3-2 and evened its NWAC mark at 1-1 by building a 17-14 first quarter lead and holding on to it for a 31-28 halftime edge and a 47-39 third quarter advantage.

Slowed by a back injury and defensed well by Thief River Falls' Jim Nyland, Crookston standout Tim Knotek was held to 10 points. But the Pirates got a 17-point performance from guard John Erie and 10 more from Kyle Roelofs.

Thief River Falls had the same type of scoring, with guard Kyle Hams collecting a game-high 19 points while Nyland and Todd Young added 10 each. Young, the Prowlers' center, did not start the game because off illness that forced him to miss practice during the week.

That illness struck several Prowlers in various degrees, cutting back on the team's preparation for the Pirates, according to Peters. "You could see that our kids were still affected by it (illness," he said. "They were always one step behind everything."

Thief River Falls shot a fine 54 per cent from the field, but got off just 39 shots — due in large part to the turnovers. Crookston was 23-for-55 for 42 per cent. There were 51 free throw attempts that slowed the game down, with the Prowlers going 13-for-23 at the line and the Pirates 16-for-28. The rebounds were even at 28 apiece. Crookston was charged with 20 turnovers, 12 less than the Prowlers.

"If we eliminate the turnovers, we'll be all right," predicted Peters who hopes to have things corrected by Friday when the 3-1 Prowlers host Bemidji.

Dimmerman Wins 1979 Hetteen Cup

Team Arctic driver Jim Dimmerman won the 340 and 440 classes while adding a second in the 340X race Sunday to win the prestigious Hetteen Cup in Sno Pro professional snowmobile racing at Alexandria.

Dimmerman won the 55 hp 340cc race by beating out Brad Hulings, who drove a Scorpion, and Steve Thorsen, who was on an Arctic Cat.

It was an identical Dimmerman - Hulings - Thorsen finish in the 70hp 440cc race.

Hulings came back to win the 340 experimental feature, followed by Dimmerman and Todd Elmer, a Polaris driver.

The Hetteen Cup and its financial rewards from the $35,000 prize offerings — biggest purse in the 1979-80 curcuit — went to Dimmerman on a total point basis.

Next stop for the racers will be this weekend at Aberdeen, S.D.

TRF, Fosston Hit By Disqualifications . . .

Bemidji Wins Prowler Relays Swimming Title

Disqualifications charged against Fosston and Thief River Falls made things considerably easier for favored Bemidji Saturday afternoon as the Lumberjacks won the fifth annual Prowler relays to open the 1979-80 boys high school swimming season.

Bemidji finished the nine relay events in the Franklin middle school pool with 42 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 34, Fosston 26, Park Rapids 23 and Moorhead 19.

The Bemidji victory wasn't surprising. But the manner in which it was achieved was. The Lumberjacks, who shared the meet title a year ago with Thief River Falls, were odds-on favorites going into the meet. The Prowlers, who also won a piece of the title in a 1978 tie with Fosston, were given an outside chance at catching Bemidji.

But the Prowlers' championship hopes, which were so dependent on a combination of Thief River Falls and Fosston performances that would have wrestled points away from Bemidji, appeared to evaporate when the Greyhounds were charged with false starts in both the 200-yard backstroke and 200-yard breaststroke relays. They should have had a second place finish in both races. Instead, those points went to the Lumberjacks who led the Prowlers 36-34 going into the final event — the 400-yard freestyle relay. It should have been a three-way tie at 34 between Bemidji, Fosston and Thief River Falls.

Fosston coach Tom Holland felt bad about the turn of events. "It should have been Thief River's meet," he said. "We were disqualified twice. Thief River could have beaten Bemidji if it wouldn't have been for us, and that's what we were trying to do — upset Bemidji."

"There's no question we would have won the meet if it wouldn't have been for Fosston," pointed out Thief River Falls coach John Kopari following the Greyhounds' disqualifications. "To have Fosston DQ (disqualify) in the backstroke was unimaginable."

However, Fosston's disqualifications became academic when Thief River Falls followed suit in the last race. The Prowlers could have earned a title tie for the third straight year with a win in the 400-yard relay. Instead, lead swimmer Dennis Booth jumped the gun twice.

Kopari, though, confessed just before the swimmers lined up for the 400 that Bemidji would probably win it. "I don't know if we can beat them, but it should be a good race," he said.

Afterward he said again, "Chances are Bemidji would have won that last relay. But you never know." With the knowledge they had been disqualified, the Prowlers still pushed the Lumberjacks while finishing an unofficial an non-counting second in the race.

Still, Kopari was pleased with the Prowlers' showing that produced three wins, including a meet record 2:12.3 in the 200-yard breaststroke by junior Nate Gjovik, senior Dan Thorstad, sophomore Keith Grochow and junior Steve Poissant. It was the only day's new record. "I think the kids swam really, really well," praised Kopari.

Dual meet portion of the Thief River Falls schedule starts Tuesday — against Bemidji of all people. The Prowlers and Lumberjacks face each other at 4 tomorrow afternoon in the Franklin pool.

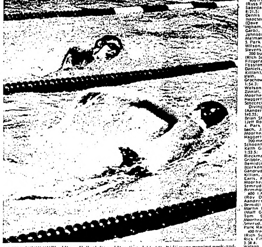
Rod Parr 14-3; Hwy. — Bill Bye (C) pinned David Hagen :54.



NATE GJOVIK OF Thief River Falls (left) and Desi Sagedahl of Bemidji were running neck-and-neck in the 800-yard freestyle relay Saturday in the fifth annual Prowler relays that opened the 1979-80 boys high school swimming season in the Franklin middle school pool. Gjovik and Sagedahl swam the third leg of event — the day's longest race — that was eventually won by the Lumberjacks in 8:21.5, with the Prowlers finishing second in 8:27.0. Bemidji won the team title by an eight point margin over Thief River Falls.

EVEN THOUGH he didn't need the extra height, Crookston's Tim Knotek still went with the jump shot Friday when Thief River Falls defender Jim Nyland went down trying to draw an offensive foul from the Pirates' star. Slowed by a back injury and defensed well by Nyland, Knotek socred just 10 points, but was still on the winning side, 62-55.

Ulrich Gets Hat Trick . . .

Prowlers Top Fergus Falls 6-1

A four-goal outburst in the third period, which featured a hat trick by senior wing Jeff Ulrich, broke open a close game Saturday and made Thief River Falls an easy 6-1 winner in a Section 8 high school hockey game played at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls, beaten 4-1 the night before by Moorhead, trailed just 2-1 after two periods before Ulrich and the Prowlers broke it open at the end. It was opposite fashion from Thief River Falls' season-opening 7-3 victory over Crookston Mount St. Benedict a week earlier when the Prowlers opened with a five-goal first period.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand was pleased with his team's play throughout the game. The only difference in the third period, he said, was the fact that the Prowlers put the puck in the net.

Ulrich started his third period scoring feat with just 66 seconds elapsed. He converted a Thief River Falls power play into a 4-1 game at 5:09 and closed out the scoring with 1:18 remaining after Paul Drees turned scorer at 7:47.

Thief River Falls out-shot Fergus Falls 42-30.

Deferseman Dave Geatz, who missed the opener because of illness, quickly got back into the swing of things when he scored on a power play 2:54 into the game for a 1-0 start for the Prowlers.

Fergus Falls' Scott Denley tied it at 10:17, but the Prowlers produced the only goal of the second period when defenseman Brian Ranum broke the tie at 7:29. Scott Wiebolt assisted on both Thief River Falls goals, giving the defensemen all of the Thief River Falls points until the forwards found the range in the third period. But Geatz and Wiebolt continued to contribute offensively as they both picked up assists in the final period.

Thief River Falls will be at Bemidji Tuesday before returning home to host Grand Forks Red River Saturday.

The Thief River Falls junior varsity matched the Prowlers' 2-0 record with a 4-3 win over Fergus Falls.

First Period

Scoring — TRF, Dave Geatz (Scott Wiebolt), 2:54; FF, Scott Denley (Jody Wentler, Tim Mann), 10:17.

LHS Teams Lose Twice To Crookston

In addition to a 62-55 varsity victory, Crookston teams handed Thief River Falls a pair of setbacks in freshman and junior varsity high school basketball action last week.

Thief River Falls freshmen, down 25-23 at halftime, lost their 1979-80 season opener 48-43 Thursday. Kevin Kinsman and Steve Kruta had 15 and 12 points, respectively, for the losers while Todd Ellingson collected 22 points and Steve Berg had 16 for the winners.

Ahead 20-14 at the end of the first quarter, Crookston blitzed Thief River Falls 14-2 in the second period for a 34-16 cushion that held up for a 63-51 junior varsity win Friday.

With eight points, Kent Kainz was the leading scorer for Thief River Falls, now 2-2.

Lincoln Girls Lose 43-37 At Park Rapids

First quarter success did not last Thursday for the Lincoln high school girls basketball team as the Prowlers lost a 43-37 game at Park Rapids.

Thief River Falls started with a 9-1 lead and enjoyed a 9-3 advantage as the first quarter ended. But the Prowlers' Roberta Engel and Ann Goodrich were both whistled for three quick fouls that period, and with those two on the bench, Park Rapids pulled ahead 22-18 at halftime.

Goodrich managed to last the rest of the game, scoring 15 points in a strong effort from her guard position. But Engel, expected to represent the Prowlers' inside game, lasted only a part of the third quarter before fouling out. The Panthers maintained a 30-25 third quarter spread.

"Ann played very well," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg who wasn't nearly as happy with the rest of the team's play. Poor shooting, a Thief River Falls trademark, continued as the Prowlers shot at a 15-for-67, 22 per cent clip.

Thief River Falls picked up a pair of wins over Park Rapids earlier in the day as Tara Nicholson scored 13 points in a 43-33 junior varsity victory and Lynette Huot collected 10 points in a 31-29 freshman triumph. It was the season opener for the freshmen, while the junior varsity improved its record to 2-0.

The Prowlers, 1-1, face a stern test Tuesday when they travel to Warren to face the area's top Class A team.

Northmen Earn Sweep For 6-0 Season Record

A weekend sweep over Trinity Bible Institute at Ellendale, N.D. kept the unbeaten status of the Northland community college basketball team intact as the Northmen collected a 79-76 Friday night victory and a 90-65 Saturday afternoon win for a 6-0 season record.

"I was extremely pleased with our weekend," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We're starting to develop a little team character. It was a 290-mile trip and the kids were very tight the first night when things were not going very well for us. But we came back in the second half and played good basketball. By Saturday afternoon we had developed some confidence and played well."

Northland will be in Grand Forks, N.D. tonight (Monday) to face the University of North Dakota junior varsity in a 5:15 preliminary game in the UND fieldhouse to the Sioux vs. Yankton College contest.

The Northmen will stage their annual Arctic tournament Friday and Saturday, with doubleheaders starting Friday night at 7 and Saturday afternoon at 1.

Northland 79
Trinity 76

Although Northland did not shoot free throws very well (11-for-27), the Northmen had 20 more chances than Trinity and used them to claim a 79-76 series opening win.

The home court was hardly an advantage to Trinity who was charged with 24 fouls compared to just nine Infractions called against the Northmen, despite the full-court press defense used by the visitors. Trinity out-scored Northland from the field, but collected just four points at the free throw line.

A 30-29 leader at halftime, Trinity saw its last lead disappear near the midway mark of the second half when Northland put together a string of eight straight points that produced a 54-48 edge and put an end to a duel that saw the lead change hands seven times, along with no less than 13 ties.

Northland opened a 79-68 spread with 1:44 left before Trinity closed with an eight-point flurry.

Center Terry Harris starred for the Northmen by scoring 31 points, grabbing 16 rebounds and collecting six loose ball recoveries. Vince Parker scored 14 points and Lyndell Knight had 10 for the Northmen who were 34-for-70 from the field (49 per cent) after a shaky start that saw them shoot just 33 per cent in the first half. Trinity, led by guard Bruce Ridpath's 24 points, shot at a 39 per cent clip by making 36 of 93 shots. Northland held a small edge on the boards, 58-54, and the turnovers were even at 19 apiece.

Shooting 58 per cent from the field, Northland was an easy 90-65 winner Saturday to complete the sweep.

Terry Harris followed his 31-point Friday night performance with a nearly identical 30-point output Saturday, to go along with 10 rebounds, for the Northmen who broke things open in the second half after going into intermission with a 40-36 lead.

In addition to Harris, Northland received double figure scoring from Vince Parker with 14 points, Tony Smith 14 and Lyndell Knight 10. Trinity also had four players in double figures, but Matt Clay's 14 points was high.

And Trinity was nowhere close to Northland's 40-for-69 shooting. The losers made just 29 of 83 shots for 35 per cent. Things were a little more equitable in the foul department the second time around, with Northland going 10-for-16 at the free throw line and Trinity finishing 7-for-13. Trinity had a 49-46 rebound edge.

MISSION ON A scoring opportunity in the final seconds of the first period Friday, Northland wing Steve Geatz watched as the puck went wide of the goal mouth after Hibbing goalie Bill Nyberg had given him the corner to shoot at. Jim Lawson of the Cardinals came into the picture to wrap up Geatz after she got the shot off. Hibbing beat Northland 12-7 in the first game of a MJCAA weekend series played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

HE MANAGED TO keep his balance on one skate, but Northland center Mark Koehn was stopped by Hibbing goalie Bill Nyberg in front of the Cardinals net during Friday's community college hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Hibbing defensemen David Bruns (5) and Bob Rhower (19) both tried to trip up Koehn on the first period play. The defending MJCAA champion Cardinals out-scored the Northmen 12-7 in the first game of the weekend series.

Hibbing Beats Northland Twice

With a porous defense surrendering 27 goals, the Northland community college hockey team opened its 1979-80 season by absorbing a pair of losses at the hands of defending state champion Hibbing in an MJCAA weekend series played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Hibbing outlasted Northland 12-7 Friday night, then skated to an easy 15-3 Saturday afternoon triumph to complete the sweep that lifted the Cardinals' record to 4-1.

Northland will now wait nearly a month before returning to Minnesota junior college athletic association competition — January 11-12 when Mesabi visits Thief River Falls.

Bob Lundbohm kept his promise. After saying earlier in the week his team would play "wide open offensive hockey," the Northland coach looked on as the Northmen lost a 12-7 shoot-out in Friday's series opener.

Afterward Lundbohm confirmed what most everyone had already guessed: "We skate good, but we have trouble on defense."

Seven goals should win you a hockey game. Northland's speedy attack featured a three-goal hat trick by sophomore center Scott Bergland and two goals from freshman defenseman Howard Belto, who also picked up two assists.

Short on numbers, the Northmen still impressed veteran Hibbing coach Frank Catani. "Northland has some strong skaters," he said. But, when talking about his own team, he also covered the Northmen when he noted, "If you have to score eight goals to win a hockey game you've got problems."

Catani just shook his head when the shelling finally stopped. "What a shoot-out. If we don't play better defense we're going to be in trouble," he said. "Our defense played too much offense."

First period was innocent enough as the two teams swapped power play goals and Belto gave the underdog Northmen a surprising 2-1 edge when he walked in unmolested on Hibbing goalie Bill Nyberg at 16:55. Teammate Mark Koehn was standing alone in front of the Hibbing net yelling for the puck, but Belto decided to skate it in himself, slamming a close, hard wrist shot through the unprotected goalie's pads.

But the fireworks started in the second period when Hibbing scored twice in 32 seconds and three times in 78 seconds to open up a 4-2 lead. All three goals were scored by Greenway-Coleraine products. Jim Lawson started it when he was set up in front by Kris Walters, a veteran of Hibbing's 1978-79 MJCAA state championship team. Alone in front of goalie Charlie Sehler, Lawson waited until the netminder went down on the ice and then lifted a backhand into the net at 3:13.

Dale Wright broke the 2-2 tie seconds later and Dave Bruns scored from the point with an ice-hugging slap shot on a delayed penalty call against Northland.

Goals were traded with regularity after that. Northland overcame a 6-4 deficit when Kurt Klosterman and Bergland scored just 44 seconds apart near the end of the second period, only to see Hibbing answer with Jim Underwood's tie-breaking goal at 18:28. An NJCAA All-American a year ago, Underwood gave the Northland defenseman a look at the puck, pulled it back in and lifted it into the upper corner of the net while both teams skated shorthanded.

Bergland's third goal, a 2-on-1 shorthanded rush, kept Northland in the game, 8-7, at 7:41 of the third period. But Walters clanged one in off the goal post a quick eight seconds later to finally decide the issue.

"I thought we skated with them," mentioned Lundbohm, "and that's all we wanted to do. We skated two lines most of the time and we tired out at the end."

It was a lot easier for Hibbing Saturday as Dave

GIVEN THE OPPORTUNITY, Northland defenseman Howard Belto turned goal scorer in the first period of Friday's community college hockey game against Hibbing in the sports arena by putting the puck behind goalie Bill Nyberg of the Cardinals. With no Hibbing defenders in sight, Belto walked in on Nyberg and slammed a close, hard wrist shot through the goalie's pads at 16:55 to give the Northmen a 2-1 edge at the end of the first period. However, the defending MJCAA champion Cardinals outlasted the Northmen 12-7 in the first game of a weekend series.

LEGAL NOTICE

December 3, 10, 17, 1979
Independent School District No. 564
Thief River Falls, Minnesota
Notice of Bids for Three (3) School Buses

The Board of Education of Independent School District No. 564, Pennington County, Thief River Falls, Minnesota will receive sealed bids for three (3) seventy-two (72) passenger school buses until 2:00 P.M. on January 9, 1980 in the School District Service Center, Zeh Street and South LaBree Avenue, Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

SPECIFICATIONS: Copies of the bid form and specifications are available in the office of the Transportation Supervisor located in the School District Service Center. The minimum specifications submitted by the bidder for the school bus body and by the bidder for the school bus chassis will comply with the latest minimum construction standards adopted by the State Board of Education, State Commissioner of Highways of the State of Minnesota, The Minnesota State Commissioner of Public Safety and the Federal Government. In addition, bids shall comply with the specifications required by the Board of Education of Independent School District No. 564. Bids will be on chassis or bus body.

BID SECURITY: Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check, cashier's check or bidder's bond at least equal to five per cent (5%) of the total amount of the bid.

AFFIDAVIT OF NON COLLUSION: The Affidavit of Non-Collusion included with the bid proposal is to be completed by the bidder. Failure to use the official bid form and/or omission of certified check and/or omission of Affidavit of Non-Collusion shall be considered just cause for the School Board to reject a bid.

WITHDRAWAL OF BIDS: Any bidder may withdraw his bid at any time prior to the scheduled time for receipt of bids, but no bid shall be withdrawn for a period of thirty (30) days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids.

Bid quotations on the bid sheet should be for three (3) units. Bid prices must be net, F.O.B. Thief River Falls, Minnesota with Federal Excise Tax and Minnesota State Sales Tax excluded. The bid sheet provided must be used for bidding. Letters of explanation may be attached if necessary.

The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any formalities in the bidding process.

Envelopes containing bids should be clearly marked "School Bus Bid" in the lower left hand corner of the envelope and should be addressed as follows:

Kenneth Murphy, Clerk, Board of Education, Independent School District No. 564, Thief River Falls, MN. 56701.

Students From Iran Facing Cash Problems

There were nearly 200 Iranian students at the university of Minnesota, Twin Cities, fall quarter, and most of them plan to continue their studies winter quarter. But some Iranian students are having problems getting money from Iran to pay their tuition and fees.

Joe Mestenhauser, director of the international students adviser's office at the university, said money that would normally be available to the Iranian students has been frozen through the monetary actions taken by both the United States and Iran since the embassy takeover.

Iranian assets frozen by the U.S. government included funds that were designated for students attending school in the United States, Mestenhauser said. Last week, the U.S. government released $20 million that was reserved for students and scholars, but this amount is only a small part of the money needed by Iranian students, he said.

Statements from Iran that payments in U.S. dollars would be restricted have also caused problems for students. Iranian officials have made contradictory statements, causing confusion and delay, Mestenhauser said. Now it appears that such transactions will be allowed.

Most of the money sent from Iran for the students is deposited in banks in New York. A New York state regulation requires banks holding money from a country involved in a political crisis to freeze those assets until there is enough money in reserve to cover the amount on deposit.

Some efforts are under way to correct the problem this is causing for Iranian students, but in the meantime, "Students here have received checks for their tuition and fees, cashed the checks, and the banks here send them to New York and cannot collect. We have been getting calls from local bankers," Mestenhauser said.

The International student adviser's office has been almost totally involved with Iranian matters since the American embassy in Tehran was occupied.

Mestenhauser's office made arrangements for the immigration and naturalization service to conduct required interviews with students on campus, and arranaged for representatives of the university student legal services office to be present. The interviews were held to comply with the presidential order requiring all Iranian students to report to immigration officials before December 14.

Mestenhauser said the international student adviser's office also increased security measures after receiving information on nationwide threats against Iranian students from the group calling itself The Minutemen. The group has sent letters to newspapers in various parts of the country warning that if the American hostages are not freed, Iranian students in this country will be kidnapped and held hostage.

There has been little harrassment of Iranian students at the University of Minnesota although some students have told Mestenhauser that American students no longer talk to them, he said.

Minnesota international student association and other campus groups have scheduled a forum on the Iranian problem for January. Scheduled speakers include the educational and cultural attache from the Iranian embassy in Washington, an expert on Iranian history and government, and a member of the U.S. task force on Iran.

Accidents Cost State Money, Says Sopsic

Economic loss resulting from Minnesota motor vehicle accidents totaled over $425 million for 1978 alone, according to John P. Sopsic, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"Though this figure is an estimate based on data provided by the National safety council, it does offer some idea of how tragic individual losses from auto accidents affect all Minnesotans," said Sopsic.

Department of public safety annually receives from the national safety council estimates of the economic loss resulting from motor vehicle accident fatalities, disabling injuries and property damage. In 1978 the estimated economic loss figure for a fatality was $150,000. This includes variables such as insurance administration costs and the loss of individual earning power.

Minnesota's econimic loss due to the 980 traffic deaths of 1978 is estimated at $147 million.

After examining police accident reports, estimates are also made for three categories of injury. Injuries where there are visible signs of injury, such as bleeding wounds or distorted members are classified as incapacitating injuries. These injuries are estimated as representing an economic loss of $12,800 per accident.

Accidents which result in other injuries such as bruises, abrasions and swelling are classified as non-incapacitating injuries and are figured at an average of $3,800. Possible injury is a category which results in complaints of pain or momentary unconsciousness, and is estimated at costing $960 per accident. The combined estimated statewide cost for these three categories of disabling injuries totals over $205 million.

Property damage loss is estimated at $850 for each accident. The total property damage resulting from motor vehicle accidents in Minnesota in 1978 was over $70 million.

"The tremendous cost of these figures are even more startling when we consider that over half the deaths from motor vehicle crashes in Minnesota involved alcohol," declared Sopsic. "The drinking driver is costing Minnesota, not only lives, but tens of million of dollars annually."

Though inflation has steadily driven the cost per accident estimates higher, it is interesting to note that in 1973 the economic loss statewide was estimated at $315 million. This estimate dropped to $280 million in 1974 — the year that the 55 mile per hour speed limit went into effect. This savings of $25 million, along with the additional benefit of the savings of 172 lives in 1974 can be directly linked to the implementation of the 55 mph limit.

PLAYING DOMINOES is a popular activity for participants in the senior meals and activity program sponsored by the Tri-Valley Opportunity council at Northwestern hospital's CNC unit. Thief River Falls area United Way has contributed $300 to the program for purchase of the table games and other recreation and craft supplies. Persons participating in the senior meals program pay what they feel they can afford. Many also take advantage of the social and recreational opportunities connected with the program.

Resolutions At Farmer's Union Meet Passed

Delegates to the 38th annual Minnesota Farmers union convention conducted recently in Bloomington, passed a wide range of resolutions, originating from members throughout the state, into the organization's policy.

Delegates approved measures which called for an overall national transportation plan to assure adequate future transportation services; a study to determine the feasibility of a regional cooperative railroad; passed a special order of business calling for an agricultural transportation emergency board, similar to the proposed energy mobilization board, to have special powers to quickly settle conflicts and speed up agricultural transportation when emergencies occur; urged the development of all forms of alternative and renewable energy, noting alcohol fuels, solar, wind and geothermal.

They also backed construction and early completion of the northern tier pipeline and urged the creation of a fair market value formula for use in computing farm income levels for use in farm programs.

Fair market value should include operating expenses, plus a fair rate of return for operator for family labor, management and capital investment, and the formula should equal the current 100 per cent of parity levels. Delegates felt that the fair market value term would be more readily understood and accepted by legislators, business, labor and other groups, than the older parity formula. However, they emphasized that the new formula is not intended to reduce the benefits farmers receive below those under the current parity formula.

In a more timely issue, the farmers union delegate urged Governor Albert Quie to call a special session of the Minnesota legislature to come up with an energy assistance aid program for low income people.

Other new policy positions adopted by the MFU convention delegates included: urging the state to allow component pricing of milk — including protein — as well as pricing for butterfat in Minnesota; opposing the purchase of agricultural land and businesses connected with agriculture by non-resident foreigners and further urged that alien resident farmland owners be required to live and work on the land they purchase; calling for a reduction in interest rates and a credit allocation program giving priority consideration to agriculture, food, housing and small businesses; strongly urging adoption of the SALT II treaty; urging the state to join the interstate grain compact; opposing any tampering or changes with the provisions of the Capper-Volstead act to ensure a viable future for farmer cooperatives; urging that farm shelter belts and wind breaks be renovated for soil conservation and that timing practices be cost sharing; urging that state income tax investment and retirement credits be raised to the levels allowed on federal income tax.

They further called for an altering of inheritance income tax laws to allow the transfer of a farm within a family without an excessive tax burden; urging farmland valuation formulas for tax purposes take into account the productive capability as opposed to market value of the land; urging the Congress assure that the Veterans farm management program be administered so that deserving participants are not excluded; and commending the university of Minnesota in Morris and Southwest state university for establishing agricultural interpretive center near Waseca.

Minnesota farmers union's complete policy addresses many economic, legislative and social issues. Anyone interested in receiving a copy of the complete policy statement should write to: Minnesota Farmers Union 1717 university avenue, St. Paul, MN 55104.

Vernon Lee Is Elected County Fair President

Vernon Lee was elected president of the Pennington county fair association, Inc., at the annual meeting held Friday at the Pennington county courthouse meeting room. Lee, who had been secretary of the association, succeeds Dan Helle as president.

Oliver (Skip) Swanson, reelected to the board as a director from District 5, was elected secretary to succeed Lee. Duane Olson, reelected director from the third district, was elected vice president to succeed LaVerne Hamre. Richard Anderson was reelected treasurer and Ellsworth Jorgenson was elected to a newly-created position of assistant secretary.

Reelected to three-year terms on the board in addition to Olson and Swanson were Bernard Myers, District 1; Vernon Lee, District 2; and Fred Dallmann, District 4. Lee, Olson and Swanson were elected delegates to the Minnesota association of county fairs convention to be held in January.

Fair dates for 1980 were set at July 17-20. Lee said he plans to name a planning committee in the near future to study fairgrounds renovation.

Annual report of the 1979 county fair was presented and showed gross income from operations of $23,192 and total receipts of $43,029. Operational expense was $25,800 and total expenditures were $37,381. Balance of the association at the end of the year was $19,181 — a substantial increase from the beginning balance of $12,011.

Premiums paid totaled $5,360 with 1,332 exhibitors entering 2,489 exhibits. Premium payments included $1,073 for livestock, $412 for agricultural, $1,040 for home activities and creative arts, $2,304 for 4-H, FFA and youth exhibits and $430 for senior citizens, grand champions and arts and crafts.

Receipts from operations of the 1979 fair included $8,274 from grandstand ticket sales, $515 from auto parking, $4,375 from space rentals, $7,398 from carnival comission, $104 from entry stall and pen fees, $2,080 from advertising and premium books, $344 in sales tax collected, and $100 in reimbursements.

Other income included $3,268 in state aid, $10,000 in county and municipal aid, $319 in interest, $750 in checks cashed for change and $5,500 for transfer to the premium account.

Operating expenses included $5,360 in premiums, $516 in awards, $4,749 in advertising and promotion, $7,923 in entertainment other than carnival, $1,453 for judging of exhibits, $749 for superintendents, assistants and meals for helpers, $808 for police, ticket sellers and crowd control, $1,039 for administrative expenses, $682 in insurance, $1,489 in salaries and wages, $194 in payroll taxes, $360 in materials and $13.50 refunds on entries.

Other disbursements were $1,156 for additions and major improvements to buildings, equipment and grounds and $1,088 for contract labor; $1,312 in debt returement plus $547 for interest; $5,500 transfer to premium account; $92 for state auditing fee; $750 for checks written for change, $35 for fair association dues, $37.95 in bank charges on the general account and $24.20 on the premium account; and $435 for accounting.

Estimated attendance at the 1979 fair was 19,500 people.

Times Prints Next Monday Papers Early

Issues of the Times scheduled for Monday, December 24 and Monday, December 31, will be printed on the preceding Saturday, December 22 and 29 because of the Christmas and New Year's day holidays.

Because the holidays fall on Tuesday, it would be virtually impossible to publish a Monday issue on schedule, take a day off and publish an Wednesday issue on schedule.

With the advanced publication times, it will be necessary to have early news and advertising copy for those editions. Cooperation of advertisers and news sources and understanding of our subscribers and newsstand customers is sincerely appreciated.

Defendants On Fur Theft In County Court

Randy Lee Berg and Michael Charles Acker, both 18 and residents of the Thief River Falls community, appeared in Pennington county court before Judge Joseph Harren Monday on charges of burglary and possession of stolen property.

The two had been arrested by local authorities in connection with the theft of furs from the Evans Seed, Wool and Fur company warehouse.

Judge Harren ordered the defendants to appear in district court on the felony charges and released them on their own recognizance. Attorney John Roue, public defender, was appointed to represent them. No date for the district court appearance has been set.

Schools Close Here Friday

All Thief River Falls schools will close Friday of this week at the regular time and will remain closed throughout the Christmas and New Years holiday season. Classes will resume at the regular time on Thursday, January 3.

Jury Finds Boman Guilty Of Manslaughter Today

Pennington county district court jury returned a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree at 2:12 p.m. today (Wednesday) against Paul Walter Boman, 25, Thief River Falls. Boman had been charged with first degree murder in the June 11 shotgun death of Duane Morben at Morben's trailer in Northwestern Trailer court in Thief River Falls.

Judge Warren Saetre ordered a pre-sentence investigation by the state probation and parole office and deferred sentencing until completion of the report. He remanded the defendant to the custody of the Pennington county sheriff pending sentencing and Boman remains in custody at the Pennington county law enforcement center.

The case went to the jury about 3 p.m. Tuesday following four days of testimony and summary statements by the prosecution and defense earlier Tuesday. The jury of seven women and five men continued its deliberation until after 2 a.m. today, then was taken to a motel to spend the night prior to reconvening before 9 a.m. today.

Shortly after 10 a.m. today the jury returned to the courtroom with the request that Judge Warren Saetre re-read a portion of the instructions which he gave them Tuesday afternoon following final statements by the prosecution and defense.

Verdicts presented by the judge for jury consideration were murder in the first degree — the original charge brought against Boman in a grand jury indictment — murder in the second degree, murder in the third degree, first degree manslaughter or not guilty.

Judge Saetre explained that first degree murder requires the state to prove beyond reasonable doubt that there was premeditation resulting in the death of the victim. Second degree murder differs from first degree only in the question of premeditation. There must be intent proved in either case and the burden of proof lies with the state to show that the death was not accidental, the judge said.

Third degree murder and first degree manslaughter involve causing the death of another without intent in committing or attempting to commit a felony. Maximum penalties are life imprisonment for conviction of first degree murder, 40 years for second degree, 25 years for third degree and 15 years for first degree manslaughter.

"If you have a reasonable doubt," the judge instructed, "you must acquit him."

Judge Saetre told the jury it must return only one of the five verdict forms. On retiring to the jury room, the jury was instructed to elect a foreman and that all 12 jurors must agree in the verdict rendered. The jury was also directed to remain together until a verdict is reached. Mrs. Shirley Carlson, an alternate juror selected prior to the start of trial, was excused by the court since all regular jurors were able to hear the case.

Prosecution Statement

Prosecutor Norman Coleman began his final statement at 9:55 a.m. Tuesday and ended at about 11 a.m. Following a brief recess defense attorney Douglas Thomson began his final argument about 11:15 a.m. and continued until about 1:10 p.m.

Prosecutor Coleman reminded the jury that under rules of Minnesota law he would not have an opportunity to respond after the defense made its statement, and he asked that equal consideration be given to both statements. He said it is the duty of the jury not to moralize but to listen to the evidence, determine the facts and apply the law to those facts. Punishment is the duty of the court, not the jury, he added, asking that the jurors bring in a verdict of truth.

Citing the law of presumption of innocence until proven guilty, he noted that it is the responsibility of the state to bring forth evidence that the defendant is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. With the evidence presented, he proposed, the state had overcome the presumption of innocence.

Regarding the law of reasonable doubt, Coleman

CHRISTMAS WREATHS adorn the doors and walls of many homes during the holiday season, adding to the festive atmosphere. Bills, Fees Adopted At Last '79 Council Meet

A number of agenda items were resolved to comply with end of the year deadlines, and several items were tabled to the January 8 regular city council meeting, during the last Thief River Falls city council meeting in 1979 conducted last evening.

Regular and special bills were accepted by council members following a resolution introduced by alderman Milan Borsheim. Bills included the year-end miscellaneous statements for Stewart and Walker of Thief River Falls, which are set at $14,122.43, and to Molstad Excavating of Grand Forks for water main replacement on Arnold avenue which was set at $21,622.32.

In the matter concerning 1980 licenses issued in Thief River Falls, the following amounts were set on a yearly basis: Cigarettes, $12; auctioneer, $24; plumbers, $10; gambling, $100 per tip board; bingo, $25; 3.2 on-sale, $200; 3.2 off-sale, $60; junk dealers, $24-$36; and taxis, $10 for the first year and $5 added for each additional calendar year.

Third agenda item during the evening, and an item of major concern, was alderman Borsheim's proposal for rat control in the area west of Farmer's union elevator in Thief River Falls, the area adjoining the Soo Line railroad property. Proposal asked for control from Lystads Inc., at $70 per month, resulting in $840 for one-year control of the property.

"I feel control in this area is necessary," he said. "We have children walking this path to school every day. I suggest that the fire department burn the substances in the area that are attracting the rats."

Opposition to the proposal came from various council members, including one from alderman Bill Penning, who questioned the use of spending public money on private property if the control project was adopted.

"At what point would one stop with the control of rats in Thief River Falls?" he asked.

"I realize this is not city property but it is a city problem," alderman Borsheim said.

Alderman Borsheim introduced the resolution to enter into a yearly contract agreement with Lystads Inc. at $840 per year to control the rat problem in the area. The resolution was not passed, following a roll call vote of four "no" votes and two "yes" votes from alderman Borsheim and alderman Dr. Don Goodrich. (Alderman Ambrose Wysoski and alderman Milt Reierson were absent from the meeting.)

A resolution was introduced by alderman Penning to refer the two rat ordinances submitted from the cities of Blaine and Minneapolis and provided by the League of Cities, to the city attorney in Thief River Falls for assistance to work out an ordinance for the city of Thief River Falls. The resolution carried with a second from alderman Clayton Restad.

Matter of the five-year lease with Stewart and Walker for use of the old water treatment plant building in Thief River Falls was discussed. It followed a meeting of the finance committee with Jim Walker of Bemidji who has a signed lease of $660 per month, with Stewart and Walker paying utilities, heat and all minor maintenance. The city pays for major maintenance, taxes (if any) and they agreed to give Stewart and Walker the first opportunity to purchase the building during the lease which would take effect January 1, 1980 and would terminate in 1984.

Following discussion of the use of the building by Stewart and Walker, concern arose from utilities superintendent John T. Anderson regarding the storage of material now in the old water treatment plant building.

It was resolved that less space could be used for Christmas decoration and sewage equipment storage. One more session to resolve the matter was requested by Mayor Bob Carlson, who suggested the matter be discussed further with the finance committee. Meeting date was set for January 8, the next regular council meeting.

Discussion of the status of the airport layout plan followed from a meeting between Doug Stewart, city engineer, and the Minnesota department of transportation, division of aeronautics. Stewart's request called for a "redesign" of the airport layout plan. It was mentioned that 6,500 feet was too long for a cross strip at the airport.

"Another meeting on this is pointless at this point in time," Stewart said. "Changes should be instructed with the length of the cross strip proposed in writing. My recommendation is for Stewart and Walker to engage

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Yoshiko Azama knew no Christmas when she was a young girl. No Santa Claus. No tree. No stockings hung by the chimney. Christmas was just like any other day.

Yoshiko Azama, now Mrs. Yoshiko Duke, who has not been back to her homeland in Tokyo, Japan for 17 years, left Monday for a four-week visit to see her mother, now 73, and some relatives, and hopefully to do some sight-seeing, she said.

"I believe that many things will have changed since I was last there," she said. "The people there probably celebrate during the Christmas holidays more now. I don't know."

Yoshiko's husband, Ed, is an agri-business instructor at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute. The Dukes have three children — Lori, 17; Sheila, 13; and Linda, 11.

Yoshiko met her husband in Japan, she said. She could speak no English when the two of them first met, but it was at this point she realized she had to learn English, so the two of them could carry on an understandable conversation.

"We wanted to get married after we had been seeing each other for awhile, but we knew we couldn't until Ed got discharged from the navy. When he left for the navy, he said he would not be back anymore. I told him I would wait two years for him. He came back within one year and we were married shortly after that. We knew each other four years before we were married."

Yoshiko moved away from Japan 23 year ago. Following her and Ed's wedding, the couple moved to South Dakota. They then lived in Minneapolis for two years, Michigan, ND for three years, and finally Lakota, ND for two years, before moving to Thief River Falls, where they have lived for 11 years.

Yoshiko's husband attended the University of South Dakota and upon graduation became an inspector for the food and drug administration. While her husband worked in South Dakota, Yoshiko took special classes at the University of South Dakota also, and worked part time in a local restaurant. Learning to speak English was one of the most difficult tasks to accomplish, she said.

"You have to take it step by step. English is considered one of the most difficult languages to learn."

While her husband worked in Minneapolis, Yoshiko attended the University of Minnesota for interior design classes, and also worked at Dayton's and as a seamstress to earn extra money. In 1962 she went back to Japan for three and one-half months while her husband moved to Michigan, ND, to begin teaching. When she returned from Japan, the couple purchased a trailer house in Michigan.

"Practically the whole town was fond of me when I returned from Japan," Yoshiko said, smiling. "They treated me like a queen, and the women often invited to coffee parties with them.

"When our first child was born in Michigan the doctor told me I was a beautiful patient," she said. "In Japan women are taught not to fuss and scream during childbirth. We were overwhelmed by our first child — the daughter we had both hoped for was born."

When the couple moved to Thief River Falls, they stayed at Verne and Cathy Spengler's home until they were able to find a home of their own. One of the most favorable things Yoshiko has found while in the United States is going to church.

"Our first daughter, Lori, and I were both baptized together," she said. "That was quite an experience."

She also enjoys the potluck dinners people have here, and any gatherings where there is

Churches Plan Special Events

Churches throughout the Times area have scheduled a number of special services and activities for observance of the Christmas season. The message of the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem nearly 2,000 years ago is being re-told by youth groups, in special music and in through the spoken word.

A schedule of services as announced through church notices provided to the Times by area churches includes the following:

Evangelical Covenant Sunday school Christmas program will be presented Sunday at 7 p.m.

Our Saviour's Free Lutheran Christmas eve candlelight service will be held Monday at 10 p.m.

Bible Baptist Christmas program will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday with refreshments served following the service.

Trinity Lutheran Christmas eve services will be held Monday at 4 and 6 p.m. and Christmas day service Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.

First Baptist — At 5 p.m. Sunday an evening service entitled "Home-made Christmas" will be held and each family is asked to bring a favorite candle centerpiece.

Evangelical Free — Music of Christmas will be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. with the

MEA Evaluates TRF Negotiating

Evaluation of negotiations between the Thief River Falls education association (TRFEA) and the board of education for School District 564 is being conducted by attorneys for the Minnesota Education association, according to Joe Forberg, president of the TRFEA.

In a statement released Monday, Forberg indicated that representatives of the Thief River Falls Education association had voted unanimously on Wednesday, December 12 to authorize legal evaluation of the negotiations.

Forberg said the decision was made at the request of the legal staff of the Minnesota Education association. "MEA representatives said that conduct of the board during the past several months may constitute violations of the laws governing negotiations," Forberg's statement read.

Jim Kotz, a member of the TRFEA action committee, said that several weeks ago the legal staff of MEA advised the local association that they did not believe the board was negotiating in good faith. The faculty took no action at that time, he said, because it did not want to jeopardize the possible settlement of a contract.

With the authorization given, MEA attorneys were to start the evaluation process Tuesday. As of last night the local organization had not been informed of what action may have transpired during the day. The evaluation is expected to determine whether or not the local association has grounds to bring legal action for unfair labor practice, and the MEA legal staff will so advise the TRFEA after completing the evaluation.

Faculty members have been bannering for 15 minutes before and after school each day since last Thursday, as Kotz explained it, "to express disapproval and frustration at the negotiations process. We don't feel the board is negotiating in good faith and our only recourse at this time is to banner, advertise and talk about our problem with the public."

Cal Lindberg of the TRFEA negotiating team said another meeting is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. today with school board representatives. A mediation session last Thursday, which reportedly lasted until after 4 p.m. Friday, ended with the board representatives requesting more time to study a faculty proposal, Lindberg said.

He said the board had proposed a schedule less than the offer made on October 26 after stating that an error of more than $50,000 had been found in that offer. The faculty proposal under study at the close of the meeting was a result of discussion at that session and is expected to produce board reaction at tonight's meeting.

Brenda Hecht and Brad Steiger Wed In EGF

Miss Brenda Hecht and Brad Steiger exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, November 10, at 2:30 p.m., at the Sacred Heart Catholic church in East Grand Forks.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hecht of East Grand Forks. Parents of the groom are Mrs. Loraine Steiger of this city and Maurice Steiger, also of Thief River Falls.

Deacon Rick Lampert officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Sue Hankey, a friend of the bride, who together with Steve Hauge, provided the vocal selections.

Candelabra, graced with lavender ribbon bows, formed the background for the wedding party.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white wedding gown featuring an empire bodice with Gabella neckline trimmed with lace and pearls. A matching lace motif was appliqued on the sheer yoke, edged with the same Venice lace that formed the cuffs on her sheer bishop sleeves. An attached chapel-length train with a deep ruffled flounce complemented her floor-length skirt. A fitted headpiece of lace and pearls held her walking length veil, edged with lace. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers in dusty shades of mulberry, accented with babies' breath and ivory streamers.

Teresa Wavra of East Grand Forks was the bride's personal attendant.

Mary Hecht of East Grand Forks, attended her sister as maid of honor. Other attendants were Anita Kemnitz, Crookston, and Alyce Hecht, East Grand Forks, sisters of the bride. They wore lavender floor-length gowns with ivory lace trim on the bodice, waistband, and on the cuffs of their long full sleeves. They carried identical bouquets of pink silk asters with babies' breath and ivory streamers. Their pearl necklaces were gifts from the bride and groom.

Attending the groom as best man was Joel Sorvig of St. Hilaire. Groomsmen were Danny Hallstrom, Red Lake Falls, and Rob Hallstrom of St. Hilaire, friends of the couple. The ushers were Daryl Meyers, Thief River Falls, a friend of the couple, and Brian Steiger, Red Lake Falls, a brother of the groom. All wore silver gray tuxedos with gray trim, white ruffled shirts and dusty gray rose boutonnieres surrounded by babies' breath.

The mother of the bride wore a wine colored, floor-length gown styled with elbow-length sleeves and a belted waistline. The groom's mother was attired in a mulberry floor-length gown. Their identical corsages were of pink roses and babies' breath, with matching ribbon trim.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mrs. John Jeffrey, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Albert Horter, grandmother of the groom, and Mr. ad Mrs. Ron Jeffrey, godparents of the bride.

A reception in the Town House, Grand Forks, followed the ceremony. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Steiger, brother and sister-in-law of the groom. Leslie Nyland registered the guests as Joni Benson and Kathy Torrence served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with roses in pink and mulberry. A stairway graced the side and a Holly Hobbie bride and groom ornament formed the top. The cake was cut and served by Linda Jeffrey, aunt of the bride, and Dorothy Fore, a friend of the bride. Martha Jeffrey, godmother of the bride, and Lucille Knoll, aunt of the groom, poured the coffee.

The gifts were arranaged by Gail Hecht, sister of the bride, and Pam Boman, cousin of the groom. Pinning flowers were Lori Sorvig, a friend, and Dianne Vonasek, sister of the bride.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Sacred Heart high school, Grand Forks, and a 1979 graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI, department of cosmetology. She is currently employed by Model Barber. The groom is a 1975 graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls, and is employed by Steiger Farms, Red Lake Falls. The couple is at home at 721 South Crocker, in this city. 40th Anniversary Noted By Henry Schwartzes

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwartz were honored recently on their 40th wedding anniversary at an open house at Noper's Fireside room in this city.

The event was hosted by the couple's three children and their families: David Schwartz, his wife, Jan, their children: Jackie, Julie, Jayne, Kenny, Rhonda, Marie and Peggy; Marjorie and her husband, Gary Iverson, and their children: Melissa, Shelly and Chris; and Marlyn and her husband, Marvin Bakken, and their children: Ryan, Robby and Kevin.

Upon their arrival, the couple was escorted to the place of honor by their son, David. They were followed by Mrs. Schwartz' sister, Mrs. Alfred Nabben, who was their attendant 40 years ago. The best man, Robert Sauter is deceased. The honored couple, Henry Schwartz and Evelyn Runnestrand, were married Nov. 18, 1939 at the Mavie parsonage with Rev. E.O. Sabo officiating.

The anniversary observance began with a program with the couple's oldest granddaughter, Jackie Schwartz in charge. Melissa Iverson read the poem, "We Have Lived and Loved Together;" Jackie and Julie Schwartz sang, "How Great Thou Art;" and Julie Schwartz read the poem, "Forty Years Later." A humorous history of the couple's married life was composed and read by Alfred Solem. Musical selections were two songs: "Pass It On," and "Jesus Loves Me," by the grandchildren. The program concluded with words of appreciation by Schwartz, and the table prayer.

For the reception that followed, the serving table was centered with a three-tiered anniversary cake, decorated with red roses and topped by a 40th anniversary emblem. The cake was baked and decorated by the couple's daughters: Marjorie Iverson and Marlys Bakke. It was cut and served by Mrs. Schwartz' sisters: Mrs. Orvis Sletten and Mrs. Hazel Nabben. Pouring coffee was another sister, Mrs. Clarence Sletten.

Grandchildren also assisted at the reception. Ryan and Robby Bakken and Chris Iverson distributed the candy kisses; Jayne Schwartz and Shelley Iverson served the punch, and Melissa Iverson and Julie Schwartz presided at the guest book.

Red rose corsages and boutonnieres, made by Melissa Iverson, were worn by all the members of the family as well as the attendant and those who cut the cake and poured the coffee.

Relatives and friends attending the anniversary celebration, were from Newfolden, Goodridge, Holt, Plummer, Middle River and the Thief River Falls area.

Homemakers Of Rocksbury Hold Christmas Party

Rocksbury homemakers met recently at the Gina Gunderson home for their annual Christmas party. For the occasion, the home was decorated in the Christmas motif. The lunch served by Gina Gunderson, Synneva Engelstad, Ivadell Reierson and Evelyn Nelson featured a variety of Christmas foods.

In place of a business meeting, members spent the afternoon making favors for a nursing home. New secret pals were chosen for 1980; and each member received a gift from their 1979 secret pal.

Seventeen members attended the meeting. Winning door prizes were Anna Gunderson, Minnie Krause, Clara Voldness and Yvonne Walsberg.

The January meeting will be held at the Gladys Heinze home.

A BEAUTIFUL Christmas gift for some family might be this puppy that was found recently and brought into the Thief River Falls law enforcement center. The puppy is waiting to be claimed at the city dog pound in Thief River Falls, and anyone interested may call the law enforcement center at 681-6161.

Christmas Party Is Held By Star Homemakers Club

Star Homemakers Christmas party was held Monday, December 10, in conjunction with the club's monthly meeting.

The event was held at the Ekelund church dining hall. The meeting included a lesson in crafts with Mrs. Norman Anderson and Mrs. John Hoffman giving a demonstration on several crafts displayed. A brief business session was also held with names drawn for secret pals for the year.

During the social hour, Christmas gifts were exchanged and a potluck lunch was served.

The next meeting of the Star Homemakers club will be held January 21 at the Elva Fiedler home.

TRF Newcomers Club Cookie Exchange Held

Members of the Thief River Falls Newcomers club met Tuesday, December 11 at the Val Bloemen home for the annual cookie exchange.

Thirteen members were present together with four guests: Sue Diggs, Deb Quesnell, Ann Qualley and Rosemary Rauch.

Following a brief business meeting there was an exchange of white elephant gifts and the awarding of the door prize to DeDee Hallada.

The next meeting of the Newcomers club will be held January 8 at 8 p.m., at the Pizza Hut.

Senior Citizens

December 13 the senior citizens held their Christmas party at the center. Twenty came to enjoy the afternoon and partake of the delicious lunch we all furnished.

Some of the ladies made some corsages for our sale on Saturday, after which we sang Christmas songs. The Christmas story was read from Luke 2 and Matt. 2. By now the coffee was ready so all the goodies were put on the counter which was covered with a Christmas holly tablecloth and we all enjoyed the good meal. Lunch guests were Ray Duvos, Judy and Frank Kleinvachter and Alice Vik. Other guests were Bertha Fredrickson of Thief River Falls, Bertha Holmstrom from the nursing home at Karlstad, Ida Bruce and Elsie Kimbrough.

We exchanged gifts and there were five door prizes given away. Evelyn Kline gave the one Ruth Anderson received. Irene gave two which Judith Kleinvachter and Bertha Fredrickson received and Mabel gave two, that Ruth Harper and Alice Vik received.

We have sent Christmas greetings to many of our members in other states and also to friends nearer to home. A greeting was received today from the Stromlunds, Alma, Albert and Eileen, in Galena, Mo., which was read at our meeting Thursday.

Saturday, Dec. 15

About 60 people visited our center on Saturday. Santa was in town visiting the kiddies and the moms and dads visited and had coffee at the center. We had a fair day for our sale Saturday. We were sold out on bed pillows so someone will be getting some nice soft pillows for Christmas.

Dennis Brekke of Warren gave us a $2 donation.

Irene gave a door prize that Annie Smeby of Karlstad won.

We still have three lovely piece quilts for sale. You can still buy them before Christmas.

We will be closing the center for the winter months and open again in the spring when weather will allow.

Thanks to all who patronize our center this past year. May you all have a blessed Christmas and a good new year.

The CNC held a drawing at 11:30 at the Lumberjack cafe when $40 was given away. Marlys Lefrooth and Larry Johnson each received $10 in coupons. Jerry Rux, Anthony Kazmierczak, Anne Bernhardson and Karen Grochowski each received $5 coupons. Winners of the drawing at the cafe were Roy Stennes and Donavon Larson, who won Sunday dinner and Hungry Jack French fries and a small drink.

Winners at Larson's Hartz store for the grocery basket were Maxine Holmstrom and Melanie Lefrooth who won the fruit basket.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kleinwachter, Kent and Hope were Thursday luncheon guests at the Anne Muzzy home in Thief River Falls. Later they were supper guests at the Lloyd Larson home of rural Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Elphie Adlis and Kim visited Elsie Kimbrough on Saturday.

Ella Thun accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Thun to visit at the George Monroe home near Warren on Sunday afternoon.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Do you recognize this guy? You should, he's a famous hunter and fisherman, he's had a lake south of here named after him. He's another Bobby Hull out on the ice. And he hasn't changed at all in his looks, still the same frown and his legs aren't any longer. Still the same nice guy at "33".

Goodridge To Initiate New Garbage Plan

Residents of the city of Goodridge will have a new garbage service beginning next week, according to Dr. David M. Brown, mayor. Les' Sanitation service of Thief River Falls will begin weekly pickups on Thursday of next week.

Dr. Brown said the Nelson-Anderson sanitation department of Middle River terminated its contract with the city of Goodridge in December with the last pick-up to be made Monday, December 24. Under the new arrangement, residents will be charged $4.75 per month, to be collected in advance with payment of the city's water bill.

Business places in Goodridge are to make arrangements with Les' Sanitation services for their garbage collection.

Kiesow Attends Tax School

One hundred fifty-three persons attended the 1979 farm income tax schools held recently in Grand Forks and Williston through the direction of the University of North Dakota division of continuing education.

Among those attending was Dennis Kiesow of Thief River Falls.

The schools were part of a series of seven programs being held by UND throughout the state. Developed in conjunction with the internal revenue service and the University of Illinois cooperative extension service, the schools were designed for persons who prepare returns for themselves and others.

The schools covered a wide range of current tax issues and procedures, such as capital gains and losses, corporations and partnerships, IRA and Keogh plans, urban and farm tax problems, and new rulings.

German Carols To Be Sung At St. John Wed.

Christmas carols in the German language will be sung tonight (Wednesday) at the final mid-week advent service to be held at 8 p.m., at St. John Lutheran church. Song sheets will be provided with the verses set up for pronunciation, enabling everyone to sing German if the words are pronounced as printed.

Special music will be provided by the release time students, grades 4-8, with Mrs. Pat Henke and Mrs. Judy Melby directing. Advent sermon by Rev. Barrie Henke will be in German and English. The public is welcome to attend.

Steve Easton In Play Cast

Casting has been completed for Brian Friel's "Lovers: Winners and Losers", the second major production of the theater season at Dickinson state college. Steve Easton of Thief River Falls is included in the cast.

Production, set for February 8-10, is under the direction of Jean Waldera, with Breece Bowen as technical director.

The first act of the play, "Winners" is set near the Irish town of Ballymore in June of 1966, while the second act, subtitled "Losers", takes place in an industrial Irish city during present time.

Dora Skorheim Rites Held At Red Lake Falls

Mrs. Dora E. Skorheim, 88, of Red Lake Falls died Friday at St. John's hospital in that city following a brief illness.

Funeral services for Mrs. Dora Skorheim were held Monday at 2 p.m., at the Presbyterian church in Red Lake Falls. Rev. Elmer King of Thief River Falls officiated. Interment was in the Oak Grove cemetery, Red Lake Falls, with the Petterson Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Roger Bring, Randy Lee, Toni Derosier, Bruce Westerlund, Allan Westerlund, Thomas Derosier, Steve Derosier and Dean Westerlund.

Mrs. Skorheim, the former Dora E. Rose was born Feb. 2, 1891 at Verdon, S.D., to Alex and Belle Rose. In 1914, she moved with her family to Plummer. A short time later, she moved to Red Lake Falls, where she had since resided.

She was married to Merton Valley on May 1, 1920 at Red Lake Falls. He died in 1954. On Oct. 20, 1956, she married Henry Skorheim at Crookston. He died Feb. 13, 1971.

Mrs. Skorheim was employed as a telephone operator in Red Lake Falls for the Kundert and Garden Valley Telephone company until her retirement. For the past two years, she had made her home at Hillcreast Nursing home in Red Lake Falls.

She was a life member of the Royal Neighbors of America. She was also a long time member of the VFW auxiliary post 562, and had been active in the Presbyterian church.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ethel Westerlund, Red Lake Falls; five grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, and six great-great-grandchildren and six step-sons: Dennis and Henry Skorheim, Adams, N.D.; Kenneth Skorheim, Coulee Dam, Wash.; Harvey Skorheim, Hutchinson, Ray Skorheim, Minot, N.D., and Donald Skorheim, Anaheim, Calif.;

Also surviving are three brothers: John Rose, Milwaukee, Wis.; Clarence, Olympia, Wash., and Ed, Anaheim, Calif.; and one sister, Mrs. Sherm (Alice) Closson, Port Angelos, Wash.

In addition to her parents and both husbands, she was preceded in death by one sister and a brother.

Services Held For Albert W. Johnson, 75

Series E Bonds No Longer Sold Over Counter

On January 2, 1980, U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE, first go on sale at banks and through payroll savings plans.

Series E savings bonds will no longer be sold over the counter at banks and similar institutions after December 31, 1979. Between January and June, some organizations will continue to offer their employees Series E bonds on payroll savings programs, but by June 30, 1980, all payroll savings probrams will be converted to the new U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE. Of course, all savings bonds — old and new — earn interest for their owners throughout the year.

U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE, retain the safety, convenience and security features of Series E savings bonds, but there are several changes.

1) U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE, have a guaranteed life of 11 years.

2) The interest rate on U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE, will be increased from 6.5 per cent to 7 per cent for bonds held the full 11 years to maturity. Series E bonds that have not finally matured and U.S. savings notes ("freedom shares") will also receive the ½ per cent "energy bonus" if they were held for 11 years from the date of the first semiannual interest period that begins on or after January 1, 1980. Bonds and notes redeemed earlier will receive the bonus.

3) U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE, will be available in demonations of $50, $75, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. Purchase price is one-half of this; E.G. a $50 U.S. energy savings bond costs $25 to purchase, a $100 bond costs $50, and so on.

4) U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE, must be held for at least 6 months after issue versus 2 months for E bonds. This will improve the cost effectiveness of the program.

5) Individuals can buy $15,000 yearly in U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE (purchase price) compared to only $7,500 (purchase price) for the earlier Series Ebonds.

6) Savings bonds continue to have unique tax-deferral advantages. Owners naever pay state or local income tax on the interest and they can postpone reporting the interest for federal income taxes until their bond is redeemed or reaches final maturity. This means that bondholders often can choose their best time to report interest, e.g. when they are retired or otherwise in a lower tax bracket.

Holiday Times

PULLING HOLIDAY PUNCHES

A special holiday touch is a shimmering punch bowl surrounded by a cache of special gifts for guests.

A charming old custom is to adorn the traditional punch bowl with a little supply of totally unexpected gifts at trim-the-tree parties, covered-dish suppers, even black-tie galas.

For a very special punch bowl, use boiled water in ice trays for very clear cubes. For fancy cubes, food coloring can be added to the water. Sprigs of mint, curls of citrus peel, maraschino cherries—all can be frozen into cubes. Striking ice floats can be made by freezing exotic blossoms into the ice. Add dry ice for the dramatic effect of clouds of vapor and super chilling.

For little surprise gifts, select something different for the men and women guests. A variety of wonderful items that range in price from five to ten dollars include fragrances such as Clara, Cerissa and Ultima, beautifully packaged in purse-sized vials or cologne concentrated sprays. Bill Blass's new perfume and timeless Norell are also available in stocking-stuffer sizes.

To give guests a festive welcome, try:

CRANBERRY LIME SPARKLE

- 1 large can jellied cranberry sauce
- 2 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup gingerale
- 1 cup club soda
- 2 sliced limes, studded with cloves
- cherries

Into a saucepan over low heat, crush can of jelly and add water with beater, adding sugar — cool. Stir in juice, extract, gingerale and soda. Chill and add lime slices and cherries just before serving. (If liquor is desirable, 1/2 cup vodka and 1/2 cup white wine may be added.) Serves 12.

MEA Brings Suit Against Minnetonka SD

Minnesota Education association (MEA) and its affiliated Minnetonka Teachers association (MTA) have filed suit against Independent School District 276 (Minnetonka) for "deceitful conduct" that constitutes an unfair labor practice.

This is the third suit in "a planned series designed to rectify similar problems scattered throughout more than 100 Minnesota school districts in which teacher contracts still remain unsigned," explained MEA President Donald C. Hill. Mounds View and St. Cloud school districts were sued last month.

Minnetonka suit — filed this afternoon in Fourth district court, Hennepin County — also seeks an injunction to prevent a scheduled arbitration hearing Jan. 7. More than 70 issues — the largest number since the Public Employment Labor Relations Act (PELRA) went into effect in 1971, according to the Bureau of mediation services (BMS) — remain unresolved.

David Dornfeld, MTA chief negotiator, said 15 negotiations sessions were held between initiation of negotiations March 14 and the beginning of mediation July 11 and that four more negotiations sessions have been interspersed with five mediation sessions.

Complaint alleges that "the Board and teachers agreed (during the Nov. 19-20 mediation session) to settle the economic issue of the labor dispute for an amount 'in the neighborhood' of $3,800.00 per teacher for a two year contract" and that the districe "made such agreement wrongfully with the intent and effect of deceiving plaintiff as to defendant's time position and inducing plaintiff to change its position."

District, Dornfeld explained, reneged "and never came near the $3,800."

Complaint continues: "Defendant's deceitful conduct is bad faith bargaining and constitutes an unfair labor practice under Minn. St. 179.68, Subd. 2(5) (PELRA) which prohibits defendant from 'refusing to negotiate in good faith' with plaintiff."

The complaint makes three specific points:

+ Defendant should be required to bargain in good faith.

+ This labor dispute can be resolved by good faith bargaining.

+ That unless defendant is required to bargain in good faith, plaintiff will be denied of its right to good faith negotiations and will thereby suffere permanent and irreparable harm.

The MEA-MTA demand judgment:

— That the district be enjoined from not meeting and negotiation in good faith.

— That the district be enjoined from proceeding with its binding artibration proceeding — the first session is scheduled for Jan. 7.

— That the MEA-MTA be awarded "damages in the amount of $200,000.00, plus costs, disbursements, and reasonable attorneys fees."

— For such other and further relief as to the court is just and equitable.

Minnetonka school district — in Minneapolis' west suburban area — has 392.6 teaching positions and some 8,000 students.

IT'S A FACT!

Two and a half million Cambodians are threatened with starvation. People are existing on bark and leaves and roots. Only 50 doctors remain to serve a population of four million. Fortunately, one organization is sending help. Already 40 tons of relief supplies have been flown into Phnom Penh in eight C46 relief flights.

Five million dollars is what that organization the Christian humanitarian agency, World Vision International, hopes to raise with your help to save these people. A contribution may be sent to World Vision International Box O, Pasadena, California 91109.

Study Being Conducted On Timber Future

Legislative commission on Minnesota resources (LCMR) chaired by Senator Gerald L. Willet of Park Rapids, recently contracted with George Banzhaf and company to conduct a study: "Minnesota's Timber Resources: Prospects for Development."

Senator Roger Laufenburger of Lewiston is chairman of the forestry committee of LCMR which will oversee the conduct of the study. Banzhaf firm will deliver the final report by mid November, 1980. Primary reason for the study is to develop viable alternatives for future policy making concerning timber resources.

The LCMR is composed of 14 legislators, seven senators and seven representatives. Members are appointed from the senate and the house of representatives on a bipartisan basis. The LCMR is charged in the statutes to provide the legislature with the background necessary to evaluate programs proposed to preserve, develop and maintain the natural resources of this state.

For nearly three years the LCMR has reviewed forest management in the state. Since January of 1979 the commission has developed an outline for the study. The LCMR desires to insure that alternative timer management policies do not unduly impact on policies and program s which affect other uses of forest lands.

More information is available by contacting John R. Velin of the LCMR staff, Room B-46, Capitol building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

State's Soil Conservation Leader's Meet

Soil conservation leaders from across the state met in Duluth, December 2-4, for the 43rd annual convention of the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts.

Attending from this area were Leonard Skaar, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Johnson and Robert Parnow, representing the Pennington soil and water conservation district. Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. Allan Gustafson, and the district's conservation farm couple, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O. Swanson.

Highlights of the convention included a luncheon speech by Governor Al Quie and a banquet address by Lyle Bauer of Kansas, who serves as president of the National association of conservation districts.

Education topics on the program included discussion meetings on water awareness, energy, forestry and mandatory erosion controls.

Delegates to the convention passed a number of resolutions including one calling for increased research on minimum tillage. Another resolution calls for increased engineering assistance to allow design and completion of erosion control structures in the same season.

Resolution calling for the establishment of a new tree nursery was amended to direct the association to work with private nurseries to help them provide needed planting stock.

The 1980 convention of the association is scheduled for December 7-9 in St. Cloud.

Government Regulations Increase Hospital Costs

The cost of hospital care has risen dramatically over the years, due in part to new technology and improved care, but also because of growing government regulation. Although some health care services have been improved, growing regulations from the Federal government have increased costs to hospitals and patients.

Currently in this country there is an organized movement to control hospital costs to patients by controlling the amount that hospitals can charge. This hospital cost containment concept does not take into account the increase in prices hospitals must pay for goods and services and, more importantly, does not consider that these higher costs will later be transferred to patients.

The cost of all Federal regulations including those for hospitals, is estimated to total over $4 billion annually in cost of administration and this has more than doubled in the past five years. Over 1,200 administrative boards and commissions and some 44 independent agencies employing almost 3 million people make up this bureaucratic arm of the Federal government.

The American Hospital Association recently examined the cost of complying with eight specific hospital regulations and found that, in their estimation, these regulations added at least $25 to each individual hospital bill. The total cost of just these eight regulations in 1977 was estimated to be about $863 million and is expected to total at least $1 billion in 1979. In addition, data from numerous other studies of hospital regulations indicates that 25 per cent of hospital costs are attributable to meeting government regulatory requirements.

Perhaps no area of the American economy has felt the inflationary hand of government intervention as painfully as health care. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is currently promoting a new set of hospital records-keeping regulations that almost guarantees skyrocketing health-care costs. The System for Hospital Uniform Reporting (SHUR), would, according to HEW, assist in providing a more efficient and effective method of keeping and maintaining hospital records but the overall result will be additional, not fewer, regulations and higher, not lower, costs.

If implemented, SHUR would require all hospitals participating in the Medicare-Medicaid Program to report cost relation information in a uniform manner. These regulations would require hospitals either to keep two sets of books, one for the government and one for themselves, or change to one costly system which would satisfy HEW but would not be particularly useful in managing a hospital.

This is a good example of one of the most inflationary regulations proposed by the Federal government in several decades and could cost hospitals thousands of dollars to implement and maintain.

A major problem in placing all hospitals in one category, such as this regulation will do, is that it does not consider the size differential of various types of hospitals. The Lutheran Homes and Hospitals Society of America, an organization providing centralized management services to rural hopsitals like those in Seventh District, estimates the cost of implementing SHUR alone to be about $15,000 to $20,000 per hospital and, for small hospitals under 50 beds, about $25,000 to $30,000 annually just to maintain the system.

Hospitals in the Seventh District have done a tremendous job in keeping costs relatively low in spite of government regulations. Last year increases in the Seventh District averaged approximately 7.7 per cent, well below the State and national average. But, if costly government regulations continue to be imposed in the years to come. The cost of health care in the Seventh District will rise rapidly. We cannot afford to allow this to happen.

Seven Decades of Pride in Service

General Omar N. Bradley and staff crossing the Rhine River in 1945. The Country's only living five-star general, Bradley will receive the Defense Distinguished Service Medal.

"His life has been characterized by exemplary leadership and extraordinary devotion to duty. His heroic acts during World War II stand as unparalleled examples of military skill and determination."

This is a quote from the citation which accompanies the Defense Distinguished Service Medal to be presented to General of the Army Omar N. Bradley on December 22, during halftime of the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas. The presentation will be nationally televised to millions of football fans, many of whom have first-hand recollections of the brilliant wartime record of General Bradley, the nation's only living five-star general officer.

Still on active duty in the Army, the man is a legend in his time. Upon graduation from West Point in 1915, Omar Bradley was commissioned a second lieutenant. For 64 years, pride in service and unique contributions of military leadership have characterized his outstanding record.

In some ways, General Bradley's career parallels the existence of another Army institution—the U.S. Army Reserve. The official birth date of the Army Reserve is 1908, making this entire organization's service to America only a few years older than Bradley's. But, one man, or tens of millions of men and women... for seven decades the basic idea has been the same: devotion to patriotic duty and service with pride to help guarantee our American freedoms.

General Omar Bradley's last command in the Second World War was a group of armies, numbering more than 1,300,000 combat troops in the European theater of operations, and the largest body of American soldiers ever to serve under one field commander. The Army Reserve's performance in that war was impressive, too. Close to 500,000 strong, they were in some of the most crucial battles—Bastogne, Anzio, Okinawa, Guam.

At the time of the war in Korea, Omar Bradley was serving as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the highest military office attainable by any officer of the Armed Forces. Army Reservists were serving too, in Korea, where they earned six Medals of Honor and one-fourth of the other top decorations awarded.

Since the early years of this century, in one capacity or another, both General Omar N. Bradley and the members of the Army Reserve have been serving America with pride.

Right-Of-Way Regulated By Highway Dep't.

Minnesota department of transportation reminds the public that all activities within the highway right-of-way are regulated by the department.

Highway right-of-way widths vary from a minimum of 40 feet on each side in some cities, to 200 feet or more in scenic rural areas. Within this right-of-way, many activities are prohibited by law, including the cutting of timber or removal of trees, the placement of advertising or "for sale" signs and the erection of buildings and fences.

Using the highway right-of-way for private business, including customer parking and the display of merchandise, is also prohibited.

Persons planning improvement of their properties bordering a highway should make sure of the location of the highway boundary. If the location is in doubt, future difficulties can be avoided by contacting Mn-DOT.

Motorists are also reminded that they are required to enter and leave the highway only by driveways and public road connections, for their safety as well as to avoid damaging ditches and slopes.

Many people living along highways mark their driveways with reflectors. Only white or blue reflectors less than three inches in diameter are permitted. Other colors, which resemble vehicle markings, may cause driver confusion and be a safety hazard.

Area Students Make Dean's List In N.D.

More than 230 North Dakota state university students from Minnesota earned places on the fall quarter deans' list announced by the deans in the seven academic colleges.

Numbering among those qualifying from this area were:

Laurie Kiesow, Goodridge, agriculture; Pamela Hesse, Plummer, humanities and social sciences; David Vigstol, Plummer, science and mathmatics; Brian Vattbauer, Red Lake Falls, agriculture; Scott Skiple, Red Lake Falls, engineering and architecture; Martha Haugen, Strandquist, home economics; Bryan Grove, Thief River Falls, agriculture; Tamara Schwartz, Thief River Falls, home economics; Mary Winjum, Thief River Falls, home economics; and Milton Johnson, Thief River Falls, engineering and architecture.

Students maintaining a 3.50 grade point average (B plus or better) on a 4.0 scale qualify for the Deans' list issued each quarter by the seven NDSU colleges.

Jean Dziengel Is Minister At St. Catherine's

Jean Ellen Dziengel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dziengel, Strandquist, was commissioned as a student minister in a recent ceremony in Our Lady of Victory chapel on the campus of the College of St. Catherine. She had completed a training program through the campus ministry.

Students of the ministry program serve as ministers of hospitality, music, the word or communion in campus worship.

Jean was commissioned a minister of the word. She is a junior communications major at the college.

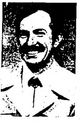
Stumpf Seeks Endorsement For House Seat



LeRoy Stumpf

LeRoy Stumpf, Pennington county farmer, has announced his intentions of seeking the DFL endorsement for the legislative seat in District 1-B. This seat is currently held by John Corbid who has chosen not to seek reelection.

"I see the job of legislator as one representing the people and I firmly believe in the importance of bringing the issues back to the people for their input," Stumpf said.

"There are many issues that affect our farmers, workers, homeowners, business people, cities and towns. The citizen's ideas and thoughts on these concerns should be the foundation for their solutions."

According to Stumpf, he strongly supports the family farm system and believes a thriving farm community is the main source of economic growth throughout the entire area. Over the past several months, he says, many people have expressed their concerns to him in areas affecting our senior citizens, education, health care, taxes, human rights, transportation and excessive government regulations.

He also expressed appreciation for the support and encouragement he has received from many people throughout the district. It is his hope, he says, to be able to visit with as many people as possible in the upcoming weeks before the precinct caucuses.

Stumpf operates a livestock and grain farm 12 miles southeast of Thief River Falls. Stumpf, 35, was born in Waverly and attended the University of Minnesota and the St. Paul seminary where he graduated from college. He has worked for the University of Minnesota as an agricultural extension agent and continues to be a strong supporter of area 4-H programs. He is also active in several farm organizations.

Stumpf's wife, Carol is a native of Thief River Falls and is the granddaughter of Julia Rambeck and the late Art Rambeck, former sheriff and city alderman. LeRoy and Carol have two children who will be attending Thief River Falls schools.

Stumpf has been an active member of the DFL party for several years. He has served four years on the executive committee and county chairman of the sustaining fund drive.

CHRISTMAS EVE, DECEMBER 24

TWO SERVICES OF CHRISTMAS CAROLS, CHOIR MUSIC AND CANDLES FOR THE FAMILY

5:00 P.M. and 9:00 P.M.

Our traditional service of Carols and Candles has become widely known as the most beautiful Christmas Eve service in the entire area. Because the crowd at the single service last year was so large, this year we offer two nearly identical services instead of one. The services are non-denominational, so Christians of all churches will find the services beautiful and inspiring.

The public is cordially invited to this most-beautiful service. Nursery care is provided at the 5:00 P.M. service.

A WARM, FRIENDLY, CHURCH AWAITS YOU.

MERRY MERRY MERRY Christmas

We wish you a Merry Christmas! All of your good neighbors at Northern State Bank in Thief River Falls are joined together in their hope that the Christmas season brings peace and joy to you all. Christmas fills our hearts with a spirit of friendship and giving; it's a time that we all look forward to! May you enjoy a blessed Christmas, and the holidays find you and your family well and happy. A joyous Season's Greetings to you from your good neighbors at Northern State Bank in Thief River Falls.

Gas Stations To Close On Christmas Day

Modern Santas should fill their cars before holiday travel, as approximately 70 per cent of the state's gasoline stations will be closed Christmas day, according to the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA.) When they do pull up to the gasoline pumps, motorists won't find much to chuckle about; prices have increased an average of 2.6 cents per gallon at both full and self-service pumps in the past month.

There is some cause for cheer, however, only one of the 64 stations in Minnesota surveyed by AAA reported running out of some grade of fuel. "It appears that most of the gasoline stations will make it through Christmas without running out of fuel. However, conservation is still needed as a few of the stations' employees did indicate that they might run out of gasoline by the holiday," noted Diane Nelsen, spokeswoman for Minnesota AAA.

American automobile association also reported that nationwide there would not be significant gasoline supply problems during December. (One exception is the Chicago metropolitan area, where supplies are very tight.) Though allocations are down 21 per cent from last year, nationwide crude oil stocks are above last year's level, and demand for gasoline is about five per cent less than the previous year, according to AAA.

J. Kay Aldous, vice president of public and government policy; also explained that allocation figures (the percentage of gasoline supplied by an oil company for one month, compared with that month in 1977) are not always an accurate measurement of the situation.

"Part of the confusion rests with department of energy (DOE) formulas, which have increased the allocation base for some refiners," said Aldous. He explained that though the base allocation is usually based on 1977 figures, there are some exceptions, and other factors enter in, thus increasing the allocation base. "With each upward adjustment of this base of supply, individual refiner allocation fractions get smaller, he added.

In addition, he pointed out that the allocation figures are the least amount of gasoline dealers can expect to receive; they may get more. AAA was told that the DOE is having a hearing to consider straightening out the allocation formula confusion.

Not confusing are gas prices, which are now well over a dollar per gallon. Currently, the average price per gallon at full-service stations is $1.063 for regular, $1.112 for premium, $1.102 for unleaded, $1.13 for premium unleaded and $1.042 for diesel.

At self-service pumps the average price per gallon is $1.03 for regular, $1.103 for premium, $1.073 for unleaded and $1.12 for premium unleaded.

Minnesota AAA reminds motorists to give themselves and their family the best gift of all — safety. "Take a few seconds and fasten your seatbelt or put your child in a propoer restraint. Department of transportation estimates that 15,000 to 20,000 lives could be saved every year if everyone wore their lap and shoulder belt," said Nelsen.

"And during holiday parties, remember that over half of all fatal accidents involve alcohol. Be first a friend, then a host. Don't let your guests drive after over-indulging in alcoholic beverages. Call a cab or offer to let them stay overnight," added Nelsen.

The U.S. Labor Department's Job Corps program, funded under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973, has about 20,000 enrollees at a time; the composition averages 72 per cent male, 60 per cent black, 12 per cent Spanish speaking, 2 per cent Indian and 26 per cent white.

DESSERT WITH A HOLIDAY FLAIR

Chocolate Peanut Butter Crunch Dessert is a show-off, and it looks as if it took hours — not minutes — to prepare. On-hand ingredients are the secret of this special dessert. Creamy smooth instant pudding and pie filling is layered alternately with a luscious mixture of Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping flavored with crunchy peanut butter.

CHOCOLATE PEANUT BUTTER CRUNCH DESSERT

3 tablespoons milk
3 tablespoons chunky peanut butter
1 cup thawed frozen whipped topping
1 package (4-serving size) chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling

Blend milk into peanut butter, stirring until smooth. Fold in whipped topping. Prepare instant pudding as directed on package. Alternately spoon whipped topping mixture and pudding into parfait glasses. Chill 15 minutes. Makes about 3 cups or 6 servings.

Tuesday forenoon coffee guests at the Daryl Lewis home were Ardith Olson, Jeannie Lane, Pauline Vatsaas, Jodi Swanson and Carol Ellingson. Janice Olson was also a brief caller.

It was feared that the Good Cheer club Christmas party might have to be cancelled or postponed December 12, when it was reported that there was no electrical current at the library in Thief River Falls where the meeting was to be held. Repairs were made by 1 p.m., however, and the meeting started on schedule with a very good turnout. Carols were sung, the Christmas story read, and recitations given by the preschoolers present. In addition to hostesses Iris Furuseth and Wilma Olson, those present included Becky Christianson, Daniel and Sara, Lauretta Blomker, Odetta and Jonathan, Edith Dyrdal, Alma Armstrong, Alma Melvie, Patty Soiney, Helen Willers, Gladys Bakke, Lilas Kiefstad, Peggy Solem, Hannah Zavoral, Linda Olson, Del Otteson, Janet Berg, Darleen Melvie and Carolyn Hugg. There will be no more Good Cheer club meetings scheduled until next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bakken and Wendy were Monday afternoon visitors at the Melvin Bakken home.

Mrs. Marion Hoglo accompanied Mrs. Marvin Olson and Kelli of Rocksbury and Mrs. Wally Lamb and Shawn of Warren spent Monday in Grand Forks.

Sincere sympathy to the family of Albert Johnson, who passed away Saturday. Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Green Funeral chapel.

Gary Page was a Thursday evening coffee guest at the Daryl Lewis home. Monday Donnie Jackson was a supper and evening guest, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson were coffee guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong visited with Mrs. Merle Magsam of Euclid at the Crookston hospital; also, with Albert Goesen and Charlie Sewill, both former Euclid residents, who are now residents in the nursing home portion of the Crookston hospital. They also visited with Jake Salentine and Annie Acker, both of Euclid, and Eli St. Michel of Dorothy.

Gary Lane of Sanders and Llewellyn Lane of Thief River Falls were Saturday dinner guests at the parental Burt Lane home.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solseng and Shelly and Esther Solseng took Eleanor Joyce out for dinner Sunday for a belated birthday celebration.

Donnie Anderson of Thief River Falls was a weekend guest at the Russell Lane home. Art Armstrong of Bray was also a Saturday dinner guest there.

Gary Lane, Jennifer and Michael of Sanders were Thursday supper guests at the Burt Lane home. Friday, Mrs. Burt Lane had afternoon coffee with Arlyne Solney in Thief River Falls.

Todd Lewis accompanied the John Nelsons home following church services Sunday morning and was a dinner guest there. Mr. and Mrs. Daryl Lewis were afternoon visitors and coffee guests when they called for him.

Harold Langaas spent Thursday and Friday in the Wannaska area visiting uncles Henry and Louie Brateng.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Andy Hjelle of Newfolden arrived at the Melville Bakken home. Friday morning Mrs. Hjelle and Melanie Bakken accompanied Mr. and Mrs. James Olson and Michael of Viking to Superior, Wis., to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bolin. The Olson family continued on to Colfax, Wis., to visit her parents, the Bensons. Saturday the Bolins, Mrs. Hjelle and Melanie attended the wedding of Patti Jo Bolin and Scott Ayotte at Christ Lutheran church in Superior. Melanie was the flower girl in the wedding party. Mrs. Hjelle and Wendy were met at the bus stop at Marcoux Corner by Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bakken and Wendy and Andy Hjelle when they returned home Sunday.

Myrl Johnson, Lucille Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Everette Yonke of Sanders spent Thursday in Grand Forks, N.D.

Marvin Moen, LaVerne Hamre and Charles Ellingson were Monday evening visitors at the Russell Lane home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong were among those attending a happy seniors dinner and program Friday in Thief River Falls.

Gary Page of Thief River Falls was a Saturday forenoon coffee guest at the Daryl Lewis home. Roger Dyrdal was an afternoon coffee guest, and was joined by Mrs. Dyrdal, Lynn, Roger Jr. Jeri, Bryce and April following a Christmas program practice. LaVerne Hamre and Kirk of Numedal were also afternoon coffee guests.

Mrs. Burt Lane was a Monday coffee guest at the Ben Anderson home and at the home of Mrs. Ludwig Peterson; also joining Ruby Ramsey for coffee at the Llewellyn Lane home, all in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Marvin Moen and Keith were Sunday after-church visitors at the Russell Lane home.

Edith Dyrdal was a Friday dinner and supper guest at the Daryl Lewis home.

Due to the busy time of year there was a small attendance at the Oak Ridge ALCW meeting Thursday evening at the Len Waswick home. Louise Solseng gave devotions and led the Scope lesson and Ann Dyrdal read the offering meditation. Others present were Jeannie Lane, Pauline Vatsaas and LuAnn Lewis. Bev. Hamre assisted Carol Waswick as hostess.

Annual Meeting Held

Re-elected at the Oak Ridge church annual meeting Friday evening were Irwin Aaseby, president; Leonard Waswick, secretary; Evonne Moe, treasurer; Louise Solseng, organist; and Daryl Lewis, trustee. Newly elected were Charlotte Bjorgaard, assistant organist; Dan Skogen, assistant Sunday school superintendent; Roger Dyrdal and Jean Bach, deacons; and the Gary Boughton, Don Dyrdal, Mitch Swanson and Gail Rowley families. It was also voted to give seven per cent of the general fund to benevolences and to employ the committee approach in the church's member and mission work.

Mrs. Louise Solseng and Shelly were among the many attending a birthday party Sunday at the Tim Kassa home in Sanders for Tony's third birthday anniversary.

Ingenuity In Home Decor

Helpful Tips On Low-Cost Decorating Ideas

ECONOMICAL REDECORATING

You can nail in panel grooves directly onto studs behind existing walls when paneling has grooves located on 16-inch centers.

Such beautiful effects can be achieved with plywood paneling that many homeowners are using it to set the stage for decorating an entire room, often selecting furniture, fabrics and carpets to harmonize with the paneling's color shading.

Redecorating like this can become expensive, though, unless you cut costs somewhere. One place is on labor: you can do the paneling job yourself!

In new homes, panels can be applied directly to studs, but it's desirable to use 3/8-inch or 1/2-inch gypsum board as a backer for solid installation. This backer also helps reduce sound transmission and insulate the walls.

If you're building a partition or perimeter stud wall, use horizontal blocking between the studs if spacing is greater than 16" on center, and as necessary for solid backing behind all panel edges.

Most paneling, like those available from Georgia-Pacific, can be installed over existing true walls in an older home. These walls require no preparation other than sanding out any rough or uneven spots. Then simply cut panels to fit and glue them to the wall.

Remove old moulding and trim, or, if desirable, leave it in place and cut panels to fit. Measure wall height in several places to assure accurate fitting. (This height may vary in older homes due to settling.)

When applying paneling to old walls, first locate the studs behind the existing wall. To do this, probe through the wall with a long nail. (A stud finder will be a great help.)

To determine exact spacing, check in two or three places. Since studs are not always straight, it's a good idea to probe at several heights to assure accurate nailing. Once you've found the stud spacing, drop a plumb line floor to ceiling to guide panel placement.

Now, you are ready to cut panels. Measure the floor-to-ceiling height for the first panel. Normally, this will be the corner of the room next to the adjacent wall. Allow 1/2-inch wall clearance, top to bottom. Moulding will cover up this space later.

If the corner is irregular, as it often is for a brick or masonry wall, use a small compass to scribe the panel for perfect fitting. Then measure it for cutting. Mark dimensions in soft lead-pencil and use a straight edge to provide a clear, even line.

If you're using a cross-cut hand saw or table saw, keep the panel face up, but if you're using a portable power saw or sabre saw, keep it face down. Do not use a rip saw since it will tear at the veneer on the edge of the panel.

Use panel adhesive and nails to apply the paneling.

For more ideas and detailed instructions on paneling installation, write for the illustrated booklet, "How To Make Beautiful Things Happen With Walls," available for 25¢ from "Beautiful Walls," Dept. NAPS, Georgia-Pacific Corp., 900 S. W. Fifth Ave., Portland, OR 97204.

GOODRIDGE RESIDENTS

The Nelson-Anderson sanitation department of Middle River has terminated its contract with the city in December. The last pick up by the company will be on Monday, December 24, 1979.

A contract has been negotiated with Les' Sanitation Service of Thief River Falls at $4.75 per month for residents. This will be collected by the city in advance at the same time the water bill is collected. Business places will be contacted by Les' Sanitation Service for arrangements to pick up garbage.

This change was necessary due to Nelson-Anderson sanitation department terminating its contract.

Pickup will be on Thursdays.

CHECK FOR $1,460 was presented to John W. Nelson, route 1, Newfolden, Monday as the winner of the "live free for a month" contest sponsored by the KKAQ radio station in Thief River Falls. Nelson, who had registered at the Highway 59 Fixit shop in Thief River Falls, had been selected earlier as a semi-finalist in the weekly drawings for the contest. Names were chosen weekly and broadcast on the station, according to Dale Olmstead, manager. People selected had five minutes to call the radio station after their names were broadcast to become eligible for the final drawing. Nelson, who is employed at Bridgeman's in Thief River Falls, heard his name and called the station within 60 seconds to become the final winner of the $1,460 in cash given away. Presenting the check to Nelson are Dale Olmstead (left) and Martin Rantanen, owner of the Highway 59 Fixit shop.

Region I Dairy Ass'n. Meeting Here January 8

American Dairy association of Minnesota has announced that the annual meeting of Region I will be conducted in Thief River Falls, Tuesday, January 8, at the Best Western motel at 11 a.m.

Cliff Markuson, manager of the American Dairy association (ADA) of Minnesota, will report on the programs of the Minnesota dairy promotion council and ADA of Minnesota. Regional dairy day plans and activities will be discussed for the coming year. In addition, the business meeting will include the election of regional officers. Counties included in Region I are: Beltrami, Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk and Roseau. All dairy producers in these areas are invited to attend.

Minnesota dairy promotion council and ADA of Minnesota are comprised of and financed by over 28,000 dairy farmers throughout the state. Their express purpose of the cooperative funding program is to conduct research on dairy products, to educate our children and other consumers on sound nutrition and to advertise the use of dairy products in an overall effort to expand and promote the market for dairy foods.

The ADA of Minnesota and other state units are members of the United dairy industry association (UDIA), which is the umbrella agency for dairy promotion, education and research. American dairy association is the promotional arm of UDIA, national dairy council, the education arm and research, Inc., the research arm.

George Koch, dairy farmer from Puposky, serves on the ADA of Minnesota board of directors as a representative of Region 1.

JIM HALLAMEK has been named manager of the First Northwestern Insurance agency, according to Roger Reuter, president of the First Northwestern bank. Hallamek is a native of Inver Grove Heights and a 1961 graduate of South St. Paul high school. Following graduation, he entered banking with the Northwestern national bank of South St. Paul. In 1966 he joined Prudential insurance company as an agent, and from 1967 through 1976 he became district sales manager for Mutual Service insurance company, supervising 14 multiple line agents. Hallamek has completed many insurance and training schools including the life insurance marketing and research association school of agency management, the Xerox professional selling skills school, and the MSI commercial insurance schools. He has been an instructor of the Life Underwriters training council from 1969 through 1976. He is involved in several community activity groups and works in various youth activity areas. Hallamek and his wife, Darlene, have three sons, Jim, 14; Jerry, 13; and Jason, 10.

Film To Be Shown At Faith Church Dec. 31

Public is invited to view "My Son, My Son", a film to be shown at 7:30 p.m. on New Year's eve at Faith Lutheran Brethren church, 6th street and Dewey avenue, Thief River Falls. It is a true story of a Christian father and his wayward son.

Excise Tax On Phone Bill To Drop Jan. 1st

Northwestern Bell estimates its Minnesota customers will save approximately $6 million in 1980 when the federal excise tax on local and long distance service is reduced from three to two per cent.

The reduction, effective Jan. 1, 1980, will be reflected in customer bills early in January.

This is the seventh reduction under the excise, estate and gift tax adjustment act of 1970 which provided that the excise tax be reduced by one per cent a year over a 10-year period.

Nominations For TOYM To Close Jan. 4

Minnesota Jaycees have announced that the deadline for nominating young men and women between the ages of 18 and 36 to be recognized as outstanding young Minnesotans will close on Friday, January 4, 1980.

Ten young Minnesotans will be selected by a group of distinguished citizens and the selection announced at ceremonies to be held in Minneapolis on February 9. Nominations should be sent to your local Jaycee chapter or to Ten Outstanding Young Minnesotans 1980, P.O. Box 21096, Columbia Heights, Mn. 55421. You can obtain nomination forms, or registrations for the event, by writing to that address or by calling 612-448-5300.

Asks Farmers To Report 1980 Changes

Marshall county producers are urged not to delay reporting any changes in farm operations for the 1980 program year to the county ASCS office, states Alton Nybladh, chairman of the agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee.

For ASCS to help producers get program benefits, farm records must be up to date. Therefore, the producers should contact the county ASCS office if there has been a change in the land a farmer owns or operates, if a farm will have a new owner effective for 1980, or if a change is made in the operation of an existing unit.

"Plans to combine farms or divide a farm should be requested as soon as possible because reconstitutions require special processing as well as county committee approval," he said.

Likewise, Nybladh said, farmers who want to establish proven yields for 1980 feed grains or wheat should assemble proof of production records for this year's crop.

The ASCS official said production evidence must be kept separate for each year and for each farm. When yield notices are sent out next spring, farmers will be given the opportunity to request a proven yield if production evidence so warrants.

Counties Ass'n. To Meet Jan. 4 At Crookston

District III meeting of the Association of Minnesota counties will be held January 4 at the Best Western motor inn at Crookston beginning with registration at 10:15 a.m. Counties in District III are Kittson, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

From 10:45 a.m. until noon, executive director James C. Shipman will present a legislative update and discuss priorities for the coming legislative session.

Following association and district business from 1 to 2 p.m., election of a district director for a two-year term will be held. Directors may serve three consecutive terms on the board. As newly-elected first vice president of the AMC, Richard E. Jamison, Norman county commissioner, will not be seeking reelection to the AMC board.

ASCS Offices Closed Dec. 24

Marshall and Pennington county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) will be closed on Monday, December 24, as well as Christmas day, December 25.

Senior Meals Weekly Menu

High School League Reflects On Growth During The 1970's

For the Minnesota state high school league, the 1970s have been marked by progress — a period of unprecedented growth in the interscholastic programs, a decade of growing opportunity in which students could reap the benefits of participation in a wide variety of activities, according to Larry Larson, director of information and publications.

It has been a time which has caught the fancy of today's teenagers as much as those who experienced similar decades in the past.

But, the 1970's also had a character all its own, a time students will be able to look back on with fond memories. Part of that reflection will be the involvement of high school youth in the activities conducted by the Minnesota state high school league, Larson noted.

He suggested the public "consider just a few of the advances of the 70s, improvements which have laid a solid foundation" for the program of the 80s:

—An ever-growing interscholastic sports program for girls which in 10 years has broken societal stereotypes and now includes thousands of participants in a variety of activities.

—In 1975 the realignment of schools into districts and regions to provide for a two-class system.

—Increased championship tournament play to determine honors in a diversified number of sports. The state boys' basketball tournament in 1971 was the first event to be conducted in two classes, Class AA and Class A. In 1979, 16 activities were conducted in two classes.

—The introduction and successful implementation of a state football playoff system, providing post-season competition for another statewide activity.

—The establishment of a fine arts council and four fine arts advisory committees, an athletic council and 23 sports advisory committees to provide recommendations to the board of directors.

—A wide variety of personnel employed to conduct 140 rules meetings on a statewide basis in 12 sports.

—Expanded representation on the board of directors from 10 to 15 members and from 32 to 90 delegates on the representative assembly.

—An expanded program in fine arts with music and speech workshops and judging clinics and additional new events in music and speech contests, further providing additional opportunities for students.

—Sportsmanship program which can be conducted by member schools, and continued throughout various district, regional and state tournaments.

—In 1973, membership in the MSHSL was opened to non-public schools, and in May 1974 some 37 of those schools joined the league. Today's membership consists of 43 non-public and 474 public high schools.

—An ever-growing spectator interest in post-season state tournament play. In 1978-79, over 400,000 persons witnessed state championships in 26 girls and boys' activities.

These and other progressions in the ambitious MSHSL program were developed in the 70's without compromising the basic principles for which the league was created, the philosophy that interscholastic competition should be conducted on the highest plateau of fair play and good sportsmanship, while fostering keen competition. Regardless of the decade, these principles remain consistent and worthwhile goals.

So, as a new decade dawns, these aspirations, hopes and goals will continue to hold firm for the 1980s, as we strive to build upon the strong foundation established during the 1970s.

With a diversified program of 27 activities and the effect that energy could have during the 80s, it is difficult to assess the direction the MSHSL program will take in the months and years ahead. But, assuredly, it will continue to play the avenue through continued growth and involvement which thousands of young people who have an intense desire to participate can be continued.

Increased participation is indicative of a reaffirmation

MJCAA Power Is In Iron Range - Again

Wins might be hard to come by for the Northland community college hockey team this winter. The Northmen opened their 1979-80 season with a weekend preview in the Thief River Falls sports arena, losing to defending MJCAA state champion Hibbing 12-7 in an entertaining Friday night game and losing a 15-3 Saturday afternoon blow-out.

"We panicked," admitted Northland coach Bob Lundbohm after the Saturday rout. "We started falling behind in the second period and we panicked. We tried to play their game; we tried hitting them instead of skating with them."

Short on numbers, Northland will not win in the often rugged MJCAA by being physical. If they skate like they did Friday, the Northmen can be competitive.

Dean of the state community college coaching fraternity, Hibbing's Frank Catani says Rainy River is the early season MJCAA favorite.

"I can't say they have a definite edge because we haven't played them yet, but Rainy River looks like the team to beat," said Catani who has been coaching the Cardinals for eight years.

Mesabi should be strong, too, as evidenced by an early season 6-5 victory over Hibbing. And a Roseau-dominated Crookston squad could give the Iron Range schools some problems. The Trojans challenged Rainy River in a Friday-Saturday series before losing 8-7, 6-4. A week earlier Crookston lost a close series with Hibbing 6-4, 7-6.

"Crookston is big, but not real fast," mentioned Catani. "In a smaller rink they'll be tough."

Northland and Rochester may be on the outside looking in when the four-team 1980 MJCAA state hockey tournament is played.

Hibbing, says Catani, fits in the top four someplace, but he's not certain just where. "I don't know if I'm as strong as I have been in the past," he said prior to the weekend series here that represented Northland's only MJCAA competition until mid-January when the Northmen will run into the likes of Mesabi, Crookston and Rainy River within a week's time. "We have potential," noted Catani. "We just need time to jell as a team."

In Jim Underwood, Catani has the league's top player, rivaled only by Pete Finnigan of Mesabi, the fastest skater in the MJCAA. The Greenway-Coleraine defenseman was an NJCAA All-American a year ago as he helped the Cardinals win their fourth MJCAA state title under Catani who has coached seven All-Americans at the school, the best of whom was Dave Herbst who scored 57 goals during the 1973-74 season before he went on to play on an NCAA championship team at Wisconsin.

"I don't know if I have a guy that can do what Herbst did, but Jim Underwood has a way of electrifying a crowd with his puck handling and defensive skills," said Catani.

Despite the success in the MJCAA, Catani isn't totally satisfied because of the Cardinals' failure to win an NJCAA national tournament. "I just can't seem to win the national tournament," he sighed. "I've had four chances, but lost it every time to the same team, the team that went on to win the title — Canton (N.Y.)."

Larry Peterson Produces A Winner

Lincoln high school graduate Larry Peterson, who built Roseau into a strong basketball school before resigning at the end of the 1978-79 season, enjoyed early season success at Appleton in southwestern Minnesota.

Peterson's new ball club opened the 1979-80 season with four straight wins, matching the Aces' victory total of the past three years. It's the first time since 1951 that an Appleton team won its first four games.

The team that Peterson coached last year at Roseau finished 18-3 and his five-year stay there produced a 71-35 overall record. So why move to Appleton where the boys basketball program had produced just four wins in three years, he was asked by Brent Strand of the West Central Daily Tribune in Willmar.

"It offered a challenge," was his answer.

Quickness and good defense — 36 points allowed per game — produced the four Appleton wins. But Peterson warned, "The meat of the schedule is coming up," as he looked ahead to play in the Little Sioux Conference against the likes of defending champion Madison and current favorite Ortonville.

Ponies Drill Lincoln Girls 59-20 Tuesday

Kim Brekke out-scored Thief River Falls with a 26-point performance Tuesday that carried Warren to a 59-20 girls high school basketball victory over the visiting Prowlers.

Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg was impressed by the Ponies, the Region 8A favorite this winter. "There isn't anybody around here who's going to touch them," she predicted.

Warren opened up a 12-2 first quarter lead, made it 25-10 at halftime and pulled away 40-14 in the third quarter.

Thief River Falls' poor shooting (10-for-55, 18 per cent) was compounded by the taller Ponies' board strength that produced a 50-27 rebound advantage for the winners who shot 47 per cent from the field by hitting 22 of 47 shots.

There was also a big difference at the free throw line where the Prowlers were 0-for-3 and the Ponies went 15-for-27.

It was a clean sweep for Warren teams Tuesday as the hosts took the freshman game 29-15 and won the junior varsity contest 24-13. The Thief River Falls freshmen are now 1-1 and the junior varsity is 2-1.

The Prowlers, 1-2, will be at Roseau Friday, with all three teams facing the Rams.

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman will be the guest speaker Thursday at the weekly 12 noon luncheon meeting of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

The meeting is open to the public. Club members are reminded there will be no meeting next week — Thurs., Dec. 27 — because of the Christmas holiday.

Prowlers Host Bemidji Friday

Coming up with a defensive match-up is the chief concern of Lincoln high school basketball coach Glen Peters this week as he readies his team for a 7:30 p.m. Northwest Athletic Conference game against Bemidji Friday in the Lincoln gym.

The Lumberjacks are 1-4 going into a Thursday game at Park Rapids, but the lone victory was a surprising 52-48 win over NWAC favorite Crookston two weeks ago on the Pirates' court. Thief River Falls watched its three-game season-opening winning streak end at Crookston last Friday, 62-55.

Changes might be made this week in Bemidji's all-senior starting line-up, indicated first-year head coach Mel Johnson who has been going with Rob Egersdorf, Tony Murphy, Ron Wolfe, Pat Matuseski and Bob Jensen. However, the changes won't take Egersdorf and Murphy out of the line-up since they've been the Lumberjacks' only consistent scorers. Egersdorf scored 18 points and Murphy had 16 in a 65-61 loss at the hands of Wadena Saturday. The Indians won that one by hitting 25 of 34 free throws while Bemidji went 9-for-18 at the line.

It's defending Egersdorf and Murphy that concerns Peters. "We've got one good defensive player Jim Nyland," pointed out Peters.

Northwest Conference

	NWAC w	NWAC l	All w	All l
Fergus Falls	1	0	4	2
Crookston	1	1	3	3
Bemidji	1	1	1	4
East Grand Forks	0	0	4	2
Thief River Falls	0	1	3	1

"We'll put him on the Egersdrof. But who do I put on Murphy? He'll choose among Todd Young, Greg Miller, Mark Schmitke, Kyle Hams and Gregg Peterson.

Thief River Falls lost its NWAC opener at Crookston because they committed 32 turnovers. The Prowlers lose the ball 32 times this week and they'll more than likely find themselves 0-2 in the NWAC.

"We've got to try to correct our mistakes," acknowledged Peters. "If we do that it shoud be a good game."

A Thief River Falls-Bemidji basketball game normally brings out the best in the Prowlers, said Peters. "Our kids get motivated to play Bemidji; they like to play the Lumberjacks."

Early season NWAC leader Fergus Falls, beaten by Breckenridge 86-66 last week, will be at Pelican Rapids Thursday and then tackles Moorhead Friday. A 65-53 loser to Grand Forks Central last week, East Grand Forks will host Breckenridge Friday.

LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL junior Marty Pluth finished third in the 500-yard freestyle during Tuesday's Thief River Falls-Bemidji dual meet swimming competition in the Franklin middle school pool. Pluth swam the event in 6:27.3. The Lumberjacks were easy 97-72 winners over the Prowlers.

Lumberjacks Swamp LHS Swimmers 97-72

Bemidji won nine of 11 events Tuesday to record an easy 97-72 dual meet swimming victory over Thief River Falls in the Franklin middle school pool.

The loss wasn't unexpected by Thief River Falls coach John Kopari who said before the meet started, "If we stay within 20 points, I'll be happy."

Jerry Will, Russ Fitzgerald and Rick Fitzgerald were all double event winners for the Lumberjacks and all three were on the winning 400-yard freestyle relay team that closed out the one-sided meet.

"I just don't think we can beat them," said Kopari after the swimming that opened dual meet competition for both teams. Bemidji beat out Thief River Falls Saturday to win the season-opening Prowler relays title. "We tried a few different things today, but Bemidji has some kids who can swim anywhere."

Dan Schoonhoven, a Thief River Falls co-captain, earned the only individual win of the meet for the Prowlers with a 1:04.5 in the 100-yard backstroke.

Schoonhoven was also on the Prowlers' 200-yard medley relay team, along with Tom Eckstein, Steve Poissant and Jon Pinkerton, that opened the meet with a 1:54.0 victory.

With that win in the 200 yard medley relay and a 2-3-4 finish in the 200-yard freestyle by Pinkerton, Mark Isaacson and Marty Pluth behind Will, the Prowlers actually had a 21-9 lead on the scoreboard after two events.

But Rick Fitzgerald led a 1-2-3 Bemidji sweep in the 200-yard individual medley and the Lumberjacks broke a 31-31 tie when the Prowlers were without divers Scott Loehr and Jeff Rosetta.

Bemidji also looked impressive in beating Thief River Falls 110-60 in junior high competition.

Thief River Falls will be idle until Sat., Jan. 5, when the Prowlers will swim in an invitational meet at International Falls.

Irv Smith . . .

NCC Football Coach Resigns

Irv Smith announced Tuesday that he has resigned as Northland community college football coach. He made the public announcement this week after handing his resignation to college president Alex Easton Dec. 4.

Smith, who three weeks ago left his classroom assignment at Northland to become the college recruiter, will be leaving the school Friday.

"The primary reason I'm leaving is financial," said Smith who figures he took about a $15,000 cut in income when he left teaching, coaching and business opportunities in California to become Northland football coach in 1978. He was in the second year of a two-year contract here. "I was going to stay for next (football) season, but I decided not to reapply for the job and resign early," he said.

Smith and the Northland football program have been the attention of newspaper articles recently in the Miami Herald, Grand Forks Herald and Minneapolis Tribune concerning Smith's recruiting efforts that brought 26 players from the Miami, Fla. area to Northland this fall. The articles dealt with the player's unhappiness with their new surroundings and their wholesale departure midway through the 1979-80 school year.

But Smith said that situation and the bad press the school received did not produce his resignation.

"Obviously some other factors are involved besides money," mentioned Smith. "I guess if we were undefeated and everybody was happy I would probably stay. But those things in themselves were not the reason I resigned. It seems to me the members of the out-of-town press were more upset with our out-of-state players than anybody else. As far as I was concerned, I didn't think the community as a whole was upset."

Two years as Northland coach produced a 5-11 coaching record for Smith who arrived too late to do much recruiting for the 1978 season when the Northmen finished 2-6 in their third year of intercollegiate football. This fall Smith brought in 72 student-athletes and finished 3-6 the school's best finish on the football field.

"I'm not sorry I came here," pointed out Smith. "I'm not a bitter man."

Although there is no definite job awaiting him at this time, Smith and his wife will be leaving shortly for Nevada. "That's a growing area and there are a lot of job opportunities there," he pointed out.

Red River Stuns Roseau 9-1 Tuesday . . .

Prowlers Rout Bemidji 8-2; Host Roughriders Saturday

Jeff Ulrich, who collected a third period hat trick Saturday in Thief River Falls' 6-1 win at Fergus Falls, didn't wait that long Tuesday before unloading against Bemidji as the senior wing scored three first period goals to lead the Prowlers past the Lumberjacks 8-2 in a Section 8 high school hockey game played in the Bemidji State University John Glas Fieldhouse.

Thief River Falls' third straight win of the 1979-80 season sets the stage for an interesting Saturday match in the sports arena when the Prowlers will tackle Grand Forks Red River, a surprisingly easy 9-1 win over Roseau last night. The 3-3 Roughriders exploded for six first period goals to snap a three-game losing streak at the expense of the Rams, considered by many as co-favorite — along with Thief River Falls — in Section 8 hockey this winter.

Ulrich finished Tuesday night with four goals and an assist, with the Ulrich-Wade Hoppe-Jim Thompson forward line producing six goals and 14 points for the night.

"They (Ulrich, Hoppe, Thompson) had an excellent game — again," praised Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "They're very patient. We expect them to have a good year. They're good hockey players; and they're seniors; and they've been playing together for a long time."

Ulrich's honest-to-goodness, uninterrupted hat trick supplied the Prowlers with a 3-0 first period advantage that Bemidji never challenged.

"We played very well in the first period," pointed out Grand, "and that set the tempo for the rest of the game."

Goals by Hoppe and sophomore defenseman Steve Olson made it 5-0 in the second period before Bemidji's Bob Dow scored twice in a two-mintue span midway through the period.

But Ulrich closed out the second period scoring, with Hoppe and Bob Fitzgerald completing the rout in the third period.

Thief River Falls junior varsity kept pace with the varsity by winning 11-2 for a 3-0 record.

First Period

Scoring — TRF, Jeff Ulrich (Wade Hoppe), 3:01; TRF, Ulrich (Hoppe, Scott Wiebolt), 10:16; TRF, Ulrich (un.), 13:42.

Penalties — TRF, Bob Fitzgerald, tripping, 3:31; Bemidji, Brian Murphy, tripping, 4:37; Bemidji, Brian Olson, interference, 11:30.

Saves — TRF, Bill Jury 4; Bemidji, Gaylen Nagle 12.

Second Period

Scoring — TRF, Hoppe (Ulrich, Jim Thompson), :13; TRF, Steve Olson (Thompson), 6:59; Bemidji, Bob Dow (Hank Rossiter), 7:55; Bemidji, Dow (George Hede), 9:52; TRF, Ulrich (Hoppe, Thompson), 11:14.

Penalties — none.

Saves — TRF, Jury 13; Bemidji, Nagle 6.

Third Period

Scoring — TRF, Hoppe (Thompson), :27; TRF, Bob Fitzgerald (Paul Drees, Tom Bjorkman), 10:09.

Penalties — Bemidji, Murphy, tripping, 2:09; TRF, Fitzgerald, holding, 3:39; Bemidji, Hede, roughing, 13:15; TRF, Hoppe, roughing, 13:15.

Saves — TRF, Jeff Mongoven 10, TRF game total 27; Bemidji, Nagel 5, game total 23.

Northland, Waseca, Bottineau, Lakewood

Northmen Host Arctic Basketball Tournament

For the first time in history, host Northland community college will not be the defending champion this weekend when the Northmen stage their seventh annual Arctic Cat holiday basketball tournament. That, however, doesn't mean they aren't the pre-tournament favorite. With a 7-0 record, Northland matches the victory total of the other four teams combined heading into Friday's opening round session that will have Lakewood playing Bottineau at 7 p.m. and Northland meeting Waseca at 9.

Friday losers will play in Saturday's third place game at 1 p.m., followed by the championship game at 3.

Bottineau enters as the defending champion after ending Northland's five-year title reign with a 97-85 victory over the Northmen in last year's Arctic Cat championship game. And the Lumberjacks return 1978 tournament MVP Brad Onarheim, a 6-3½ center who is complemented in the front line this year by 6-3 freshman Kevin Omundson who is scoring 16 points and pulling down 12 rebounds per game.

Still, Bottineau is only 3-6 with wins over unfamiliar teams like Newburg 93-64, Northwest Bible 129-69 and Williston 93-64 and losses at the hands of Miles City, Mont. 91-77 and 109-92, Trinity 89-73, Lake Region 80-72, North Dakota State School of Science 73-62 and Dawson, Mont. 103-87.

Waseca, last year's Arctic Cat consolation champion when the Rams beat Lakewood 92-65 after losing to Bottineau 93-80, is 1-5 after opening the year with tough road trip losses at Anoka-Ramsey 88-78, Waldorf, Ia. 94-72 and Golden Valley Lutheran 105-84. They also lost to Lakewood 81-77 and North Hennepin 105-84 while beating Inver Hills 81-75.

Tom Busack, a 6-6 sophomore averages 20.5 points and 13 rebounds per game for Waseca, with 6-4 sophomore Brooks Bennett also scoring in double figures.

Lakewood, beaten 92-70 in the first round of last year's Arctic Cat tournament, took a 3-4 record into a Tuesday game against Vermilion. The Lancers own wins over Austin 71-60, Waseca 81-77 and defending MJCAA state champion Willmar 72-66. They've lost to Mesabi 75-64, Fergus Falls 80-64 and Worthington 84-66.

With four players averaging in double figures, Northland has rolled to seven straight wins over the Northland alumni 102-85, University of Winnipeg junior varsity 115-72, Red River alumni 113-87, Winnipeg Spaghetti Factory 82-74, Trinity 79-76 and 90-65 and the University of North Dakota junior varsity 87-58.

Freshman center Terry Harris leads the Northmen with a 23.3 scoring average and 14.6 rebounds per game, along with 29 blocked shots and 32 loose ball recoveries. Sophomore guard Vince Parker is scoring 19.9 points per game and is also averaging 4.6 assists each outing.

Tony Smith is scoring 11.7 points per game for the Northmen and Lyndell Knight average 10.6 points and 9.5 rebounds. The two freshmen are the Northmen forwards. Freshman Dave Spildo has been joining Parker in the backcourt to complete the Northland starting line-up, with Mike Carriere, Craig Pietruszewski and Chris Kays seeing extensive playing time.

Coby Burslie

Burslie Named To All-State 9-Man Squad

Recent post-season meeting of the Minnesota high school nine-man football coaches produced a 1979 all-state football team that included McIntosh-Winger runningback Coby Burslie, a 5-10, 180-pound senior who led the Scots to a 10-2 record, a North Tri County Conference title and a berth in the semifinals of the state playoffs.

A four-year letter winner, Burslie rushed for 1,255 yeards on 195 carries and scored 164 points on 26 touchdowns and four conversions this fall. He also caught 15 passes for 229 yards, returned 17 punts for 232 yards and returned 10 kickoffs for 253 yards. In addition, he played linebacker and cornerback on defense.

Burslie was named the most valuable back in the North Tri County Conference this fall.

Receiving honorable mention status on the 1979 nine-man all-state football team were North Tri County Conference players Ray Vaa, a 6-0, 185-pound offensive tackle and defensive end from McIntosh-Winger; Allen Vettleson, a 5-10, 205-pound tackle from Oklee; Rick Hopperstad, a 5-11, 185-pound quarterback from Gonvick-Trail; and Kevin Fischer, a 6-3, 210-pound end from Gonvick-Trail.

NCC Plans Cross Country Ski Clinic

A cross country ski clinic will be conducted on the Northland community college campus at no charge on Sat., Jan. 12, at 10 a.m. with registration of participants in the student commons room.

Sponsoring this instructional workshop will be Northland community college in cooperation with the regional environmental education council.

Jerry Winans who has conducted previous ski clinics will be the principal instructor. He will be assisted by other known area skiers.

Clinic instruction will include skiing techniques necessary for all types of conditions, ski equipment and clothing, ski waxing and winter camping while skiing. Instruction will be for beginners and also for people who are interested in brushing up on their skills for the upcoming skiing season. If enough interest is shown, a local cross-country ski club will also be organized at this clinic.

"The clinic will provide an opportunity for persons with an interest in skiing from beginners to "old pros" to get together, share information and exchange future activities" said John Steidl, coordinator of the clinic.

Parker, Harris Lead Northmen Past Sioux

A one-two punch delivered by Vince Parker and Terry Harris floored the University of North Dakota junior varsity Monday as the Northland community college basketball team rolled to an easy 87-58 victory in the UND fieldhouse at Grand Forks.

Parker, with 31 points, and Harris, with 27, equalled the Sioux point total. Lyndell Knight led a half-dozen other Northland scorers with 13 points. The Sioux, who played Yankton college in the feature game immediately following the Northland contest, used a pair of varsity reserves against the Northmen, with 6-3 guard Jim Gustafson scoring 17 points and 6-11 Mark Thiesen getting 10, along with a handful of blocked shots.

It was the seventh straight victory for the unbeaten Northmen, and coach Chet Engelman is impressed. "We're getting better every game we play, and I've never had a team that I could say that about seven games into the season. We continue to improve. In fact, in the second half I just sat back and enjoyed it. It was like watching a chorus line the way we were moving our feet on defense."

That good-looking Northland defense forced 38 North Dakota turnovers. The Northmen lost the ball just 15 times.

Northland also had the edge in the shooting department, hitting 35 of 85 field goals for 41 per cent and sinking 17 of 22 free throws. North Dakota made 21 of 64 field goals for 33 per cent and sank 16 of 22 free throws. With Thiesen in the middle, the Sioux held a 59-45 rebound advantage.

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

Thief River Falls Squirt A hockey team improved its record to 2-1 with an 8-1 victory over Bemidji on a Sunday afternoon contest at the sports arena.

The Squirts led 2-0 after one period on goals by Kent Hamre and Jeff Grand, then moved out to a 6-1 second period lead as Steve McGann and Hamre scored twice. Those two scored again in the third period for an 8-1 final. Thief River Falls goalie Shayne Anderson was called on to make just 13 saves while Bemidji's Eric Runningen was kept busy with 36 shots.

Elsewhere, the Squirt B team opened its 1979-80 season with a 4-1 loss to Bagley, Pee-Wee A team lost to Bemidji 7-0, Bantam A team five-game unbeaten string was snapped by Bemidji 6-4 and the Bantam B team beat Crookston 6-2 as Lon Aune scored twice and Eric Henderson collected three assists.

Saturday games in Thief River Falls will feature Moorhead opponents as the Bantam B team faces Moorhead at 1 p.m. and the Bantam A team takes the ice at 3 in the sports arena while the Pee-Wee A team goes against Moorhead at 1 o'clock in the old arena.

In Sunday's only game, the Bantam A team hosts Grafton at 3:15 p.m. in the sports arena.

Squirt B team will be the only Thief River Falls team on the road this weekend, playing a 1 p.m. game at Bagley Saturday.

Nordics Rout Skippers In Girls Basketball

Unbeaten Marshall County Central turned in a coach-pleasing performance Monday to record a surprisingly easy 55-25 win over rival Middle River in a girls high school basketball game played at Newfolden.

"We really played well," explained winning coach Tom Mjelde. "It was by far our best game of the year. The girls really hustled."

It was never a contest as Marshall County Central began with a 14-4 first quarter lead, took a 20-9 cushion into halftime and then really buried Middle River by slapping on a full-court press at the start of the second half that produced turnovers and eight points in a quick 30-second flurry.

The game was advertised as a meeting between high-scoring Rosalyn Knutson of the Nordics and Dawn Nelson of the Skippers. Well, Nelson was held to 12 points and fouled out of the game, and no other Middle River scorer finished with more than four points. On the other hand, Knutson's 15 points were complemented by scoring from Jill Johnson, who had a game-high 17 points, and Sue Olson with 11.

"I was really pleased with the entire team effort," said Mjelde whose 5-0 Nordics will be idle until Mon., Jan. 7, when they host Warroad.

Middle River, now 4-2 after opening the season with four straight wins, will entertain Grygla Thursday before the holiday break.

Grygla 54 Badger 20

Grygla coach Bill Radeunz might have had the understatement of the year when he said his team was "improving" on its man-to-man defense. If the Eagles get any better at it they may earn a basketball shutout. Monday they held Badger to six points in the first half — a single point in the second quarter — en route to a 54-20 win and a 4-0 record.

Sherri Anderson and Jill Saurdiff scored 15 and 13 points, respectively, for the Eagles who led at the quarter stops 11-5, 27-6 and 41-14.

Grygla will be at Middle River Thursday and will host Hallock Friday before going into the holidays.

WTBS Plans 28 SEC, ACC Telecasts

With the college football season at its end, college sports fans will be turning their attention to basketball, and WTBS-TV in Atlanta's channel 17, once again broadcasts games from the Southeastern and Atlantic Coast Conferences. A total of 28 games are scheduled, including championship tournaments from both conferences all the way through the finals.

The SEC and ACC are two of the most respected conferences in the NCAA. No fewer than five teams are ranked nationally in the top 20. All of the national polls rank North Carolina and Duke of the ACC, and LSU of the SEC in the top 10. Virginia (ACC) and Kentucky (SEC) are included in the top 20.

Announcers for ACC basketball will include the veteran commentators Billy Packer and Jim Thacker, as well as Bones McKinney and Jeff Mullins. Jay Randolph will announce SEC games.

Free Throws Give MCC 50-46 Win At Grygla

Free throws — 20 of them — lifted Marshall County Central past upset-minded Grygla 50-46 Tuesday in a North Border Conference high school basketball game played at Grygla.

The winless Eagles outscored the Nordics by 12 points from the field, but were given only 11 free throw opportunities, hitting four of them. Marshall County Central, on the other hand, was 20-for-35 in a busy night at the free throw line.

But Grygla coach Jerry Maki put none of the blame on the officials for the free throw discrepancy. "There was nothing wrong with the officiating," said Maki. "They (Grygla) were hustling and just got called for fouls, that's all."

Grygla played for favored Nordics on even terms for the full 32 minutes, owning a 13-12 first quarter lead, holding on to a 24-23 halftime edge and taking a 34-35 advantage into the first period.

"Our team really hustled," praised Maki. "If a guy has to be happy with a loss, then this would be the loss he'd be happy with."

Randy Larson scored a game-high 20 ppoints for the Eagles, with teammate Gene Lunsetter getting 10. With 16 points, Dan Maki was the only Marshall County Central scorer in double figures, but Dan Engen, Scott Peters and Ray Kvalvog all had eight points and Brian Skadsem seven in a balanced attach by the Nordics who improved their record to 4-2 with their fourth straight win.

The Nordics will host Greenbush Friday while Grygla, 0-7, will be idle until a January 4-5 road trip that features first-time opponents Toivola-Meadowlands and AlBrook.

Winning Ron Ueland lauded the play of the Eagles. "They played real well. They outplayed us in every facet of the game. They really impressed me for being an 0-7 team," he said.

Turnovers, in addition to the free throws, did in Grygla as the Eagles lost the ball 27 times. The Nordics turned the ball over 16 times.

Middle River 70 Badger 38

Middle River set the state for a Friday night confrontation with Lake of the Woods by drubbing Badger 70-38 Tuesday. The Skippers and Bears will match unbeaten records in the early season North Border Conference showdown in the Middle River gym.

"We're going to need one super game to beat those guys," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby whose Skippers will match their speed and depth against the Bears' vastly taller line-up. "If we can stay with them the first half we have a good chance to beat them. "We've got a better bench and more quickness, and if we can stay with them at the start without getting into foul trouble we'll be all right."

Twelve Skippers scored in Tuesday's one-sided contest with Jon Neumann getting 16 points, Scott McKeever 15 and Eugene Kaml 10. Bob Dostal scored 21 of the 38 Badger points.

"The kids are playing pretty decent basketball," said Sparby about his 7-0 Skippers.

In Memoriam

In Memory of Perry Buchholz who joined the Lord 2 years ago, December 19, 1977.

No further away than a picture
A smile or remembered phrase,
Our loved ones live in memory
So close in so many ways.
For how often does a sunset
Bring nostalgic thoughts to mind
Of moments that our loved ones shared
In days now left behind!
How often has a flower,
Or a crystal autumn sky
Brought golden recollections
Of happy days gone by!
Memory has a magic way
Of keeping loved ones near —
Ever close in mind and heart
Are the ones we hold most dear.

Notice of Hearing on Petition For Probate of Will And Appointment of Personal Representative in Undesignated Administration and Notice To Creditors

State of Minnesota
County of Pennington
PROBATE COURT
COUNTY COURT
PROBATE DIVISION

In Re: Estate of Harry T. Storeby, Deceased.

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS:

Notice by publication is hereby given that on the 9th day of January, 1980, at 1:00 o'clock P.M., a hearing will be held in the above named Court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the probate of an instrument purporting to be the Will of the above named decedent, and for the appointment of Vernon Storeby as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent in supervised administration. That, if proper, and no objections are filed, said personal representative will be appointed to administer the estate, to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes, and expenses, and sell real and personal property, and do all necessary acts for the estate. Upon completion of the administration, the representative shall file a final account for the allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the Court, and close the estate.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Clerk of the Court within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

Dated December 18, 1979.

ENERGY UPDATE

MUST WE DEPEND ON NUCLEAR POWER TO MEET OUR ENERGY NEEDS?

By Dr. Chauncey Starr

Dr. Chauncey Starr, Vice Chairman of the Electric Power Research Institute, is also a member of the Energy Advisory Committee of the Office of Technology Assessment.

Dr. Chauncey Starr

Even if we could double the amount of coal we use, even if we increased the amount of solar to the uppermost limit of what is technically feasible to do, even if we can keep oil and gas use at their present levels, we still don't see how we're going to supply more than two-thirds of the country's energy needs 20 years from now by all of these means.

Electric utilities have a major public responsibility to provide electric power and they have to plan 40 to 50 years ahead. It takes 10 years to build a power plant of any kind, and that plant must operate for 30 years or so to be economical. So, as they look down the road, electric utilities don't see how they are going to meet the electricity demands of the nation over the next 20 years if they're not permitted to expand nuclear power.

It's becoming very visible not only to government officials and to people in the industry, but also to many members of the general public, that without nuclear power the country has very few alternatives. We either have to increase the importation of oil, which may not even be possible in view of the limited capacity of the oil-producing countries, or we must accept major reductions in the growth of our economy. Increased oil imports are certainly not desirable from a foreign policy point of view, and we're already experiencing a turndown of the economy that is due, in large part, to our reliance on imports of oil.

To those of us who have been in the electric industry for a long time, there is no doubt that the nuclear technology can be made as safe as we need to make it. It's very easy to detect radiation and very easy to contain it. We've demonstrated that ability over and over again. From the industry's point of view, there's no doubt that nuclear power can be made completely safe.

What we're saying is that even with everything that can be done in the way of conservation, everything that can be withstood in the way of slowing the economy, and with all of the alternative sources of energy we can muster—we still must have nuclear power if we are going to meet the growing electricity demands of this country.

mothers and babies

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS

It is not unusual around the age of two for a child to talk to himself and refer to himself in the third person. This is just a stage in his development and usually not a cause for parental alarm.

At about two years old most children start to show an interest in dressing themselves. One thing that can encourage this is colorful clothes, such as this sleeper from Mothercare, retailing specialists for mothers-to-be, babies and children under five. Made of heavy, brushed-knit polyester, it comes with a double row of snaps and turn-back cuffs to allow for growth.

Parents can help prevent a child's anxiety about sleeping in a bed if they let her nap in the bed but spend the night in the crib for awhile.

You can find some fine clothes for youngsters, babies and their mothers in the Mothercare catalogue, available from Mothercare, Box 3881, New York, N.Y. 10017.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q: If a veteran leaves his National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) dividend on deposit or credit with the Veterans Administration, at what rate will it accrue interest?

A: As of January 1, 1979, the NSLI interest rate is 5¾ per cent.

Q: Is tutorial assistance the same under the VA educational assistance program and the VA vocational rehabilitation program?

A: No. Tutorial assistance is limited to $69 per month for a maximum of $828. Under the vocational rehabilitation program, the extent of assistance needed is determined on an individual basis by the VA, school staff and the veteran. Payment is based on the amount of time the veteran needs and the background and qualifications of the tutor.

Q: Must a member of the armed forces accept the $20,000 Servicemen's Group Life Insurance coverage?

A: No. A service person may choose (in writing) to be covered for a lesser amount or not to be covered at all.

Q: I am a Vietnam-era veteran who is unable to find employment. Am I eligible for unemployment compensation?

A: Generally, a veteran with 90 days or more continuous active service is entitled to unemployment benefits under federal law. Contact your local state employment office for specific eligibility requirements.

Q: What is the required standard of school conduct and progress required of a veteran receiving GI Bill educational assistance?

A: The veteran must maintain satisfactory conduct and progress in accordance with standards and policies of the educational institution he attends.

Q — Will the Veterans Administration make sure that a home bought by a veteran with a VA guaranteed loan is free from defects?

A — VA does not have the legal authority to guarantee that a home is free of defects. The government guarantees the loan but it cannot under the law guarantee the house.

Q — I am enrolled in school under the GI Bill. I need an education loan. Can I get a loan from the Veterans Administration?

A — Yes, if certain requirements are met. The maximum amount is $2,500 during any one academic year.

Q — As a disabled Vietnam Veteran, what are my chances of employment with the federal government?

A — The U.S. has a policy of promoting maximum job opportunities within the federal government for qualified disabled veterans. Veterans may inquire at any Veterans Administration regional office, but more specific information may be obtained by contacting the Federal Job Information Centers of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management.

Q — How are GI insurance dividends computed?

A — Dividends are based on the face amount and plan of insurance, length of time in force, age of insured, and number of months for which premiums are paid during the policy year.

Q — I receive a pension from the Veterans Administration. Since I am over 65, I am automatically considered disabled. Does my age mean that I am also exempt from having to report income increases that might affect my pension?

A — No. Your VA pension is based on the amount of total income you receive and you must report increases. This is true even though you remain under the "old" law and do not receive an income questionnaire from VA upon having attained the age of 72.

Q — Can closing costs be included in the amount of money the government guarantees for a GI home loan?

A — No. All such costs must be paid in cash.

Q — I am a GI Bill student in need of some help from a tutor and I understand the Veterans Administration provides such. Will these extra payments reduce the GI Bill time I have coming to me.

A — No. VA will pay up to $69 a month for tutoring, to a maximum amount of $828, with no charge against your basic entitlement to training.

Q — How long after the death of a veteran does a survivor have to request a burial allowance from the Veterans Administration?

A — The claim must be filed within two years after the veteran's permanent burial or cremation. This may be done at the nearest VA regional office.

Faver Becomes New Assistant Co. Attorney

Tim Faver

Tim Faver, a May graduate of the William Mitchell college of law in St. Paul with a J.D. degree, has become associated with David Olin of Thief River Falls as assistant county attorney. He began his legal practice here December 1.

Faver's father was a career man in the U.S. air force and Tim lived in several areas of the world. He was born at Washington, D.C., moved to Alabama with his parents at the age of seven and then to Europe from age eight to 11. He returned to live in Texas, then graduated from high school in Washington, D.C. His mother and maternal grandparents are from the Bemidji area.

Faver attended Moorhead state university, graduating in 1975 with a BA degree in political science and history, then entered law school. He is married to the former Betty Hundell of Bemidji, who holds a degree in art education from Bemidji state university and taught in 1975 and 1976 school years in Grygla.

The new assistant county attorney has an interest in antiques and enjoys upland bird hunting.

Yoshiko Duke Travels Home For Christmas

Yoshiko did not go to high school like most children do in Japan after the sixth grade, she said.

"I was the top student in sixth grade out of a class of over 60 students," she said. "But our home-life was not the best at that time. The economy was bad. We had to borrow a school building to conduct school, and chairs and desks were donated to us. It was my father who told me not to go to high school for these reasons. So I read a lot. I learned a lot from books."

She went to sewing school when she was 17. And, when she and her husband were first married, she made all of their clothes — even winter coats, which she has since learned are vital assets in northern Minnesota.

Yoshiko has finally come to enjoy the winter weather here, she said.

"I am used to it now. When we first moved here, I rarely went outside. I just sat in the house and became very depressed."

She said she would enjoy learning how to ice skate and roller skate now that she is accustomed to the weather here. It snows once or twice a year in Tokyo, she said, but the snow melts right away. But the northern section of Japan is as cold as northwestern Minnesota, she said.

Yoshiko knew no real "Santa Claus" when she was a child. But when she was 20 she came to know a Santa Claus (at least her version of who he was) as she sneaked through the house on Christmas eve, placing socks and mittens above the heads of her sister and brother who lay asleep on the floor.

The Japanese do have Christmas trees now, according to Yoshiko. Some people even exchange gifts. Yoshiko learned mainly of Santa Claus by reading about him, she said.

Christmas for the first five years Yoshiko was in the United States was very unhappy for her.

"Everything was so different from in Japan and I missed home and my family. But after five years I grew to like it, especially after our children were born."

Although things may have changed greatly since Yoshiko was last in Japan, she said that many of the Japanese customs may still remain. Japanese families all slept on the floor when she was young, she said. Each individual would make his or her bed before they went to bed, and then would pick it up and put it away in the morning. Many blankets, quilts and sheets would be used to keep warm during the night.

"They may have better heating systems now," she said. "But when I was young, the only heating element we had in our homes was a hibachi. We would often sit by it to warm our hands, and when no one was near we would put our feet by it to warm them. We wouldn't do this when we had visitors, because many believe feet are not always clean."

The family had no refrigerator, she said. The temperature in the house kept the food cold enough. Quilts were often worn during the day to keep warm.

The Japanese custom of removing the shoes before entering someone's home may still be found, she said. It was the custom too, to greet and bow to each other before kneeling while the hostess made food or tea for the visitors right way.

"The Japanese people are more reserved than Americans are," she said. "Americans seem more outgoing and friendly."

Christmas day was not special for most people in Japan, she said. Some people celebrated by going to eat at restaurants or going to drink at bars. There are very few Christians in Japan. The two main religious there are Shintoism and Buddhism. Shintoism maintains the belief or devotion to natural forces, such as the wind, fire or rain. Buddhism, on the other hand, grows out of the teachings of Buddha, and is concerned with a life that continues, repeatedly altering itself into life forms on earth. A sect of the Buddhism religion, which began 18 years ago, had modernized the religion and the ways of the people, she said.

Three or four months ago Yoshiko believes she became an ideal Christian, she said. Eight years ago she took religious classes that she says brought her salvation. After suffering several breakdowns, she believes she has found God and the Faith she needs.

"I was away from my Japanese family and I was struggling to be a good wife and mother," she said. "So many times I didn't know what to do with myself."

Yoshiko also believes in reincarnation, she said. Not from human to inanimate objects but from human to human.

"I feel I have lived here before, but I believe this life is my last time on earth," she said.

Unlike Americans, Japanese are not given a Christian name until they die. The first and last names of Japanese people have meanings behind them, she said. "Yoshiko" means good child, while her last name, Azama, means to relax and sit down between steps.

"My meaning for these two definitions," she said, "is for me to relax between my country of Japan and the United States, and to relax between Buddhism and Christianity. I think I have done both of these."

Yoshiko is anxious to see her mother, she said. Mrs. Azama is presently working in a hamburger stop in Hiroshima.

"It may even be a McDonald's restaurant," she said. "They have McDonald's, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Pepsi-Cola bottling and other companies there just like in America," she said...

"My mother is a strong woman, especially after giving birth to nine children," Yoshiko said.

Yoshiko has four brothers and two sisters. Two of her sisters, as well as her father, have died.

"It is the custom for Japanese parents to move in with their first son," Yoshiko said. "The elderly are never left alone once all the children have left home."

Yoshiko will be in Japan during the new year celebration — a day that is celebrated more in Japan than in the United States, she said. During the celebration many people wear kimonos, especially the women.

"Mother would always cook way ahead of time so that there would be plenty to eat on New Year's day."

People go visiting and take gifts along with them to give neighbors and friends.

"I don't know if this has changed or not since I was last in Japan," she said.

A favorite dish during the New Year celebration is rice cake, usually made December 31, the day before the New Year. It is made with special sticky rice that is steamed and then pounded with sticks. Red beans and sugar are mixed together and placed inside the cake. Complementing the cake is sake' — a rice wine, often warmed before it is served in small cups.

"It is very strong," Yoshiko said. "People usually celebrate the new year for one, two or three days or for as long as they want. Some go as long as 15 days."

Cathy Spengler of Thief River Falls, a friend of Yoshiko's, had a going away party for Yoshiko Thursday to raise money for her long journey. Twenty-five people attended and $42 was raised for the trip. (Cookies and candy were also given to Yoshiko for her to take along to Japan so that her family in Thief River Falls could eat Yoshiko's Christmas baking while she was away).

She also received $20 from the Eastern Star division of the Mason lodge, $20 from her circle (which is to be used for souvenirs), and $18 from Arctic Enterprises in Karlstad where Yoshiko has been employed since April 10, 1978 to earn and save money for her trip to Japan, she said. The collection was started by Mrs. Marie Erlandson. Phil Hess of Thief River Falls also gave Yoshiko a plaque of the old depot and train in Thief River Falls to give to a friend in Japan.

Yoshiko's family will be traveling to South Dakota for Christmas, she said. She would like to be with them at Christmas but she chose this time to return to Japan rather than during the summer so she could stay four weeks instead of three. She had been planning the trip for a long time, and had planned on taking her family with her. But she found out this would be too expensive and now she is on lay-off from her job, and since her children have to stay in school, she will go alone.

"I believe this trip will begin a new life for my future," she said. "I've waited to take this trip with my children, but now I have decided to go alone. I believe God wanted me to go alone to see how my husband can manage without me alone with our children."

When Yoshiko returns from her visit she plans to teach Japanese at the United Methodist church in Thief River Falls. She has forgotten much of the language herself, she said, and would like to refresh her won memory. The language is one of the easiest languages to learn, she said.

Yoshiko would like her children to learn the language also. And how about her husband?

"No, I don't think he'd be interested," she said. "He has enough other jobs to do. He knows how to say one thing in Japanese now, the first thing he ever learned how to say to me, and that's all he really needs to know — wa ta shi wa a na ta o ta ku sa n a i shi ma su," she said, with no trouble at all. "It means 'I love you very much.'"

The Japanese language is backward when tanslated into English, Yoshiko said. So, to American, the previous stamement would read, 'I you very much love.' But even with the differences in people between the two countries and with the different languages, we can see that meanings often remain the same everywhere.

High School Looks At '70's

of our state to the values association with activities which can accrue throughout an individual's lifetime. Increased emphasis on personal health and fitness is growing at the high school level and continuing through the adult years.

As we examine our past and look to the future, the MSHSL is proud of past accomplishments, but is continuing to reexamine its commitments and goals.

Much has been accomplished but there's much still to be done as we await the dawn of another decade. Undoubtedly, like previous decades, it will have a character all its own, a character that will bear the marks of adversity and change, but without mutual efforts, will have provided the young men and women of Minnesota with that singularly unique experience of being challenged to "be a winner".

Jury Finds Boman Guilty of Manslaughter

said there is no mathematical certainty required and the law does not provide for a finding beyond any or all doubt whatsoever. "You are reasonable people," he said, "and your decision should be made without passion, emotion or prejudice."

He summarized the four possible guilty verdicts of first, second or third degree murder and first degree manslaughter. Premeditation can be a short period of time, he said and recalled events leading up to the shooting. He said the defendant had told Duane Morben's wife that his (Paul's) wife Colleen and Duane were having an affair. He related Duane to the breakup of his marriage, the attorney said, and told Colleen's younger sister in a telephone call that he was so mad at Duane he could kill him. He also called the Morben trailer by phone before going there shortly before 3:30 a.m.

Coleman emphasized the presence of an eye witness, Colleen Boman, who was in the living room of the trailer at the time of the shooting and testified that Paul Boman was not within her area of vision when she saw Duane Morben fall. He said her testimony had been consistent throughout.

He attempted to discredit witnesses Stanton Berg, firearms expert who had conducted tests for the defense, and Butch Fanfulik, who had handloaded shotgun shells which may have been used in the shooting. He said Berg made his tests without knowing the number of pellets, type of wad, amount of powder or brand of shell involved in the fatal shot, and that Fanfulik had handloaded shells for test firing in accordance with his memory of handloads he had made two years previously.

Regarding intent, he said, "You don't aim a 12 gauge shotgun loaded with 00 buck and with your finger on the trigger without intending to kill that person." Accusing the defense of attempts to make the case dark and murky, he said such attempts "don't change the fact of what the defendant did."

Terming the defendant's suicide threat a "ploy", Coleman said Boman had gone to the Morben trailer with the shotgun loaded with three shells. There were no signs of a struggle, he said. Noting that Boman had professed his love for Colleen, Coleman said people often hurt those who they love most.

"The defendant knows how to hurt Colleen Boman," Coleman told the jury. He cited earlier suicide threats by the defendant, his conversation with Colleen's mother a short time before the shooting in which he said he would commit suicide in front of Colleen, and comments to Colleen's sister who visited him in jail that "your sister will live through hell because of this".

He cautioned the jury not to set standards of morality. "Duane Morben is not on trial here today; his time has come," Coleman said. "Colleen Boman is not on trial here. . .The state is not looking for winners in this case. What the state is looking for is justice."

Defense Statement

Defense attorney Douglas Thomson opened his statement by telling the jury that the case heard in four days of testimony is the best example in American history of why the American justice system has a presumption of innocence. He said it shows what happens when people think in conclusions and attempt to twist and distort facts to make them fit the conclusion.

He said he attempted to approach the case in a spirit of fairness and moderation, and asked the jury to consider whether the prosecution had proven beyond a reasonable doubt any one of the four areas of conviction.

He again emphasized that the jury is the sole judge of the facts of the case and that the judge is the exclusive authority on the law. He said the jury system "gives life and breath to our Constitution" and asked the jury to give full credence to the presumption of innocence and proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

Pointing out that the forces on the side of the prosecution were all channeled to secure a conviction, he said that the courtroom does not belong to the attorney general's office, bureau of criminal apprehension, sheriff's department, police department, judge or attorneys. "This courtroom belongs to you, the 12 members of the jury, and to the defendant," he said.

Only the presumption of innocence stands between the defendant and the onslaught of the forces directed toward securing a conviction, Thomson said. A courtroom holds an aura of guilt rather than a presumption of innocence, he said, and it is not an easy task to presume innocence once the seed of suspicion has been planted.

In this case it has been easy to jump to conclusions, the defense attorney told the jury. Criticizing the investigation of the shooting, he said that if anything is obvious about the case it is that nobody has taken the time to fully investigate it. "Let's not blindly accept conclusions," he said.

He again noted that the burden of proof lies with the prosecution, not the defense. A decision by a jury must be made not on probability but on moral certainty. It must not only be consistent with the theory of guilt but inconsistent with the theory of presumption of innocence, he said.

After reviewing the four areas of possible conviction and the fifth area of acquittal, he cautioned the jury not to "be so cruel as to compromise your verdict. The evidence is either here or it is not here," he said.

Thomson maintained that the state's case, even if taken completely at face value, has no manifestation of the defendant's intent to kill. "Although Paul Boman's conduct leaves a lot to be desired," he told the jury, "it was not criminal." He said the investigation leaves a lot to be desired as well, and that there is no reason Paul Boman should suffer because of what was done or not done in the investigation.

Thomson said there was no evidence at any time that the defendant ever threatened anyone, other than the threat to take his own life. He said that the defendant's drinking on the Sunday before the early Monday morning shooting impaired his judgment and lessened his restraints.

The attorney also discounted likelihood that either Colleen Boman or Duane Morben were afraid of the defendant. They did not call police or anyone else after Boman's early morning phone call, he said, and Morben's comment about paying for repairing a hole in the wall after a first shot was fired was not a comment spoken out of fear.

Thomson then suggested that Colleen Boman saw exactly what happened — that she saw Duane Morben grab the shotgun — and that she felt guilty. Knowing that if she told the truth it would exonerate Paul, he suggested, she placed herself in a position to have seen only enough to incriminate him. Her tendency, he proposed to the jury, was to share her feelings of guilt with Paul.

What actually happened is locked in Paul's mind, the attorney said, citing his inability to recall incidents connected with the shooting. The defense attorney pointed to Colleen's statement to police in the early morning following the shooting that "Duane was only trying to protect me" as an indication that she had seen him grab the gun.

He pointed out that a coffee table separating Paul Boman and Morben was only five feet long and that the gun measures 50 inches in length. He reminded the jury that Paul had asked to be alone with Colleen and suggested that when Duane motioned with his head for Colleen to go into the bedroom, Paul had taken a step to follow and Duane had grabbed the gun. "If you have your finger on the trigger and somebody pulls the barrel, the gun is going to go off," he said.

Thomson described the nature of the wound with pellets traveling upward and suggested that two pellets found in the wall, referred to by the prosecution as "strays", could have gone completely through the wound. "Nobody bothered to check them for protein," he said.

He belittled a state witness from the bureau of criminal apprehension for destroying pattern tests, contending that if they had been favorable to the prosecution they would have been offered in evidence. Stating that defense tests showed the shotgun barrel was within three feet of Morben's neck when fired, Thomson cited the pattern tests and said, "The state destroyed their tests; we brought ours here."

He pointed out that the defense has no access to the scene in most actions and reemphasized that the burden of proof had not shifted to the defense. He asked for a verdict that was "honest, just and true" with application of the basic principles of proof beyond a reasonable doubt and presumption of innocence.

"If you return a verdict of not guilty, you will have done justice to one of the state's citizens," he concluded.

Motion for Mistrial

Following presentation of the defense witnesses Monday, attorney Thomson had made a motion for a mistrial based on the defendant's inability to recall events connected with the shooting. He cited testimony by Dr. Scott Bentson, clinical psychologist at Northwestern hospital, that psychological trauma could push unpleasant memory out of mind and that it did not appear to him the defendant attempted to be evasive in answering questions.

He also said the defendant had been interviewed for two hours by Dr. James Stevens on Nov. 13, 1979, under injection of sodium amitol, but was still unable to recollect events as of the time the defense began its case Monday. Because of this, Thomson said, the defendant was unable to participate in his own defense.

Judge Saetre denied the motion for mistrial, pointing out that the case had orifinally been scheduled for trial in September and that such a motion would more properly have been made at the omnibus hearing held in November.

Witnesses called by the defense Monday included Stanton Berg, firearms expert; Marvin Hutchinson and Everett Flesche, former employers of Paul Boman; Mrs. Violet Boman, the defendant's mother; Robert Wold, deputy sheriff; and Dr. Bentson.

In rebuttal the state called Rev. Keith Prekker, who had visited with Colleen and her mother shortly after the shooting; and recalled Colleen Boman to clarify a statement made in her telephone conversation with the defendant's mother about a struggle.

Bills, Fees Adopted At Council Meet

In a preliminary hearing to discuss the changes in the airport layout plan and report back to the council on any information resolved. The present layout plan is completely out of phase." The recommendation carried.

Park board request came to city council members during the meeting for the council to pass a resolution instructing the park and recreation board to adopt a user fee for instructor's fees for recreation activities.

"The park and recreation board has no authority to set the fees," alderman Ole Engelstad said.

"If we provide programs for people we have to have some type of funding," alderman Penning said. "We cannot charge the minor user fees without charging the major user fees. The council should understand that this request would result in a major change in fees for recreational activities, and that the park and recreation board is not asking for more power in taxation."

Following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Penning, and a second by alderman Engelstad, the request to instruct the park and recreation board to adopt a user fee program that recognizes residents and statuses of the participant, with the city to provide the facilities needed, carried.

Council committee assignments for the calendar year 1980 and 1981 were outlined by Mayor Carlson.

"The utilities committee is going to be a very important committee during those years," he said. "It is a committee that will be very busy."

Council members agreed to accept the assignments for the 1980-81 calendar year.

Next special council meeting to begin the new year, was set for January 7 at 7 p.m. in which Robert D. Milne of Milne and associates, Inc. of Minneapolis will meet with city council members to ratify rate admustments for 1980.

In a special city council meeting Monday, council members entered into a contract with the Teamsters local No. 320 and the Police Union No. 8 to accept the ratification of labor negotiations for 1980.

In negotiations for the Teamsters local No. 320, the labor committee of the city council granted $115 across the board per month (66 cents per hour increase) while firemen were granted $137 per month, for a 48 hour week. Amount requested was $1 per hour increase for all steps and classifications.

Requested longevity after five years was one per cent of the salary, after 10 years, two per cent of the salary, after 15 years, three per cent of the salary, after 20 years, four per cent of the salary, and after 25 years, five per cent of the salary. Council members agreed on amounts for longevity to be granted on a monthly basis at — after five years, $5 per month, after 10 years, $10 per month, after 15 years, $15 per month, and after 20 years, $20 per month.

Vacation time after 10 years with one additional day per year to a maximum of 25 work days, and personal leave of three days per year, were not granted. Stand by of four hours for straight time per day that was requested was left unchanged.

Overtime after 12 hours to receive double time was not granted, as well as adjustments per month for the following positions: water department foreman, $200 per month; water department maintenance, $100 per month; water department operator, $50 per month; heavy equipment operator, $250 per month; street department mechanic, $250 per month, with clothing allowance at $15 per month; park department foreman, $250 per month; park department, $250 per month; lineman, $150 per month; meter service, $150 per month; electrician, $150 per month; groundsman, $150 per month; draftsman, $150 per month, and power plant operator, $405 per month.

Full hospitalization and $3,000 for life insurance was left unaltered and the dental plan of $20 per month to be paid by the city was rejected.

Direct salaries for 47 employees resulted in a $66,444 increase from $627,033 in 1979 to $693,477 in 1980; longevity — a $1,475 increase from $2,965 in 1979 to $4,440 in 1980; pension cost PERA-FICA — $7,624 increase, from $71,943 in 1979 to $79,567 in 1980) insurance health-life — a $10,292 increase from $36,944 in 1979 to $47,236 in 1980; work compensation, a $3,526, increase from $33,339 in 1979 to $36,865 in 1980. Package totals are $772,224 in 1979, $861,585 in 1980, resulting in a total increase of $89,361 or 11.57 per cent.

Labor negotiations for the 1980 contract for the police union No. 8 include the following — full hospitalization remained the same; life insurance from $10,000 to $20,000 was granted from $10,000 to $15,000; dental insurance policy with the city to pay $19.70 for the family and $7.65 for single coverage per month, was not granted, with the inclusion that the city will allow pay-roll deductions if employees form their own group. The city will not participate in the premiums, they stated.

Request for longevity — $5 increase at each step remained the same, and the health plan with the city to pay ½ of the health insurance for retired employees was not granted. The request for the shift differential with the city to pay 25 cents per hour for hours from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. was not granted.

Request for pay increases with the cost of living using Twin City indexes from October 1978 to October 1979, plus seven per cent across the board of the top patrolman's pay (from $1,226 to $1,459, with a $233 per month increase) was granted at $115 across the board per month for the pay increase.

Request for the adjustment the teamsters received in the 1977-78 cost of living contract, was granted at $250 in a one-time payment, which is not to be part of the basic salary.

Direct salaries for 13 employees results in a $17,940 increase, with figures at $187,127 for 1979 up $205,067 in 1980; longevity and juvenile officer — increase of $563, with $1,605 in 1979 and $2,168 in 1980; health and life insurance; increase of $3,802, with $11,973 in 1979 and $15,775 in 1980; PERA-pension cost of 12 per cent, an increase of $2,153, with $22,455 in 1979 and $25,608 in 1980; and work compensation per $100 salary, an $889 increase with $9,282 in 1979 and $10,171 in 1980. Totals were $232,422 in 1979, $257,789 in 1980, with a total increase of $25,347 or 10.9 per cent.

Some people have the idea that Christmas was more exciting when they were very young. Waiting for Santa . . . wondering what he would bring . . . breathlessly opening our gifts.

There's another kind of excitement that is part of Christmas when we become more mature. We begin to grasp more joyously the meaning of the Day. This is the Birthday of Jesus, the Christ.

Nourish and cultivate your child's religious faith. Then, as he or she grows spiritually, the joy of Christmas will grow, too.

The churches of our community invite you and your family to join in the religious celebration of the birth of Our Lord — that Christmas may grow in your life.

Winter Survival Suggestions Given

Winterkill can strike people as well as plants and wild animals. With more Minnesotans turning down their thermostats to conserve fuel and more emphasis on outdoor winter sports, injuries and deaths from cold are becoming more common.

Two culprits are frostbite and hypothermia. Much of the suffering caused by these conditions could be avoided if more people understood the causes of cold injury and what to do if they occur, says Dr. Norman Steinberg, clinic physician at a St. Paul hospital.

Hypothermia is the medical term for what happens to your body when its internal temperature drops below normal. Your hands and feet can withstand a drop of 30 to 40 degrees below normal body temperature, but if your internal, or "core," temperature drops just 10 degrees, death can result, Steinberg warned.

Surprisingly, the outdoor temperature can be as high as 50 degrees and hypothermia can still occur. The real danger in this instance is dampness, which eliminates the insulating power of many warm fabrics. Wet clothing conducts heat away from the body. The exception is pure wool, which keeps most of its insulating properties even when wet.

If you work or play outdoors in winter, you should layer your clothing and protect your feet with two pairs of socks (one cotton, one wool) and waterproof shoes or boots. Instead of wearing a cotton turtleneck with a heavy parka over it, wear several layers (long underwear, turtleneck, wool shirt or sweater; under the parka. You can always remove some of it if you are too warm. In wet weather wear water-repellent outer garments. Blue jeans are among the worst garments for keeping you warm and dry.

Because you lose most of your body heat through your head (40 per cent) and hands (20 per cent), it is essential to wear a good hat and gloves, sometimes in two layers when the weather is wet.

Shivering is one the body attempts to rewarm itself and is usually the first sign of a threatened core temperature, Steinberg said. Mental confusion, slurred speech and drowsiness are also typical in the person with hypothermia.

If you suspect someone has hypothermia, you should find shelter as quickly as possible. If you're camping, the victim and one or two others should be wrapped together unclothed in blankets or a sleeping bag. In mild cases, warm liquids (not alcohol) and quick energy foods, like chocolate, can be given. If the victim is conscious, a warm (100 degrees) — not hot — bath can be used, but the bath is dangerous in advanced cases, which require hospital care, Steinberg said. He added that in extreme cases a hypothermia victim can appear to be dead but not be.

"Even if you find someone who appears to have no vital signs, proceed as if that person were alive and seek immediate medical help," he said.

If you are over 65 or suffer from diabetes or other endocrine diseases, certain neurological diseases like multiple sclerosis or heart or blood vessle diseases, you could develop hypothermia indoors if the temperature is consistently below 60 degrees. Experts recommend that for persons 65 to 75 indoor temperature be kept at 65 degrees or above. For persons over 75, the thermostat should read at least 70 degrees.

To avoid becoming a victim of hyphothermia, remember these preventive measures: (1) don't get overheated; (2) don't overdo strenuous exercise on very cold days — cold air inhaled into the lungs can overcome the body's ability to warm itself; (3) eat a diet high in fats and carbohydrates; (4) get plenty of rest; (5) don't drink alcohol or smoke — smoking lowers body temperature and the warm glow alcohol produces in your stomach is really driving out the warmth; (6) stay out of prolonged cold if you take certain drugs like barbiturates and some tranquilizers. They can set the stage for accidental hypothermia.

Similar preventive measures also help reduce the possibility of frostbite. Skiers, snowmobilers and joggers should remember not only to cover their bodies but also to protect their faces and hands. Pink cheeks and ears indicate the failure of the surface cells to remove oxygen from the blood. If extremities are exposed to cold temperatures too long — even relatively warm winter temperatures combined with wind — then can become frostbitten.

True frostbite occurs when the tissue actually freezes, Steinberg explained. Fluid between the cells freezes and the cells become dehydrated. Warning signs are a feeling of extreme cold and pain in the parts affected. If not attended to, the part will become hard and numb and take on a white, yellow-white or mottled blue-white color.

"Frostbite is a medical emergency and should be treated as such," Steinberg said. "It's important for everyone to know they shouldn't rewarm frozen tissue until there's no danger the part won't be refrozen. Just wrap it gently or cover it with a thick, soft cloth and seek medical treatment."

Do NOT follow the first-aid treatment Napoleon's officers followed on their retreat from Moscow in the winter of 1812-13. It was largely from Napoleon's surgeon-in-charge that we got the dangerous practice of massaging frozen parts with snow or ice and the idea that the problem of cold was similar to that of a burn.

Now doctors know better. Frozen tissue must be rewarmed rapdily, preferably in warm water (100 degrees). If warm water is not available, the part can be rewarmed by tucking it into a warm area of the body, such as the armpit or between the thighs. But don't rub it; rubbing can cause severe tissue damage and increase the chances of infection. And don't put the frozen part near a fire, heater or under hot water. Severe burns can result.

PEACE ON EARTH!

May you and your loved ones have a safe and joyous Holiday Season, a healthy and prosperous New Year!

Do As I Say . . . .

Remember the old saying, "do as I say, not as I do"? It was applied to those who were more than willing to give advice and who sought perfection in others but set poor examples by their own actions.

Do you also remember how our national administration pointed out our dependence on foreign oil and urged — and continues to urge — Americans to pool their travel, use mass transit, reduce their miles in the family car, hold down highway speeds, etc., etc., etc.

There is nothing wrong with such governmental requests. Indeed they are quite appropriate. It is just plain old-fashioned good citizenship to do what can be done to save on an unrenewable resource. Most people, including this writer, probably aren't doing what they could or should.

Likewise, it would appear that government itself hasn't taken the President and the energy agency too seriously. The United States government owns the world's largest motor pool — totaling some 447,000 buses, trucks and cars. Not only are those numbers increasing, but use is growing as well.

During the past five years, the American public has increased its driving by 13.4 per cent. During the same period, taxpayer supported vehicles increased in miles driven by 21.2 per cent. During the past year the government fleet was increased by four per cent.

Perhaps one can't blame the President because his agencies don't listen to his requests. It's hard to lead when nobody wants to follow. And maybe we shouldn't fault the energy department because its calls for fuel saving are ignored.

But we can fault the energy agency for ignoring its own requests. In the past three years, the department of energy's fuel use has increased by 29 per cent. And that's clearly a case of "do as I say, not as I do".

Wonder why the government administration has credibility problems?

Heat Source Answer?

From the inventive minds of individuals in makeshift shops have come some of the world's important advancements. Even with the technological nature of much of today's sophisticated equipment, there seems to be room for the home shop creative genius to have an impact on national situations.

It is too early to claim an invention by Wally Pehrson, 34, of New London and Emanuel Carlson, 57, of Kerkhoven as a home heating cure-all, but is has convinced enough people who have seen it demonstrated to result in more than 2,000 orders being placed for the units.

The men call their invention a hydraulic heat generator. A three horsepower electric motor circulates a special oil through high carbon pipes, resembling a radiator in appearance, under 1,000 pounds of pressure per square inch. Inside the pipes are "tiny veins" which create friction when the oil is circulated through the pipes, which in turn creates up to 80,000 BTUs of heat.

Advantages of the unit are that it consumes no fuel itself, there is no chimney and thus no heat loss, and there is no combustion, thus no gas fumes, pollution or potential asphyxiation.

Pehrson, a minister in the Covenant church, says the idea for the unit came to him in a dream. "We're really going against the laws of physics because engineers say this thing can't work," he said. And he notes that attempts to modify his original idea and improve on it resulted in failure. "When we tried to change it, it quit working, so we had to go back to the original idea," he said.

Pherson estimates it would cost $12 to $20 a month in electricity to operate the unit if it were to run continuously, ". . .and nobody is gonna run it steady with an 80,000 BTU output." He installed the original unit in his home last January and used it for heat, although it produced only 7,480 BTUs.

Carlson and Pehrson have a patent pending on their invention but are starting production, expecting to produce only a unit or two a day initially but increasing quickly to four or five a day. They have 14 people presently employed and, if all goes well, plan for expansion and adding a second shift.

The units are presently priced at slightly under $2,000. "I scraped the bottom for a number of years and now I want the people to have it," Pehrson said of his invention. "I have a job, I have a good family, I can pay my bills, I have my health. What more could a person want out of life? I will stick with this until it gets going, then I would like to get back to counseling. I love working with people."

He said that he has had offers to buy the invention but fears that if he sold it, it might never see the market. "I want it to help the people," he said.

Could it be possible that a preacher's dream could provide for the nation what all of the laboratories and scientists and government financing have been unable to produce?

Don't bet against it!

Let's Talk About Profits

It has been disturbing in the past few months to hear increasingly hostile comments about corporation profits, particularly those of the oil companies. The assumption seems to be that those profits are excessive and, more specifically, are gained at the expense of the individual doing the complaining.

Editor Bob Johnson of the Wadena Pioneer-Journal does a good job of explaining not only the desirability but the necessity for profits in the following editorial:

When people who know better, but for political or other reasons, charge that the level of business profits is "obscene" or "excessive" (as if there were some magic number that profits should not exceed), it's time to get back to basics. Such talk clearly ignores the reality of what profits are and what services they perform in our society.

Simply put, profits are the business equivalent of personal savings — the excess of revenue over expenditures. Corporate savings, if you will. The primary source of capital. And capital is the vital force that energizes our American economy, nurtures the system that creates millions of American jobs and sustains our nation as the most productive on earth.

Under the American system, there are really only three basic sources of capital — business profits, private savings and government surplus. And the latter two are highly dependent upon the first for their existence.

The fact is that the availability of a sufficient number of American jobs depends on business profits. When there's insufficient profit, jobs go out the window. Proof of that fact is the announcement last week, by U.S. Steel that 13 plants will be closed, leaving thousands of workers jobless. The reason — unprofitable operations mainly caused by foreign competition and government overregulation.

Our social structure, our government, our individual enterprises, our school systems — just about everything — are eventually tied to business profits. And that's our point — increased business profits mean more American jobs, a more effective American system and a more prosperous American society.

If more people understood this basic fact, it would not be politically expedient to attack business profits. To the contrary, to attack one of the basic mainstays to the employment of millions of Americans would be a risky venture, indeed.

How is it that business profits serve the American people?

First, they are a primary source of funds for productive reinvestment. Profits are used to increase industrial capacity, to replace outmoded equipment, to encourage necessary research and development and to create new and better jobs.

Second, and equally important, they provide dividends for millions of stockholders, a reward for the commitment of personal savings to productive use. One-third of all stocks are owned by pension funds, college endowments, churches and the like, so a large portion of profits are channeled directly into social benefits.

Third, profits generate enormous tax revenues for our nation's vast social programs and government projects.

Profits are, in our opinion, the lifeblood of our American economic system. They should be celebrated, not condemned; encouraged, not assailed. Misguided measures that would constrain profits can only make us less competitive and, ultimately, lessen the quality of life not only for us today, but for our children of tomorrow. And that, we think, would really be "obscene".

Borrowed Nonsense:

The foreigner was confused when he asked the drug store clerk for a small tube of toothpaste and was given one marked "large". "I'm afraid you didn't understand me" the foreigner protested. "But I did," the clerk replied. "Toothpaste comes in three sizes, large, giant and super. I gave you the small size. . . large."

"A Gift To Be Remembered"

Why not personalize your presents this year by giving canisters of holiday goodies to folks on your shopping list? Simple to make, your gifts can be as varied as your friends and relatives.

With an electric foodgun like the Super Shooter from Wear-Ever, you can make dozens of picture perfect holiday snacks as pretty as the containers you give them in. For professional-looking Fudge Swirls, all you do is combine four simple ingredients with a packaged fudge frosting mix and place the mixture in the foodgun's barrel. Then use the Decorator Tip to "shoot" enough of these candy treats for everyone on your guest list in no time.

Interested in finding out how you can use an electric foodgun to get professional looking results with loads of other holiday treats? Send for a free copy of "The Super Shooter IdeaBook" — a preview of over 40 exciting recipes you can prepare with this versatile appliance. To order, write: Super Shooter IdeaBook, Dept. 57, Wear-Ever Aluminum, Inc., Chillicothe, OH 45601.

FUDGE SWIRLS

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons water
1 package (15 1/2 oz.) chocolate fudge frosting mix
1 cup ground almonds
1 teaspoon almond extract
Slivered blanched almonds

In top of double boiler, melt butter in water; stir in frosting mix until smooth. Cook over boiling water 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; stir in almonds and almond extract.

Assemble and fill Super Shooter electric foodgun with chocolate mixture following manufacturer's instructions. Use Decorator Tip. On waxed paper-lined cookie sheets, using Lo Speed, make mounds 1-inch in diameter, and 3/4-inch in height. Top each mound with slivered almonds. Allow to stand until set. Store in airtight container.

Makes about 48 pieces of candy.

4-H News

Star

Star 4-H club held its monthly meeting along with a Christmas party. A supper was served at 7:30 to all members and parents.

During the meeting for roll call each member had to hang a Christmas ornament on the tree. A short meeting was held. Each family brought two bingo prizes to be given to the Senior citizens at Goodridge. Project talks were given by Randy and Brad Stenvick. Shelly Swanson gave a demonstration on Christmas ornaments.

Mrs. Norman Stenvick was presented a gift for her eight years of leadership service to the club with thanks. The Leaders report was given by Adeline Parnow. Mrs. Clarence Peterson led the group in singing and games.

Present at the meeting were 13 4-H'ers, 16 4-H parents and 6 visitors. Candy and popcorn bags were handed out and refreshments after the meeting.

The Times — A Great Gift!

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

So, Thief River is in the news, because of all this publicity about the Northland football team. I think it's just great. Maybe with more bad publicity, people won't come thousands of miles to attend an academically delinquent school, and the administration will concentrate more on education. Northland is a community college, that means for those in the surrounding area, no matter what color they are.

I've heard it reasoned that with a better football team a school can get more state aid, and that's good for the whole school, right: Wrong. That money just gets put right back into sports and little or nothing goes for education. Why not spend the money you have, Northland, on classes where it is needed? As it is now, Northland is no more than a half a step up from Lincoln, if that.

Northland could be a good school, worthy of the students who go there, if you stopped worrying about sports and thought about education a little more.

Sincerely,
Lois Aubol

FUELED UP FOR FITNESS

SNACKING IN STYLE FOR ACTIVE LIFE

If your lifestyle has prompted you to abandon the three-meal-a-day routine or if you are a well-seasoned snacker, you are not alone. Snacking is not necessarily a bad habit to be broken, but one that can easily tip the nutritional balance. Studies have put snacking in a favorable light. A nibbler is probably better off than a one-meal-a-day gorger because the body can handle food in small amounts more efficiently.

Crunchy Peanut Butter Crisps, with a glass of skim milk are a mini-meal, high in protein, minerals and vitamins. Made with Fleischmann's Corn Oil Margarine, they are a sensible snack choice.

Children will love them as an after-school snack or a brown bag dessert. Since it is believed that heart disease and other degenerative diseases may begin in childhood, it is important to stress good habits early — plenty of exercise and proper eating. If you are very active, your body, not only your lifestyle, may demand small, frequent pick-me-ups. Hikers and bikers can tuck these high energy cookies into their packs.

Make your snacking habits a part of your personal fitness program by selecting the foods which will work in you while you work out.

PEANUT BUTTER CRISPS

3 cups quick cooking oats
3/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup Fleischmann's 100% Corn Oil Margarine
1 cup Planters Creamy Peanut Butter

Thoroughly combine oats, sugar and salt. Set aside. In a small saucepan melt margarine. Add to oat mixture and mix well. Firmly pack 1/2 of mixture into a 11 x 7-inch baking pan.

Melt creamy peanut butter. Spread evenly over oats. Cover with remaining oat mixture, packing gently.

Bake at (350° F.) 25-30 minutes. Let cool almost completely before cutting. Makes 18 squares.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Have pity for Congresswoman Marjorie Holt of Maryland, and while you're at it, for Congressman Del Latta and Ralph Regula of Ohio, Barber Conable of New York, Dave Stockman of Michigan and John Rousselot of California. They and legislators of similar persuasion in both parties all share a common concern. The better they try to do their jobs, the more they seem to annoy and embarrass their colleagues. The problem, you see, is that they keep asking the same awkward questions — the ones the American public wants answered, but that Congress as a whole wants to avoid.

What they are trying to determine is simply this: Why won't Congress cut taxes. . .or spending. . .or both? It's been a frustrating quest. When they push for tax cuts alone, they're told in effect: "Stop that! You'll worsen inflation." They disagree, but for the sake of progress they offer a proposal linking tax cuts to spending cuts. Next answer: "Your cuts are too large. You're advocating a meat ax approach!" Undaunted, they try again, returning with a request for smaller cuts, only to be told: "Don't bother us with that. Now is not the right time."

Will there ever be a right time? You have to wonder. Having been defeated on three different attempts to reduce the federal budget during the last two months, Holt, Latta and company recently decided to make one last offer — an offer no one could refuse. Exempting defense and veterans affairs, they proposed a general spending reduction totalling barely two per cent of the budget — mere crumbs within the giant $550 billion federal pie. Then they challenged the House to prove it was at least willing to eliminate this tiny amount of waste.

How greedy of them! The House, unable to stomach such sweeping cutbacks, instead swallowed its pride and voted down their motion. Indeed, the budget-cutters were even given a lecture and accused of trying to subvert the entire budget process. It's true, of course, that passage of this two per cent reduction would have delayed the budget process. It would have meant sending the budget resolution back to the committee where the specific spending cuts would have to be decided. But remember, the whole purpose of establishing a budget process was to get a better handle on federal spending. So what the spenders were really saying to the budget-cutters was: "If we pass your motion to limit spending, we'll destroy our process to limit spending!" How's that for tortured logic?

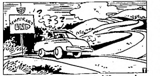
The bottom line is this: In the name of saving the sacred budget process, the House has approved another double digit increase in the federal budget itself — a comfortable continuation of policies that have witnessed a quadrupling of the federal budget since 1962, and a doubling of the national debt in the last eight years. The bill will have to be paid through higher taxes, higher inflation, or both. If, during the past 20 years, all private businesses were run as poorly as that, there would probably be no profits to tax, no revenues to collect, and thus, no programs to fund!

What can you do? First, you must realize that spending other people's money gives government tremendous power, so it will say almost anything to make you believe it has the right and the ability to spend your money better than you can. In a recent issue of Policy Report, Paul Craig Roberts described this approach: "Recessions justify deficits to get the economy moving again; recoveries justify deficits to keep recoveries going; good times justify deficits to ward off the downturn that is predicted to be around the corner. Signs can be found upon which to predict a recession." It's time for Americans to wake up and reject this so-called economic expertise.

Second, Americans, as taxpayers, must become much more politically involved in trying to reduce the burden of government. As Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin, a tireless foe of government waste, recently noted: "Who comes to Washington to ask us to cut a particular program? You will wait a long time for an answer. Who comes? No one. Not ever. But hundreds come purporting to represent millions, asking us to increase spending. . ."

People like Proxmire in the Senate and the budget-cutters in the House are trying to work for us. Why can't we start coming to Washington by the hundreds, thousands, or even millions to help them? If we don't, we might lose the most important battle of our lives, without ever having put up a fight.

DELAYS DRIVING UP COSTS OF INTERSTATE HIGHWAYS



As the 42,500-mile Interstate Highway System nears completion, escalating costs caused by construction delays are giving some highway officials budgetary heart attacks.

In 1956, it was thought that the Interstate system could be completed by 1969 for $25 billion. Since then, more miles were added, safety and design standards were upgraded, and social and environmental improvements were legislated, all causing delays. Construction of some segments has been stalled in the courts or by lengthy regulatory procedures.

Bottom line: we have already spent $75 billion on the Interstate and to open the remaining 2,900 miles of gaps to traffic by 1990 will cost an estimated $23 billion more. Meantime, delays continue to drive up costs.

With most of the Interstate already serving traffic (less than seven percent remains to be opened), why not halt further construction and declare the present mileage to be the final Interstate system?

Transportation experts say linking the Interstate system together now is important for reasons of safety, mobility, fuel efficiency, and national economy. The Highway Users Federation, a business league advocating traffic safety and highway transportation efficiency, says:

— Interstates are safer than other roads. The motor vehicle death rate on the Interstate is half what it is on conventional roads. Also, older roads carrying traffic across Interstate gaps rack up more than twice as many fatal and injury-producing accidents as completed sections of the Interstate.

— Interstates facilitate movement of people and goods between urban areas. Intercity highway transportation by truck, bus, and automobile is most efficient and economical on Interstates without gaps or detours.

— Interstates are more fuel efficient. Smooth flowing traffic is at least twice as fuel efficient as stop and go driving. In urban areas, travel on freeways built to Interstate standards is a third more efficient than driving on city streets.

— We save money by building now. The funds are available now to close the remaining gaps in the Interstate system, and today's dollar is worth more than tomorrow's. The longer we wait, the more it is going to cost.

The Federation says that the major single obstacle to rapid completion of an integrated Interstate system is the threat of delays, which boost costs dramatically. Some examples:

— 6.4 miles of I-10 in Phoenix (the Papago Freeway) have been delayed by controversy. Estimated cost to complete in 1972 was $132.7 million. The latest estimate is $301.37 million, a 227 percent cost increase.

— In Iowa, a major farm state, I-380 was planned to connect I-80 near Iowa City with Waterloo to the north. In 1973 dollars, the entire 79.6 miles could have been built for $236.2 million. The highway was opened for 23.5 miles to Cedar Rapids but the remainder was held up by litigation. In current dollars, it will cost $547 million for the remaining 56.1 miles alone.

— A 29.1 mile section of I-95 (the Maine to Florida Interstate) between Trenton and Metuchen, New Jersey, would have cost $125 million in 1970 dollars. It was held up for resolution of environmental impact statements and will now cost $296 million in current dollars.

— New York City's Westway (I-478) has been beset by delays since it was established as an Interstate project eight years ago. In the past two years alone, the estimated cost has risen by $236 million without a shovel of dirt being turned.

Other such examples abound, according to the Federation, which points out that these skyrocketing costs are borne by taxpayers, mostly motorists.

As the man says in the commercial, "You can pay me now or you can pay me later." According to highway experts, the sooner we complete the Interstate, the less we will pay.

Little Oak

Mrs. Arnold Haugen, Goodridge

Growth Of MSHSL Programs Unprecedented In 1970's

by Larry Larson,
MSHSL Publicist

For the Minnesota State High School League, the 70's have been marked by progress — a period of unprecedented growth in the interscholastic programs, a decade of growing opportunity in which students could reap the benefits of participation in a wide variety of activities.

It has been a time which has caught the fancy of today's teenagers as much as those who experienced similar decades in the past.

But, the 1970's also had a character all its own, a time of which our students will be able to look back on with fond memories. Part of that reflection will be the involvement of our high school youth in the activities conducted by the Minnesota State High School League.

Consider just a few of the advances of the 70's, improvements which have laid a solid foundation for the program of the 80's:

+An ever-growing interscholastic sports program for girls which in 10 years has broken societal stereotypes and now includes thousands of participants in a variety of activities.

+In 1975 the realignment of schools into districts and regions to provide for a two-class system.

+Increased championship tournament play to determine honors in a diversified number of sports. The state boys basketball tournament in 1971 was the first event to be conducted in two classes — Class AA and Class A. In 1979, 16 activities were conducted in two classes.

+Introduction and successful implementation of a state football playoff system, providing post-season competition for another statewide activity.

+Establishment of a fine arts council and four fine arts advisory committees, an athletic council and 23 sports advisory committees to provide recommendations to the board of directors.

+A wide variety of personnel employed to conduct 140 rules meetings on a statewide basis in 12 sports.

+Expanded representation on the board of directors from 10 to 15 members and from 32 to 90 delegates on the representative assembly.

+An expanded program in fine arts with music and speech workshops and judging clinics and additional new events in music and speech contests, further providing additional opportunities for students.

+Sportsmanship program which can be conducted by member schools, and continued throughout various district, regional and state tournaments.

+In 1973, membership in the MSHSL was opened to non-public schools, and in May 1974 some 37 of those schools joined the league. Today's membership consists of 43 non-public and 474 public high schools.

+An ever-growing spectator interest in post-season state tournament play. In 1978-79, over 400,000 persons witnessed state championships in 26 girls and boys activities.

These and other progressions in the ambitious MSHSL program were developed in the 70's without compromising the basic principles for which the league was created, the philosophy that interscholastic competition should be conducted on the highest plateau of fair play and good sportsmanship, while fostering keen competition. Regardless of the decade, these principles remain consistent and worthwhile goals.

So, as a new decade dawns, these aspirations, hopes and goals will continue to hold firm for the 1980's, as we strive to build upon the strong foundation established during the 1970's.

With a diversified program of 27 activities and the effect that energy could have during the 80's, it is difficult to assess the direction the MSHSL program will take in the months and years ahead. But, assuredly, it will continue to plan the avenue through continued growth and involvement which thousands of young people who have an intense desire to participate can be continued.

Increased participation is indicative of a reaffirmation of our state to the values associated with activities which can accrue throughout an individual's lifetime. Increased emphasis on personal health and fitness is growing at the high school level and continuing through the adult years.

As we examine our past and look to the future, the MSHSL is proud of past accomplishments, but is continuing to reexamine its commitments and goals.

Much has been accomplished, but there's much still to be done as we await the dawn of another decade. Undoubtedly, like previous decades, it will have a character all its own, a character that will bear the marks of adversity and change, but with our mutual efforts, will have provided the young men and women of Minnesota with that singularly unique experience of being challenged to "be a winner".

New Cold Weather Breathing Aid Solves Winter Breathing Problem

Good news to make winter more enjoyable for outdoor recreation as well as for winter shut-ins and everyone bothered by, or unable to breathe, winter-chilled air, comes in the form of a simple, but effective Cold Weather Breathing Aid recently developed by Nebel's Appliances, Inc. of Dolton, Illinois.

The unit, consisting of a clear soft plastic mask connected by flexible tubing to a lightweight Chest Pack worn under outer clothing, allows the wearer to breathe air warmed by normal body temperature instead of cold outside air.

The mask, which is held snugly against the chin and checks by an adjustable elastic band, has an automatic check valve so the only air inhaled is warmed air. Exhaled air leaves the face mask through specially designed one-way valves which prevent cold air from entering, yet are free to open for the passage of exhaled air. Tests have shown that wearers of the Personal Cold Weather Breathing Aid breathe air that is 50 to 55° warmer than outside air temperatures. This means that if the temperature is —5°, the wearer will be breathing air that is a very comfortable 50°.

The plastic Chest Pack has a series of openings on the side worn next to the body, allowing body heat to enter and warm incoming cold air. An elastic waist strap holds the Chest Pack snugly against the body. Cold air entering the Pack through a large opening at the bottom, mixes with body-warmed air and is drawn into the lungs as the wearer breathes.

The Cold Weather Breathing Aid does not interfere with even vigorous outdoor activity such as skiing, snowmobiling, etc. A soft aluminum nose clip in the face mask permits adjustment to a specific nose bridge to ensure a snug fit. The Chest Pack has an adjustable neck strap, allowing it to be worn in the most comfortable position.

All materials used in the Cold Weather Breathing Aid are odorless and are of the type used in approved hospital respiratory support systems. The Chest Pack and Face Mask can be readily cleaned with a household detergent.

For more information and availability, write: PERSONAL COLD WEATHER BREATHING AID, P. O. Box 62, Dolton, Illinois 60149. All inquiries will be answered promptly.

Latest earnings data — which are for 1977 — show that among full time workers employed throughout the year, men earned $14,626 while women earned only $8,618, according to a revised publication "The Earnings Gap Between Women and Men," issued by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Exporting Tips Are Given For Small Business

Paul Jansen, Small business administration (SBA) district director, received inquiry about the export of small business products. Many small business people do not know where overseas markets exist, or how to finance, ship and sell their products.

In response to this question, Jansen reported that the idea that one's own small business has the world rather than one's own backyard or country as a potential marketplace is indeed foreign to many of the nation's small business people.

They don't know where to go for help in becoming more export-oriented. But the fact is there are many government services available to increase America's exports.

For starters, the SBA office, 12 South sixth street, Minneapolis, MN 55402, has a new publication, "Export marketing for smaller firms." The publication is free and can prove invaluable in helping you acquire the basic data necessary for you to decide whether or not exporting really is for your firm, Jansen said.

The publication describes an organized method for deciding whether foreign markets warrant an investment of your company's resources, and furnishes a step-by-step approach so that you can insolate the most attractive market for trade.

You will learn how to measure your firm's potential for export — the chances for success, what you have to know about your industry abroad and what your performance within the industry should be. Your marketing approach can be explored and you can make an evaluation of your firm's particular resources.

Of course the key to success in exporting is to make the right product available at the right time in the right market at a price which the buyer can afford and which will return an acceptable profit. It's the same criteria that is a must in your local and national marketplace.

Direct assistance in exporting is provided by the U.S. commerce department, 110 South fourth street, Minneapolis, MN 55402, and the State department of economic development, 480 Cedar street, St. Paul, MN 55101.

INFLATION FIGHTING TRAVEL INFLATION FIGHTING IDEAS

India: Getting Your Rupee's Worth

Europe on $10 a day? Virtually impossible. But India on $10 a day? Very possible.

It might surprise you that, if you are spending two weeks in six cities of Europe, the total cost of the package may not be very much more if you include India also, using, say new round the world fare. Money magazine recently conducted a survey of 12 popular tourist destinations expensewise in the same class of hotels, meals etc. and found India to be least expensive.

Not counting your fare to get there, you can limit your expenses to that unheard-of amount.

A great idea for the budget-minded traveller is the Indrail pass, which works the same way as the Eurail pass. You can buy a pass for a variety of time periods, from a week to three months. The pass allows unlimited travel and is obtained at major rail stations in Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and New Delhi. Similarly Indian Airlines have their special 'Discover India' fare for 15 days.

Getting to India may be half the fun, but once there, you will find India has accommodations to fit every traveller's pocket book. You can live it up in Luxury hotels, some of which are palaces of former Maharajas, for a price comparable to that of a modest hotel in New York.

Keeping in mind that you have already allotted money for travel and hotel rooms, the next item you will be interested in is food. Once again, the budget minded traveller will find the food inexpensive and the cuisine exciting. In an Indian style restaurant, cereal or porridge and coffee can be enjoyed for just 50 cents. A dollar and a half will buy you a full lunch or dinner consisting of a curry dish such as chicken, bread, rice, a vegetable, a dessert and coffee.

Shopping is an important part of any trip. Here, too, you will find bargains in silverware and jewelry, clothing and wall hangings, fine arts and crafts, readymade garments.

Two good reasons to start your Individual Retirement Account now.

1: Money saved in your Individual Retirement Account is tax free. (UNTIL TIME OF WITHDRAWAL)

2: It's a great retirement program for those who don't have one.

Let Northern State Bank show you the many advantages of an Individual Retirement Account.

If you are self-employed or not covered by a pension plan where you work, stop in and talk to your good neighbors at Northern State Bank about an IRA account. With IRA, you can save for your retirement and not pay taxes on your deposit until time of withdrawal. At retirement, you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket, so you'll pay less taxes on your money. Plan for your retirement and save money on taxes now . . . with IRA from Northern State Bank.

A good neighbor you can bank on!

Helpful Tips On Low-Cost Decorating Ideas

EASY PLYWOOD PANELING INSTALLATION

When doing cut-outs for outlets, begin by drilling 3/4-inch holes from the front side of the panel; then use a saw from the surface side to make the cut-out.

Installing your own decorative plywood paneling, and completely transforming a room is a do-it-youself job almost any homeowner can handle.

Before you begin putting panels up, though, be absolutely certain they are properly cut and will fit the wall space you want to cover. To apply, use panel adhesive — the professional way to install paneling. Once this is applied, it's hard to make adjustments.

You should make sure walls and panels are clean, and free from dirt and particles, before applying adhesive. Once you have panels in place, use shims or blocks to keep them snug while you nail or glue. Butt the second panel into place next to the first, tapping it with a small, wooden block.

The first panel you put up should butt an adjacent wall in a corner. Make sure the panel is completely plumb and that its outer edge is parallel with the plumb line.

If the outer edge does not fall directly on a stud, you should scribe or mark the panel to the adjacent wall so the panel's edge comes to the center of the studs. This will allow room for nailing your next panel.

Hint: Once you locate a joint, paint a matching color stripe on the wall along its length so that any gap you leave between panel edges will be less noticeable.

If you use regular finishing nails on paneling, nails require countersinking and touch up with a putty stick to harmonize with the paneling. Or, you may use colored nails to eliminate countersinking and putty stick.

Nails are available to match most paneling color finishes; in one-inch size for direct application to studs and 1 5/8-inch for application to backer board, furring strips or existing walls.

When you start to apply paneling around windows and doors, accurate measuring is most important. Measure from your last applied panel edge to the trim. Measure up from the bottom and down from the top to get accurate patterns for the cut-out.

Then, drill a 3/4-inch hole from the panel surface side to provide a turning corner for your saw. (A keyhole or sabre saw is helpful for this kind of cutting.) If possible, cut-out panels should meet close to the middle of the window or door.

A word of warning: many a good paneling job has been ruined by inaccurate cutting for outlet boxes or heat registers. Try this trick: after the panel has been cut for fit, mark the outlet with chalk. Then, place the panel on the wall and tap it at the outlet location. The chalk will transfer to the back of the panel and indicate the area to be cut.

Pennies Mean Millions For MN. Farmers

A penny, by itself, may not buy much of anything in today's economy, but it continues to be an extremely important monetary factor for Minnesota agriculture, Commissioner Mark Seetin pointed out recently.

One penny added to or subtracted from the daily market prices for Minnesota farm produced food and fiber can represent millions of dollars in increased or decreased gross farm income. Often a penny can mean the difference between profit and loss.

During October, Commissioner Seetin said latest crop production and carryover estimates indicated that Minnesota farmers had about 1.23 billion bushels of grain and oilseeds to sell. Each penny of market fluctuation on that total represented a $12.3 million change.

He cited some recent examples for the week of October 22 through October 26.

Corn was selling in Minneapolis on Monday at $2.45 to $2.49 per bushel, but by Friday was down to $2.26, a market drop of 19 cents per bushel. On October 1, Minnesota farmers held over 746 million bushels of corn. The one week market drop cut the value of farm held corn by about $14 million.

Soybeans had an erratic market experience. Quoted in Minneapolis on Monday at $5.90, the daily price fluctuated up and down. Farmers who sold on Thursday gained 6.5 cents per bushel, but those who sold on Friday grossed six cents less than the Monday market. The six pennies change applied to estimated October 1 soybean supplies available represented more than $10 million fluctuation in farm value, and the 12.5 cent one day market drop cut the value of the Minnesota soybean crop by about $30 million.

During the same October week the cash price of wheat dropped 28 cents a bushel. That represented a $28 million drop in the market value of Minnesota farm stored wheat.

Raw milk is one of the few Minnesota farm food commodities that has been experiencing steadily increasing prices. By the pound, however, the gains are a fraction of a cent, in September slightly more than one quarter cent per pound higher than in August. But again, Minnesota farm efficiency and volume make even that small gain economically significant, Commissioner Seetin said. Minnesota September milk production totaled 627 million pounds (72.9 million gallons), so the one month fraction of a cent gain actually meant a nearly $1.7 million gain in gross income for this state's dairy farmers.

Begin Search For Teacher Of The Year

Seventeenth annual search for Minnesota teacher of the year is underway.

The program, which has produced two national teachers of the year and placed a number of others in the top five, is sponsored by the Minnesota state fair and the Minnesota education association (MEA).

1979 Minnesota teacher of the year, Charles I. Funk, Motley high school vocational agriculture teacher, has been nominated by education commissioner Howard B. Casmey for 1980 national teacher of the year, to be announced next spring.

In addition to being nominated for national honors, the Minnesota teacher of the year receives a $500 scholarship from the state fair.

Minnesota teacher of the year will be announced during traditional ceremonies August 24, first Sunday of the state fair.

Nomination forms for the 1980 Minnesota teacher of the year are being distributed to more than 400 local school boards, 500 chapters of the Minnesota congress of parents, teachers and students, and nearly 500 MEA local associations, as well as to other agencies throughout the state.

Nominations must be postmarked no later than Feb. 4, 1980.

AVTI Receives $43,000 Grant For Equipment

Governor Al Quie, commissioner and state co-chairman of the Upper Great Lakes regional commission (UGLRC), has announced a $43,000 supplemental grant to the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute to purchase instructional equipment to expand training programs in response to industry demands for 20 to 30 jobs.

The grant is part of a $100,000 project. Local funding will provide an additional $55,000 and the health, education and welfare department will provide $2,000.

The UGLRC funds will help provide for the replacement and upgrading of obsolete equipment at the institute, particularly in the air-frame and power plant technology program. Addition of four more test cells will maintain the quality of the program and allow each student sufficient time to spend on engine operations, tune-ups, and trouble shooting. Graduates from the aircraft mechanics course command 25 per cent to 50 per cent more income than people who enter the working world immediately after high school.

"This instructional equipment will help in training people for skilled employment, and this is an important part of the goals of the UGLRC," Governor Quie said. "The project will help to diversify the economic base of the region while supporting industrial development," he added "and provide skills which are needed by the industry."

Meeting conducted recently in Rhinelander, WI was hosted by Wisconsin Governor Lee S. Dreyfus for Governor Quie, Michigan Governor William Milliken and President Carter's federal co-chairman William R. Bechtel. Commission is made up of the three governors and federal co-chairman.

The UGLRC is a local-state-federal partnership for the economic development of 119 counties in northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. It works toward the goals of increasing incomes of the region's citizens, diversifying the region's economic base, encouraging sound use of the region's natural resources and improving quality of life for its citizens.

The commission works toward these goals through its technical assistance grant program which funds research and demonstration projects of regional impact, and its supplemental grant program which helps meet local matching share requirements for public works projects.

The UGLRC has helped facilitate multi-state planning and development and has coordinated local, state, federal and private investments.

AFTER THE FEAST IS OVER

Glorious though the holiday meal was, reality sets in a few days later and what is wanted and needed is a light, easy-to-prepare inexpensive evening meal. Look to Log Cabin — both the pancake and waffle mix and trusty syrup — for a tasty supper of Ham Fritters with Apple Syrup Sauce. Crispy and golden, they're ready in very little time and the fritters are an excellent way to use up leftover holiday ham.

HAM FRITTERS

1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
1/2 cup boiling water
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon oil
1-2/3 cups regular or buttermilk pancake and waffle mix
2 cups finely diced cooked ham
Fat for frying
Apple Syrup Sauce

Combine cornmeal and boiling water in bowl. Blend in eggs, milk and oil. Stir in pancake mix and beat until smooth. Add ham. For each fritter, drop about 1/4 cup batter into 1/2-inch hot (360°) fat in skillet. Fry about 3 minutes on each side, or until golden. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot with Apple Syrup Sauce. Makes about 16 fritters or 8 servings.

Apple Syrup Sauce. Melt 5 tablespoons butter or margarine in large skillet. Add 4 cups sliced, peeled apples and cook 3 to 5 minutes, or until tender. Add 1 cup pancake and waffle syrup and bring to a boil. Combine 1/4 cup lemon juice and 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Stir into syrup; cook and stir until thickened and clear. Serve warm. Makes about 3-1/2 cups.

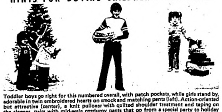
HINTS FOR BUYING CHILDREN'S CLOTHING



Toddler boys go right for this numbered overall, with patch pockets, while girls stand by, adorable in twin embroidered hearts on smock and matching pants (left). Action-oriented but attractive (center), a knit pullover with quilted shoulder treatment and taping on the sleeves, pairs with mid-wale corduroy pants that go from a special party to holiday game. Presents for toddlers (right) like this double Peter Pan collar on a pointelle top over pleated pants trimmed with a gold heart buckle—can stack up to a little girl's heart.

Shopping for children's clothes need not be the trauma many find it to be if you eliminate the guesswork before you leave home.

Since children go through stages as they grow, their clothing changes, too. You should know what kids wear. Here are some pointers from the experts at Garanimals, makers of children's coordinated separates.

1. Know where to start in buying infant's wear. Since a baby's main concern is comfort, be practical and choose an outfit that isn't too frilly or that has elastic that's too tight. Look for sleeves that don't bind and neck openings with enough stretch or grippers to glide easily over the baby's head.

2. Know which kinds of materials are best for infants and toddlers. The fabrics for infants should be soft, like those in Garanimals' infants' line, but when a toddler falls and crawls, the material of his togs should stand up.

One enfant that's not terrible at all is set to tackle days of play in a screen-printed top with quilted shoulders and coordinated corduroy pants.

3. Know what size to buy. It's best to ask the parents for the child's weight and height since children of the same age often differ greatly in size. Garanimals prints a handy weight-and-height chart on the back of its infants' wear hang-tags.

4. Know what styles older children want. The boys want to look like "big guys," and the girls, like teenagers. For this group, check the Junior department in the store. Ask the parents for advice. If you buy something that is too different from what their friends are wearing, the recipient will not wear your selection.

5. Relax and enjoy your shopping trip. Choosing an outfit for a special child can be a truly joyful experience, and a joy to the child who has the experience of receiving it!

School Board Asks For Declaration Of Impasse

Declaration and certification of impasse of being requested by the Thief River Falls school board in a step toward arbitration of a contract with the Thief River Falls education association.

The board is petitioning the director of state mediation services for the declaration and certification of impasse after rejecting the last faculty proposal Wednesday. Board and faculty representatives have held a number of negotiating and mediation sessions without reaching an agreement on a two-year contract for 1979-80 and 1980-81.

Mrs. Edith Efter, who has chaired the negotiating team for the Thief River Falls education association, told the Times she stills feels the issue can be resolved locally. If impasse is declared and arbitration allowed, a third party will be selected to determine contract terms.

Arbitration is binding for the faculty group. Should the school board not accept the arbitration terms, teachers would have the right to strike. In a previous arbitration award in the district several years ago, the contract granted to faculty was less than the board's final offer prior to arbitration.

Under laws governing board and faculty labor relations, negotiation can continue until such time as the arbitrator's decision is announced. Although the arbitration procedure has been started, it would still be possible for a settlement to be reached locally if the two factions could come to agreement.

School board and administration have prepared a newsletter which will be sent to homes in the school district later this week explaining the negotiations law and outlining the board's position and approach on several matters. Members of the faculty have been bannering outside local schools before and after school hours for nearly two weeks.

Some students at Lincoln high school staged a walk-out during the first class period on Friday in support of the faculty position. School officials said about 65 to 70 per cent of the students were involved in the walk-out at its peak and that classes continued with those students who remained in the building. A number of Franklin students also staged a similar demonstration shortly after noon Friday.

School officials said the Lincoln students were well-behaved during the walk-out and that all returned to the building for the second hour class.

JUDGED BY THE hospital board of trustees as first place winner in the annual Christmas decorating contest Monday at the Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls was the medical records division of the hospital. Projects were started approximately two weeks before the judging according to Delores Spencer, administrative assistant at the hospital. First three winners in the contest were awarded plaques, while the two honorable mention winners this year — pediatrics and medical surgery — were given five pound boxes of candy.

Following Area Burglaries...

Man Arrested, Loot Recovered

Recovery of a number of items stolen from stores in Middle River and Plummer and arrest of a Thief River Falls man on burglary charges was accomplished through joint efforts of the Thief River Falls police and Pennington county sheriff's departments Thursday.

Charged with burglary and appearing in Marshall county court at Warren Friday was David Elroy McBride, 22, of 521 Markley av. S. in Thief River Falls. He was ordered to make a district court appearance on the felony charge and bond was set at $25,000. He is in custody at the Marshall county law enforcement center in Warren. Charges are also pending in Red Lake county.

Also involved in the burglary was a 15-year-old Thief River Falls juvenile. On Wednesday the local law enforcement agencies had received a tip that the juvenile was wearing a watch stolen from a Middle River store. In discussion with the youth the officers learned of McBride's alleged involvement and he was arrested about 1:30 a.m. Thursday by officers on patrol.

A search warrant was obtained for the McBride residence and a search made by local officers with assistance from Red Lake and Marshall county sheriff's departments. A large number of items believed stolen from business places in Middle River and Plummer were found in the house.

Stolen from Young's store and Berg's store in Middle River December 14 were approximately 30 cartons of cigarettes, film, 14 Timex watches, parkas, food, cash and other items.

At Plummer late Monday night or early Tuesday morning $20 in cash, some tools, a blender, calculator and other items were taken from Matt hardware, about $200 to $400 in currency and coins from Larry's Market and about $400 in coins from the Plummer state bank.

The juvenile involved in the burglary will be charged in juvenile court.

Hog Producers Meeting Here

Northwestern Minnesota swine producers are invited to attend the December meeting on Thursday at 7 p.m. at the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls.

University of Minnesota area extension agent, Bill Penning, will discuss swine market outlook and production costs for 1980 and review an enterprise analysis system useful in assisting with management decisions.

Proven Yields At ASC Must Be Up-Dated

Pennington county farmers who desire to maintain proven crop yields for federal program purposes must provide 1979 production figures to the county ASCS office, according to Phillip Bergland, executive director.

To maintain a proven yield, which is generally higher than the established yields maintained in the office, it is necessary for farmers to file production evidence every year. Elevator slips may be produced or the county office will measure grain in the bin.

Production for 1979 will be averaged with the evidence from 1978 and 1977 to provide a proven yield for the 1980 crop year, an important figure in the event farmers need to claim disaster or deficiency payments.

"If you cannot or do not want to prove your 1979 yield," Bergland told county farmers, "the county committee is required to make an adjustment in the yield for your farm."

PARTY FOR RETIRING Soo Line railroad workers was conducted Thursday afternoon in the Soo Line depot in Thief River Falls for Don Houfek (left) and Palmer Lorenson, both of Thief River Falls. Lorenson has been an engineer on the Soo Line railroad for 31½ years, he said. Houfek began employment on the Soo Line June 25, 1941 and retired as chief clerk at the Soo Line yard office October 21, marking 38 years of service on the railroad.

Elect Vatsaas To County ASC Committee

Duane Vatsaas of Thief River Falls was elected to a three-year term on the Pennington county ASCS committee at the county convention held Monday at the Thief River Falls regional library meeting room. All 18 of the county's community committeemen were in attendance.

Vatsaas will succeed Kermit Finstad, also of Thief River Falls, who has completed three terms on the county committee and was ineligible for reelection. Elected first alternate was Arnold Hammer of Thief River Falls and named second alternate was J. Duane Nelson of Goodridge.

Harold Kalsnes of Thief River Falls was reelected chairman of the county committee with Olaf Olson of Trail as vice chairman. Vatsaas will serve as the third regular member following his election. Phillip Bergland is executive director of the county office.

Cost Sharing Applications Taken By ASC

Pennington county office of the agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) can now accept applications for cost sharing for the 1980 conservation programs, according to Phillip Bergland, county executive director.

"We do not yet know the amount of our 1980 allocation," Bergland said, "but we have been authorized to process up to $15,900 of share applications.

Practices which have been approved by the development group are much the same as a year ago, he noted. Included are establishment of improvements in vegetative cover, planting or thinning windbreaks and shelterbelts, water control structures and impoundment reservoirs for livestock and wild game. Also included will be grassed waterways, wildlife habitat and animal waste control facilities.

Cost sharing ranges up to 75 per cent of the cost of the project with no single participant eligible to receive more than $3,500 during any year. A more complete description is available at the county office and interested farmers should contact Ruth Hanson of the office staff.

Christmas Eve Dinner Slated Monday Night

Final plans have been made for the fifth annual Christmas eve dinner Monday for anyone who is too far from his or her family or for other reasons would be alone on Christmas eve.

Once again the dinner will be held in the meeting room of the Skylite apartments at 415 Arnold av. S. Serving will begin at 5:30 and reservations are appreciated. Reservations can be made by calling Sue Kruse at 681-6002. Rides will be provided for anyone without other transportation and should be requested when the reservations are made. Dinners will also be delivered for homebound individuals.

Donations of food, gifts and finances will be gladly accepted. For more information contact Kris Kremer at 681-2946.

THERE ARE NO FRILLS in the workshop on the Vernon Holthusen farm at Thorhult where Mrs. Ardell Roen (left) and Mrs. Ellen Holthusen create Christmas wreaths for the northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota public. The shop is small but materials are thus close at hand and the attitude is all business. It has to be that way for the two ladies to manufacture some 3,000 wreaths in about a month's time. Ardell has lived in the area since 1943 and Ellen has been a resident since she was in third grade. The have been making wreaths commercially together for about 30 years.

Wreath Making Operation Creates Festive Holiday

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Christmas is a little more festive for about 3,000 families this year, thanks to the efforts of two Thorhult area ladies, their two daughters and a daughter-in-law. That's how many balsam and cedar wreaths Mrs. Ellen Holthusen and Mrs. Ardell Roen created in their little 12x16 workshop in the Vernon Holthusen yard, located just off highway 89 a couple of miles north of the Red Lake Indian reservation boundary.

In the approximately 30 years that the ladies have been making their decorative and fragrant creations, they have never missed a deadline for having an order ready — although it has often meant working by the calendar rather than by the clock. Work days start about 7:30 a.m. and continue to 9 p.m. or later. . .sometimes much later.

The wreath-making operation has been a tradition with the ladies since they first started creating wreaths for Loye (Trapper) Hunt to sell through his nursery in the Grygla area 30 years ago. They have never advertised or outwardly promoted their craft and they have turned down orders only when they come so late in the season that there would be a problem getting the job done.

This year the wreaths handmade by Ellen and Ardell are gracing the doors and walls of a number of area communities. Among the customers were the Thief River Falls Girl scouts, Warren Lions club, Crookston Jaycees, Stephen Lions club, Roseau Jaycees, Grand Forks Boy scouts, Newfolden Boy scouts, Fosston Girl scouts and the Argyle Lions club.

It is mid-October when the ladies begin their work, going into the nearby woods to cut branches from the plentiful balsam trees. For the higher branches they use a special cutter utilizing a long pole with a sharpened blade at one end. The pole is hooked on a branch, and when a handle is pulled, the sharpened blade slices off the branch very neatly.

The cutting operation does no harm to the trees. Every three years the ladies return to the same area of the woods to cut branches again. For many of the trees, they say, the trimming stimulates new growth and the trees become more full and thick.

With branches and pine cones gathered and supplies ordered from a florist supply firm in the Twin Cities, Mrs. Roen and Mrs. Holthusen are ready to get on with the wreath-making operation.

They begin by forming a number of heavy wire rings which will be the base form for the wreath. These are hand formed from telephone wire salvaged when the Garden Valley telephone company buried cable in the area several years ago. The 12-inch rings are turned out on a form made by Mrs. Roen's husband some 10 years ago. It might not be the prettiest ring-making equipment in the world, but it certainly is functional.

Usually the ladies can get their husbands to help them a bit in the gathering of material in the woods. Vernon Holthusen has a construction company and Philip Roen farms as well as being a mechanic. Once the actual wreath-making begins, however, the men find urgent business to be done elsewhere.

Into the workshop go Ellen Holthusen and Ardell Roen, Mrs. Wade Sundberg, who is Ellen's daughter Elayne; Mrs. Mike Hogenson, who is Ardell's daughter Pam, and Mrs. Jerry (Vicki) Holthusen, Ardell's daughter-in-law.

The daughters and daughter-in-law bring their pre-school youngsters along and place them in two playpens along one wall of the shop where they play, sleep and eat happily during much of the day. Vicki Holthusen brings two-year-old Amy and four-year-old Jolene, Elayne has two-year-old Katy and Pam has two-year-old Scott. All of the girls live within six to eight miles of the Holthusen yard.

CREATING WIRE RINGS to form the base for making Christmas wreaths are Mrs. Ellen Holthusen (left) and Mrs. Ardell Roen in the Holthusen yard at Thorhult. Mrs. Roen's husband designed and built the form for making the rings about 10 years ago. Wire used was salvaged when the Garden Valley telephone company buried cable in the area several years ago and took down the overhead lines.

WREATH MAKING SHOP on the Vernon Holthusen yard at Thorhult is no marvel of architecture but a very functional building. The converted cabin is a snug workshop where 3,000 wreaths were produced by hand this year. The work crew (left to right) includes Mrs. Ellen Holthusen, Mrs. Ardell Roen, Mrs. Elayne Sundberg, Mrs. Pam Hogenson and Mrs. Vicki Holthusen. The children are Elayne's daughter Katy, Pam's son Scott and Vicki's daughters Amy and Jolene.

Laurie Hanson and Ronald Miller Are Wed In TRF

Miss Laurie Janelle Hanson and Ronald Dale Miller exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, November 24, at 2:30 p.m., at the Evangelical Free church in this city.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hanson, rural Newfolden. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Miller of Billings, Mont.

Rev. Curtis Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony, together with the bride's cousin, Rev. Marlin Bjronrud, Embarrass, who gave the devotional meditation. Mrs. Joel Carlson, a friend of the family was the organist. She played the traditional wedding march for the processional and "to God be the Glory" for the recessional. During the ceremony, the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hanson, Newfolden, sang "God, A Woman and a Man," and "He has Chosen You for Me, and "The Wedding Song." Prior to the lighting of the unity candle, Renate Vatthauer of Plummer sang, "The Greatest of These Is Love." For the unity candle lighting ceremony, the parents lit tapers from the pew candles and passed them to the bride and groom, who lit the unity candle and then extinguished their own.

Candelabra, graced with greenery and ivory bows formed the chancel setting. The pews along the center aisle were marked with crystal globed candles. In each window was a wicker basket filled with autumn grass, and plume grass, accented with silk daisies in shades of pink.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of ivory qiana styled with a Queen Anne neckline outlined with Venice lace. The empire bodice featured long, fitted sleeves appliqued with Venice lace motifs. Corresponding lace edged her princess styled skirt and cathedral length watteau train. A headpiece of lace and seed pearls held her fingertip veil of bridal illusion edged with the same Venice satin lace that trimmed the gown. She carried a cascade of burgundy silk roses interspersed with daisies in shades of pink, white star flowers and satin ribbon, backed by a lace ruffle. Her bouquet, like all the flowers at the wedding, were arranged by the mother of the bride.

Mrs. Kent Christensen was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Miss Laurie Rudd, St. Paul, friend and former rommate of the bride. Bridesmaids were Ranate Vatthauer, Thief River Falls; Tami Bjorgaard, Newfolden and Debbie Bjorgaard, Viking, friends and former classmates of the bride. They wore empire fashioned, long-sleeved, floor-length gowns of deep burgundy boucle with an attached sash in the back. In their hair, they wore a flower comb featuring daisies in shaded pink. Each carried a palm fan toppped with pink and burgundy daisies, brown anemone and white star flowers.

Kristi Bridges, rural Thief River Falls, a friend of the bride, was flower girl. Her gown of deep burgundy boucle, styled like the bridesmaids', was accented with collar, cuffs and sash of ivory lace. The rings were carried by Jason Hanson, a cousin of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a toast Bentley tuxedo trimmed in brown satin, brown trousers, and a burgundy silk carnation boutonniere.

The groom's all-white tuxedo with tails was complemented by a burgundy rose boutonniere.

Best man was the groom's cousin, Craig Miller of St. Paul and formerly of Billings, Mont. Groomsmen were Randy Hanson, Newfolden, brother of the bride; Kent Miller and Scott Miller, Billings, brothers of the groom. Serving as ushers were Jeffrey Hanson, Newfolden, cousin of the bride, and Randy Hanson, Newfolden, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hanson selected an empire styled, floor-length gown of toast brown qiana with a pleated skirt and a sheer cape, attached at the front bodice and draping back to fingertip length. Her corsage was of orange tipped yellow silk roses and ivory star flowers.

The mother of the groom wore a two-piece, floor-length gown of rose qiana featuring a pleated skirt and an overblouse with puffed wrist-length sleeves. Her corsage was of pale pink roses tipped with darker rose, and ivory starflowers.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mrs. Rose Fluke, Thief River Falls, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Jacob Miller, Billings, grandmother of the groom; and Mrs. Hilma Johnson of Holt, a special friend of the bride's family.

A reception in the church parlors for approximately 175 relatives and friends followed. Serving as host and hostess were Mr. an Mrs. Eugene Hanson of this city, friends of the bride's family. Peggy Hanson, Newfolden, registered the guests, as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vigness served the punch from a flowing fountain. The lucky pennies were distributed by Jill Hanson and Carla Hanson, Newfolden, who also distributed the wedding bulletins. All are cousins of the bride.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered "Lovebirds Song" spice wedding cake, iced in ivory and decorated with burgundy trim, lace cones and clusters of flowers. Between the pillars that supported the hexagon tiers and topping the cake were doves, bells and burgundy roses. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Alfred Hanson, Moorhead and Mrs. Burlin Jacobson, Thief River Falls, Mrs. Orvis Olen of this city and Mrs. Floyd Hanson, Newfolden, poured the coffee. All are aunts of the bride.

Waitresses were Debbie and Tami Hanson, Carolynn Jacobson, cousins of the bride, and Karen and Kristi Hanson, friends of the bride. The gifts were arranged by Marcy Reierson and Roxanne Swanson, friends of the bride. Deb Landes, a friend, and Janet Bjornrud, a cousin of the bride, served as flower hostesses.

The evening prior to the wedding, the parents of the groom hosted a dinner at the Best Western for members of the wedding party.

For traveling on a wedding trip to the Detroit Lakes area, the bride wore a dark steel blue qiana dress with a cowl neckline accented by an ivory dove pin, a gift from her aunt Lou.

The bride is a graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden, the Thief River Falls AVTI. She also attended St. Paul Bible college. She is currently employed by the Billy Graham headquarters in Minneapolis. The groom, a graduate of West high school, Billings, Mont., also attended St. Paul Bible college. He is employed by Industrial Supply company in Minneapolis.

The couple is at home in St. Louis Park. Photo, LeMar studio, Crookston.

Newfolden Senior Citizen Group Is Divided

Senior citizens of Newfolden met December 5 at the Newfolden center in an effort to resolve their differences.

President Mrs. Henning Olson presided at the meeting which began with reports by secretary Mrs. Ruth Martin and treasurer Mrs. Art Sakdsem. The list of grievances was read by Mrs. Florence Anderson. Attorney Brian Rokke spoke to the group, emphasizing the problems in having two separate groups.

When it became evident that the differences could not be resolved, the name for the group was discussed with Mrs. Ben Nelson suggesting "Newfolden Senior Citizens." That name was selected and Attorney Rokke was appointed to assist in the incorporation procedure and in drafting the by-laws. Also discussed was the division of the club funds, a total of $1,218.91. The decision was made that the original club retain the total amount.

A board of directors was selected. Elected to serve on that board were Kenneth Moen, Selmer Nyflot, Anne Hanson, Della Lindquist and Albert Lokken. The advisory board, consisting of an attorney, a pastor and a city council member will be chosen at the January meeting.

It was noted that membership to the organization is open to anyone over the age of 55 years.

Following adjournment, coffee and cookies were served.

Christmas Party Held By Chat and Chew Club

Members of the Chat and Chew homemakers club met recently for their Christmas party. The event began with a one o'clock luncheon at Thebothofus.

Following the luncheon the group reassembled at the Orville Feragen home for a social afternoon. Highlighting the afternoon was an exchanging of gifts, which were opened and viewed. Included were gifts from the secret pals. The party concluded with a lunch of Christmas goodies served by Mrs. Feragen.

Ten members attended the party.

TOPS Club Meeting To Be Held Wednesday

Regular meeting of the Thief River Falls TOPS club has been postponed until Wednesday, December 26, with weigh-in and roll call only.

The December 31 meeting will include only the weigh-in from 6 to 7 p.m.

Campanula Club Christmas Party Held at Overums

Campanula garden club Christmas party was held Wednesday afternoon, December 12, at the home of Geneva Overum.

The nine members in attendance answered roll call by presenting a number on the program. Included were the Biblical story of the birth of Jesus, and Christmas related poems, songs and a contest. Gifts were exchanged, pictures were taken and Christmas cards were signed for former members and those unable to attend. A festive lunch was served by the hostess.

A brief business session preceded the party. At that time, the secretary's, treasurer's and good cheer reports were given. It was also announced that there would no meeting of the club in January, but an executive board meeting is scheduled for the purpose of planning the program booklet for the year.

Local Legion Auxiliary Third Largest In State

Thief River Falls unit of the American Legion auxiliary was the third largest in the state in 1978-79, according to a report made at the December meeting held recently at the Legion club rooms. In recognition of this achievement, the unit received a National Membership award.

President Marilyn Winters presided at the meeting. She also distributed certificates from the Department secretary to those who attended the leadership training course. Certificates were issued to JoAnn Reeve, Hazel Maves, Agnes Baken, Octavia Jorgenson, Barbara Restad, Avis Odegaard, Lila Quam, Eileen Horejsh and Patti Smeby.

Membership chairman Avis Odegaard reported on the current membership and urged each member to get one new member.

Progress report on the auxiliary prayer book was given and members were asked to bring their contributions to the January meeting. Members were also asked to turn in their cancelled stamps and old watches.

The meeting began with a joint dinner with members of the post. Special guests at the dinner were Senator Marvin Hanson and his wife, Gayle. Following the dinner, Senator Hanson spoke to the group, giving information on benefits available to veterans. He suggested that members write to senators and representatives, expressing their views on veterans' affairs.

Following separate meetings of the post and auxiliary, a joint Christmas party was held. In place of a gift exchange, members contributed to a fund for purchasing articles for the Fargo Veterans hospital.

45 Groups To Take Part In MN. Food Expo

Forty-five cooperating farm commodity organizations, food processing and marketing firms have signed up for the 16th year of the Minnesota food expo promotion of this state's food and agricultural products in major national consumer markets, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin announced this week.

Eleven of the cooperators will be participating in the Minnesota food expo campaign for the first time. This brings to nearly 100 the total number of companies and farm commodity promotion groups that have participated in the unique food sales vehicle since it was established by the Minnesota department of agriculture in 1964. Ninety expos have been presented in the nation's top 40 consumer markets.

During 1980 the Minnesota food expo will host wholesale food buyers and display and serve some 300 different Minnesota food products in five metropolitan markets: March 13 in Chicago, April 10 in Omaha, May 1 in Fargo, September 17 in Seattle and October 16 in Baltimore. It will be the first expo for Fargo, but the others on the schedule are repeat visits.

Minnesota food expo is a cooperative effort of the Minnesota department of agriculture, its marketing services division and the Minnesota food industry. It is the oldest and biggest state government co-sponsored food and agricultural products sales promotion in the nation.

New cooperators in the 1980 Minnesota food expo series are Abrams meat distributors, Midwest Northern Nut company, Tofu Inc., Crown Meats Inc., and Serv Quik Foods of Minneapolis; Barrel O'Fun of Perham; Armour and Company of Cold Springs; Nature's Treat of Forest Lake; Dawson Food Ingredients of Eden Prairie; Maple Leaf Farms of Fridley; Wrightco Products Inc. of Monticello.

Continuing cooperators include American Dairy association of Minnesota, Big Stone Inc., Butter Kernel products, Captain Ken's Firehouse Beans, The Creamette company, Fisher Nut company, Food Producers International, Green Giant company, Geo. A. Hormel and company, Jeno's Inc., International Co-op, Johnson Nut company, Lloyd's Food Products Inc., Metz Baking company, Mid America Dairymen Inc., Minnesota Grain pearling company, Minnesota Egg council, Minnesota Turkey Growers association, Minnesota Wild Rice council, Pietrus Foods Inc., Red River Valley Potato Growers association, Reuben Meat company, Schweigert Meat company, Schumacher's Wholesale Meats Inc., Shari Candies Inc., SPA Protein laboratories Inc., Sunstar Foods Inc., Tony's Pizza service, Vitale's Italian Foods, and Wilson Foods corporation.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. David Femrite
rural Thief River Falls

Powdered Sugar Cookies

1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup butter
1 egg
pinch of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅓ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
2½ cups flour

Method: Cream powdered sugar and butter. Add egg and beat, together with vanilla. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Roll into balls and flatten with a fancy bottom glass, dipped in sugar. Bake for seven minutes in a 350 degree oven. For special occasions, like Christmas, Mrs. Femrite uses a cookie press.

The Femrites live one mile West on highway 1 and ¼ mile north. They have three children, Jodi, who attends school at Northrup; Jereme, 5, and Jona, 1, at home. Femrite, an employee of the Soo Line railroad, also has two children, Jason and Jacinda, by a previous marriage.

Mrs. Femrite's hobbies are oil painting and sewing. The family attends services at the First Baptist church.

SSI Recipients Receive Extra $250 Jan. 7

North Dakota and Minnesota residents who get federal supplemental security income (SSI) payments will automatically receive an extra $250 January 7 or shortly thereafter to help pay higher oil, gas or electric bills this winter.

Extra check is in addition to the regular monthly SSI payment, according to William Phalen, social security district manager in Grand Forks. Social security administers the SSI program.

Most people who receive SSI checks for December are eligible for the special energy check. Where there is more than one SSI recipient in the same household they will each get the $250 payment. SSI recipients living in institutions where medicaid pays the majority of the cost will not receive a special energy assistance check since it is unlikely they will have to pay for any increased energy cost.

Phalen said that people who receive a December SSI check but do not get a special energy assistance check by January 15 should contact social security. This is especially true for SSI recipients who use direct deposit and may not have kept social security informed of their current mailing address. All special energy checks are being mailed to the homes of SSI recipients, including those using direct deposit.

Bids Open For Pennington Co. Improvements

Up for bids the week of January 7, 1980, will be federal-aid improvements, estimated at $1.1 million, in Lyon, Mahnomen and Pennington counties, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced, acting for the counties.

In Pennington county, improvements call for grading and aggregate shoulders on 13 miles of CSAH 3 between US 59, seven miles east of St. Hilaire, and the Red Lake river.

Bids will be received until 2 p.m., Tuesday, January 8, 1980, by county auditor C. W. Rodekuhr at the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Library Notes Closing Hours

Northwest regional library will close at 6 p.m. on Monday, December 24 and Monday, December 31, rather than at the normal closing time of 9 p.m.

Last year's total of $110.2 billion in cash receipts by U.S. farmers was more than double with the 1970 figure of $50.5 billion, according to the Department of Agriculture.

SHARING A MOMENT with her son Scott is Mrs. Mike (Pam) Hogenson, one of the workers in the wreath-making shop located at the Vernon Holthusen yard at Thorhult. Pam is the daughter of Mrs. Philip (Ardell) Roen, a partner with Mrs. Vernon Holthusen in the wreath-making operation. Pam and two other young mothers involved in the family operation bring their youngsters with them to work, watching over them as they play out of harm's way in playpens along one wall of the shop.

3,000 Wreaths Add To Area Holiday Color

Most important to the operation is Ellen's mother, Mrs. Mary Johnson, who lives next door to the shop. At 85 years of age she provides the coffee which stimulates the work crew several times each day and into the night.

Elayne and Pam do the branch trimming and piling, cutting the larger branches down into pieces ready for attaching to the wire ring base. For the wrapping process the ladies use wire purchased from the florist supply firm.

Vicki prepares the bows which will decorate the wreaths, wrapping the red plastic ribbon on two short arms protruding from the front of an old wooden chair and securing the bow with wire.

With the wire ring at hand, a good supply of branches cut, the wrapping wire ready and a deadline near at hand, Ellen and Ardell say they each have been timed at making a wreath in two and one-half minutes. Average production is longer than that, of course, because of the preparation necessary and the inevitable time lost for one thing or another. Their realistic goal is to put out 160 wreaths a day.

When we visited the little workshop in November, the ladies were putting the finishing touches on the order for 700 or so wreaths made for the Thief River Falls Girl scouts. They had made most of the basic wreaths and would add the plastic bows and pine cone decorations shortly before delivery.

The workshop was quite warm with a wood-burning barrel stove available to provide what heat was necessary to warm the area. The building itself was well over 30 years old and quite an itinerant structure, having been used as a cabin in several places before coming to rest in the Holthusen yard. Scent of balsam permeated the air and chatter was light and cheerful among the women as they worked.

While balsam is the staple material for wreath making because it is long-lasting and conveniently available, the women agree cedar is even longer lasting but not as accessible and therefore more difficult to obtain. Pine cones, they say, are everywhere.

The ladies say that to meet the demand they should have their orders taken in October. They schedule their delivery dates in accordance with their ability to produce the product and the need of the purchasing group. And they like to be done well ahead of the holiday. This year their last order was scheduled for delivery December 5.

Days get long when deadlines get close and more than once the women have worked into the wee hours of the morning to complete the task at hand. But they take pride in never having missed a deadline and they probably never will. Weekends sort of merge into the work week and lose themselves in the labor, but this year the women insisted they were going to "take Thanksgiving day off".

"We're always glad when the job is done," they say, but they expect to be back at it again next year and the year after, and the years after that. And many hundreds of people who have been satisfied purchasers of their handiwork hope they will be, too.

A bright green wreath with a woodsy odor and a brilliant red ribbon adds a bit more atmosphere to any family's Merry Christmas.

Employment Edges Upward In November

Bureau of labor statistics of the U.S. department of labor reported that employment rose in November and unemployment edged down. The nation's overall unemployment rate was 5.8 per cent, compared with six per cent in October. The jobless rate has fluctuated between 5.6 and six per cent for more than a year.

Total employment — as measured by the monthly survey of households — rose 350,000 in November to 97.6 million. Total employment has grown by 1.9 million since November 1978, with more than half of the increase occurring between last November and March.

Nonfarm payroll employment — as measured by the monthly survey of establishments — advanced by 220,000 in November to 90.2 million. Over the year, payroll jobs decreased by 2.4 million; again, much of the growth took place in the four months prior to April.

The number of unemployed persons edged down by 140,000 in November to six million. The overall unemployment rate moved from six per cent in October to 5.8 per cent, the same as the September rate and within the relatively narrow range in which unemployment has remained since August of 1978.

Over-the-month declines in unemployment occurred among adult women and blacks, whose jobless rates declined to 5.5 and 10.8 per cent, respectively, reversing increases of comparable magnitude in October. The unemployment rate for adult men (4.3 per cent) and white workers (5.2 per cent), on the other hand, were unchanged. In other worker categories, jobless rates fell among part-time and white-collar workers; while the rate for blue-collar workers was about unchanged from the previous month. Blue-collar unemployment was up markedly over the year, however, in contrast to movements among most other major worker groups.

Total employment increased by 350,000 in November to 97.6 million. This increase took place primarily among adult women and white workers. Employment in white-collar jobs rose by 220,000 in November, with most of the increase occurring among sales workers. Although movements in employment have tended to be erratic in recent months, employment has increased by 1.9 million over the past year. Adult women accounted for three-fourths of the year-to-year growth.

The civilian labor force, at 103.7 million, edged up by 210,000 in November. Over-the-month increases in the labor force occurred entirely among white workers, as the number of blacks in the labor force declined. Since November of 1978, the overall labor force has advanced by 2.1 million.

The labor force participation rate was 63.8 per cent in November. Over the year, participation has increased by 0.2 percentage point, due entirely to increased labor force activity among adult women. Adult male and teenage participation rates were both down from a year earlier.

Fire Marshal Gives Tips On Tree Safety

A beautifully decorated Christmas tree can bring hours of enjoyment to you and your loved ones, but it can also present a dangerous fire hazard, according to Fire Marshal Wes Werner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"A dried-out, natural evergreen tree can flare up almost instantly if touched by flames or a spark from a short circuited wire of a string of colored lights," said Werner.

Because of this danger, the Minnesota uniform fire code prohibits the use of natural or resinbearing trees in hospitals and nursing homes. However, this type of tree when treated with a flame retardant substance is allowed in schools, churches, places of assembly, hotels and stores provided no electrical light decorations or open flames are used.

"Displaying a flame-retardant artificial tree is highly recommended," added Werner. "And an artificial tree decorated with U.L. (Underwriters Laboratory) tested electrical lights is acceptable in all occupancies."

Fire marshal offered the following list of fire precautions for the holidays:

When buying a natural, look first for freshness and check for a deep green color and a strong pine scent. Make sure the tree does not drop needles readily.

Before setting up the tree, cut a couple of inches off the trunk, sawing diagonally, so water will be absorbed more easily. Mount the tree in a sturdy base which has a reservior for water. NEVER set the tree close to any heat source especially fireplaces.

Check to be sure that there are no broken or cracked sockets, loose connections or frayed wires on Christmas tree lights. Again, the use of U.L. tested electrical lights is recommended for every tree.

Extention plugs can be very dangerous at any time, but they are a special hazard during this time of the year. It is recommended that no more than three sets of lights per single extension be used, and ALWAYS turn off all decorative lights before leaving home or going to bed.

Metallic trees and electric lights are NOT a safe combination because a short could electrically charge the entire tree shocking or possibly electrocuting anyone who touched it. Substitute colored spotlights above or beneath a metal tree.

Finally, when the magic moment arrives for opening presents, have a container ready for the discarded wrappings. Dispose of the container immediately because this is a fire hazard that can easily be ignited by a candle or cigarette ash.

"On behalf of the department of public safety, the Fire Marshal's office wishes a safe and happy holiday season to all Minnesotans," said Werner.

Office Of Job Service Has Active 1979

Fiscal year 1979 proved to be another busy year for the Minnesota department of economic security area office located at 310 Knight avenue north, Thief River Falls.

The department is charged with two major responsibilities, that of finding people for jobs and jobs for people. This responsibility is vested in the Job Service through the federal Wagner-Peyser act of 1933. The other major program is in administering the unemployment insurance program under the Minnesota employment services law.

According to figures released by J. K. Stadum, area office manager, the office provided the following services during fiscal 1979.

A total of 2,972 individuals filed applications for employment with the office. Job order requests for job applicants were received which resulted in 2,145 job placements with non-agricultural employers and 286 placements with agricultural employers. The number of placements with non-agricultural employers increased 507 over fiscal 1978 activity and 56 more with agricultural employers.

Stadum indicated that a review of unfilled openings usually revealed job opportunities that provided little advancement opportunity, poor wages or other conditions of employment which failed to attract the type of applicant then available for work. It is the philosophy of the manager and staff to fill each job opportunity as rapidly as qualified applicants are available so that the total area's economy may benefit.

A review of the accomplishments of the unemployment insurance activities revealed a significant decrease in most of these activities from 1978.

Total initial claims for regular benefits came to 4,554 — down 11 per cent from 1978. Claims against other states total 330, almost identical to 1978 activity.

Regular unemployment insurance continued claims decreased 15 per cent to a total of 20,704. Similarily the number of weeks of benefits claimed dropped 17 per cent of 38,393 weeks.

Total benefits received in the five-county area totaled $3,226,671, an 11 per cent decrease in benefits paid out during the fiscal year.

Administrative area includes the five northwestern Minnesota counties of Pennington, Red Lake, Roseau, Marshall and Kittson.

Staff consists of Jeff Gustafson, E. S. specialist; Dave Nord, placement interviewer; Gerald Okland, veterans employment representative; C. B. Josephson, U.C. specialist; Tress Noel, U.C. representative; Arvilla Hastad and Vivian Olson, U.C. claims clerks; and Marge Semrud, E.S. assistant. Regular staff is assisted during peak seasons by Viola Jaranson as seasonal clerk.

167 Per Cent Jump In Cable Revenue Noted

A 167 per cent jump in pay cable revenues and a tripling of pay cable subscribers gave the cable communications industry in Minnesota a healthy boost this year.

Data gathered from the cable companies operating in Minnesota and analyzed by the Minnesota cable communications board (MCCB) indicates estimated revenues from both basic and pay cable subscriber revenues totaled $16.8 million over the past year, up $3 million from 1978.

The MCCB publishes these and other statistics and information on the cable industry annually. "Cable Communications in Minnesota, 1979" is now available from state documents section and can be found in state depositories located in state university and community college libraries.

An increase in the number of satellite earth receive stations (ERS) is a major factor in the increase of pay cable subscribers and revenues. This year, 31 ERS bring in signals from orbiting satellites to 52 Minnesota communities, compared to eight in the state in 1978 and four in 1977. Signals broaden subscriber choices of programming including premium entertainment packages (ie: pay cable).

Basic cable service subscribers increased by 16,000 over the past 12 months, with that increase a quarter of the state's population receives its television programming via cable.

Trend in rapid growth is projected to continue for the next several years. Over one hundred Minnesota cities are currently in the franchising process. Approximately one-third of those cities are in the Twin Cities metropolitan area. Most recent figures list 128 operating cable systems in the state serving 223 municipalities.

Introduction of pay service and other services provided by satellite has opened new markets not only in the metropolitan areas but in the sparsely populated areas of the state as well. Rural telephone companies, under eased requirements on cross-ownership by the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) and new loan monies available to them to operate cable systems from the REA (Rural Electrification Administration), are entering the cable industry in small rural communities and outlaying areas.

Number of hours or local cable programming also increased in Minnesota in 1978. Minnesota programmers cablecast an average of 16.5 hours a week compared to the 1977 average of 11.5 hours.

Other cable services, such as civil emergency alert systems are also on the increase. Minnesota cable communications board is a state agency which sets minimum standards for cable franchises and promotes community and public interest aspects of cable communications.

Farmers May Enter Grain In CCC Plan

Farmers in Pennington county who have 1978 and 1979 wheat, oats or corn under loan to the commodity credit corporation (CCC) may now enter this grain into the three-year reserve program, according to executive director Phillip Bergland of the Pennington ASCS committee.

"The market price of wheat and oats continues above the release level," he said, "and we are therefore not making advance payments for the storage of this grain. There are, however, some advantages for producers to enter the reserve at this time."

He pointed out that the interest on these loans stops one year after the farmer signs the loan agreement. Most of the 1978 loans are now due, he added, and they either have to be paid or extended by placing the grain in the reserve.

"If the market price remains higher than the release level," he said, "you are free to sell this grain and relay the loan at any time. You must contact Lucille Haugen at the county office before any grain is moved or sold."

All barley in the reserve program has been called for payment and short-term extensions can be arranged for those producers who are not able to sell or deliver at this time.

Egg Production Totals 175 Million In Oct.

Egg production on Minnesota poultry farms this October totaled 175 million eggs and indicated a shift to increased egg production for the first time in over one year, reports Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin.

This October output topped the same month last year by one million eggs. This was the first time in 13 months that Minnesota egg production was higher than a year earlier.

Minnesota's egg production for the first ten months of 1979 now stands at 1,731 million eggs. In consumer cartons that represents 144.25 million dozen.

Estimated farm value of this year's January through October egg production for Minnesota poultry farmers is nearly $70 million.

In 1978 Minnesota egg production through October was 1,819 million eggs or nearly 151.6 million dozen with an estimated farm value of $61.5 million.

Commissioner Seetin estimated that Minnesota egg producers received an average of 48.5 cents per dozen for eggs sold through October this year, br an increase of less than eight cents a dozen over the 40.6 cents a dozen 1978 average farm price.

He pointed out that eggs continue to be one of the best nutritional foods on the market today, as well as one of the best bargains in animal protein foods. Only fresh fluid milk is a cheaper source of animal protein either at the farm or at the supermarket.

Wool Growers May Apply For Incentive Pay

Sheep growers who have completed their sales of wool or unshorn lambs for 1979 are encouraged to file an application for an incentive payment, according to Phillip Bergland, county executive director of the Pennington agricultural stabilization and conservation committee.

Support level for 1979 wool has been established at $1.15 per pound, Bergland said. January 31, 1980, is the final date to file for payment on 1979 sales.

Senator Says SALT Treaty Needs Change

In a private White House meeting recently with President Carter, Senator Dave Durenberger said the SALT II treaty would not be adequately verifiable unless funding is increased for intelligence gathering and two "understandings" to the treaty introduced by the senator are accepted.

Durenberger, a member of the Senate select committee on intelligence, has said all along that he will not support SALT II unless the treaty is adequately verifiable. The senator said his actions would "plug the verification loopholes in the treaty.

"Verification is a two-part process. First, can Soviet behavior under the treaty be adequately monitored and, second, what happens to the monitored information once it's collected? Will the president do anything about possible violations? Will anyone except the president know of violations?"

Durenberger's second understanding, which will be introduced this week, will require the president to take "appropriate action" if the Soviet Union is not complying with the treaty. That action includes raising the question of non-compliance at the standing consultative commission, the official forum for the two countries to discuss issues relating to SALT.

The first understanding, introduced December 4 with Senators John Chafee and Patrick Leahy, requires the president to immediately report to the intelligence committee any information that "indicates any compliance or non-compliance of the Soviet Union with the treaty."

"We must make sure that the president has the capability to observe Soviet actions and we must have the confidence that he will communicate that information to the American people through their representatives. SALT II isn't based on the United States trusting the Soviet Union. But, it must be based on the American people's trust that we can gather the information and that their policy makers will have access to it," said the senator.

In his meeting with the president, Durenberger urged Carter to submit a fiscal year 1981 intelligence budget that demonstrates a "commitment to excellence" in the U.S intelligence gathering and analyzing system.

"The budget increase is needed with or without the treaty," said Durenberger. "We are entering a period in which the Soviets may perceive that they have the edge on us. We must make sure that they don't use that perception against us in situations like Iran. Only by bolstering our weakened understanding of emerging nations' political systems and pressures can we keep third world conflicts from becoming a third world war.

"We can look at examples all over the world in just the last few months where we were unprepared because of a lack of knowledge to deal with political realities. Iran is just the most extreme case."

Durenberger cited the president's speech Wednesday to the business council in which Carter promised a real growth of more than three per cent in the fiscal year 1981 defense budget and an average real growth of 4½ per cent in the next five years.

"Intelligence spending must complement defense spending. If we have an inadequate ability to understand what is happening around the world and if the executive branch has no commitment to communicate that information to policy makers, then we're throwing a lot of our defense dollars out the window," said Durenberger.

Rites Held For Mrs. Lawrence Bengtson, 66

Mrs. Lawrence (Frances) Bengtson, 66, of Lake Bronson, mother of Mrs. Windfield Olson of Thief River Falls, died December 7 at Salinas, Calif., at the home of a daughter.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lawrence Bengtson were held December 13 at Zion Lutheran church in Lake Bronson with Rev. Martti Wilkman officiating. Mrs. Charles Swanson was the organist and Mr. and Mrs. Swanson sang. Interment was in the Riverside cemetery at Lake Bronson.

Honorary pallbearers were Melroe Gunnarson, Fed Blomquist, Floyd Hagen, Henry Jonson, Marvin Stromgren, Erland Erlandson and Marvin B. Bengtson.

Active pallbearers were Alden Hagen, Dale Bronson and Harry, Henry, Lloyd and Marvin Bengtson.

Mrs. Bengtson, the former Frances Truedson, was born Dec. 17, 1912 at Hallock to William and Sella Truedson. She attended school at Hallock, and was a graduate of the Hallock high school and the teachers training department at Moorhead State. She taught in the rural schools in Kittson county until her marriage to Lawrence Bengtson on July 1, 1939 at Hallock. Since then, the couple has lived and farmed in Jupiter township, Kittson county.

Surviving are her husband, two daughters: Mrs. Windfield (Jeanne) Olson, Thief River Falls; and Mrs. Art (Lois) Sauer, Salinas, Calif.; a son, Allen Bengtson, Greenfield, Calif.; five grandchildren; two brothers: Percy Truedson, Bellingham, Wash., and Hilmer, Grass Valley, Calif.; and a sister, Mrs. Earl (Norma) Bengtson, Hallock.

She was preceded in death by her parents.

U of M Given $110,000 To Continue Study

Mineral institute at the University of Minnesota will receive $110,000 to continue its research activities for a second year, according to Joan M. Davenport, assistant secretary of the interior for energy and minerals.

Research funding is provided under Title III of the Surface mining control and reclamation act of 1977. Act also provides $160,000 for scholarship and fellowship aid to undergraduate and graduate students pursuing degree programs in the mining and minerals-oriented disciplines.

Both the research and student funding programs are coordinated by Interior's office of surface mining (OSM). Student funding covers the three-year period.

Secretary Davenport pointed out that the funding covers a wide spectrum of mining and mineral activities as well as being used by purchase equipment and for administrative costs. "Although energy research is certainly a top priority, the nation's mineral resources are declining and there is an urgent need to devote a considerable amount of our research dollars to increase our knowledge in these areas," she said.

Secretary Davenport singled out a particular research project at the Institute which could be of great benefit to the nation's steel industry. "We have been lagging behind other countries in modern steel production technology. If the current project at the Institute is successful, this could provide a competitive advantage to our steelmakers," she said.

"Research projects such as this will take time to produce definitive results," the Secretary added. "However, the fact that this work could be undertaken is a direct result, not just of the funding, but the rapport that has been established between the Institute and OSM."

Secretary Davenport said, "there is a continuing flow of ideas and information" between OSM's Director Walter N. Heine and Assistant Director David R. Maneval and the Institute's Director Dr. Kenneth J. Reid.

"These lines of communication are essential to developing new ideas and new methods," she said. "We think that the end result will be new technologies to answer our country's needs."

The $110,000 grant will cover the period from September 30, 1979, to September 29, 1980.

WIC And EPS Clinics Set In This Area

Four county EPS will screen any child or young adult between six months and 13 years, according to Muriel Roley, EPS coordinator. Early and periodic screening provides simple and efficient methods of screening basically well children. EPS clinics provide the following components: vision and hearing check, height and weight determination, dental assessment and instruction in care of teeth, Denver developmental testing, hematocrit determination and urinalysis, physical assessment and immunizations are available. Appointments must be made in advance.

Early and periodic screening clinics scheduled for January for the four county (Marshall, Kittson, Pennington, Red Lake counties), as well as certification of participants for WIC (women, infants and children) food supplemental and nutritional education program are as follows. Hallock — January 2 — Presbyterian church; Red Lake Falls — January 3 — Red Lake Falls city hall; Grygla — January 7 — Community center; Karlstad — January 8 — First Lutheran church; Newfolden — January 9 — Bethlehem Lutheran church — Warren, — January 10 — Evangelical Covenant church.

EPS clinics will also be scheduled for Oklee — January 28 at 9:30 a.m. at the Zion Lutheran church; and Thief River Falls — January 29 — Redeemer Lutheran church. WIC clinics will also be in Thief River Falls — January 11 at Redeemer Lutheran church, and at Oklee January 14 at Zion Lutheran church.

Because the participant load is increasing in the WIC program, it is necessary for potential clients to call or write the four county EPS service in Warren to make a WIC certification appointment. New clients will be seen by appointment only.

Initial certification will take approximately one to one and one half hours. Potential clients must bring the children they wish to have certified with them. All WIC clinics begin at 9 a.m. and will run until noon, with a nutrition class for all clients from 10-10:30 a.m.

For more information concerning the WIC or EPS clinics, and making appointments, or cost of clinics, call or write: Four County EPS service, Marshall county courthouse, 208 E. Colvin Avenue, Warren, MN 56762; phone 745-4004.

Executive For Scout Council Is Appointed

New scout executive of the Northern Lights council, Boy Scouts of America, will be Terrence Pointer, currently director of field services, Indianhead council in St. Paul.

Pointer, who will assume his new duties January 2 and has been a professional with the Boy Scouts of America for 18 years, will head the Northern Lights council serving all of North Dakota, parts of Montana, South Dakota, and eighteen counties of Western Minnesota.

Pointer pledged in his new position that he will continue to build on the program for boys that encourages character development, citizenship training, and mental and physical fitness.

Research Grant In Mining Goes To University

Assistant secretary of the interior Joan M. Davenport, has announced that the mining and mineral resources research institute at the University of Minnesota has been awarded a $100,573 research grant.

Grant, in the exploration area, is provided under the surface mining control and reclamation act of 1977.

"The research grant reflects the commitment the institute and its director, Dr. Kenneth Reid, having in seeking answers to the nation's mining and minerals problem," said Davenport, assistant secretary for energy and minerals.

Research project approved for the institute is among a total of 58 chosen for funding for the 1979-80 fiscal year covering 10 areas with a total expenditure of nearly $3.1 million. Research areas are exploration; extraction; processing; mine development; mining and mineral technology; supply and demand; conservation and vest use of mineral resources; economic, legal and social aspects of mining; reclamation, and minerals research.

"Competition for these grants was enormous," the secretary added. "OSM's directorate of technical services and research received 372 pre-proposals. After preliminary assessment by a group of independent reviewers, 118 proposals were evaluated by a panel of national experts in the 10 research areas."

On the basis of the panel's recommendations, final project awards were approved by OSM director Walter N. Heine, deputy director Paul R. Reeves and assistant Director David R. Maneval. Their choices received the concurrence of OSM's advisory committee on mining and mineral research.

Funding provided to the institute is for a single fiscal year. Projects designed to take two or more years would come from appropriations approved for those additional fiscal years.

STACKS OF WREATHS were kept in the Vernon Holthusen garage awaiting pick-up by a purchasing group when this Times photo was taken in November. Mrs. Holthusen and Mrs. Ardell Roen created about 3,000 wreaths this year in their little workshop converted from an old cabin.

Senators To Review SALT With Carter

Senators Dave Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota said today they welcomed the opportunity to meet President Carter to discuss their reservations about the state of U.S. defense.

"During the past several months we've raised some serious questions about the SALT II Treaty, but have been unable to obtain satisfactory answers," said the Minnesota senators in a joint statement. "The opportunity to discuss our concerns directly with the president will give us a change to ask some hard questions and, we hope, receive some commitments on the future of the U.S. defense and intelligence planning."

Durenberger and Boschwitz joined 17 other senators in sending a weekend letter to President Carter. The senators said they were concerned that SALT II would give the Soviets too much freedom in developing their weapons arsenal. The senators said they wanted assurances that the United States would take action to counteract the Soveity built-up.

The letter said the senators wanted to hear the administration's plans to improve the enlistment of high quality people for the armed services; programs to improve intelligence gathering; specific plans for deploying ground-launched cruise missiles behind the North Atlantic Treaty Organization lines in Europe; plans for narrowing the "window of vulnerability" in the early 1980s when the Soviets will be able to knock out a sizable portion of the U.S. land-based nuclear offense; plans to "deter and counter" aggressive Soviet activity in the Third World; and an explanation of how SALT II would affect reductions in strategic arms under a third treaty.

Carter responded to the letter Sunday by saying he would meet with the 19 senators at an unspecified date to discuss their concerns.

Durenberger, Boschwitz and the 17 other senators have remained uncommitted on SALT II. Senator Boschwitz has said he will not support the treaty unless there is a significant improvement in the amount being spent on defense and in the way it is being spent.

Durenberger said last week that he will vote against SALT II unless the president commits to an increase in the budget for intelligence gathering and two "understandings" to the treaty are accepted. The understandings direct the executive branch to share certain information regarding Soviet non-compliance and suspected non-compliance with the Senate select committee on intelligence and the standing consultative committee.

ICCC Offers Brochure On Drunk Driving

"How to Keep the Life of the Party Alive" is the topic of a brochure prepared by the U.S. department of transportation and distributed in this area through the chemical dependency program of Inter-County community council at Oklee.

A limited number of the brochures are included with the December 24 edition of the Northern Minnesota Shoppers Guide distributed to Thief River Falls residents. They are also available on request from the Inter-County community council office at Oklee, MN. 56742.

Included in the brochure are party planning ideas to reduce the potential for drunken driving, methods to take after the party to prevent someone from driving when drunk, a chart to show at what point alcohol impairs the senses and a few recipes for party dishes.

Theme of the brochure is "Friends don't let friends drive drunk".

Legislator To Ask Change In Auto Tax Use

"While there is no question that we face a crisis in highway funding, due to increased gasoline prices and other inflationary pressures, we cannot resolve that crisis by creating another tax burden on consumers — who already are bearing the brunt of spiraling inflation," says state senator Jack Kleinbaum of St. Cloud.

The senator said he has introduced legislation that would transfer revenues from the motor vehicle sales (excise) tax from the general fund to the highway fund — to restore revenue needed for more than 60 projects cut from the state highway construction program last summer.

"My bill, which was introduced last session, and will certainly be reconsidered when the Legislature reconvenes in January, would add $100 million to the highway budget without burdening consumers with additional taxes," Kleinbaum said. "It certainly is logical legislation, since those who purchase automobiles are the ones who will be using the highways."

Governor Al Quie has said he will ask the legislature to increase the state motor vehicle fuel tax by at least four cents per gallon to offset shortages in the highway budget — estimated to be about $125 million.

"The governor does not take into consideration that most motorists are now paying more than $1 per gallon for gasoline, and that price increases are expected," Kleinbaum said.

"Forced to pay more, consumers will either lose more of their buying power, or use less gasoline. Former action would further increase inflation, while the latter would decrease highway revenues, thus negating the benefits from the tax."

In contrast, the senator noted, his legislation would add about the same money to the highway budget, without increasing taxes.

"We certainly should take action to replace what has become a serious shortage in highway funding," Kleinbaum said. "Construction costs rose 20 per cent in 1978, while fuel prices, conservation efforts, and the trend toward smaller cars has been pushing gas purchases and gas tax revenues downward. Result has been a $125 million shortage in highway funding."

That shortage, the senator explained, has caused the cancellation of 67 vital maintenance, rehabilitation and improvement projects scheduled for 1980-81. Another 67 projects — totalling $334 million — may be eliminated by 1985, he said.

"However, we must consider the inflationary impact of any action we may take to correct the problem," Kleinbaum said.

U of M Names Hasselmo To New Position

Nils Hasselmo, a 48-year-old professor of Scandinavian languages and literature, was named vice president for administration and planning at the University of Minnesota December 14.

Hasselmo's appointment, which becomes effective Jan. 1, 1980, was approved by the Board of regents at its monthly meeting. Hasselmo succeeds Robert A. Stein, who resigned in July after he was named dean of the university's law school.

As administration vice president, Hasselmo will be responsible for long-range planning efforts, intercollegiate athletics, personnel, and various other areas.

Hasselmo is a native of Sweden who immigrated to the United States in 1958. He holds a Ph.D. degree in linguistics from Harvard university and a bachelor of arts degree from Augustana college in Rock Island, Ill.

On the University faculty since 1965, Hasselmo was associate dean of the College of Liberal arts from 1973 to 1978 and chairman of the Scandinavian department from 1970 to 1973.

Regents also approved the appointment of Richard J. Sauer, 40, as director of the Agricultural experiment station effective March 15. A native of Walker, Minn., Sauer is professor and head of the department of entomology at Kansas State University in Manhattan.

Experiment station director coordinates all research in the Institute of agriculture, forestry and home economics, including that done at branch stations and centers around the state.

Sauer, who has a master's degree in zoology from the University of Michigan and a Ph.D. degree from North Dakota state university, has also taught at St. Cloud state university and Michigan state university.

Norman A. Brown, 40, was named director of the Agricultural extension service effective March 1. He is currently professor and assistant director of extension for 4-H youth programs at Michigan state university.

As head, Brown will oversee programs offered by agricultural extension service effective March 1. He is currently professor and assistant director of extension for 4-H youth programs at Michigan state university.

As head, Brown will oversee programs offered by agricultural extension offices in every Minnesota county. He has been a vocational agriculture teacher and county 4-H agent in Michigan, and was coordinator of student programs and continuing education for the College of Agriculture and Natural resources at Michigan State.

MN. Officials Take Part In NATaT Meet

Dan C. Holtz and Ervin Strandquist of the Minnesota association of township officers attended the Washington, D.C. meeting of the national association of towns and townships board of directors, Dec. 9-11.

Holtz is first vice-president of the national association and executive secretary of the Minnesota association. Strandquist, a Newfolden area resident, is joining the national association (NATaT) and is vice-chairman of the Minnesota association.

National association of towns and townships is a nonprofit organization providing representation for township officials from over 13,000 predominantly non-metropolitan communities throughout the country. Considering that over 66 per cent of all Americans live in what the federal government defines as small towns and rural areas, NATaT provides a focus at the national level for vital intergovernmental perspective.

Board meeting was convened to give members of NATaT's governing body an opportunity to meet with Representative Wes Watkins (D-OK), chairman of the congressional rural caucus, and White House officials regarding President Carter's December 20 national small town-rural policy announcement.

Dan Holtz, a resident of Hawick, Minnesota, has served on the NATaT board of directors for more than three years. Ervin Strandquist resides in Newfolden.

Minnesota association represents 9,000 Minnesota township officers before the state legislature, and is headquartered in Spicer, MN.

Christmas Gospel

Merry Christmas! The words come easy to most people, rolling off the tongue with no more effort — and perhaps little more thought — than "see ya around" or "take it easy".

But the greeting embodies the spirit of Christmas, the ability to share the joy of the coming of the Christ Child nearly 2,000 years ago for the salvation of mankind. Let us all share the spirit of Christmas as we read once again the familiar words of the story told in the Holy Bible:

Luke 2:1-20 — About this time Caesar Augustus, the Roman Emperor, decreed that a census should be taken throughout the nation. (This census was taken when Quirinius was governor of Syria.)

Everyone was required to return to his ancestral home for this registration. And because Joseph was a member of the royal line, he had to go to Bethlehem in Judea, King David's ancient home — Journeying there from the Galilean village of Nazareth. He took with him Mary, his fiancee, who was obviously pregnant by this time.

And while they were there, the time came for her baby to be born; and she gave birth to her first child, a son. She wrapped him in a blanket and laid him in a manager, because there was no room for them in the village inn.

That night some shepherds were in the field outside the village, guarding their flocks of sheep. Suddenly an angel appeared among them, and the landscape shone bright with the glory of the Lord. They were badly frightened, but the angel reassured them.

"Don't be afraid," he said. "I bring you the most joyful news ever announced, and it is for everyone! The Savior — yes, the Messiah, the Lord — has been born tonight in Bethlehem! How will you recognize him? You will find a baby wrapped in a blanket, lying in a manger!"

Suddenly, the angel was joined by a vast host of others — the armies of heaven — praising God: "Glory to God in highest heaven," they said, "and peace on earth for all those pleasing Him".

When this great army of angels had returned again to heaven, the shepherds said to each other, "Come on! Let's go to Bethlehem! Let's see this wonderful thing that has happened, which the Lord has told us about."

They ran to the village and found their way to Mary and Joseph. And there was a baby, lying in the manger. The shepherds told everyone what had happened and what the angel had said to them about this child.

All who heard the shepherds' story expressed astonishment, but Mary quietly treasured these things in her heart and often thought about them.

Then the shepherds went back to their fields and flocks, praising God for the visit of the angels, and because they had seen the child, just as the angel had told them.

Flocking The Tree

Harpo Dexter has written a number of columns for the Bemidji Pioneer newspaper. All are humorous. Some are funny. A few are downright hilarious. We would rank the following among his all-time best efforts:

I'm not a home handy man. Ask my wife, she'll tell you. She'll tell anyone who'll listen. She thinks it's funny. She doubles up telling it.

It all started when I flocked our Christmas tree. And the dog, the cat, the garage, the house, its carpets, the kids, my wife, myself and just about everything else within fifty feet.

"This year I want a flocked Christmas tree," my wife said.

"That's silly," I said, having seen the price of a flocked tree.

"It's not silly," she said, "a lot of people do it."

"Let's get a divorce," I said, "a lot of people are doing it."

She didn't answer. She doesn't when she's lost an argument. And somehow that reverses things so she eventually wins.

"If you really want a flocked tree, I'll flock one for you," I said.

Her arms sneaked around me. "You're so good to me," she whispered. Then she squeezed a little. And at that moment I'd have agreed to flock Preacher's Grove in Itasca State Park if she'd asked me to, and she knew it.

Well she got her tree flocked. And the laugh of her life, she claims. I flocked it. At home. Easily and quickly, just like the advertisements say. It was great fun. The instructions were simple. So was I.

First you stand the tree in a warm place for two days so the limbs will assume their natural position. I didn't have two days, so I used Karate. I twisted its limbs into place in two hours. And it twisted mine out of place in about 10 minutes.

Now you soak the tree with a garden hose. Outside. I did. It was 31 degrees out there and that made such a lake in my front yard that I had to use tire chains to get in and out for the next two days.

Did you ever home flock a Christmas tree? You use the vacuum cleaner. You fasten a bag of flocking to a jar full of water and use the vacuum cleaner to provide the pressure.

Pressure. Daughter Mary was standing near the bag when it split from the pressure. I transposed her into an instant female Santa. I gave a beard to her waist. Talk about funny.

But she didn't laugh. She left.

Then daughter Molly came to help. The bag blew again. Another Santa. And another quitter in the family. And she really didn't look that bad. She had a white stripe in the middle of her head, her brown coat was white and there was a gob of flocking oozing out of the top of her boot. But I really didn't think that warranted her actions.

Then the breezeway started living up to its name. A 20 knot Nor'wester zoomed up it like a tornado looking for a place to happen. It caught the flocking as it left the nozzle and blew it all over the house. It also blew some more over Molly so she blew some over me. I tripped over the dog and spilled what was left of the flocking over him. He howled into the house and shook flocking all over the carpet. Actually, we had the Christmasiest looking place in the country.

Don't ever try flocking your own Christmas tree without having a good supply of scotch tape on hand. I blew the flock bag the first time. I hauled the bag back into the house (the flock bag, not my wife) and patched it with tape. It blew 12 more times and I flocked something different every time.

I even got some of it onto the tree. It froze there in great globs. It flattened the branches and sagged down like great globs of bread dough overflowing a pan.

"Helen," I hollered, "I'm done. Come and see."

She came. She saw.

"My God," she said, "What is it?"

"Your Christmas tree," I said proudly. "Your first flocked tree."

"Not mine," she said, "Not in my house!"

After all that work? I grabbed the tree by its base and I hit the door to the house like Quixote charging a windmill. Frozen flocking broke off the tree and dropped on to the carpet. It melted and dried there to become permanent.

I stood the tree in its rightful place in the living room corner. It thawed slowly. Branches sprang back into their original position and sprayed flocking onto the ceiling, the walls, the windows and the furniture. Then it just stood there. Naked. Unashamed. Proud. Smiling at the Christmas cheer it had brought.

That was when my wife broke down. First she giggled. Then she guffawed, really, she sagged to the floor. She rolled and howled. Finally she wiped her eyes.

"Never again," she whispered. "Promise me right now, that you'll never try flocking a tree again."

I promised. I spit out a big gob of flocking and promised. And I've never broken my word. But I did write this little poem to explain why I no longer flock Christmas trees.

T'was the week before Christmas and all through our home,
We hammered and chiseled on white, hardened foam.
It stuck to the tables and onto each chair
And some even silvered my wife's auburn hair.
The dog and the kitten both
whimpered, because,
The gluey white gooey was stuck to their paws.
The kids were complaining and screaming their woes,
And claimed that their bodies were glued to their clothes.
Mama in her kerchief and me in my cap,
We settled right down to have a good rap.
And I agreed quickly, and swore
full and free,
That I never again would try flocking a tree.

GATHERING BRANCHES for making Christmas wreaths begins for Mrs. Vernon Holthusen (left) and Mrs. Philip Roen in mid-October. They cut balsam boughs from trees near home, returning to the same area of the woods every three years. The tool above enables the ladies — and sometimes their husbands — to reach higher branches. A hook at the end of the pole is slipped over a branch, and when the lever at the other end is pulled, a sharpened blade slices off the branch which falls to the ground. The material is stockpiled for use during the wreath-making season.

Tourist Bureau Has Winter Event Calendar

Are you curious about the date of the first international eelpout festival or the fifth annual Lake Mazeska monster vigil? Information is in the 1979-80 winter calender of events prepared and distributed by the Minnesota tourism bureau.

The calendar covers all the major snowmobile, skiing and sled dog races held in the state. In addition, many more community festivals are listed. Those who like thrills will be drawn to the jalopy races on ice at Walker while the more docile can choose the fourth annual hobby fair at the depot in Duluth. The granddaddy of all the Minnesota winter events is the St. Paul winter carnival from February 1-10 in 1980.

The calendar gives a brief description of each event and a number to call for more details. All copies are free for the asking from the Minnesota tourist information center, 480 Cedar St., St. Paul, MN 55101. Twin Cities residents may call 296-5029 between 8 and 4:30, Monday through Friday. Other Minnesota residents may call toll-free 1-800-652-9747.

The winter calendar is one of many publications providing travel information about Minnesota that is printed by the tourism bureau of the Minnesota department of economic development. Other free publications include a camping guide, fall touring map, vacation guide, rocks and minerals in Minnesota, farm vacation and houseboat guides.

Earth Sheltered Housing Meet On Feb. 1 and 2

"Earth Sheltered Housing: A Response to the Energy Crisis" is the topic to be covered at a meeting to be held for realtors, builders, financial organizations and the general public at the Brainerd Holiday Inn on February 1 and 2.

Organized by the University of Minnesota's underground space center, the conference will include such topics as why to build earth sheltered housing, design and construction alternatives, financing costs compared to costs of a conventional home, soils, moisture control and incorporating passive solar and other energy efficient alternatives.

Participants are encouraged to bring their own plans and-or problems to discuss with the speakers. Conference is being designed for rural areas and middle income ranges.

"There is a growing interest in earth-sheltered housing in our area" said Ray Gildow, director of the energy information center in Staples. "The number of requests to our center for information has grown tremendously."

"We're excited about being able to bring the underground space center to our area" said Gordon Stobb, chairman of the Crow Wing river environmental education council. "It's the first time they've carried out such a program in a rural area outside a metropolitan area. They are nationally known experts in the field."

Conference will begin on Friday afternoon, February 1 at 3:30 p.m., and will adjourn at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday. Costs are $45 per person if registration is before January 31. After January 31, the rate is $55.

To register, call the energy resource center at 218-894-2430 or the Crow Wing river environmental education council office at 218-828-2663.

Co-sponsors of the program are Crow Wing river environmental education council, Staples Regional energy information center, Central Minnesota service corporation of Brainerd, Brainerd chamber of commerce, Brainerd area board of realtors, Citizens state bank of Brainerd, Staples chamber of commerce, Staples state bank, and the Midcentral savings and loan of Staples.

Information On North Dakota In UND Book

University of North Dakota's bureau of business and economic research, in cooperation with the North Dakota federal aid coordinator's office, has published a "Statistical Abstract of North Dakota," a 700-page book containing comprehensive information about the state.

Richard Kauffman, UND associate professor of economics and one of two project directors, said the reference volume contains descriptive data about the state of North Dakota and its political subdivisions, and is "intended to serve as a guide to basic data sources about North Dakota."

The document is divided into three major topic areas: people and the environment, the economy, and the public sector. The first section includes information on population, health and vital statistics, and geography and climate. The section on the economy covers income and weath, employment and earnings, transportation, communications, agriculture, energy and mineral activities, construction and housing, banking and insurance, and manufacturing. The public sector section provides data on goverment finances, social insurance and welfare services, education, government and elections, law enforcement and the courts, and public lands and recreation.

Oscar Lund of Bismarck, economic development planning coordinator and also a project director, and Kauffman, were assisted by a research staff and several support personnel in compiling the information.

Information in the book, Kauffman said, was pulled together from a large number of federal and state data sources. It is the first compendium of statistical information published about North Dakota, he said.

Funded by the Economic Development Administration and the Old West Regional Commission, the 6x9 paper-bound work — "Statistical Abstract of North Dakota" — is available for $12 from the UND Bureau of Business and Economic Research, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, ND 58202.

Free Lake Map Of Wisconsin Is Available

An index of over 2,500 Wisconsin mapped lakes will help many ice fishermen enter the charmed circle of experts.

A mapped lake is actually a hydrographic map, a highfaluting term for maps showing the various depths of a lake along with other information that is so desirable to have for fishing . . . such as kind of lake bottom—sand, mud, gravel, etc. . . .

Suppose you want to fish for perch. You know his feeding habits and at what depths and over what kind of bottom he would be. With a Wisconsin hydrographic map you can see at a glance the general contour of the lake bottom and the exact depth of any given place along with the kind and condition of the bottom. No more cutting through a foot of ice to find six inches of water underneath.

The index is available at no charge by sending a large, self-addressed, stamped (28-cent) envelope to Wisconsin Lake Maps, Box 5096, Madison, WI 53705.

Prepare yourself for another big jump in the price of energy.

Build with Stran now.

You might as well get ready for it. Energy costs continue to go up. And most forecasters don't see them ever coming back down to earth.

All that stands between you and a small fortune in energy costs is a well-insulated building that holds utility costs to a minimum. A building like Stran builds.

You see, Stran has factory-insulated wall and roof systems, including our famous Stranwall 70 system, that can cut heating and cooling costs in half as compared to other methods.

Which is why some Stran wall and roof building products are specified for constructing refrigerated warehouses with temperatures held at 20 F or more. So we know how to keep you cool. Or warm, very efficiently.

As long as you're planning a new building, you might as well be prepared for the future. Give us a call. We'll show you why Stran buildings are looking better all the time.

Winter Sports Popular With Minnesotans

A survey done for Minnesota's tourism bureau showed that 20 per cent of the residents in Minnesota and the surrounding states who engage in outdoor activities prefer those offered in the winter. That covers everything from downhill and cross country skiing to snowmobiling, ice fishing, skating and ice boating.

Interest in winter recreation has encouraged facility development. Each year, the tourism bureau surveys for new snowmobile and cross country ski trails and for expansion of the operations at the state's 32 downhill ski areas.

Snowmobilers can enjoy more than 350 miles of new trails in addition to the 8,000 that already exist. Pope county is expanding its trails from Villard toward Glenwood. Hibbing Chamber of Commerce offers maps and information about the new Bear Lake trail north of Nashwauk. And more miles are being added to the trail system in Cass county where the Pipeline trail hooks up to the Heartland and Triville trails in the Cass Lake — Bena area.

Thief Year more than 225 miles of new trails will be available to cross country skiers. These new miles increase the old total of 2,500 miles that already exist statewide. State of Minnesota has developed new trails in Blue Mounds state park at Luverne, Lac Quie Parle state park at Montevideo and several state forests including Golden Anniversary, Kabetogama, Wealthwood and Fond Du Lac. Communities offering new skiing opportunities include Wabasha, International Falls, Deer River, Fergus Falls, St. James and Grand Marais.

Expansion is also occurring in the state's downhill facilities. Mount Kato, Minnesota's newest downhill area in Mankato, has added new intermediate runs and a four-place chair; coffee mill at Wabasha added more lights for night skiing along with more expert slopes; Val Chatel at Park Rapids enlarged the number of runs and added a triple chair, and Welch village at Walch developed a new area with seven runs called Sunrise mountain.

Recent surveys done by the Minnesota department of natural resources show that residents continue to request trail development. As the number of outdoor enthusiasts grows annually, the facilities for their use will continue to be developed.

Addresses To Be Reported By Aliens In Jan.

Gerald L. Coyle, district director of the immigration and naturalization service, St. Paul, stated that the law requires all aliens in the United States, with few exceptions, to report their addresses during January. Diplomats and those persons accredited to certain international organizations are not required to make this report.

Form I-53, the card with which to report, may be obtained from any post office or any office of the immigration and naturalization service. After filling it out, place a postage stamp on the reverse of this card and drop the card in any mail box. Parents or guardians of alien children under 14 are required to submit address reports for such children.

Social security numbers should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so by the immigration and naturalization service may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

Coyle urges all aliens to comply with the reporting requirements as willful failure to do so may lead to serious consequences.

Finished Goods Price Index Up In Nov.

Producer price index for finished goods rose 1.3 per cent from October to November on a seasonally adjusted basis, the U.S. department of labor's bureau of labor statistics reported.

The November advance followed increases of one per cent in October and 1.4 per cent in September. Prices for intermediate (Semifinished) goods moved up 0.9 per cent, considerably less than in most recent months. Crude material prices rose two per cent over the month, more than in October and about the same as in September.

Among finished goods, prices for finished consumer foods climbed 2.6 per cent after edging down 0.1 per cent in October. Prices for finished energy goods increased 2.5 per cent, the smallest monthly advance since February. The index for finished consumer goods other than food and energy rose 0.6 per cent, about the same as in most other months so far this year. Capital equipment prices moved up 0.5 per cent, much less than the 1.2 per cent rise in October.

Before seasonal adjustment, the producer price index for finished goods rose one per cent to 225.9 (1967—100). Over the year, the finished goods price index was up 12.8 per cent. The index for finished energy goods climbed 62.7 per cent from November 1978 to November 1979, prices for finished consumer foods rose 8.9 per cent, the index for finished consumer goods other than food and energy was up 9.3 per cent, and capital equipment prices were 8.6 per cent higher than a year ago. The producer price index for intermediate goods rose 15.4 per cent over the year, and crude material price advanced 17.1 per cent.

Finished consumer goods. The producer price index for finished consumer goods advanced 1.6 per cent, more than the one per cent increase in October because of a sharp upturn in prices for foods. On the other hand, prices for nonfood finished goods, particularly home heating oil and gasoline, rose much less than a month earlier.

The finished consumer foods index rose 2.6 per cent after edging down 0.1 per cent in October. The November advance was the largest monthly increase since the fall of 1974. Processed poultry prices rose 21.5 per cent, and prices for beef and veal, pork and eggs turned up sharply after declining in the previous month. Prices were also sharply higher in November for roasted coffee, fresh vegetables, sugar in consumer size packages, and macaroni. On the other hand, prices declined for fresh fruits, milled rice and fish.

Northmen Lose Knight, Seven Wins

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman dropped a bombshell at Thursday's weekly Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meeting in an unbelievably subtle manner when he announced that his Northmen, who opened the 1979-80 basketball season with seven straight wins, suddenly found themselves 0-7 when it was discovered that the use of an ineligible player would force them to forfeit those seven wins.

Engelman

Knight

After telling the Sports Boosters the plus and minus aspects of the team's play en route to the 7-0 start, Engelman announced, almost as an afterthought, the forfeits.

A routine check of eligibility forms earlier in the week, he said, uncovered the fact that Lyndell Knight, a freshman forward from Inkster, Mich., was ineligible to play for the Northmen. He was a starter in all seven games, forcing Northland to forfeit all seven for using an ineligible player.

The problem was not in grades and was not something the school, coaches or player tried to pass off in an illegal manner. The problem occurred in the sometimes complicated transfer rules.

A talented athlete who is considered by some as a major college football prospect, Knight played one year of football at Eastern Montana where he was a starter as a receiver. He left the Billings school to return home and enrolled for a time at Lansing (Mich.) community college before joining friends at Northland this fall.

Everyone knew he would not be eligible to play football for Northland this year, but he planned to be with the Northmen in 1980. In the meantime, he tried his hand at basketball — a sport he did not play in high school. His natural athletic ability made him a starter as a forward with the Northmen. He averaged 10.6 points per game and led the team with 32 loose ball recoveries.

School officials here thought transferring from Eastern Montana made Knight ineligible to compete in football only. But in reality Knight would not have been eligible to play for the Northmen until January 15. Then to complicate matters, his brief stay at Lansing actually made him ineligible here for an entire year as a double transfer student.

"It wasn't anything he (Knight) did," said Engelman. "It was an administrative error. It was an oversight on our part — we should have known."

As soon as the situation was discovered it was brought out into the open, with reports going to Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) and national junior college athletic association (NJCAA) officials, along with the teams Northland faced before the error was found.

It was a small thing, really, and Northland officials, if they wanted, could well have let it pass and nobody would have known otherwise. Instead, they acted in a quick, proper, ethical fashion.

The situation hurts Knight most of all. He is ineligible for the rest of the year. If the facts had been known, he could have stayed out of competition until mid-January and then joined the team in time for most of the MJCAA schedule.

The team itself isn't hurt by the forfeits. It might look like 0-7 on paper, but the players, coaches and fans know the real story. And reversing the results makes little difference to the teams Northland beat — their alumni, the alumni from Red River community college in Winnipeg, a Winnipeg area amateur team, Trinity Bible Institute of Ellendale, N.D. (twice) and junior varsity teams from the University of Winnipeg and the University of North Dakota, whom they beat by 29 points Monday.

Loss of Knight will be felt by the shorthanded Northmen who are playing with a 10-man roster. But despite the difficulties, they still remain a favorite in the MJCAA Northwest Division where Northland, Fergus Falls, Crookston and Brainerd will battle for two available MJCAA state tournament berths.

Northland starts its MJCAA schedule with the toughest part of the 12-game slate — a January 11-12 weekend trip to the Iron Range to face Northeast Division favorites Mesabi in Virginia and Vermilion in Ely. Not only will the games against the Norsemen and Ironmen be the toughest of the year, they could be the most important, too, Engelman told the Sports Boosters.

"We have to win one of those two games," he said. "We won't win the league (division) if we lose both of those games."

Miscellaneous

+Indus, after adding a pair of games with new hockey-playing Section 8 member Crosby-Ironton, now has the required 10 games to qualify for positioning in the Section 8 point standings. Brainerd and Crosby-Ironton are the only teams without the minimum 10 games at this time and they'll be placed at the bottom of the standings when determining post-season playoff positions, meaning it'll be a simple matter of the Warriors and Rangers, nearby athletic rivals, meeting in a Feb. 23 qualifying game to complete the 16-team Section 8 tournament field.

+Region 13 teams rank among the best in the nation in the most recent NJCAA statistical report. Golden Valley Lutheran led the nation in offense with a 107-point scoring average, according to the report, with Soumi of Hancock, Mich. ranking third with a 104 figure and Northland community college fourth at 103. In addition, Waukesha (Wis.) Tech led the nation in defense with a 43-point average. Region 13 includes schools in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. Northland freshman Terry Harris ranked ninth in the nation in scoring with a 27.5 average. Since that release, Northland's team average has dropped, but Harris' production has climbed.

BEMIDJI CENTER Bill Erickson drove by Thief River Falls defender Greg Miller Friday in the second half of a Northwest Athletic Conference basketball game played in the Lincoln high school gym. Mitch Muzzy of the Prowlers blocked out a Bemidji player under the basket on the play. Erickson scored 15 points in the Lumberjacks' 83-71 win.

Lumberjacks Are Able To Outlast Prowlers 83-71

Defense gave way to offense Friday as Bemidji out-scored Thief River Falls 83-71 in a fast-paced Northwest Athletic Conference high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

It was a shoot-out, and when one team stopped long enough to reload, the opposition unleaded in momentum-swapping fashion. When the fireworks finally ended, the Lumberjacks, who had leads of 16 and 13 points dwindle to three and four-point margins, had a 2-1 NWAC record and a 3-4 season mark for the holidays. The Prowlers, who battled back gamely several times only to lose ground when they stopped to catch their breath, fell into the NWAC basement with an 0-2 record, 3-2 overall.

"It was a good ball game," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "Our kids came back. They could have blown us out, but we came back."

The Lumberjacks did blow out the Prowlers at the start when they exerted defensive pressure that forced four Thief River Falls turnovers in the first two minutes of the game, providing Bemidji with an 8-0 head start.

"We were changing defenses on them a lot, I think that might have bothered them some," said first-year Bemidji head coach Mel Johnson as he described the Lumberjacks' fast start that had them up 27-18 before the first quarter scoring spree ended. Eight Thief River Falls turnovers played a big part in the opening period.

"Outside of that lousy start we had, we played a pretty good ball game," pointed out Peters.

First of the Thief River Falls come-backs brought the Prowlers to within 27-24 some 86 seconds into second quarter when forward Gregg Miller set the stage for a fine 16-point night with two free throws and a bucket in heavy traffic, and guard Kyle Hams grabbed his own rebound after having a lay-up blocked and scored from the side.

But with forward Rob Egersdorf roaming the baseline, Bemidji scored nine straight points during a 2:23 span later in the quarter to open up a 16-point, 44-28 bulge with 1:18 remaining in the first half.

It looked like it was all over then. But Hams, who nosed out Egersdorf 25-24 for game-high scoring honors, unloaded for eight unanswered half-ending points for a catchable 44-36 score.

On three occasions in the third quarter the Prowlers were within three points, with a high-arching long range bomb by Hams making it 56-53 with 3:02 on the clock.

However, emphasis on offense left gaps in the Thief River Falls defense and Egersdorf, a good-looking 6-3 senior, hit three baskets — including two super base line drives — in an 8-2 Bemidji run that reopened a 66-56 spread by the end of the quarter.

Tony Murphy, Egersdorf's matching twin at the other forward, beat two Prowlers on a fast break to give the Lumberjacks a seemingly comfortable 73-60 cushion with 5:26 remaining in the game.

One more surge, though, by the Prowlers made things interesting as they messed up Bemidji's delay game to score eight straight points and pull within 73-68 with 2:41 to go.

It got even closer when Mark Schmitke sank two free throws for a 74-70 game with 2:09 left. And it could have gotten even tighter except for a Thief River Falls turnover on the Prowlers' next possession that could have brought them to within one basket.

Egersdorf made it 76-70 with two free throws at the 0:44 mark and Murphy, who finished with 19 points, capped a three-shot Bemidji attack on the boards with a rebound basket that put it out of reach with 1:11 remaining.

"We had our chances early to put it away, but we let them off the hook," mentioned Johnson.

It wasn't a smoothly-played contest by any means as they two long-time rivals shot 67 free throws. Bemidji was 27-for-34 at the line and Thief River Falls was 25-for-33. From the field the Lumberjacks were 28-for-67 for 42 per cent and the Prowlers were 23-for-49 for 47 per cent. Rebounds were dead even at 31 apiece, but Thief River Falls lost the ball 23 times to just 10 turnovers charged against Bemidji.

Sophomores Lead JV By Bemidji 61-55

Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team improved its record to 3-2 Friday with a 61-55 win over Bemidji.

Kevin Sanders scored 12 points and Mark Lundin had 10 for the winners who broke a 38-38 third quarter tie by out-scoring Bemidji 23-17 with a sophomore line-up in the final eight minutes after the juniors left to join the varsity in the lockerroom prior to the Prowlers vs. Lumberjacks ball game.

Thief River Falls owned a 17-6 first quarter lead that dropped to a 26-22 halftime edge.

Northland Arctic Invitational . . .

Bottineau, Northland First Round Winners

Bottineau and Northland were first round winners Friday night in the seventh annual Arctic Cat invitational basketball tournament played at Northland community college, setting up a 1978 championship game rematch between the Lumberjacks and Northmen in Saturday afternoon's finals.

Defending champion Bottineau opened with an 88-69 win over Lakewood, with Northland earning a 78-73 victory over Waseca in the first round doubleheader nightcap.

Bottineau defeated Northland 97-85 in last year's Arctic championship game, snapping a five-year tournament title reign by the Northmen.

Bottineau 88
Lakewood 69

Lakewood led 28-23 with 6:45 reamining in the first half before Bottineau took charge, out-scoring the Lancers 16-4 to take a 39-31 halftime advantage that wound up as an 88-69 tournament-opening win.

Tony Truckowski, an Arctic all-tournament pick a year ago, scored six straight points in a 10-point Bottineau burst that wrestled the lead away from Lakewood. The 6-1 sophomore finished with 20 points.

Bottineau enjoyed a big edge in the shooting department as the Lumberjacks shot a 51 per cent, 34-for-67 from the field and sank 20 of 25 free throws. Lakewood, with six-foot Leon Brown scoring 16 points, shot just 36 per cent on a 33-for-91 showing from the floor and made three of only four free throw opportunities.

Northland 78
Waseca 73

A 47-33 Northland halftime lead disappeared after intermission, but the Northmen managed to hold on for a 78-73 triumph over Waseca to join Bottineau in the tournament finals.

"It was tough," admitted Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We lost our composure a little bit."

That 14-point halftime cushion was down to 61-59 by the 10-minute mark and Waseca had its only lead of the night with 4:32 left when Mark Basler scored to put the Rams up 69-68.

It was a Waseca vs. Vince Parker duel after that. Northland's 5-5 sophomore guard was the tournament's top first night performer with 35 points.

Parker hit a field goal and a free throw to put Northland back on top 71-69 to begin a see-saw finish.

Tow Mike Brandts free throws brought the Rams a 71-71 tie with 1:18 to go, with Parker breaking the tie at the free throw line 11 seconds later.

Tom Busack, a 6-6 sophomore who socred a team-high 16 points for the Rams, tied it for the final time at 73-73 with 49 seconds to go.

But once again Parker came through, driving the lane to make it 75-73. Dave Spilde, Parker's runningmate at guard, widened the lead to 77-73 at the free throw line with 10 seconds remaining and Parker capped his outstanding show with a free throw in the final five seconds.

It was not a good second half performance by the Northmen who managed to get off just 20 shots, making only eight — six by Parker — after intermission.

"We turned the ball over so many times in the second half I couldn't count them," said Engelman. "We never got any shots off."

Although they didn't get many shots by Northland's run-and-gun standards, the Northmen still shot well, hitting 30 of 56 attempts for 52 per cent. Waseca was 31-for-73 for 42 per cent. Eighteen free throws helped, too, as the Northmen took 27 shots from the line. Waseca made 11 of 18 free throws.

Dimich Rink Gets Perfect 8-Ender

An apparent first in the history of the Thief River Falls curling club was recorded Wednesday afternoon when the Tom Dimich rink posted a perfect eight-ender en route to a 14-4 victory over the Jerry Bugliosi rink in the Wednesday 5 o'clock Businessmen's League.

The eight-ender (most points you can score in one end) is as rare as a 300 game in bowling; witnessed by the fact that nobody can ever remember anybody ever getting one before in the Thief River Falls curling club building at the Pennington county fairgrounds.

Dimich rink, with John Seaverson, first; Ed Nelson, second; Don Goodrich, third; and Tom Dimich, skip; needed a double take-out and a stay on Tom's final rock to get the eight-ender. He got it.

But that wasn't all. The three-man Bugliosi rink, with Kirby Sittsworth, first; Ev Ault, second; and Jerry Bugliosi, skip; had the hammer, or last rock. However, Jerry sent it right through the house without disturbing the stones.

Dimich rink, whose members are curling together for the third year, are the two-time defending Wednesday 5 o'clock Business League champions. They were beaten a week earlier by the Bugliosi rink.

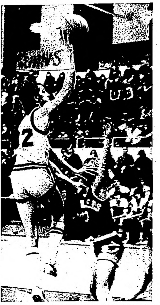
DNR Plans Roseau River WMA Meeting

A public meeting has been scheduled on a proposed 10-year management plan for the Roseau River wildlife management area (WMA) Tues., Jan. 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the Roseau city auditorium.

Copies of the proposed plan will be available for public review at the DNR section of wildlife in St. Paul, Roseau River WMA headquarters (13 miles north of Badger), DNR regional office at Bemidji, DNR wildlife office at Karlstad, DNR forestry offices at Warroad and Greenbush and at the Roseau public library.

Since only a limited number of copies are available, interested persons are requested to review the plan at one of the above offices or check out and return a copy.

Oral and written comments on the plan will be taken at the public meeting. Written comments may also be submitted until 15 days after the public meeting. They may be sent to the Wildlife Planning Team, DNR, Box 7 Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.



PLAYING DEFENSE got Thief River Falls' Kyle Hams a face full of fingers from Bemidji's Tony Murphy during Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played in the Lincoln gym. The Lumberjacks, with Murphy scoring 19 points, beat the Prowlers 83-71 despite a 25-point night from Hams. Thief River Falls, now 3-2, will be idle until January 5 when the Prowlers host Mahnomen.

Girls Inconsistent, But Beat Rams 49-44 Friday

Consistency was a missing ingredient, but Thief River Falls came out a 49-44 winner Friday at Roseau in girls high school basketball.

The Prowlers, ahead 26-23 at halftime, were out-scored 14-2 in the third quarter and trailed 37-28 going into the final eight minutes. But things turned around again in the fourth quarter when Thief River Falls broke loose for 21 points — the Prowlers' biggest one-quarter output of the season.

"They just stood around," was Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg's explanation of the Prowlers' bleak third quarter. "In the fourth quarter they really played well. They started moving the ball and got some good shots."

Making her first start, sophomore Tara Nicholson, who wasn't even on the program, starred for the Prowlers as she scored 10 points and pulled down 20 rebounds. The 5-11 front line performer helped the Prowlers build a sizeable 49-28 advantage on the boards.

But Nicholson wasn't alone as Sjoberg also praised the play of Roberta Engel, who benefited from Nicholson's front-line work to score 12 points; guard Ann Goodrich, who led the Prowlers with 14 points; and guard Kim McFarland, who added an outside attack to the Thief River Falls offense with eight points.

"We played pretty well at times," mentioned Sjoberg whose team was coming off losses at Park Rapids and Warren after opening the year with a home court win over Fisher.

The Prowlers' best shooting night of the year was a 23-for-66, 35 per cent performance. Roseau was 18-for-52 for 35 per cent. Neither team shot free throws well, though, as the Prowlers went 3-for-10 at the line and the Rams were 8-for-21.

Thief River Falls junior varsity record climbed to 3-1 with a 30-29 win over Roseau, but the Lincoln freshmen fell to 1-2 with a 38-35 loss in the first part of the tripleheader. Julie Peres scored 12 points for the Thief River Falls freshmen.

Next competition for all three Thief River Falls teams will be Tues., Jan. 8, at Moorhead.

NORTHLAND SOPHOMORE Julie Anderson was given plenty of room, so she put up a second half shot against Willmar Friday during the 1979-80 home opener for the Northland community college women's basketball team. Anderson scored a team-high 14 points, but the Northwomen lost the game 62-53.

Willmar Starts Off Strong In 62-53 Win Over Northwomen

Willmar scored the game's first 13 points and that lead held up all the way Friday as the visitors defeated Northland community college 62-53 in women's basketball.

Six minutes into the Northland home opener the Northwomen found themselves facing a 13-0 deficit. It was 29-10 at the 15-minute mark and the point spread reached 33-13 with four minutes remaining in the first half that ended with a Northland flurry, 36-24.

"We had a lapse again — this time at the start," offered Northland coach Deb Jacobson who watched her team drop its fourth start of the year. Still, Jacobson said it was "the best game we've played so far."

Northland played solid basketball in the second half, pulling within 48-42 when sophomore Julie Anderson hit a short jumper in traffic with 8:43 remaining.

But that's as clost as Northland got.

"They never gave up," praised Jacobson. "Emphasis that. They never gave up."

Mary Standfuss put up a bundle of shots from her guard position to lead a trio of Willmar double figure scorers with 18 points. Anderson had 14 for Northland and Carrie Sollom finished with 10 as she led the second half come-back. Willmar snow 3-4, had the shooting edge, hitting 25 of 64 shots for 39 per cent. Northland made 21 of 71 shots for 30 per cent. From the free throwl ine Willmar was 12-for-26 and Northland was 11-for-22.

Northland will return from a holiday break Fri., Jan. 4, to play Itasca at Grand Rapids.

LHS Freshmen Are Beaten By EGF, Bemidji

Losses to East Grand Forks 51-37 and Bemidji 66-33 dropped the Lincoln high school freshman basketball season record to 0-3.

Playing East Grand Forks Thursday, Thief River Falls trailed 27-20 at halftime in its home opener. Mark Gere scored 10 points for Lincoln.

Hosting Bemidji Friday, Thief River Falls trailed 20-7 at the end of the first quarter, fell begind 40-17 at halftime and faced a 51-31 third quarter deficit. Kevin Kinsman scored 13 points for Lincoln.

Thief River Falls will be idle until Thurs., Jan 10, when coach Myron Peterson's team will be at Grafton.

Grygla Girls Avoid Upset

Grygla girls' unbeaten high school basketball string came within three minutes of ending at four games Thursday before the Eagles rallied and came up with a 37-32 come-from-behind victory at Middle River.

Trailing 32-28 with five minutes gone in the fourth quarter, Grygla switched from a man-to-man into a zone press defense on orders from coach Bill Radeunz and the play worked perfectly. The change produced several Middle River turnovers, which in turn led to nine unanswered game-winning points for the Eagles.

"We're glad to get home with a victory after that," sighed Radeunz who was far from happy with his team's performance. "We just dogged it. We finally started playing ball at the end."

With Dawn Nelson scoring a game-high 22 points, Middle River led at every quarter stop. The Skippers were ahead 11-10 at the end of the first quarter, owned a 21-19 halftime edge and enjoyed a 28-24 third quarter advantage.

It was the third straight loss for the 4-3 Skippers who will wait until Thurs., Jan. 10, to host Marshall County Central.

State Football Playoffs Draw 64,751 Fans

Official paid attendance for the 35 games played in the five classes of the eighth annual Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) state football playoffs held throughout the state in November is 64,751.

Attendance figures became available this week after the MSHSL office in Anoka received all advance ticket sale reports from the various schools involved in this year's playoff series.

The total attendance is down 8,868 from the 1978 record-setting figure of 73,619. The biggest difference in the decline was in the quarterfinal round where 9,350 fewer persons witnessed this year's action. Semifinal and championship games drew only 568 less than a year ago.

A breakdown of figures shows quarterfinal contests attracting 30,846, semifinal games 16,910 and championship games 16,995. A year ago quarterfinal games drew 40,196, semifinal games 19,944 and championship games 13,479.

One new all-time class attendance figure was broken, but no all-time single game marks were eclipsed. A class attendance mark was broken in the nine-man division, where a record 5,025 persons watched the seven playoff games. The total is up 424 from the 1978 record total of 4,601.

Class AA attracted nearly 50 per cent of this year's total attendance figure. Some 30,686 watched the seven games in that division. Class A had 14,073 people on hand, while Class B attracted 7,985. The Class C total was 6,982.

Largest crowd to watch a game was the 8,644 that viewed the Class AA title game won by Columbia Heights over Richfield at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis.

Goodridge 43
Stephen 41

Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff went to a 2-1-2 zone press defense in the second half to slow down Stephen's fast break offense and the move netted the Huskies a 43-41 decision over the visiting Tigers Friday.

Stephen built a 22-17 halftime lead, but the Goodridge defensive change held the Tigers to just three third quarter points and the Huskies went ahead 31-25.

"It just took a little while to get into things," noted Saurdiff who said her team played poorly at the start but came on strong to earn its fourth win in five starts.

Free throws helped. Goodridge was given 28 free throw opportunities and the Huskies cashed in on 15 of them. Stephen got just six chances and made three.

Vicki Troska and Peggy Poppenhagen scored 11 and 10 points, respectively, for the Huskies who will not play again until Mon., Jan. 7, when they drive to Grygla. Bonnie Borowicz had 16 points for Stephen and Fran Kuznia finished with 14.

Forwards Lois Verbout and Jill Saurdiff combined for 38 points to lead Grygla to a 56-44 Friday win over Hallock. Verbout finished with 21 points and Saurdiff had 17 as the Eagles ran their record to 6-0.

Hallock, a winner over Grygla last spring in Sub District 32 tournament play, came back from a 17-9 first quarter deficit to lead 26-22 at halftime. Grygla went back on top 36-34 in the third quarter then pulled away from the visiting Bears in the final eight minutes.

A DRIVE DOWN the lane by Thief River Falls guard Kyle Hams was blocked by Bemidji forward Tony Murphy in Friday's high school basketball game played here. Bill Erickson (54) and Todd Joyce (40) of the Lumberjacks, along with Jim Nyland (45) and Greg Miller (53) of the Prowlers were also involved in the first half action. Bemidji won the Northwest Athletic Conference game 83-71.

Bears Snap Skippers' Winning Streak, 74-54

Seven-game season-opening winning streak for Middle River came to an end Friday when the Skippers challenged preseason favorite Lake of the Woods in a match-up of unbeaten North Border Conference high school basketball teams at Middle River. The taller Bears handled the Skippers 74-54.

"We got killed," was a brief post-game summary offered by Middle River coach Eldon Sparby.

Actually, Middle River was very much alive for a good while. The Skippers led 15-13 at the end of the first quarter and trailed by a mere point, 31-30, at halftime. But the roof caved in after intermission. Lake of the Woods out-scored Middle River 21-8 in the third quarter to take commend 52-38.

"We came out flat after the half," explained Sparby.

Once the Bears got the lead they knew what to do with it as they went into a four-corner delay game that brought the Skippers away from the basket, giving 6-6 Todd Robinson room inside to score 25 points.

But it was 6-5 John Koller that beat the Skippers, said Sparby who matched what little height he could muster against Robinson and John Oren. Koller, who has been nursing an injury, came off the bench in the second quarter to wipe out a seven-point Middle River lead. He finished with 23 points.

"Koller is the one that beat us," said Sparby. "We just didn't have anybody to match against his size. We gave up too much height."

Scott McKeever came up with a bid 30-point game for the Skippers, with Jon Neumann adding 16.

Middle River will wait until Sat., Jan. 5, to host Strandquist.

MCC 63
Greenbush 42

Richard Van Camp made things easier for his teammates Friday as he tore apart a Greenbush zone defense with a second quarter shooting spree that sparked Marshall County Central to a 63-42 home court triumph.

Van Camp scored all 10 of his points in the second quarter to force the Tigers out of their zone and into an overmatched man-to-man set. The Nordics ate it up.

"They couldn't handle us man-to-man," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland whose ball club is now 5-2 with a five-game winning streak under its belt.

Dan Maki led the Nordics' typically ballanced scoring attach with 14 points and Dan Engen had 11. Six-foot, four-inch Basil Emery scored a game-high 18 points for Greenbush.

Marshall County Central turned a 15-12 first quarter edge into a 33-22 halftime cushion and pulled away 46-30 in the third quarter.

"We played very well," said Ueland. "We got 25 turnovers off our pressure defense, which has really been paying off for us."

The Nordics had a 27-for-55, 49 per cent shooting night from the field, with the Tigers going 20-for-50 for 40 per cent. Marshall County Central made nine of 13 free throws while Greenbush made two of just three gift tosses. Despite the size disadvantage, the Nordics finished with a 27-21 rebound edge.

"We rebounded well," boasted Ueland. "They (Greenbush) didn't score too many times on second or third shots."

The Nordics will have until Sat., Jan. 5, to enjoy their winning streak. They'll face Lake of the Woods that afternoon in a battle of North Border Conference leaders at Baudette.

Goodridge couldn't contain Doug Borowicz Friday as he pumped in 30 points to pace Stephen past the Huskies 63-50.

Stephen broke it open in the second half. After a 9-9 first quarter tie and a 24-21 Stevhen lead at halftime, the Tigers doubled the host Huskies 22-11 in the third quarter to open up a 46-32 cushion.

Carroll Bishop had 17 points and Kurt Wiseth 15 for the Huskies who lost for the sixth time in seven starts.

RAC Board Meeting
December 17, 1979

The December 17, 1979, meeting of the RAC Board was called to order by the Chairman. Those present were: Bob Sorvig, Keith Kilen, Don Horner, Kay Tum, Homer Kenner, and Dr. David Brown. Those absent were Allen Larson.

Be it resolved that the minutes be approved as written and mailed out to the membership. Moved by Tum and seconded by Kilen. Motion carried.

Be it resolved that approval be given to the payment of monthly bills as submitted. Moved by Tum and seconded by Horner. Motion carried.

A discussion of Board Policy concerning grievance procedure was held. No action was taken.

Be it resolved that members of the RAC Board, and Superintendents Advisory Committee, attend the ECSU meeting on January 9, 1980, to discuss common concerns of the SERC position. Furthermore, be it resolved that Mr. Blackorby make a presentation on the issue at hand. Moved by Kenner and seconded by Horner. Motion carried.

A review of the financial audit produced no questions.

Be it resolved that the RAC Board recommend to those districts with students involved in programs at state schools, that they consider the transportation option offered by the ECSU. Moved by Kenner and seconded by Turn. Motion carried.

Be it resolved that the RAC Board recommend to all districts that they write letters to the State Department of Education, and contact state representatives concerning transportation aid for the handicapped and solicit their help in relieving local cost of this high cost transportation. Moved by Turn and seconded by Kilen. Motion carried.

A discussion was held on the creation of a Superintendents Task Force to study the present format of billing services to districts. The Director was instructed by the Board to select eight Superintendents from the RIC to make up this Task Force.

Discussion covering the need of a signed agreement or contract with outside agencies was held, as it relates to individual districts. The matter was left to each district to handle as they wish.

It was suggested by Dr. Brown to have a listing of monthly bills sent out with the agenda prior to meetings. This idea was agreeable to the Board.

Preconditioned Calves Profitable

Preconditioned calves are becoming increasingly important in the cattle business, and it's happening none too soon. That's the message which a leading proponent of preconditioning, Dr. John Herrick of Iowa state university, delivered to the more than 300 cattlemen who gathered recently in St. Paul stockyards to witness the introduction of the Minnesota certified preconditioned calf program.

"Most of the perishable commodities offered for sale today, such as milk and eggs, are certified as to their quality. Other livestock commodities, such as feeder pigs and poultry, have similar quality control programs," Herrick said. "But cattlemen today don't truly know the quality of the cattle they're buying. Often times, they don't know where they're from, what shots they've had or what types of bacteria they have growing in their bellies."

Dr. Dale Haggard, extension veterinarian at the University of Minnesota, stressed that the program is a management practice aimed at reducing the number of stresses on a calf at any one time. "A preconditioned calf will be more efficient and, therefore, more beneficial to the feedlot operator," he said. "Because it is healthier it will also gain an additional 40 pounds while in the hands of the cow-calf operator, making it profitable for him also."

Minnesota program, drafted by the Minnesota veterinary medical association, is quite similar to the program supported by the Iowa veterinary medical association and the Iowa cattlemen's association. Both programs stress dehorning and castration, a series of immunization shots, and weaning prior to shipping. Iowa processed some 600,000 preconditioned calves last year.

"Weaning is "the most serious stress a calf has to face," contended Dr. Herrick. "It should be as much a responsibility of the cow-calf man as anything. When the stresses of weaning and shipping are forced upon a young calf which is also battling IBR, BVD, haemopholis and other bacterial and viral agents, is it any wonder that he comes down with shipping fever?

"Results of a recent Iowa state study show that two per cent of incoming feedlot calves die and 30 per cent sicken," Herrick continued. "Those that die are costly and discouraging. Some of those that get sick might be better off if they had died. I don't think numbers like this have to be part of the cattle business."

Herrick feels that there's enough technology available today for a cow-calf man to achieve a 95 per cent calf crop with a 500 to 600 pound calf at weaning. Present national averages show cow-calf operators achieving an 80 per cent calf crop with weaned calves weighing 400 to 450 pounds.

Both veterinarians stressed that preconditioning is not a guarantee against sickness and both noted that there will never be a single drug or management practice to keep cattle from getting sick. "Preconditioning doesn't make the calf invicible," noted Dr. Haggard. "It gets him through his most stressful period. The purchaser of a preconditioned calf is receiving a healthy calf but it's then up to him to maintain its health."

Herrick noted that preconditioning is not going to erase mortality. Citing a survey done on 10,000 preconditioned calves which produced an average mortality rate of .03 per cent, the Iowa state veterinarian said, "not perfect, but much better than two per cent."

One of the major thrusts of the meeting was to show the audience that besides improving the health of a calf crop, preconditioning will also help improve the profitability in both cow-calf and feedlot situations.

Purina representatives presented a cost-benefit analysis on their recommended preconditioning program which is very similar to the Minnesota program. Figuring the cost of vaccination, worming, grub and parasite control at between $3 and $5 per head and the cost of feeding a medicated, correctly balanced ration for the 21-day program at between $14 and $20 per head, the maximum total cost for preconditioning was estimated at $25 per head.

"Based on studies done by Iowa state and others, it's safe to assume that an additional 50 pounds of weight gain can be attributed to a preconditioning program," stated product manager Larry Tillemans. "Selling at 90 cents a pound, this would provide an additional $45 in per head income. Subtract the cost of preconditioning, and cow-calf operators will see the bottom line — they can make an additional $20 per head by instituting such a program."

Dr. Herrick did warn purchasers of preconditioned calves to make sure livestock is certified preconditioned. "We've had some unscrupulous auctioneers telling buyers that calves were preconditioned when actually they were weaned the day before. Each certified calf should have a certificate signed by both the owner and the attending veterinarian attesting that all the work described on the certificate was carried out."

As far as the quality of the preconditioned calves is concerned, Dr. Herrick — reflecting on his decade of involvement in preconditioning — says, "I never found a guy who didn't like them after he bought them."

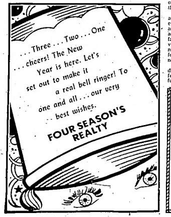
Series EE Savings Bonds On Sale Jan. 1

Treasury department recently announced that the new Series EE savings bonds which go on sale effective January 1, 1980, will be called United States energy savings bonds, Series EE, and will receive a ½ per cent bonus if held to maturity.

Interest rate on U.S. energy savings bonds, Series EE, will be increased from 6.5 per cent to 7 per cent for bonds held for the full 11 years to maturity. Series E bonds that have not finally matured and U.S. savings notes ("Freedom Shares") will also receive the ½ per cent bonus if they are held for 11 years from the date of the first semiannual interest period that begins on or after January 1, 1980. Bonds and notes redeemed earlier will not receive the bonus.

Redesignation of the bonds as energy savings bonds is intended to help focus attention on the national goals of reducing energy consumption and increasing domestic supplies. The bonds were known as defense bonds before and after World War II and as war bonds from 1941 to 1945 reflecting the national concerns of those times. Energy savings bonds will assist in financing the large federal energy expenditure required in the coming years.

After June 30, 1980, all U.S. savings bonds bought through payroll savings plans will be energy savings bonds, Series EE. Series H and HH Savings bonds will not be affected by these changes.



. . . Three . . . Two . . . One cheers! The New Year is here. Let's set out to make it a real bell ringer! To one and all . . . our very best wishes.

Red Cross To Hold Special Fund Campaign

Historically, the American Red Cross is known as an emergency oriented organization, providing relief to those who need help from fire, wind or high water.

Now, says Robert Vessey, its national director for disaster services, the Red Cross has an emergency of its own — and it's a financial one.

To put it simply, funds to help victims of floods, hurricanes, tornadoes, snow storms and other catastrophes are just about exhausted.

Vessey's job is to give leadership to all national disaster operations undertaken by the Red Cross, which is chartered by Congress as the nation's primary volunteer disaster agency.

Vessey explains that past experience indicates that approximately $16.5 million will be spent on disasters between October 1, and the end of the fiscal year, next June 30.

"But we only have a little over $2 million left for operations."

Consequently, the American Red Cross is taking the unusual step of mounting a $15 million nationwide fund campaign to bolster depleted reserves.

The villians of this financial crisis were mainly a couple of hurricanes named David and Frederic. The pair was responsible for nearly $13.4 million or the more than $23 million expended on preparedness and relief since July 1, 1979.

Vessey, a University of Minnesota graduate who has served the Red Cross in Vietnam, Nigeria and Bangledesh as well as this country, explains the organization's relief mission this way:

Red Cross disaster services are aimed at meeting the emergency needs of victims and to provide additional assistance to individual families with "urgent and verified disaster-caused needs." All assistance is in the form of an outright grant with no strings attached.

"Red Cross help to individual families can include food, clothing, essential furnishings, rent and health needs," says Vessey.

The Red Cross says there have been 21 national disaster relief operations since last July 1. It's funds were spent to provide shelter and food to 453,331 victims and emergency workers and assistance to 70,688 individual families.

"So far, 1979 has been the worst one for disaster in the past five years and we don't know what's in store before the fiscal period comes to a close," Vessey states.

But, come fire, wind or high water, the Red Cross will be on the scene to hlep — if the American public helps. Based on its experience of nearly 100 years, the Red Cross need have no fear.

Promotes Law For Control Of Soil Erosion

Newly elected president of the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts expects that farmers, developers and other land users soon may see government regulations to control soil erosion.

Dennis Sullivan, a Wabasha county dairy farmer, expects that the 460 local soil and water conservation district board members that make up his association will have a voice in shaping such legislation in the 1980 session of the state legislature.

"It is important to keep any controls on soil loss limits as local as possible," Sullivan said. "Soil and water conservation districts are local units of government and will be answerable to the public on soil erosion control and regulations."

A bill to set limits on soil erosion was introduced in the last session of the legislature by Representative Elton Redalin of Fountain. Sullivan says he expects it to come up again in the 1980 session.

Sullivan was elected president of the association of soil and water conservation districts at the group's annual convention in Duluth on December 4.

He has been a cooperator with the Wabasha county soil and water conservation district since 1963 and has been an elected member of the soil and water conservation district board in Wabasha county since 1968. He is also a member of the state soil and water conservation and water planning boards.

Sullivan, who was once named the outstanding conservation farmer in his county, farms with contour stripcropping terraces, grassed waterways and farm ponds to control soil erosion on his farm.

Roger Hoff, district conservationist with the U.S. soil conservation service in Wabasha county, said that his agency has been helping Sullivan plan and manage erosion control on his rolling 160-acre farm since 1964. "Without these erosion control practices," said Sullivan, "I wouldn't have much of a farm left."

Sullivan says that while he and other farmers are wary of state regulations on erosion control, "it is essential that we protect our soil and maybe we need measures that are stronger than the voluntary programs we have now. If we don't control erosion problems at the state and local level, regulations may come from the national level, and those could be even more drastic," he said.

Stop Guests From Driving After Drinking

Hosting a holiday party can be a lot of fun. However, department of public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic reminds Minnesotans that along with the fun of being host there is a real responsibility to keep guests from driving after drinking too much.

"Alcoholics are not necessarily the greatest traffic risk on the road. The casual party drinker or the once-a-year imbiber are equally dangerous when behind the wheel. For that reason, careful planning and some practical preventive measures by hosts can make a celebration both fun and safe," said Sopsic.

It is important NOT to pressure anyone to drink. Offer an assortment of drinks including non-alcoholic beverages such as pop, punch or cider.

You as the host or hostess can control the pace of the party and to some extent the rate of liquor consumption. Don't rush to refill glasses the minute a drink is gone. It usually takes the body one hour to absorb the alcohol in one drink — one drink is considered to be one ounce of 86 proof liquor, one 12 ounce bottle of beer, or a glass of wine.

Make sure your bar is equipped with drink jiggers or place self-measuring one ounce spouts on bottles. Drinks will be uniform in liquor content, and guests will be less likely to drink in excess. Playing bartender yourself or appointing someone who doesn't get carried away can also provide some control over drinking. Another fact to remember is that alcohol is absorbed faster when it is mixed with a carbonated beverage than when it is mixed with water.

ALWAYS serve food with alcohol. Snacks slow the rate at which the body absorbs alcohol. Serve high-protein foods such as cheese and meats because they stay with your guests longer. Cold-cuts, deviled eggs and cream cheese dips are good snacks and they are easy on the budget.

Keep the party emphasis on recreation and not just drinking. Party games can be a good icebreaker and also a way of slowing down alcohol consumption. When your guests are laughing more, they'll be drinking less.

Lighting and music can affect drinking behavior. Dimmed lights and loud music tend to increase drinking. Take a tip from bar owners who have long known that turning off the music and turning up the lights puts a damper on drinking.

If it is obvious that someone has had too much to drink, there are several things you can do. Offer to take the person home, suggest they stay the night, call a taxi and pay for it, and if you have to, physically restrain the person. If all else fails, call the police to prevent the person from driving. Sound drastic? Just remember, you may lose a friend tonight, but by morning you'll have a better one.

The reasons it is necessary to take these steps should be obvious. The drinking driver has an alcohol impaired brain, and isn't thinking as well as he or she should. Driving ability can decrease by some 30 per cent after as little as two drinks. Another startling fact is that of all the drivers killed in Minnesota crashes in 1978, over 60 per cent of those tested had alcohol in their blood.

Your responsibility as a party giver isn't limited to just seeing that your friends have a good time. Your greater responsibility is making sure that everyone gets home safely after the party's over. And the courts think so too and can find you legally responsible for the damages caused by someone you have served alcohol.

On any typical Friday or Saturday night there are between 20,000 and 30,000 drunk drivers on Minnesota roads. During the holiday season these numbers are even greater. Do your best to keep this mumber down. Hosts don't let guests drive drunk.

Complaints On Insurance May Be Made Here

Brian Pennington, insurance investigator, representing the Minnesota state insurance division in hearing complaints about insurance claims and policies, will be available to the public in Thief River Falls at the Minnesota employment services office from 1:30 to 4 p.m. Wednesday, January 2.

This service is free and no appointments are required or made. Early attendance with all related insurance papers will help Pennington in interviewing all complainants on a first-come, first serve basis.

Complaints may also be made by mail to: State Insurance Division, 500 Metro Square Building, 7th and Robert Streets, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Consumer Food Prices Drop During Month

Minnesota farmers did not share in the 2.6 per cent increase in national consumer food prices during the past month reported by the U.S. labor department," states agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

He said that farmers are in the same cost price squeeze as consumers, and that prices Minnesota farmers received for their raw food commodities marketed during November dropped by two to as much as 14 per cent.

"Average Minnesota farm commodity prices during November were lower than in October by 14 per cent for sunflower seed and by nine per cent on both potatoes and veal calves. There was a four per cent drop in barley prices, a three per cent drop in soybean prices, and a two per cent reduction in the prices on wheat, corn, oats, dry edible beans, hogs, beef cattle, lambs and sheep. Even milk dropped by one-half per cent in value during the month.

"Prices increased last month on only two of the 15 Minnesota produced farm food commodities on which market prices are averaged monthly. Farm turkeys at 45 cents a pound live weight were 18 per cent above the previous month, and farm eggs at 48.2 cents a dozen were 12 per cent higher.

"When these price changes are related to actual Minnesota farm marketings during the past month the economic impact upon agriculture will appear much more significantly. The more than two per cent average one month drop in prices on grains, vegetable oilseeds and red meat animals will translate into millions of dollars of reduced gross farm income," Commissioner Seetin stated.

November farm marketing estimates are not yet available. In October, however, Minnesota farmers grossed nearly $112 million from the sale of red meat animals, $77 million from the sale of milk, over $407 million from the sale of grains and oilseeds, approximately $5.8 million from eggs, and nearly $26 million from turkey marketings.

Had Minnesota farmers marketed the same volumes of the respective commodities during November that they had in October, the price changes during the last month would have resulted in a gross income loss of $15 million, Commissioner Seetin estimated.

Grain Output Is Below '78 Mark

Despite larger yields than a year ago, Minnesota's small grain production fell below the 1978 output because farmers seeded less acreage to wheat, oats, barley and rye. Only durum wheat scored a lower yield this year than last, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service's annual small grain summary.

The 1979 Minnesota wheat crop totaled 90.384 million bushels, three per cent smaller than last year. Yields averaged 35.1 bushels per acre, up from 33.6 bushels in 1978. Seeded acreage declined seven per cent to 2.64 million acres and harvested acreage to 2.578 million acres.

By types, production of spring wheat (other than durum) was down two per cent to 85.75 million bushels with an average yield of 35 bushels per acre, up 1.5 bushels. Durum wheat production dropped by almost one-fourth to 2.849 million bushels. Yields declined 1.5 bushels to 37 bushels per acre. The winter wheat output of 1.785 million bushels increased six per cent above last year. The 35 bushel-per-acre yield was up six bushels.

The 1979 oat crop fell 14 per cent to 84.93 million bushels. The 57 bushel-per-acre yield topped both last year and the 1974-78 average yield by three bushels. Growers planted 1.65 million acres (down 23 per cent) and harvested 1.49 million acres for grain (down 19 per cent).

Barley production amounted to 40.81 million bushels, down 21 per cent from a year ago. The 53 bushel-per-acre yield compares with the 1978 yield of 49.5 bushels and the 1974-78 average yield of 43.7 bushels. Seeded acreage totaled 780,000 and harvested acreage 770,000, both down 27 per cent.

Farmers harvested 2.275 million bushels of rye in 1970, three per cent less than the previous year. The 25 bushel-per-acre yield was up one bushel from last year and up half a bushel frmom the five-year average. Seeded acreage of 100,000 acres was down 13 per cent while harvested acreage of 91,000 acres was down only seven per cent.

Clubs Offer New Year's Eve Dance Activity

Local clubs will offer New Year's eve dances again this year with live music scheduled from 9 p.m. to closing, according to advertisements appearing in today's issue of the Times.

"The Fugitives" will play for dancing at the American Legion club, "Dick Miller Orchestra" will be at the Eagles hall and "Country Roads" will provide the music for VFW club activities.

Snowplowing Rates Change

Effective Jan. 1, 1980 the county rates for snowplowing will be increased from $20 per hour to $25 per hour. Minimum charge will remain at $7.50, reminds county engineer Arvid Olson.

After Corrective Surgery . . .

Smith Youngster Is Hospitalized

Four-month-old Matthew Smith, whose life was saved in mid-November as a result of a passerby applying CPR techniques on a highway south of Thief River Falls, is hospitalized in St. Paul after corrective surgery.

Melvin Smith, the youngster's father, informed the Times Monday that the youngster had continued his history of stopping breathing and turning blue a couple of weeks after leaving the Thief River Falls hospital. The Smiths are former Thief River Falls residents who moved to Wheaton this fall.

Smith said that he and his wife Marlene, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bratland of Strathcona, had to take two-hour shifts watching the youngster during the night and that the routine was becoming exhausting. The child was hospitalized at Wheaton and continued to exhibit the breathing difficulty there.

The Smiths took Matthew to St. Paul Children's hospital where surgery revealed the child had a hole in his windpipe and no cartilage to provide support. An artificial trachea was installed during the December 14 surgery, Smith said, and the youngster appears to have been breathing well since that time.

Smith said his son will remain hospitalized in St. Paul until the middle of February. Doctors have said the youngster may develop cartilage as he grows older but it is likely the artificial trachea will be necessary for life.

Matthew was the subject of a Times article in the November 19 issue after he had stopped breathing while traveling with his mother on highway 32 south of Thief River Falls. Among the first passersby were Mr. and Mrs. Ted Mills of Beaverton, Oregon, who were returning to Thief River Falls for a visit. Mrs. Mills has been a registered nurse for 50 years and was familiar with cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). She got the youngster breathing again and accompanied Mrs. Smith and Matthew to the local hospital.

ANN HANSON, Viking, recently won first place in the 33rd annual voice of democracy contest sponsored by the Thief River Falls VFW and its auxiliary. Ann also won first place in the Ninth district and received a $100 savings bond and a trophy for her school. Ann now becomes eligible for state competition, in which state winners will receive a free trip to Valley Forge and Washington, D.C. Pictured with Ann are Paul Halverson, VFW post 2793, voice of democracy chairman (left), and Ray Olson VFW post 2793, senior vice commander, and Marshall county central high school instructors, Mrs. Lucille Tunheim (left) and Mrs. Carol Peterson.

"CHILDREN AND PARENTS Learning Together" is the title of a new pilot program being started at Mark Twain elementary school for pre-school youngsters and their parents in the Thief River Falls school district. Funded with a $30,000 grant through the early childhood and family education program of the Minnesota council on quality education, a division of the Minnesota department of education, the program has three staff members who will work on a part-time basis. Among local mothers who brought their pre-schoolers for a preview look at the facilities last week are (left to right) Virginia Lee with Amy and Aaron, Debbie Rogalla with Carter and Ryan, Muriel Olin with Jennifer and Betty Schantzen with Brenda. "During the important years before school, parents are the first and most significant teachers," states Joyce Brandt, program coordinator. "We hope to provide the parents with ideas for activities to do with their children, helping them to grow socially, emotionally and physically, as well as conveying a sense of how to enjoy children by watching their growth and development."

Children And Parents Learning Together — Local Pilot Program

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"THE CONCEPT — The beginning years of a child's life are crucial. Intellectual, physical, social and emotional growth occur rapidly from birth to age five. During the important years before school; parents are the first and most significant teachers. They direct the child's beginnings, shaping the child's perception of himself or herself and the world."

This explanation from an informational brochure prepared by the staff gives an outline of the legislature's reasoning in providing funds for "Children and Parents Learning Together", one of 36 such pilot programs in the state and now located at Mark Twain elementary school in Thief River Falls.

Funding for the program (about $30,000 locally) comes from the state legislature's appropriation to the Minnesota council on quality education, a division of the state department of education. It is administered as part of the series of early childhood and family education pilot programs.

Locally, a three-member staff has been hired through the local school district to organize and operate the program. Joyce Brandt, program coordinator, has a background in home economics education, taught in that field for seven years at Marshall county central school at Newfolden and worked one year at Poppler's in Thief River Falls. Her husband, Roger, is employed by Piggly-Wiggly in Thief River Falls.

Early childhood teacher is Sharon Humphrey. Her background is in elementary education and early childhood education and she taught one year in the head start program and three years in first grade in Chicago schools. While a Thief River Falls resident for the past year she has been a substitute teacher. Her husband, David, is a medical doctor here.

Secretary and librarian in the program is Yvonne Sorensen who also has a background in home economics education with parenting and early childhood emphasis. She taught at Franklin middle school for two years after being a youth program assistant for one year with the Pennington county extension service. Her husband, Lee, is assistant vice president at First Northwestern state bank.

According to Mrs. Brandt, anyone living in the Thief River Falls school district is eligible to participate in the program if they are expectant parents or are parents of a child aged birth to five years of age.

"Our program of early childhood and family education is here to help you." Mrs. Brandt said. "Goal of our program is to enhance and support the role of the parents as the first and most important teachers of their own children."

Several activities are being planned to open the program for parents and children in the month of January. Included are activity sessions for parents and children (age two to kindergarten), parent session only and a "Daddy 'n' Me" night for children age three to kindergarten and their fathers only.

During activity sessions, Mrs. Brandt said, parents and their children "will creatively share a wide variety of activities set up for each section. We hope to provide the parent with ideas for activities to do with the child which will help the child develop cognitively, socially, emotionally and physically as well as being fun for the child. And we hope to convey a sense of how to enjoy children by watching their growth and development."

Activity sessions will be held Monday or Wednesday from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 2:30 p.m.; Tuesday from 1 to 2:30 p.m.; and Tuesday, January 15, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Office hours for the program are 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Parent session on Tuesday, January 22 from 7 to 9 p.m. will be on making toys from throw-aways. All materials will be provided and registration will be limited.

The Daddy 'n' Me night will involve play activities with the staff on hand to guide fathers and give suggestions on activities to do with their children.

Pre-registration will be required for all sessions and will be held January 7, 8, 9 or 10 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Tuesday, January 8, from 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Registration procedure will take from 20 to 30 minutes and those registering will need proof of immunization of the child before the child is admitted to a class. Explanation

THE INSIDE STORY of "Children and Parents Learning Together" could be told by these youngsters trying out some of the equipment in the room being equipped at Mark Twain elementary school. In the photo are Aaron and Amy Lee and Ricky Donarski. They and several other youngsters had an enjoyable time with playthings while their mothers visited the classroom to discuss the program last week.

PLAY TIME isn't always fun time — especially if you happen to have the plaything that someone else also wants as a toy. Joyce Brandt, program coordinator for the "Children and Parents Learning Together" program at Mark Twain elementary school, intervenes to provide a little social adjustment between two youngsters visiting the classroom.

Lori Schelling In National Queen Finals

Lori Schelling of Fargo has been selected to compete in the national finals of the contest sponsored by Farmers Insurance group to select a queen for its "Stardust" float in the 1980 Pasadena tournament of roses parade on January 1.

Miss Schelling has also been selected as "Miss Farmers Insurance Group" for her community. She is sponsored by Farmers' agent Dave Miller of Thief River Falls, who said that as a national finalist Miss Schelling will be competing for an all-expense-paid trip to Pasadena to reign as queen of the float and attend the Rose Bowl football game.

Miss Schelling, 21, is five feet, eight inches tall and is a blonde with blue eyes. She is a student at North Dakota state university in Fargo.

Veterans Must Contact VA About Pensions

Some elderly veterans may lose their pensions if they do not contact the veterans administration immediately, Congressman Arlan Stangeland announced today.

"The Veterans administration has contacted my office because a number of elderly veterans in Minnesota may be short changing themselves since they have not reported all their 1978 unreimbursed medical expenses. They only have until December 31 to advise the VA of these expenses or they will lose the pension money they are entitled to forever," said Stangeland.

The pensioners are primarily veterans or their survivors who chose at the end of 1978 to remain under what is now called the "old" VA pension plan because it was to their advantage to do so. Their pension rates were frozen at the end of the year.

A smaller group of pension recipients chose to switch to a more recent plan which offered higher rates to some pensioners, depending on individual circumstances. The law permits members of either group to advise the VA by the end of 1979 of any previously unreported medical expenses they had during 1978.

The potential loss to pension recipients could be as high as $100 a month. Persons enrolled under the old plan who find they did not report all 1978 medical expenses may do so by contacting the Veterans Administration Center, 288 Federal Building, Fort Snelling, St. Paul, MN 55111 or by calling 612-725-4380.

Borgeson-Olson Vows Spoken At Park River

Miss Jill Borgeson and Gerald Olson were united in marriage recently at Our Savior's Lutheran church in Park River, N.D.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Joyce Borgeson a former Thief River Falls resident who is now living in Park River, N.D., and the late Ray Borgeson. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Olson of Grand Forks, N.D.

Rev. Donald Ronning officiated at the double ring ceremony with the bride's brother, Keith Borgeson, sister-in-law of the bride, who sang "Come Saturday Morning," and Lee Laaveg, who sang "The Lord's Prayer." Together they sang, "The Wedding Song," with Denise Laaveg as accompanist.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her mother and brother, Barry Borgeson. She was attired in a white floor-length gown designed with an empire bodice with long bishop sleeves gathered into deep cuffs. Lace motifs graced the bodice and outlined the neckline. Her softly draped skirt flowed back into a train. A lace profile headpiece held her tiered, walking-length veil edged with lace. She carried a nosegay bouquet of white and cinnamon roses and silver gray rose buds, made by Maureen Swendseid, the bride's sister and matron of honor, who made all the flowers carried by the bride, her attendants and the flower girl. She also made all the corsages and boutonnieres.

The bride's other attendants were her sisters, Kathy and Diane Borgeson, and a friend, Donna Flaten. Tanya Swendseid served as flower girl; and Joan Larson was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the groom were Gordon Peterson of Newcastel, Wy., as best man; Dale Borgeson, brother of the bride; Greg Haugen, a friend, and Arvid Swedseid, a brother-in-law of the bride, as groomsmen. The ring bearer was Jerome Borgeson. Serving as ushers were Keith Borgeson, the bride's brother, and Russel Ramsey, a friend of the bride.

For the reception that followed, the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Benson of Thief River Falls served as host and hostess. Centering the serving table was a wedding cake, a gift to the bride from her aunt and godmother, Aileen Benitt of Holt. She, together with Phyllis Rinas, an aunt of the groom, cut and served the cake. Pouring coffee were Vera Borgeson, aunt of the bride, and Joyce Ellefson, aunt of the groom. Tina Swenseid and Heather Ross, nieces of the bride, served the punch as Leah Borgeson and Rachael Borgeson distributed the wedding favors. Waitresses were Tami Ramsey, Kathy Vavrosky, Linda Winther and Marlys Kjelland. Patty Flaagen, a friend of the bride, presided at the guest book. Kim and Lisa DuBois and Connie Capp carried the gifts and Tara Swenseid, a niece of the bride, distributed the wedding programs.

The bride is a graduate of Park River high school and the groom is a graduate of the University of North Dakota. He is employed as resident entineer for AAAAX Coal company at Gillette, Wyo.

Monthly Events At Oakland Park Are Reported

Eight residents at Oakland Park nursing home observed their birthdays during the month of November. To mark the event a joint birthday party was held with the distribution of birthday cards from President Carter. Lunch featured krumkaka donated by Gladys Johnson, a nurse aide, and rosettes from Bertha Fredrickson, mother of nurse aide June Thrane.

Residents observing their birthdays and the date of their birth were Louis Mandt, Nov. 6, 1894; Clara Bloomquist, Nov. 8, 1984; Nick Urdahl, Nov. 9, 1898; Anne Oftelie, Nov. 10, 1895; Odin Peterson, Nov. 25, 1908; Annie Jensen, Nov. 26, 1893; and George Anderson Nov. 30, 1895.

The women of the Evangelical Covenant church hosted the birthday party and served lunch.

On Nick Urdahl's 94th birthday, members of his family gathered at the home to help him celebrate the event. The staff assisted by serving cake and ice cream to all the residents and staff.

Four residents hosted Sunday dinners during the month. Hosting the November 4 dinners were Art Stenberg with Mr. and Mrs. Otto and Inga Berg as guests; Louis Mandt with his wife Otelia Mandt and his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Mandt as guests; and Ruth Vielguth with her son Bob Vielguth of Anoka as her guest.

On November 18th, Mae Hanson had Mr. and Mrs. Roy Randorf as her invited guests and on Nov. 18, Randi Smeby had Albert Smeby and Mr. and Mrs. John Smeby as her dinner guests. There were no private dinners on Sunday, November 25.

A number of devotional services and programs were presented during the month. Rev. George DeWall, pastor of the Bible Baptist church held services every Sunday afternoon and Rev. J. Hovland of Trinity Lutheran church offered Communion services on November 2 and 30.

Others conducting services were Rev. Barrie Henke of St. John Lutheran, Rev. Jonathan Law of the United Methodist church, Rev. Eugene Enderlein of Our Saviour's Lutheran, and Roger Helgren, intern at the Evangelical Covenant church. An afternoon of hymn singing was led November 17 by a number of women from Trinity, who also provided doughnuts for the afternoon lunch. Mrs. J. Hovland, also of Trinity, presented a Bible study on November 28.

The Home's annual Christmas bazaar was held November 9 in the activities center with all items handmade by staff and residents. The proceeds from the sale will help support the activity program.

Other activities at the Home included quilting, the forming of an exercise group with Lois Anderson and Kim Jones, activities aides, in charge; bingo with the women of the American Legion auxiliary and the Eagles auxiliary assisting the residents; bowling in the activities room; several movies, and a visit from the students in the cosmetology department at the local AVTI, who styled the residents' hair and gave permanents. The monthly Happy Hour featured old-time music provided by Jack Rybakowski of Middle River playing the accordion. Hot brandy drinks were served.

Two memorial services were held during the month. On November 5, Rev. Rick Lund of Holt held a service for Nels Johnson; and on November 21, Rev. Hovland of Trinity officiated at the memorial service for Julia Thompson.

Rod Wentzel BSU Student Teacher Here

Rodney Wentzel of Thief River Falls is student teaching during winter quarter at Thief River Falls Lincoln high, according to Dr. James Tillman, director of Bemidji state university student teaching.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the Bachelor of Science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

Student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a student's preparation for the teaching profession and is viewed by many students as the most valuable requirement of their teacher education.

Amend Social Security Test On Earnings

U.S. House of Representatives has passed a bill to amend the earnings test for social security recipients and according to Congressman Arlan Stangeland "farmers, other self-employed people, mothers, children and fathers who receive social security will benefit greatly from the change."

Before 1977, benefits to recipients could be paid for any month in which a person either did not earn more than one-twelfth of the annual earnings limit or, if self-employed, did not work 45 or more hours a month. Since the passage of the social security act of 1977, earnings have been subject to an annual test in which full benefits were paid until a person earned more than the allowable annual amount ($4,500 in 1979). Additional income was reduced by 50 per cent.

"The farmer was particularly hard hit by the social security act of 1977 and it was extremely unfair. This legislation did not take into consideration the fact that a farmer may harvest a crop in one year and not take it to market until the following year. In other words, if a farmer retired after the agricultural season, applied for and began receiving social security, and then sold the previous year's crops the next year, the law would require those profits to be included in the annual income test. The end result would be a partial loss of earned and well deserved social security benefits," said Stangeland.

The earnings test for social security beneficiaries bill provides a way of reversing the 1977 provisions which nagetively affected many groups. The self-employed person, such as the farmer, will be allowed under this bill to receive income from services performed prior to retirement without having the income counted in the social security earnings test.

Surviving beneficiaires were previously asked to pay back benefits received in a single year if they received more income than the allowable limit following their going off the social security rolls. This legislation provides a monthly measure for these people in the year they stop receiving social security.

In addition, this legislation corrects a provision which had specified that anyone who had received any social security benefits prior to Jan. 1, 1978, would not have a "grace year" available to them when they actually retired after Jan. 1, 19798. This could include teachers who had retired and begun taking benefits during the summer months, persons who had been unemployed for a period of time, and persons who had been sick and without other income for a period of time.

"Since 1977, millions of people have been unintentionally discriminated against by the social security administration because of these provisions contained in the 1977 social security act but now, following passage of this bill, equity should be restored," Stangeland said.

DOE Proposal Said Threat To State's Energy

A department of energy (DOE) proposal to require independent oil refiners to sell a portion of their crude oil supply is a "serious threat" to Minnesota, Senator Dave Durenberger said today.

Durenberger criticized the proposal in a letter to DOE secretary Charles Duncan. The economic regulatory administration of the DOE has held hearings on expanding the "buy-sell" program to certain independent refiners. According to the recommended plan, some independents would be required to sell crude oil to other refiners, including, perhaps, international majors.

"If this regulation goes into effect, it would be a serious threat to Minnesota's already dwindling supplies," Durenberger said. "Minnesota receives two-thirds of its petroleum products from four refineries. The three largest of these refineries — Ashland, Koch and Murphy — are independents.

"The buy-sell program when it is applied to major oil companies is designed to protect the refinery capacity of the independents and small refiners from market manipulations by the majors and to allocate supplies so that no region of the country suffers an inequitable shortage of supplies.

"However, applying this program to independents works against the purpose, especially in Minnesota. Of the 240,000 barrels of crude oil Minnesota uses every day, 100,000 barrels have come from Canada. Now, the Canadians are cutting back their exports. While the majors can work out swaps between their Canadian and American subsidiaries so that no region has a shortage, the Minnesota refiners don't have that flexibility. Also, Ashland has relied heavily on Iranian oil. With that supply being cut off Ashland is struggling just to get the oil it needs to keep operating.

"The people of Minnesota have been conserving. But, with the extreme winter in our state and the need to provide heating oil, Minnesota refiners can't afford to supply the rest of the country," said Durenberger.

Increase Noted In Buying Food Under Program

Food stamp shoppers bought over $6.4 billion worth of food with food stamps this year, according to Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services. This means that the poor spent $3 billion more on food in 1979 than they would have without the food stamp program.

Food stamp dollars benefit U.S. food retailers and farmers, while helping to feed the nation's hungry, Foreman said.

In a report on the economic effects of food stamps, the agriculture department said spending for food as a result of the stamps increased the income of food processors and distributors by about $1.4 billion.

Farmer income has increased nearly $1 billion because of the increased spending brought on by food stamps in 1979, according to the report by the U.S. department of agriculture's food and nutrition service.

Overall, the value of food stamps issued in 1979 was 3.9 per cent of the total sales of food through retail stores for home use, USDA reported.

Foreman said a $1 billion cut in food stamp benefits next year would cost farmers $140 million in income. Food distributors — including processors, packers, wholesalers and retailers — would lose about $210 million, and food expenditures would decrease by $350 million, in spite of the fact that stamp users would substitute some of their own money for the stamps cut.

Six Free Seed Tests Available To MN. Farmers

Now that the Christmas holiday is over farmers should take the time to apply for a gift from the State of Minnesota designed to improve the odds for successful production of field crops in 1980, advises agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

He reminded Minnesota farmers of the six free seed tests authorized annually by the state legislature, and available only on samples submitted prior to March 15, 1980. Farmers can save $9 by using the six free tests.

Prescribed state fees for the same germination and purity tests now available free range upwards of $1.50 per sample per test after the March 15 deadline.

Commissioner Seetin said that the state seed testing laboratory maintained by the agronomy division of the Minnesota department of agriculture can offer good service now because of the low volume of samples being submitted for the free tests.

Director William Bulger advised that on the basis of past experience, farmers who wait until a week or two before the free test deadline may experience delay problems because the peak volume of samples usually "swamps" the seed laboratory during the last month of winter, mid-February to mid-March.

Bulger said that his seed laboratory staff reports that the impacts of the adverse 1979 growing and harvest season weather on crops are being indicated by early sample tests. Seed lots selected from the 1979 crops should definitely be tested for germination and purity.

Seed testing is not only important for farmers planning to use their own grain for seed, it is required for proper labeling of seed offered for sale in Minnesota. Commercial seed must be labeled to show purity, noxious weed seed and inert material content, and germination test results.

Purity tests can be done in one day, but germination tests take from one to four weeks depending upon the type of seed. Grass and mixed seed samples take the longest.

Sampling instructions and mailing envelopes for submitting seed samples for the free tests may be obtained at any Minnesota county agricultural extension service office, from county agricultural inspectors, at most country elevators, or by written request to the State Seed Laboratory, 644 State Office Building, St. Paul, Minn. 55155.

Grain Output Rated Below '78 Production

Minnesota's dry edible bean crop was five per cent smaller than last year, totaling 562,000 hundredweight. Yields averaged 1,560 pounds per acre, up from last year's, 1,410 pounds. Planted acreage was 38,000 acres and harvested acreage 36,000 acres.

This fall, Minnesota growers seeded 75,000 acres of winter wheat for harvest in 1980, one-fourth more than the year before. Based on conditions around December 1, a production of 2.0 million bushels is expected. Nationally, farmers increased winter wheat seedings by nine per cent to 56.8 million acres. December 1 conditions point to a crop of 1.57 billion bushels in 1980, down three per cent from last year. Rye seedings in Minnesota for 1980 totaled 80,000 acres, down 20 per cent. U.S. rye acreage decreased 14 per cent to 2.15 million acres.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

If our school system can afford to pay it's board members a rate that's third highest in the state, our teachers should also be paid at the rate of third highest in the state.

When asked if he would work for a teacher's salary, one board member commented "they knew the salary before they entered teaching." Obviously, our teacher's don't enter the teaching fields because of the monetary rewards. They do it for their love of children and to be able to work with them. Should they be penalized for this? At least they should be allowed to keep a reasonable pace with inflation!

Chrysler Loan Is Supported By Stangeland

U.S. House of Representatives voted in support of providing aid to the Chrysler corporation Tuesday and Congressman Arlan Stangeland of the Seventh District of Minnesota says this bill is "not the best, but the better of two bad choices."

"If we do not provide aid to the Chrysler corporation, the nation's tenth largest corporation, bankruptcy would be inevitable and the cost to the nation would be far greater. On the other hand, by supplying federally guaranteed loans, the cost to the taxpayers, even if Chrysler is unable to pay back the loans, will be much cheaper," Stangeland said.

The loan guarantee for Chrysler requires: $1.83 billion from non-federal sources including a mandatory $400 million contribution from employees (the equivalent of $4,000 per worker or a 1:4 year wage freeze) and a mandatory contribution of the same percentage from management totaling $100 million; $1.5 billion in federal loan guarantees contingent on the company first raising the $1.83 billion from private sources; $500 million from U.S. banks; $150 million from foreign banks and other creditors; $300 million from the sale of Chrysler assets; $250 million from state and local governments; $180 million from suppliers and dealers; $50 million from the sale of additional equity and $150 million in common stock issued to employees.

"A rise in the unemployment rate of .5 per cent could be expected within a year if the Chrysler corporation were to go out of business. This means as many as 540,000 people would be out of work and thousands of small businesses would be forced to close. I think this is particularly important since 31 of the nation's 5,000 dealers are located in the Seventh District and employ some 460 people," Stangeland said.

Minnesota has a total of 149 Chrysler, Plymouth and Dodge dealers, and 64 marine dealers which employ approximately 3,500 people. The state also has 151 businesses which supply the Chrysler corporation with $52 million worth of goods annually.

Department of the treasury further estimates the revenue loss to the federal government caused by a Chrysler failure at $2.75 billion. In addition, $1.1 billion would be needed to make good on federally guaranteed pensions to Chrysler workers. The loss of revenue to state and local governments could also be as high as $266 million annually.

"Passage of this bill simply means the federal government will guarantee loans to the Chrysler corporation so as to allow the company to economically get back on its feet. The $1.5 billion guaranteed loan offers the best chance to preserve the jobs and economic lifeblood of communities all over the country and it is much better than the high cost of unemployment and loss of small businesses caused by Chrysler failure. There is also a distinct possibility there will be no cost at all to the American taxpayer if everything goest well and Chrysler is able to regain its strength," he said.

will be given of the daily routine procedures on how the staff handles separation of child from the parent and parents will have an opportunity to meet staff members.

Among topics to be offered include child development information, parents are people too, fathering, single parents, teen parents, discipline, channeling children's excess energy and childproofing the home.

Activities to be offered will involve toy making sessions, physical activities such as swimming or use of the gymnasium, cooking with the children, reading with children, music and art and assessing the child's developmental age.

Class sizes will be restricted to provide a safe, productive environment for children who attend at the same time as the parents, Mrs. Brandt added.

The program coordinator said that staff will visit other programs and attend workshops in order to better develop the program here. It is hoped that parents having an introduction to involvement with their child in classes outside the home will be stimulated to remain involved as the child advances through school years.

Any eligible parents who would like to receive a copy of the newsletter to be produced by the program may call 681-5670 Monday through Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. after January 2.

STAFF MEMBERS of the pilot program entitled "Children and Parents Learning Together" include (left to right) Yvonne Sorensen, secretary-librarian; Joyce Brandt, program coordinator; and Sharon Humphrey, early childhood teacher. Registration for the program involving preschool youngsters and their parents will be held January 7, 8, 9 and 10.

Interment was in the United-Bethania Lutheran cemetery, Greenbush with the Collins Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were James Vatnsdal, Orin Lee, Orelle Vatnsdal, Joel Graff, Brude Melby and Leland Melby.

John Vatnsdal, a son of the late Johan and Jona Vatnsdal, was born June 20, 1910 in Pohlitz township, Roseau county, near Badger. He attended school and grew to manhood in the Badger community. On Nov. 1, 1932, he was married at Badger to Hazel Erickson. The couple farmed in Pohlitz township until 1950, when they moved to International Falls where Vatnsdal was employed for 22 years in the paper mill. Following retirement in July of 1972, the couple moved to Greenbush, where they had since made their home.

He was an active member of the United Free Lutheran church of Greenbush.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Marvin (Phyllis) Lindland of Badger, five granddaughters, a grandson, five great-grandchildren; three brothers: Jonas and Edward Vatnsdal, both of Greenbush, and Gustav of Badger; and a sister: Mrs. Mary Lee, also of Badger.

His parents, one brother and two sisters preceded him in death.

Play Therapy Helps Child In Hospital

by Paul Schurke
'U' M News Service

Serious illness deals children a double blow. Not only can it debilitate an active youngster, but it can require long-term hospitalization, pulling a child from a warm, family environment to one filled with white coats, bandages and mysterious equipment.

Despite the best efforts of doctors and nurses, the experience can be terrifying for some children. While hospital treatment may cure the child's disease, it can leave crippling psychological problems.

At University of Minnesota hospitals, the staff of the child life department is working to counter that problem by encouraging children to do more of what they are best at—playing.

Play therapists Paula Dicke and Mark Holub use play in both informal visits and private and group sessions. Play does many things for the hospitalized child, they say. It reduces stress, provides an outlet for emotions, teaches social skills, encourages communication and creativity, and provides a sense of normalcy in a strange environment.

Each year, hundreds of children come here, generally for treatments they couldn't receive at their hometown hospitals. Confronted by a disease and a new environment, they respond in different ways. Some become listless and withdrawn; others become angry and aggressive. Still others exhibit what Dicke calls the "crucifixion syndrome," passively submitting to doctors' and nurses' requests though visibly afraid.

Common denominator for these children is a feeling of anxiety, and the playtherapists' goal is to reduce it. Their tools are toys. Much of their time is spent in private play sessions with children for whom doctors, nurses or parents have asked special help. Holub calls it "trouble shooting."

Four-year-old John became mute after he was admitted to the hospital last spring. Dicke attempted to draw out his feelings by interesting him in a paint set. He responded by painting small circles with legs on them in the corners of blank sheets of paper.

"As we do with other children, we used John's drawings for diagnosis. His pictures indicated to me that he was feeling a great sense of powerlessness," Dicke said.

To help him become more comfortable with the environment, she encouraged him to play "hospital," using a doll and bandages, tongue depressors and syringes without needles. Initially, John responded with violence hacking at the doll with the syringe and taping its mouth so that, he said, "it wouldn't ask any questions."

Dicke talked with John's doctor, parents and nurses about his need for more open communication and discussion of his treatment. With their cooperation, John gradually became more comfortable with his hospital stay.

Dicke contends that many children, like John, can benefit from play therapy. She points to the results of recent studies as evidence. Initiated by Stephanie Clatworthy, a former University of Minnesota researcher and a leader in the field of play therapy, the studies involved more than 300 children who were admitted to University hospitals and to the Minneapolis and St. Paul Children's hospitals during the last several years.

Levels of anxiety these children experienced upon admission to the hospital were measured according to standardized scales. While all the children were involved in recreational activities during their stay, half received special half-hour play sessions five times a week.

Researchers found that, overall, the children who received play therapy responded the hospital experience with significantly less anxiety than those who did not.

Along with private sessions, group sessions are also an important component of the program. Dicke and Holub coordinate six weekly groups that include about 40 children. Some of them, like one called "My Friends and Me," are used to teach social skills and replace the peer process that is often lost when children are hospitalized. Others, such as "Family Fun Night," are used to keep families together and to help the hospitalized children burn up stifled energy. Siblings, parents and friends of the children are encouraged to participate in all these programs.

Toys are a big part of both the group and private play sessions. All are donated, and those used by Dicke are selected for special purposes. School toys, small chalkboards and crayons are chosen for children whose identity is found to be tied up in their school work.

Hospital-type toys are used with children who believe they are somehow responsible for their situation, such as the little girl who suggested her doll needed shots because she didn't eat her green beans. To encourage creativity and communication, Dicke also uses puppets and arts and crafts materials.

Through the toys and play sessions, the therapists attempt to ensure that the child's personal and social development is not severely disrupted by the hospital stay. And they hope to make the hospital experience a more positive one. "We want them to know that there can still be moments of happiness in the hospital and that not everyone is causing them pain," Dicke said.

Slow down and live.

Eichof & Sons Awarded UMC Building Bid

Low bid for the new $2.2 million physical education building at the University of Minnesota technical college — Crookston (UMC) has been accepted, Provost Stanley D. Sahlstrom announced this week.

Otto J. Eickhof & Sons, Inc. will be the general contractors for the 40,000 square foot structure, with completion date projected in July of 1981.

"The L-shaped building will be constructed so as to use the present Knutson hall gymnasium in connection with the new building," according to Bill Menzhuber, director of plant services.

Included in the new structure will be two varsity locker rooms, in addition to the two located in the present facility, to allow both women and men to have activities operating simultaneously; two racketball-handball courts; co-ed training areas for therapy and treatment of athletic injuries; co-ed weight training room; office space for all physical education staff; practice wrestling room (and the incorporation of a wrestling gymnasium in the old building); multipurpose classroom for instruction, squad meetings and for use as a hospitality room; a co-ed sauna; equipment issue and storage area; and a gymnasium with three basketball courts (which will include provision for volleyball, tennis and badminton courts) and seating capacity of approximately 3,500 in the new fieldhouse.

"With our long Minnesota winters we wanted to provide adequate space for intramural sports," said Sahlstrom.

After the first request for building a physical education complex was submitted to the Minnesota legislature, dimensions of the gymnasium were changed to allow the university to host regional events, as well as to provide space for intramural sports, according to Menzhuber.

"We wanted our complex to be a service to our students first and then to all of northwestern Minnesota," he said. "In order to host regional high school activities, an additional 7,000 square feet and 1,800 seating capacity were added."

Bids came in over the estimates of the architects. These higher figures have necessitated transfer of some funds that had been earmarked tentatively for the outdoor complex to the building in order to construct it as planned. However, all recreational, intramural and intercollegiate practice fields planned for the outdoor area will still be completed, according to Sahlstrom.

Items removed from the immediate construction schedule include the outdoor storage building, bleachers for the football field, and the special type of soil mixture that was to be for the gridiron itself. Dropping these alternates, explained Menzhuber, will compensate for the greater costs anticipated in erecting the indoor physical education building. Bidding date for the outdoor complex is set for Feb. 1, 1980.

Wheat Council Pledges Funds For Research

In the largest commitment made for research purposes in its history, the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council has agreed to a $135,000 contract with the University of Minnesota for 1980-81, according to council producer-chairman Terry Fladeland.

"We think we have embarked upon an extremely productive research program," Fladeland asserted. "This is another means of investing wheat check-off dollars to bring about improvements for Minnesota's farmers."

Fladeland noted that six new projects will be added to research already being conducted by the University of Minnesota on behalf of the council. These new projects include: Testing fertilizer efficiency on wheat; physiological maturity identification; nitrogen translocation affects on protein; northwest Minnesota weed control research and demonstration; wheat harvest losses; and sponsorship for a drier program.

These projects come in addition to research being done in the field of seed quality affects on yield, wheat disease control by use of resistant varieties and fungicides, root development studies and tillage practices, and testing soil fertility residual needs for wheat.

Fladeland noted that sponsorship of the drier program involves purchasing $15,000 in equipment. This equipment will be located at the University of Minnesota-Morris west central experiment station.

"The council will be working very closely with Ralph E. Smith, supervisor of the agriculture experiment station in Morris, on the drier program," Fladeland said.

In addition, Fladeland said the council will purchase a tractor and plot seeder for the experiment station.

"We think these programs will be an excellent implementation of check-off funds," Fladeland declared. "The council intends to see that every wheat farmer in Minnesota is supplied with the results of these projects."

Award Grants In Area For Arts Program

Four arts grants were funded in the second grant round of the 1980 fiscal year program, according to the Northwest regional development commission. Grants are awarded for projects which enhance the artists or art resources of the seven counties of Region 1. Requests are made for 50 per cent or less of the total project cost. One award in this area was made to Northwest regional library in the amount of $1,040 for three poetry workshops with three well known published poets.

Workshops are scheduled as follows at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls: Ted Kooser, poetry reading April 4 at 7:30 p.m. and workshop for local poets April 5 from 10 a.m. to noon; Grayce Ray, poetry reading, April 18 at 7:30 p.m. and workshop for local poets April 19 from 10 a.m. to noon; John Judson, poetry reading May 2 at 7:30 p.m. and May 3 from 10 a.m. to noon.

Second award in this area was made to the Chameleon Theater company for $445 for a Christmas production of "The Nutcracker" performed December 7, 8 and 9 in Thief River Falls.

Next deadline for proposals for local arts development are due at the Northwest regional development commission office March 1, 1980, with $15,252 available for this grant round. Please call Sari Clark for further information.

New Markers Aid Visibility On Highways

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) is testing special, raised pavement markers to improve road visibility for motorists, especially during adverse driving conditions, according to Commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Markers being tested are called "snowplowable" because they are raised slightly from the road surface, yet are not damaged during plowing, he said.

"Placed in line with regular paint stripes, the markers light up as you drive by like light bulbs strung down the center of a roadway. The markers reflect light from vehicle headlights and tires keep them clean as vehicles change lanes," Braun said.

The markers improve road visibility because paint stripes are difficult to see at night during bad weather, he explained.

Reflecting markers have ridges to lift a snowplow blade up and over them without damage to either marker or blade. For permanence, the marker is epoxied into a hole cut into the pavement.

Snowplowable markers are now installed at two test sites: I-94 near St. Cloud and US 53 near Virginia. By mid-1980, additional markers will be installed at these locations and at two new sites — Division street in St. Cloud and I-35 (Thompson Hill) in Duluth.

Mn-DOT research personnel will monitor the effectiveness of the markers at each site.

Elect Kenville Director Of Auto Dealers

Thomas E. Kenville, president of Thomas Motors Inc., in Thief River Falls has been elected to the Minnesota automobile dealers association board of directors.

Kenville will serve a two-year term. His jurisdiction for the 800-member statewide auto dealers organization is District 1 including Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Beltrami, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater counties.

He serves as a director on the Northland community college foundation and Thief River Falls amateur hockey association, and is a member of the "Happy Hooligans" North Dakota Air national guard. Kenville is also active in the Elks, Eagles, American Legion and D.A.V.

Kenville and his wife, Gayle, have two children at home, Thomas and Kimberly.

Minnesota Automobile dealers association represents virtually all franchised new car and truck dealers in Minnesota, providing such centralized dealer services as government relations, research, legal, title check and accounting forms.

Seminar On Science, Math At Bemidji SU

Experimental design for scientists, a seminar for college and university science, mathematics and computer science teachers, will be offered January 28-29 at Bemidji state university.

Course is designed to provide a brief review of elementary statistical concepts and procedures, to acquaint science teachers with some of the statistical techniques useful to them in their teaching and research, to show the capabilities of some of the statistical packages available for use on the computer, and to provide computer services personnel and mathematics teachers with knowledge that will be helpful to them when they assist with a statistical analysis of experimental data.

Faculty for the course includes Dr. David V. Hinkley, professor of department of applied statistics, University of Minnesota and Elizabeth A. Hinkley, senior systems software programmer, computer center, University of Minnesota. Course coordinator is Dr. Elaine D. Bohanon, associate professor of mathematics, Bemidji state university.

Course may also be benificial to graduate students who are or will be doing research that requires statistical analysis of data. A student may enroll for one graduate credit in mathematics or may audit the course. Grading will be on a pass-no-pass basis. Enrollment is limited and will be on a first-come, first-serve basis. Cost is $15 which includes tuition and morning coffee.

Registration forms are available from the office of area services. Deadline for registration is January 18. For more information contact the Office of Area Services, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone: 755-2851.

Cheryl Eveland Practicing At Solway School

Cheryl Eveland of Newfolden is student teaching during winter quarter at Solway elementary, Bemidji, according to Dr. James Tillman, director of Bemidji state university student teaching.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the Bachelor of Science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

Commissioner Urges Safety During Holiday

Department of public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic reminds motorists to drive with special care during the holiday season since traditionally more accidents occur during December than any other month of the year.

According to statistics from the office of traffic safety, 14,099 crashes occurred during December, 1978. These accidents claimed the lives of 75 individuals.

January and November follow as the second and third all-time high crash months but trail December's record by approximately 3,000 crashes.

"The increase of accidents during the month of December is attributed to several factors, said Sopsic.

"When first faced with bad weather and road conditions, motorists are unfamiliar with winter driving techniques and making the wrong move means an accident and possible injuries.

"There are more cars on roads busy with holiday shopping, visiting friends and relatives, and of course, more people are celebrating.

"The occasional drinker who overindulges and drives is not accustomed to driving while experiencing the effects of alcohol. Alcohol impairs the brain so these drivers aren't thinking as well as they should.

"The startling truth is that 64 per cent of the drivers killed in 1978 had been drinking, and 52 per cent of those tested were above the legal level of intoxication.

"The department of public safety reminds motorists to drive defensively and urges all drivers to use common sense when celebrating so that all of us may enjoy a wonderful and safe holiday season."

Calligraphy Classes To Be Given At UMC

Two sessions of Calligraphy will be offered through the office of continuing education at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC).

First session will meet Monday and Wednesday, January 7 and 9, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Second will be a one-day workshop on Saturday, January 12, from 9 to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Both sessions will meet in Dowell 115.

Calligraphy is used in decorative handwriting such as for greeting cards, poster lettering, documents and quotes for framing, according to instructor Pat Kuznik.

Fee for the course is $10 plus materials. Class size is limited to 15, so registrations are accepted on a "first come-first serve" basis. To register interested persons may call UMC, telephone 281-6610, extension 241.

Dairy Farmers Schedule ADA Meeting Jan. 7

Dairy farmers in Pennington county are invited to attend the annual ADA meeting to be held at Florence's cafe, Monday, January 7, at 11 a.m.

Topics to be discussed by American dairy association of Minnesota area representative Cleve Johnson of Battle Lake are:

(1) Dairy farmers investment through dairy promotion, education and research through Minnesota Dairy promotion council;

(2) Promotional programs of the American dairy association of Minnesota; and

(3) Educational programs of the diary, food and nutrition council.

Also of prime importance will be review of county ADA activities and election of county officers, and delegates.

Those currently serving on the Pennington county ADA board are: Roger Mickelson, Goodridge and Duane Vatsaas, Thief River Falls producer delegates; Korydon Chervestad, Oklee and Marvin Koop, Thief River Falls, alternate producer delegates; Duane Olson, Thief River Falls, chairman; Clarence Swanson, Thief River Falls, vice chairman; and Howard Person, Thief River Falls, secretary-treasurer.

Everyone having an interest in dairying in Pennington county is urged to attend.

Mn/DOT Tests Gasohol In Vehicle Fleet

Use of gasohol as a fuel alternative in state-owned cars will be determined in part by results of a 12-month study to be completed next May, according to district engineer Roy Larson, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Sixteen per cent less gasoline was consumed by the district's 26-vehicle fleet during a preliminary three-month reporting period.

Decrease resulted in a saving of 700 gallons of gasoline. That amounted to a four per cent operating cost decrease or a savings of $150, Larson said.

An eight per cent increase in mileage for the fleet accounted for the savings, even though gasohol costs three cents more per gallon than unleaded gasoline, Larson said. Wide variations between vehicles were noted however, he said.

Mileage performance improved after gasoline and lead residues were eliminated by repeated use of the high octabe gasohol during the first month of the experiment. Gasohol is 90 per cent gasoline and 10 per cent alcohol.

Fasohol has reduced or eliminated cold engine stalling. Acceleration has improved along with less "running on" of the engine after it was switched off, Larson said.

Tax Rates For New Employers To Be Lowered

A lower unemployment tax rate will result in significant tax savings for more than 5,000 new Minnesota employers expected to be added to the tax rolls in 1980, the Minnesota department of economic security announced.

Beginning the first of the year the tax rate for new employers will be 1.9 per cent rather than the present 2.4 per cent, Barbara Beerhalter, assistant commissioner for unemployment insurance, said.

Taxes paid by employers are used to pay unemployment benefits. Decrease in the tax rate is made possible by the improvement in the State's economy since the recession in 1975.

Since 1975, the number of persons unemployed has decreased and the total number of persons in the state's labor force has increased. Result has been a sizeable increase in the amount of taxes paid by employers and a substantial decrease in the amount of benefits paid out.

Tax collections also increased because in 1979 employers paid taxes on the first $8,000 in wages paid to a worker as compared to the first $7,500 in 1978.

Increase in tax collections and decrease in benefit payments has enabled the state to repay $172 million in federal funds borrowed to meet high unemployment benefit demands during the recessionary period.

More than 83,000 employers will pay unemployment insurance taxes in 1980. Employers are assigned tax rates ranging from 1.0 per cent to 7.5 per cent, depending upon the number of workers laid off. Those laying off more workers pay higher rates.

Vacancies In State Agencies Are Announced

Secretary of state's office is seeking applicants for vacancies on multi-member state agencies. In accordance with the Minnesota open appointments law, application forms may be obtained at the office of Secretary of State, 180 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; (612) 296-7876. Application deadline is Tuesday, January 8, 1980.

Family Farm Advisory Council has four vacancies open immediately. Prescribed restrictions to membership include: one member a livestock farmer, one member an officer from a commercial lending institution, one member an officer from a farm credit association, and one member an agriculture economist. Members serve three year terms and meetings are monthly. Council assists farmers in obtaining credit to purchase farm real estate by guaranteeing loans and deferring interest payments. Appointing Authority is the Commissioner of Agriculture. Members receive $35 per diem plus expenses. For more information contact Doug Kuehnast, (612) 296-8435.

Higher Education Facilities Authority has one vacancy open immediately for a member from the first congressional district. Authority assists institutions of higher education in the construction, financing and refinancing of projects. Meetings are conducted monthly. The governor is the appointing authority for the four year terms. Members receive $35 per diem. For additional information: Joseph LaBelle, (612) 296-4690.

UM Law School Votes Against Bargaining

University of Minnesota law school faculty has voted against forming a collective bargaining unit.

Forty ballots were mailed to the state bureau of mediation services (BMS) and counted last week. Tally showed 10 votes for making the law faculty association the unit for collective bargaining, 14 votes for no representation, and 16 abstentions.

"I think the vote is evidence that the law faculty, at the moment, does not feel the need to go into collective bargaining," said John Cound, a law professor and the president of the law faculty association. "Frankly, I was a little surprised the 'yes' vote was as strong as it was. I thought it would be more like two-to-one against collective bargaining."

Cound said the law faculty association did not push actively for collective bargaining. He said the group was organized to make sure that, if collective bargaining came to the university, the law faculty would have its own bargaining unit.

"The law faculty is a pretty small group and we can talk to the dean on a one-to-one basis," Cound said. "I think the feeling was that we don't need to form a unit to represent us because we can do that ourselves."

Law faculty first asked the BMS to set up a collective bargaining election in 1973. "I think we've set a record for delay between filing date and the election," Cound said.

University of Minnesota education association (UMEA) sent a petition to BMS last week for a Twin Cities campus election on collective bargaining. Alfred Aeppli, UMEA president, said the election may be held as early as the spring or fall of 1980. Election would be for all academic departments of the University with the exception of the law school and the health sciences, which would have their own bargaining units.

Most U of M Students Happy With MN. Daily

A survey of several hundred students at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, showed that the majority of students are satisfied with the Minnesota Daily, but nearly half feel that the student fee that supports it should be optional. Sixty-five per cent of all students surveyed said they would pay an optional fee.

The Daily and 17 other campus organizations receive money through a student services fee paid by every student registered for more than six credits. In 1978, the fee generated more than $6.5 million.

The fee this quarter is $63.25. Board of publications, which publishes the Daily, receives $1.80 per quarter from every full-time student. Student services fee revenue accounts for 14 per cent of the Daily income.

A June humor issue of the Daily was criticized by many people who found it offensive, and critics have demanded that the student services fee for the Daily be made optional.

A random telephone survey of 474 students conducted this fall by the university's student life studies and planning office found that 57 per cent of the students were satisfied with the Daily, 50 per cent approved of the mandatory fee, 42 per cent said the fee should be optional, and seven per cent wanted no fee at all.

Student opinion regarding the student fee has been surveyed for the past four years as part of the annual fee-setting process. This year's survey differed from pervious surveys in that students were asked questions regarding the organizations and services receiving the largest amount of student services fee money.

Students were surveyed about the board of publications, the health service, the Minnesota Union, recreational sports, and the student legal service. All 474 students were questioned about the Daily. Smaller samples were questioned about the other organizations and activities.

The survey found that 44 per cent of those who wanted an optional fee were satisfied with the Daily. Only 19 per cent of all the students surveyed indicated they were dissatisfied with the Daily. Another 23 per cent said they were "neutral" about the Daily. Sixty-five per cent of all the students surveyed said they would pay an optional fee for the Daily.

Survey found that the frequent reader of the Daily was more likely to support a mandatory fee than the student who read the paper only once or twice a week. Students in the Graduate school, the college of liberal arts, and the college of education strongly supported a mandatory fee. Support for a mandatory fee was weaker among students in general college and the health sciences.

Sixty-five per cent of all students surveyed had seen the controversial spring humor issue and another 27 per cent had at least heard of it. Only 25 per cent of the students said they approved of the issue, 41 per cent were neutral or had no opinion, and 34 per cent were critical.

A number of the students surveyed volunteered comments about the funding of the Daily and the spring humor issue. Some of those who were satisfied with the Daily supported an optional fee because " it would be more democratic." Others said "the whole fee process should be reviewed but the Daily shouldn't be singled out."

More students commented on criticism of the humor issue being linked to funding of the Daily. One student said "I think it was a mistake and everyone knew it. Now they're trying to give them a hard time about it and I think that's wrong too." Another student took note of the legislative hearings that had been held on the matter and said, "The Daily is very valuable and the legislature should have nothing to say about it."

November Milk Production Up From Last Year

Minnesota milk production during the first eleven months of 1979 totaled nearly 969 million gallons and represented more than 7.3 per cent of the national dairy farm output, Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week.

That was within one half of one per cent of equalling the January through November 1978 Minnesota milk output, although the state's dairy farms reported 825,000 milk cows this November, a reduction by 20,000 cows from one year ago.

Estimated gross farm value of Minnesota milk production this year through November is $936.6 million, based on monthly farm price estimates. Dairy farmers this year received an average of 96.7 cents per gallon for their raw milk. Last year for the same period the milk prodicers received an average of 83.4 cents a gallon.

November milk production in Minnesota this year was greater than that month by 232,600 gallons because the average milk cow achieved a new all time high production for that month, 90.7 gallons. That topped the prior November average of the past two years by over 2.3 gallons per cow.

During November the average Minnesota milk cow earned an estimated $92.66 for its owner. That was the value of the month's milk production at the mid-November preliminary price average of $1.02 per gallon. A year ago the average Minnesota milk cow's gross earnings for November was $81.32.

Early season results would indicate Thief River Falls is the team to beat this winter in Section 8 high school hockey. The Prowlers, highlighted by an outstanding show in a 10-4 rout of a highly regarded Grand Forks Red River team Saturday, are 4-0 and drawing state-wide attention.

Meanwhile, perennial power Roseau, winner of the past three Section 8 hockey tournament titles, is off to a 1-2 start that includes a 9-1 pasting at the hands of that Red River team the Prowlers clobbered four days later and a 6-5 defeat at the hands of Bemidji Friday, a team the Prowlers handled 8-2 earlier in the week.

Roseau blew a 5-1 first period lead in the loss at Bemidji, a setback that represented the Rams' first regular season loss to a Section 8 foe since early in the 1975-76 season when goalie Terry Sullivan of the Prowlers kicked out 53 shots in a come-from-behind 3-2 Thief River Falls win at Roseau. Roseau last lost to a Section 8 tournament championship game when Bemidji beat the Rams 5-3.

However, Roseau coach Gary Hokanson said the Rams aren't about to abdicate. Sickness has hit the Rams like a plague this year, and once they regain their health they're expected to once again be a front-runner.

"Since that first win (6-3 over Lake of the Woods), we've had nothing but sickness," Hokanson said Monday. "If we get healthy we'll be a factor."

Biggest loss has been the absence of all-state defenseman Mark Huglen, probably the premiere hockey player in Section 8 this winter. Huglen has been battling mono, a throat problem and tonsils since the season began. He just returned to practice.

"A lot of our season depends on Mark Huglen," admitted Hokanson who compared him to Gary Sargent, the Minnesota North Stars defenseman who helped start Bemidji on its way three straight Section 8 hockey titles in 1972-73-74. "Take Gary Sargent away from those Bemidji teams, and what would you have had?" asked Hokanson. "I don't know if Mark is a Gary Sargent, but that's what he means to us."

Huglen isn't the only missing Roseau player. The Rams' defensive corps was reduced from eight to three blueliners at Bemidji, a fact Hokanson brought out. "We're hurting on defense," he acknowledged. "And that's why you're seeing those kind of scores."

Roseau faces a tough Twin Cities road trip January 3-4 when the Rams play Edina East and Edina West. Hokanson has his doubts that Roseau will be ready for those two games, but figures by mid-January when Roseau gets back into Section 8 play the Rams should be back to full health and ready to make a title run.

"It's too early to count us out," warns Hokanson. "We'll be around at tournament time."

But Hokanson also admits that even at full strength, Roseau does not have the personnel to overpower opponents like they have in the past few years.

"It's finally getting to the point where we don't have the 11-12 talented players like we've had in the past," he said. "Now we're trying to win with the average players like everybody else."

Hokanson, like most observers, predicted a highly competitive Section 8 race this year, saying upwards of five teams could win the thing, although he put Warroad and Thief River Falls at the top of the heap.

"I would have to put a question mark on Warroad right now," said Hokanson. "They're having a lot of problems over there."

But that doesn't make Thief River Falls a shoo-in. "There are so many teams this year that could be spoilers at tournament time," Hokanson explained. "You could have a super season and still get beat by any number of teams at tournament time. Like us, we might lose to, say, Thief River twice during the regular season and still come back and beat them in the tournament."

Prowlers Impress Howells

After beating Roseau 9-1 and losing to Thief River Falls 10-4, it wasn't surprising to hear Grand Forks Red River hockey coach Rob Howells rate the Prowlers as the top team in Section 8.

"Thief River has got to be the strength of Section 8 this winter," said Howells whose team will also be facing Section 8 contenders Warroad, East Grand Forks and Crookston this year.

"I hope he's right," was Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand's response to Howell's rating. But Grand doesn't like to put much stock in comparative scores.

"The kids are very well informed on how the other teams in the state and how the other teams in the section are doing," mentioned Grand. "It's a very natural thing for players, fans and coaches to compare scores. But I would just as soon use the old cliche: take them one at a time."

Prowlers Impressive In 10-4 Win Over Riders

Thief River Falls got an A+ Saturday when the Prowlers, expected to be tested by a Grand Forks Red River hockey team that raised eyebrows with a 9-1 win over Roseau earlier in the week, passed that test in flying colors by winning 10-4 before an appreciative Thief River Falls sports arena audience.

Winning coach Wendell Grand could find little fault in his team's play as the Prowlers raised their record to 4-0.

"We were very pleased with everyone's play," began Grand. "We took charge right from the start and we were in complete control. It was a good win to take into the Christmas break."

Forwards and defensemen alike shared Grand's praise. "Our defensemen played just super offensively — they handled the puck extremely well. And we're delighted with the scoring by our forwards."

Even the four goals the Prowlers gave up didn't disturb Grand who watched his team build a 9-2 lead. "Giving up four goals isn't something you want to do, but in a case where you score 10 goals, that's not so bad."

Whatever concern there might have been that Thief River Falls was developing into a one-line hockey team quickly disappeared Saturday when three different lines scored within a 55-second outburst in the first period.

Thief River Falls' high-scoring Wade Hoppe-Jeff Ulrich-Jim Thompson line started it on a rink-length rush capped by Ulrich's eighth goal in three games during a delayed penalty call against the Roughriders at 8:11.

The Tom Bjorkman-Paul Drees-Bob Fitzgerald line made it 2-0 at 8:50 when Bjorkman lifted up a close range rebound.

Then just 16 seconds later the Murray Jorde-Tom Ose-Tony Loeffler line struck as Loeffler skated by the goal mouth to poke in a rebound at 9:06.

Bjorkman, who scored again at 11:36 of the first period for an early 4-0 bulge, finished with a three-goal hat trick while Ulrich and defenseman Dave Geatz scored twice. Thompson and Hoppe also scored, with Hoppe collecting four assists to give his line 11 points for the night.

"The fact that Bjorkman's line and Jorde's line put the puck in the net and looked good doing so was a very positive thing for us; something we've been looking for," explained Grand who played the Jorde line in the first period of the junior varsity game as a confidence-building move.

Red River regrouped from that first outburst to score on Todd Schaefer's power play slap shot from the point that got by Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury after he became tangled in a player pile-up in front of the net with just eight seconds remaining in the first period.

Geatz scored two power play goals and Red River's Dan Evenson capitalized on a bit of careless Thief River Falls play to score a shorthanded goal for a 7-2 game in the second period.

"Scoring in double digits was fun for the guys," smiled Grand. "We've been averaging about seven goals a game, and we're not going to lose very many games if we continue that."

In the Roughriders' lockeroom, Red River coach Rob Howels was trying to figure his team out. "You can't just beat Roseau 9-1 one night then come out and get shellacked like that. . . We're that kind of team, I guess — kind of Dr. Jeckel and Mr. Hyde of North Dakota hockey this year."

Thief River Falls will be at Fargo South for a Friday night game, returning to Section 8 competition Fri., Jan. 4, against Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

HEAVY TRAFFIC UNDER the Northland basket didn't prevent sophomore forward Mike Carriere from going up with a rebound shot against Bottineau during Saturday's championship game in the seventh annual Arctic invitational basketball tournament played at Northland community college. Bottineau players Brad Onarheim (41), Mike Heidt (15), Tim Michelsen (11) and Kevin Amundson (43) weren't able to stop Carriere on the play, with teammate Terry Harris also looking for position. Carriere scored 21 points in a strong championship game performance, but the Lumberjacks beat the Northmen 76-75.

Bottineau Wins Arctic Title On Final Second Shot, 76-75

Brad Onarheim's 17-foot jump shot from the side with one second remaining gave Bottineau a dramatic 76-75 win over Northland Saturday in the championship game of the seventh annual Arctic invitational basketball tournament played at Northland community college.

Facing a Northland zone and a 75-74 deficit, Bottineau coach Mike Carroll called time out with 19 seconds on the clock to plan a last shot play. The Lumberjacks moved the ball around the perimeter, and just when it looked as if they might run themselves out of time, Onarheim, a 6-3½ forward who was named most valuable player in last year's tournament, put up an uncontested shot that touched nothing but net as the final second flashed on the clock.

It wasn't a designed play, however, said Carroll. "We didn't have anything planned. You plan something and they take it away from you and you're screwed up. We just wanted to get a good shot. And that's no real problem because we have a lot of good shooters. That kid (Onarheim) is an 80 per cent shooter from that spot."

The win gave the Lumberjacks their second straight Arctic tournament title. They ended Northland's five-year championship stranglehold with a 97-85 victory in the 1978 title game.

First place trophy looked out of the question for Bottineau at the start when Northland, sparked by the play of MVP award winner Vince Parker bolted to a 20-10 lead with 12:44 remaining in the first half.

But starting with back-to-back long jump shots from the outside by Mike Heidt, Bottineau ran off 10 straight points to catch Northland at 26-26 with 5:27 left. Then Kevin Amundson, an all-tournament selection with a strong 20-point championship game performance, shook himself free under the Bottineau basket with eight seconds left and scored to give the Lumberjacks a 33-32 edge at intermission.

"We were missing a lot of shots at the start," pointed out Carroll. "It was just a matter of time before we started hitting."

Bottineau led through much of the second half, opening up a 60-53 point spread, until Northland put together a seven-point run that produced a 60-60 tie on a Mike Carriere bucket from underneath with 7:09 remaining.

It was wild after that. The final seven minutes featured four lead changes and four ties.

Parker, who followed a 35-point performance in Friday's 78-73 opening round win over Waseca with 29 points Saturday, drove the lane following a Bottineau turnover to tie things for the final time at 72-72 with 1:48 left.

Onarheim canned a 12-foot fall-away jumper with 55 seconds to go as Bottineau went back on top 74-72, but Carriere capped an outstanding performance with a three-point play to make it 75-74 for Northland with 35 seconds on the clock. Carriere, who finished with 21 points, muscled his way to the basket in the middle, made the shot and added the free throw on a foul charged against Onarheim.

An 88-69 tournament-opening winner over Lakewood Friday, Bottineau then used up 34 of the 35 seconds before Onarheim's last shot heroics.

After Carriere's three-point play, Northland coach Chet Engelman said he knew Bottineau would try for the last shot. "We told the kids to stand in a zone and not get anxious. And if they scored we wanted a time-out."

But that final second ticked off the clock before the Northman got their time-out called, although it took officials Dallas Kopp and Roger Gibhart a few moments to decide whether or not the Northmen should get that second back.

They didn't.

Northland finished with a slight shooting edge, hitting 35 of 77 shots for 45 per cent while Bottineau connected on 34 of 78 shots for 42 per cent. But the Northmen sank just five of 12 free throws while the Lumberjacks made eight of 10 from the line.

Lakewood 70

Waseca picked up its second straight Arctic invitational tournament third place trophy by beating Lakewood 98-70 Saturday afternoon with a 61 per cent shooting performance.

Front-liners Brooks Bennett and Mike Brandts, both 6-3 sophomores, combined for 41 points as the Rams kept the Lancers winless here for the second year in a row. Bennett finished with 21 points and Brandts had 20, a figure matched by Lakewood guard Leon Brown.

Leading 15-12 early in the ball game, Waseca broke it open to 23-12 with 12:55 remaining in the first half and Lakeood never recovered. Waseca led 48-35 at halftime.

Waseca hit 43 of 71 field goal attempts for its 61 per cent shooting while Lakewood went 31-for-78 for 40 per cent. At the free throw line Waseca was 12-for-17 and Lakewood was 8-for-13.

Brad Hulings S.D. Winner In Sno Pro

Brad Hulings was a double winner on a Scorpion in the latest Sno Pro professional snowmobile racing competition Sunday at Aberdeen, S.D.

Hulings won the 440 race, followed by Arctic Cat drivers Steve Thorsen and Bob Elsner, and also took the 340X event, followed by Dave Wahl on an Arctic Cat and Thorsen.

Thorsen was a winner in the 340 opener, followed by Jim Dimmerman of Team Arctic and Franz Rosenquist on a Polaris.

After a short mid-season break, the Sno Pro circuit resumes January 5-6, at Peterborough, Ont.

Arctic Cat Tournament Scheduled This Weekend

Seventh annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat Pee-Wee A, Bantam A youth hockey tournament will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the city arenas.

Sixteen teams will participate in the event, with both portions of the tournament featuring two divisions of round-robin scheduling. Division winners will be paired in the Sunday championship games which will be preceded by third place games matching division runner-up finishers.

Bantam A portion of the tournament will be played in the sports arena featuring East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Virginia, Assiniboine Park Rangers, St. Paul Como, International Falls and Grand Rapids.

Pee-Wee A games are scheduled to be played in the old arena, with teams entered from Crookston, Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls, Virginia, Grand Rapids, St. Paul Como and International Falls.

Both championship games will be played Sunday in the sports arena, with the Pee-Wee A title game set for 11 a.m. and the Bantam A championship contest slated for 1 p.m.

East Grand Forks is back to defend its Bantam A title won a year ago with a 9-0 championship game rout of Moorhead.

A new champion is assured in the Pee-Wee A competition where Winnipeg St. James won last year with a 5-4 overtime title game win over Crookston.

An eleventh hour problem — condition of the natural ice sheet in the old arena which has deteriorated because of unseasonably warm weather — could throw a monkey wrench into the tournament schedule.

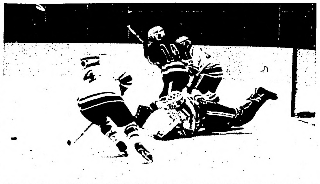
TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

This week's schedule for Thief River Falls youth hockey teams, which will be highlighted by the seventh annual Arctic Cat Pee-Wee A, Bantam A tournament here this weekend, began with mid-week games today (Wednesday) against Warroad opponents.

The Thief River Falls vs. Warroad games in the sports arena featured the Squirt A teams at 11 a.m., Pee-Wee A teams at 12:30 p.m. and Bantam A teams at 2 p.m.

In other weekend action, Thief River Falls Bantam B team will be involved in tournament play at Crookston Saturday and Sunday.

Squirt B team will be at Roseau Saturday for a 1 p.m. game and will be at East Grand Forks Sunday for a two o'clock contest. Squirt A team will play Saturday at Roseau at 2:30 p.m.



AFTER A SAVE by goalie Bill Jury, Thief River Falls defenseman Dave Geatz (4) skated after the puck and cleared it out of the Prowlers' zone during Saturday's high school hockey game against Grand Forks Red River in the sports arena. Gary Hughes (14) of the Roughriders was tied up by defenseman Brian Ranum of the Prowlers. The Prowlers turned in impressive showing by drilling the Roughriders 10-4. Thief River Falls will be at Fargo South Friday.

— Thief River Falls Arena Schedule —

Wed., Dec. 26 — 8:30-10:45 a.m. dance, patch, freestyle; 11 a.m. Squirt A vs. Warroad; 12:30 p.m. Pee-Wee A vs. Warroad; 2 p.m. Bantam A vs. Warroad; 4-6 p.m. Lincoln; 6:15-8 p.m. Bantam B.

Thurs., Dec. 27 — 9-11 a.m. dance, patch, freestyle; 11:15 a.m.-12:30 p.m. family skating; 12:45-1:45 p.m. public skating; 2-3:15 p.m. Pee-Wee A; 3:30-6:30 p.m. Lincoln; 6:45-8 p.m. Bantam A; 8:15-9:30 p.m. Bantam B.

Fri., Dec. 28 — 6-8 a.m. dance, patch, freestyle; 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Bantam A Arctic tournament.

Sat., Dec. 29 — 6-8 a.m. dance, patch, freestyle; 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Bantam A Arctic tournament.

Sun., Dec. 30 — 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Bantam A, Pee-Wee A Arctic tournament; 3:15-6 p.m. dance, patch, freestyle; 6:15 p.m. Men's city league hockey.

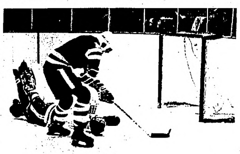
Old Arena
(If ice is available)

Thurs., Dec. 27 — 9 a.m.-12 noon open hockey; 12-1:30 p.m. Squirt A.

Fri., Dec. 28 — 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Pee-Wee A Arctic tournament.

Sat., Dec. 29 — 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Pee-Wee A Arctic tournament.

Sun., Dec. 30 — 1-3 p.m. Tiny Mites open hockey; 3-5 p.m. Squirts, Pee-Wees open hockey; 5-7 p.m. Bantams open hockey; 8 p.m. men's city league hockey.



A WIDE OPEN net awaited Grand Forks Red River wing Greg Thorson on a first period breakaway Saturday, but with Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury sprawled on the ice, Thorson shot the puck wide of the net with his backhand. The Prowlers beat the Redskins 10-4 in the Thief River Falls sports arena to improve their season record to 4-0.

THIEF RIVER FALLS forward Murray Jorde found things a little rough in front of the Grand Forks Red River net Saturday as goalie Shaun Leach and defenseman Dave Bina of the Roughriders tried to move him out of the crease during the second period of the high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Prowlers won the game handily, 10-4.

STANDING BEHIND Thief River Falls defenseman Brian Ranum and Grand Forks Red River forward Doug Wilson, goalie Bill Jury of the Prowlers kept an eye on the puck during Saturday's high school hockey game played here. The Prowlers won easily, 10-4.

MOST VALUEABLE PLAYER award winner in the seventh annual Arctic invitational basketball tournament played at Northland community college Friday and Saturday was Northland sophomore Vince Parker, shown here driving past a Bottineau defender in Saturday's championship game. Parker, a 5-5 guard, scored 35 points in an opening night 78-73 win over Waseca and added 29 points in Saturday afternoon's championship game, won by Bottineau 76-75.

Of Twins' rookies over the years, only Tony Oliva (.323, 1964), Rich Rollins (.294, 1961) and Rod Carew (.292, 1967) have compiled higher averages then John Castino's .285 mark last season.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved son and brother Dennis Neil Peterson, who passed away Jan. 1, 1977.

Three years have passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away.
God took him home, it was his will,
But in our hearts, he liveth still.

Sadly missed by Mom and Dad, Leland, Robert, Keith and families, Duane and Linda. 11102p

Expect Growth In Rural Jobs For 20 Years

Population and job opportunities will continue to grow in rural communities during the next 10-20 years, providing new challenges for rural decision-makers and lessening the economic and social influence of farm people.

Principal analyst for the U.S. congressional budget office, Peter Emerson, gave his view of the future for rural communities at a farm policy seminar in Red Wing December 12.

Emerson based his projections on current trends. For instance, the population of nonmetropolitan areas grew nine per cent between 1970 and 1977, nearly double the 5.4 per cent gain in metropolitan areas, he reported. Between March 1970 and March 1979, the number of nonfarm jobs increased 35 per cent in rural areas compared to 22 per cent in metropolitan areas.

"Many people are moving to the country to pursue a rural life style, to do some farming, to spend more time with their families, and to avoid the higher costs and overcrowding of city life," Emerson said. "The rural availability of some services and conveniences previously found only in cities is also a contributing factor."

He added that current population shifts are likely to persist and spread over the next 10-20 years. "If this prediction proves accurate, then the economic and social influence of farm people in rural communities will fall."

Changes in farming have a smaller impact on rural communities as the nonfarm population increases. Instead, the community responds to housing and public service needs, efforts to attract nonfarm business and land use planning, Emerson explained.

Current trends could be disrupted by rising energy prices. In fact, higher transportation costs are already contributing to the current revival of core cities. Regardless of trends, rural communities will continue to serve farm people.

"But community leaders will also have to deal with very different, difficult problems," Emerson continued. "One of the greatest challenges will be to create additional jobs and income. A second challenge will be to respond effectively to the strains that arise from newcomers entering the community. They often disrupt old political alliances and social heirarches."

Newcomers also press for more and better public services. Under these conditions, community leaders may wish to emphasize planning and public participation to decide what changes, if any, are to be made and who will bear the resulting cost, the analyst concluded.

Seminar, "Agriculture: How Change Affects Its Institutions," was part of a continuing series of policy programs offered by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

CAKE WITH A MAGIC FORMULA

A feast for the eyes and the palate, this Double Strawberry Cake is made easily with kitchen-handy ingredients. A package of strawberry flavor gelatin and a packaged cake mix provide the magic formula. Part of the gelatin is added right to the cake mix, the balance used in the creamy frosting and the fruited glaze.

DOUBLE STRAWBERRY CAKE

1 package (2-layer size) white cake mix or pudding-included cake mix
2 packages (3 oz. each) or 1 package (6 oz.) Jell-O strawberry flavor gelatin

1-1/2 cups boiling water
1 package (10 oz.) frozen quick thaw strawberries, partially thawed
1 container (8 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed

Prepare cake mix as directed on package, adding 3-1/2 tablespoons of the gelatin to the mix before beating; bake in two 9-inch layer pans. Cool cakes in pans 10 minutes; then remove from pans and finish cooling on cake racks.

Dissolve remaining gelatin in boiling water. Measure 2/3 cup; set aside. Chill remaining gelatin until slightly thickened. Add strawberries with syrup to measured gelatin, and stir gently until fruit thaws and separates. Let stand at room temperature to thicken. Blend thickened gelatin into 1 cup of the whipped topping; spread between cake layers. Frost sides of cake with remaining whipped topping, spooning or piping a decorative border around edge of top layer. Spread gelatin-strawberry mixture on top layer, inside the border. Chill until glaze is set, at least 2 hours.

In high altitude areas, for either cake mix, increase egg whites to 3 and water to 1-1/2 cups; add 2/3 cup all-purpose flour; bake at 375° for 30 minutes.

Singing in the New Year...

. . . is what Gramps called it! Every year at five to twelve he and Grandma would strike up a rousing chorus of Auld Lang Syne. Somehow we knew it would be a wonderful year because the family sang it in.

Facing the future as a family is a wonderful idea . . . not just on New Year's Eve, but every day in every season. Joys mean all the more when we share them with those we love. Disappointments are easier to accept when we stand together.

Every member of the family needs a shared spiritual foundation. The trust of each in God fortifies the faith of all the rest.

That is why our family worships together. And why, as we go forward into this exciting New Year, the song in our hearts is really a Hymn.

Water Quality Task Force Action Listed

State task force on water quality management planning has recommended action for controlling water pollution from 10 activities: Urban runoff, roadside erosion, construction, pesticides, agriculture, feedlots, forestry, mining, highway de-icing, and residual wastes. The task force has also set preliminary priorities for dealing with these topics.

On September 21, the group acted on urban runoff and roadside erosion. It recommended that the MPCA monitor several urban watersheds for urban runoff, to determine sources, amounts and concentrations for pollutants and the resulting effects on water quality. The MPCA would then set up a program identifying management practices and the situations in which they should be used.

For controlling water quality problems due to roadside erosion, the task force recommended a voluntary program of educational and financial assistance to road authorities. The program would be managed by the soil and water conservation board. Other agencies, including the Minnesota department of transportation and the soil conservation service, would provide technical assistance, a survey of roadside erosion at five- and 10-year intervals, and a cost-share program.

Construction and pesticides were discussed at the October 19 state task force meeting. The construction topic included general construction and road construction. For both, the task force recommended that the state legislature enact laws requiring local authorities to control erosion and sediment. For general construction, the group recommended that if state or federal funding is not available, local units of government should have the authority to raise funds locally, beyond the levy limits on the state-mandated programs.

Several actions were recommended for pesticides. Existing programs that regulate pesticides should continue; further research for safer pesticides should be provided for; and technical assistance should be provided to pesticide users. Agriculture runoff and erosion should be controlled, on the basis that these are connected with pesticide contamination of water.

The task force also recommended that the joint legislative committee on solid and hazardous waste develop a program for disposal and recycling of pesticide containers.

On November 8, the task force acted on agriculture and feedlots. The recommended program for agriculture is voluntary, with incentives added. The legislature would be asked to increase funding for the state cost-share program, and Congress would be asked to increase funding of the agricultural conservation program and the rural clean water program.

The agricultural program would be administered by the soil and water conservation board, soil and water conservation districts, and the SCS. The SWCDs and the SCS would provide technical assistance, and the MPCA would continue to study the problem. A pilot project in a small watershed will be proposed, and Congress would be asked to provide more funding to the U.S. department of agriculture for agricultural water quality research.

If mandatory statewide controls are later found necessary, they would be implemented by the SWCDs.

The present feedlot program would be continued throughout the state, but selected target areas would have increased administration, enforcement, information and education, cost-sharing and technical assistance. Cost-sharing funds for feedlots from ACP and the SWCB would be restricted to a specific percentage of those programs; funding above these amounts would come from increased federal and state appropriations. Cost-sharing money for new or expanding feedlots would be limited by the SWCEs.

On November 9 the task force discussed forestry. Most water quality related forestry activities would be reviewed by the department of natural resources, which would also provide education and technical assistance to private landowners.

The task force also recommended that an experimental program in southeastern Minnesota should be monitored. This program provides cost-sharing to private woodland owners for forestry practices. If it is found effective, it should be expanded to apply to the rest of the state.

On November 9 the task force began setting priorities for the topics. In order of most serious problem to least serious, the priorities are: Agriculture, feedlots, pesticides, urban runoff, construction, roadside erosion, residual wastes, highway deicing, forestry and mining.

Each regional advisory committee has held a meeting at which the plan was presented, and citizens' opinions and suggestions have been heard. The task force held its final meeting December 7 to make its final recommendations on the topics and priorities. Public comments from the regional meeting were considered in making these final recommendations.

On December 18 the state 208 water quality management plan was presented to the MPCA board at a public meeting in the MPCA Board Room, 1935 West County Road B2, Roseville, Minnesota, 55113. For further information, call 612-296-7245.

Cash receipts by U.S. farming more than doubled from 1970 to 1978. Livestock at $58 billion and crops at $52.2 billion last year, were each higher than the combined cash receipts for any year prior to 1970.

DENMARK — YOU'LL LOVE IT

In a scene from the Danish Tourist Board's new film "Denmark — You'll Love It", its stars Victor Borge and his daughter Frederikke stop in Skagen, the northernmost town in the country.

The Danish Tourist Board's new film, "Denmark — You'll Love It", stars world renowned comedian Victor Borge, the great Dane himself. The 27-minute film, specially produced for the American market and cleared for television, features Borge's daughter, Frederikke, who attended the U.S. premiere recently in New York.

Who better to ask about Denmark than Victor Borge? Though he's lived in the U.S. for more than 35 years, he still returns each year to visit the homeland he loves. In the film, Borge and Frederikke tour the tiny kingdom stopping off to see the sights they feel no visitor should miss in Denmark.

"I love Tivoli. I can't help it. Tell me where else in the world I can experience anything similar. I love strolling down the Strøget (the pedestrian shopping street in Copenhagen) and watching life unfold. Denmark has a cultural tradition from which other countries could learn — just look at our Royal Danish Ballet, one of the foremost dance companies in the world," Borge says.

"When I came to the United States," Borge continues, "I couldn't speak a word of English. It's a bit better now, but I haven't forgotten how to speak Danish. Even if I had, no one would notice it at all along Strøget. That says something about the international atmosphere in Copenhagen."

Of course, Denmark is more than just Copenhagen, Borge and Frederikke are quick to add. Father and daughter spend some time in the film touring Funen, stopping in Odense to visit the birthplace of another famous Dane, Hans Christian Andersen.

They visit towns along the North Sea Coast, villages in the lush Danish countryside and Danish castles, "a gift to tourists" according to Borge. Literature buffs will delight at the duo's stop at Hamlet's house, Kronborg Castle in Elsinore.

Borge and Frederikke both agree that the first and foremost reason to visit Denmark is "to experience everything Danish — the ambiance and joy of the people, the coziness of the towns, the friendliness of the cities and the fairytale feeling all over the country."

But of all things Danish, Borge says, "By far the best thing to experience in Denmark is a broad Danish smile."

Church, school and community groups who would like more information about the film, "Denmark — You'll Love It" should contact the Danish Tourist Board at 75 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10019, phone (212) 582-2802. The film is distributed in the U.S. through Audience Planners, One Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10020, phone (212) 489-7788.

Ingenuity IN HOME DECOR

The Art of Illusion

Losing the race for space in your home? Make room for the art of illusion. The trick is fooling the eye.

Proper balance makes an area appear more spacious. For instance, in the small entrance foyer below, the traditional block front chest from American Drew's "Heirloom Collectables" creates an aura of elegance without overpowering the narrow area. The oval mirror adds balance and appears to expand the space by reflecting the adjoining living room.

Simple elegance and small-scale furniture can go a long way toward making the most of a small hall.

Color is a tool for enlarging small spaces, too. A light color or a room design in one basic color scheme makes a room appear larger.

A glass table will not appear to occupy nearly as much space as, say, a wood one. Light passes through the glass and colors are reflected in it, further enhancing esthetic appeal.

Perhaps it's an illusion, but you can conquer space.

Chance Of Winter Shut-Offs Reduced

Chance of winter shut-offs was reduced recently as the Minnesota public service commission passed a rule restricting disconnection of residential customers of regulated gas and electric utilities.

Under the rule, customers cannot have utility service affecting their primary heat source disconnected from October 15 to April 15 if they are in a scheduled payment agreement with a utility or if they claim an inability to pay for the utility service.

To claim an inability to pay, a residential customer will have to state his or her inability in writing to the utility. The customer would also have to be willing to enter into a payment schedule, and would have to be paid up or be reasonably on time with a payment schedule before October 15.

If a utility accepts the customer's statement of inability to pay, no further actions will be necessary. If the utility disputes the statement, the public service commission will determine the customer's ability to pay within 30 days.

Commission will also resolve disputes about payment schedules under the rule. Utilities cannot disconnect while the commission is hearing a complaint.

"This new rule is a step forward in protecting Minnesotans whose resources have been outdistanced by rising energy prices," commented Commissioner Richard Parish. "It represents the input we received from many sources during public hearings."

Rule must now be reviewed by the Office of Hearing examiners and by the Attorney General. Pending approval of the rule, the commission has asked utilities to voluntarily refrain from disconnection. To date, 42 have agreed.

Too Smart Politically?

Following editorial is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

For exquisitely bad timing, give the genuine plastic wreath to Edward Kennedy. His description of the reign of the deposed shah of Iran as "one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind" and statement that the interests of the United States are "with the Iranian people and not the shah" are exactly what Khomeini would have ordered.

If the senator's outburtst is a sample of the diplomatic savvy he would bring to the White House, Don Rickles should be his secretary of state.

No one — least of all the present Administration — has ever contended the shah was a paragon of benevolence, a white knight shedding bright beams of gentle enlightenment on his adoring subjects. Though few historians would agree he was one of the most violent rulers "in the history of mankind" (there are far too many more deserving contenders for that title) it has never been denied he was tough on opposition.

But the shah's record is not at issue in the stalemated confrontation between the United States and the country now holding Americans hostage in their own embassy in Tehran. Nor is it at issue that the shah was a "friend of the United States" and provided a stable environment in a troubled area of the world where great power interests clashed. The issue is international terrorism and blackmail. And Kennedy obviously knows it, as evidenced by the fact he did not criticize the administration's handling of the crisis.

If he knows it, then why is he shooting his mouth off about the shah, about America's interests lying "with the Iranian people" and about America's long-range Iranian policy (backing the shah in the first place)? Is it because Ted is, as some of his critics have begun to charge, not too smart — intellectually — or is it because he is too smart — politically — for his own good? One suspects the latter.

Americans —all of us — are bitterly frustrated over the hostage crisis. The United States seems to be in the position of having no alternatives, nowhere to turn, no room for maneuver. Of this the Iranians are only too acutely aware, and they are losing no opportunities to confuse and divide us. With the help, one might add, of a small but increasingly vocal number of Americans who are helping Khomeini switch the focus from the blackmail to the shah's record as ruler. Kennedy apparently sees political hay to be made in joining this group.

He cannot criticize the way President Carter is handling the crisis at hand, but he can create dissatisfaction by building on the feelings that we ought not to be in this fix in the first place. And if we ought not to be in this fix, somebody has to be to blame for it. Who else, then, but that most convenient of targets, the sitting President: (Kennedy throws in the oil companies, of course, but everyone knows you can't vote an oil company out of office.)

Is Khomeini going to win this struggle, after all? Is he going to break the will of the American people, so that they surrender principle and give up the shah? One dares not think so, but for how long can the American will stand blows like that delivered by Kennedy? Indefinitely, we trust.

Thinking Positive

If there ever was a positive thinker, consider the Wisconsin school administrator who distributed the following letter to the students in his school:

"I am writing this at the end of a day I would rather forget. The furnace won't work, people aren't showing up to do their jobs, my telephone hasn't stopped ringing all day with people complaining about student actions on school grounds, off school, up town, how they drive, their fighting, drinking, smoking and other general odious behavior.

"Therefore, I looked back on the day and found the following:

(1) 99.9 per cent of you were not suspended or expelled.

(2) 97.3 per cent of you were not tardy for class.

(3) 98.35 per cent of you did not misbehave in any fashion.

(4) 98.1 per cent bahaved fine on the bus.

(5) 93.4 per cent behaved fine on the playground.

(6) 98.7 per cent did not hit or injure one another.

(7) 99.4 per cent of you were respectful of the staff.

(8) 98.7 per cent did not use alcohol or drugs.

(9) None of you were involved in vandalism or stealing.

"Thus, I find the following:

(1) Given a little reflection, the day is not as bleak as it first appeared.

(2) You are a pretty great group of people and your record shows it.

(3) I'm proud to be associated with this student body."

Kissing May Be Dangerous

Before you hang that mistletoe this holiday season, consider what you may be doing to the unsuspecting (or the suspecting) persons who pass beneath it. Could it be that you are placing them in undue jeopardy?

According to an American heart specialist, the average kiss cuts three minutes off your existence. Tally up 480 kisses and you lose a whole day off your lifespan. . . even it you think it's worth it! The specialist warns that a kiss should be handled with care and respect — like a loaded firearm.

Such information is contained in a book published in France, according to an article in the Land O'Lakes Mirror. The article points out the following:

The book is written by a husband and wife team and deals with the whole question of romance for existing and would-be lovers. One of the chapters sums up opinions on kissing from all over the world.

They found, for example, that research workers at one American university were repulsed by kissing. Even when the mouth appears healthy and appetizing, it is an excellent vehicle for passing on germs, warns one expert.

It is a dangerous practice and civilized societies should ban it completely. But even these researchers realize there is little chance of this advice being taken, so they added the following impractical suggestions:

Kiss as little as possible and only when you have to. (These researchers must have heard that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and what better prevention is there than to abstain from this repulsive human behavior?)

Only kiss people who carry a certificate showing a clean bill of health. (You can see how practical this suggestion is. After all it's just a matter of saying "may I see your bill of health certificate?" However, the researchers did not say how often these certificates would have to be renewed or if they came with a guarantee.)

The third suggestion given by these researchers was to "disinfect the lips and mouth before and after kissing with a powerful antiseptic." (I know this sentence makes it sound as though you are to kiss a powerful antiseptic, but far be it from me to explain this expert advice.)

Meanwhile, after a lifetime of research, an American psychologist has split kissing into three categories. Low voltage, indicating family affection; medium voltage or a form of thanks; and high voltage (and who would disagree with him) shows mutual passion.

Of course the higher the kissing voltage, the greater risk to your health.

In Munich a professor who has long studied kissing (or is it studied long kissing) is quoted as saying, "A kiss releases a real tempest in the human body."

The pulse rate can leap from 72 to 110 beats per minute. Blood whips through the body twice as fast. Temperature and blood pressure rise. The rate of sugar increases and the spleen contracts, sending millions of red globules into the blood.

At the same time the stomach begins to have spasms, gastric juices slow down and there is a rash of indigestion if a kiss is held too long.

The list of serious consequences for people who engage in kissing goes on. There are probably as many examples or ideas on the subject as there are experts, but by now you should hve the general idea without going into any more specifics.

In short, these experts are telling us that kissing is hazardous to health. In fact, one may take that a step further and say that kissing is deadly.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"I'm giving my wife a 300-piece set of dishes for Christmas," the man confided in a friend. "It was supposed to be 24 pieces, but I tripped coming out of the store."

"Joe is in the hospital?" asked Jim in surprise. "Why, just the other night I saw him down at the disco with a gorgeous blonde." "I know," said Jack. "So did his wife."

Eve: "Do you really love me?"
Adam: "Who else?"

GIVE THE SPECIAL GIFT OF LIFE - GIVE BLOOD

Now is the time to think about giving that priceless gift of life everyone can afford—a volunteer donation of blood to your local blood bank.

President Carter has joined with the American Association of Blood Banks in proclaiming January 1980 as National Volunteer Blood Donor Month. The President is urging "every American who possibly can" to donate a pint of blood in January. Despite the sophistication of the United States blood banking system, critical shortages are evident throughout the country each day, and are most common during the winter months.

Some 30,000 units of blood are transfused in the United States daily—over 10,000,000 units per year. The country's blood need is continually increasing, and yet only 5% of the Americans who can give blood, do give blood.

America depends on volunteer donors, states President Carter, praising "the willingness of our citizens to fulfill our traditional compassion for others."

Remember, the next person to need blood could be you, or someone in your family. So this year, help ensure that an adequate supply of blood will be there when it is desperately needed. Join with President Carter and the American Association of Blood Banks this month and "Give the gift that keeps on living—Give blood."

Give the gift that keeps on living.
Give blood.

Use Of High Moisture Corn On Increase

A lot of interest has been noted in the past month as livestock producers look at the use of high moisture corn as a low cost, high energy feed source. Area corn producers have had difficulty this year getting the corn crop off below 30 per cent moisture and as a result have turned to selling the corn straight off the field in a wet condition.

According to Howard Person, Pennington county associate extension agent, most of the corn has ranged from 30 to 40 per cent moisture and has been selling in the range of $45 to $55 per ton. This puts the cost at roughly 3 cents per pound — slightly cheaper than otas. Combine this with the fact that corn contains about 240 pounds more total digestable nutrients per ton than oats and you begin to see its true value, says Person.

Feeding high moisture corn is not the problem many people think it is. For cattle under 600 pounds the corn could be fed whole. For larger cattle and other livestock, however, rolling the corn would be advised. Course grinding would also work well if the high moisture doesn't cause plugging problems in the grinder.

One point to consider, says Person, when feeding high amounts of corn in the ration, is that replacement livestock should be separated and fed a lower energy ration since too much corn would cause them to gain weight too quickly to develop the proper size and frame for breeding animals. Rations should be developed for each type and size of livestock to insure all nutrient needs are being met.

Last but not least, Person says, be sure you inspect the corn before you buy it. If it's still in the field, chances are it's well frozen and it won't starting heating until temperatures get above freezing in the spring. However, if it's been in a bin since earlier this fall, watch closely for mold and heat damage. Moldy or heat damaged corn has far less nutrient value than good corn and should be avoided.

Questions concerning the condition or use of high moisture corn, should be directed to your county extension office.

35 Hour Work Week May Not Be New Idea

Organized labor has dusted off another of its hand-me-down solutions for the nation's unemployment — the 35-hour workweek, reports the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Unfortunately, neither the labor unions nor a handful of congressmen who support the idea apparently bothered to consult American workers, who pretty much establish their own working patterns.

If they had done so, they would have found Americans are already working shorter workweeks on the average, by choice. Many simply prefer part-time jobs.

U.S. chamber of commerce, citing official government data, reports that while the number of full-time workers increased by 29.6 per cent from 1963 to 1977, the number of part-time workers grew by 91 per cent.

This is explained, in part, by working mothers. They prefer part-time work. On the average, according to the department of labor, they work 1.4 fewer hours each week for every child under 15 at home.

Still other workers prefer longer workweeks. That is why so many moonlight, or take a second or third job, and why others like working overtime at premium pay, especially if they are trying to buy their first house.

Under the House bill (H.R. 1784) introduced by Rep. John Conyers, Jr., (D-Mich.), the workweek would be cut to 35 hours and double pay would replace time and a half as premium pay for overtime.

"The workweek has been shortening naturally in the fastest expanding part of our economy as a reflection of the changing demography of our country," said Dr. Richard S. Landry, deputy chief economist for the chamber.

Spreading the work (jobs) by cutting workweeks is not as simple as its supporters believe. If the week is reduced, inflation must be taken into account. Workers will expect the same pay for roughly 12.5 per cent less work, in the case of those now working 40 hours a week.

Moreover, unemployed workers would be exceedingly difficult to match up with the jobs that, in theory at least, would open up. Fully half the unemployed today are inexperienced or itinerant members of the work force.

"It is highly unlikely," said Dr. Landry, "that they could step into job openings that would be mainly in manufacturing where their skills would not match the job requirements. Moreover, a significant number are on temporary layoff waiting to be recalled to their present jobs."

If you believe the 40-hour, adopted by Congress in 1938, got us out of the 1930's recession, perhaps, then you may believe the 35-hour week would help solve today's unemployment. But don't bet on it. The fact is that in 1938 the average workweek for production workers, at 35.6 hours, was well below 40 hours, and the 40-hour-per-week limitation was completely superfluous.

Site Chosen For 'U'M HHH Institute

Hubert H. Humphrey Institute building will sit on the easternmost edge of the University of Minnesota Minneapolis campus, and the state legislature will be asked for $11 million to build it.

University board of regents voted unanimously December 14 to build a home for the Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of public affairs on the corner of Oak street and Washington avenue after weighing the pros and cons of situating the institute building away from the center of campus.

St. Paul regent Michael Unger argued against the Oak and Washington site, calling placement of the building there "a distinct disadvantage to students and faculty. I can't imagine a more remote site," Unger said.

Unger sponsored a resolution to build the institute building at the so-called "bridgehead site" at the east end of the Washington avenue bridge, atop a partially completed building.

Regents had earlier approved a plan to build the institute at the bridge site, but reopened talks when it was determined that a larger building than had originally been planned was needed.

Current plan calls for a building with 92,000 square feet of floor space, and the cost of a building that size at the bridge site would be about $13.5 million. A building on the Oak and Washington site would cost only $11 million.

Marshall regent Charles McGuiggan supported Unger's motion. "The only persuasive argument against the bridgehead site is the cost, and I'm not convinced money should be the most important consideration," he said.

Both Unger and McGuiggan argued that locating the building nearly off campus would make it inaccessible to students and faculty. University President C. Peter Magrath also told the regents that the faculty supported the bridge site for the same reason.

But most of the regents favored the Oak and Washington site because it will be easy for visitors to reach and because it is large enough to hold a hotel and conference center, should they become part of the final plans. The hotel and conference center would be built with private money.

"Choosing the Oak and Washington site is not making a choice for visibility over academic interests," said Regent David Lebedoff, Minneapolis. "Having to walk a few more blocks is a convenience problem, not an academic problem."

Minneapolis regent Robert Latz said that the educational function of the institute is "of utmost importance, but we shouldn't underestimate the memorial aspect of the building."

"The memorial and educational functions of the institute can't be separated," Latz said. "The Oak and Washington site is the only site that puts these two things together."

After Unger's motion to build on the bridge site was defeated, the regents unanimously approved the Oak and Washington site and the request for $11 million from the legislature.

The Humphrey Institute is currently housed in a west bank building and "is a going concern," according to acting institute director John Borchert. Currently, the institute has about 125 students and operates at a $1 million level annually, Borchert said.

About $13.5 million has been raised so far for the institute, but that amount falls short of what university administrators feel is necessary to build both a structure and a sound academic program.

"Our objective must be to create a world class institute worthy of the name attached to it," Magrath told the board members. Magrath said that money should be sought from the legislature for the building so that the money raised so far could be used for academic programs.

"If we want to put the people and the program first, we have to use the money we have already as an endowment," Magrath said.

Magrath supported the Oak and Washington site, saying it would be cheaper than the bridge site and would be more accessible to the general public, enhancing relations with the community.

Regents also approved a plan to change the way tuition is charged, after several months of discussion. The plan will not change the amount of tuition income collected, but will change the amount of tuition individual students pay.

Under the new plan, students registered for up to 15 credits or more than 18 credits will pay a specific rate per credit. Those taking 15, 16, 17 or 18 credits will pay the same as those taking 14 credits. Currently, students pay by the credit only up to 13 credits.

The new plan also sets a standard rate of tuition for all freshmen and sophomores. Juniors and seniors will pay varying amounts of tuition depending on the college in which they are enrolled.

The plan has been the object of criticism from some student groups concerned with the effect it would have on students at Morris, Crookston and Waseca. Amendments to the plan made since last month's regents' meeting, however, have quieted most student opposition.

The amended plan will allow students at Morris to pay at the 14-credit rate up through 20 credits, and will give students at Crookston and Waseca a tuition rate five per cent below the regular freshmen and sophomore rate for the first two years of the plan's operation.

Students at Morris take larger course loads than students at other campuses since most of their courses are five-credit rather than four-credit classes. Students at Crookston and Waseca have been paying tuition at a rate below the rest of the University, largely because the campuses are relatively new.

New plan will go into effect fall quarter 1981.

SUREST POLICY IS . . . DON'T DRIVE AFTER DRINKING!

DETERMINE YOUR PROBABLE LIMITS from this chart, which relates body weight to tolerance of alcohol.

When it comes to drinking and driving, how much is too much?

If the percent of alcohol in the blood of a driver is above the .10 level, the law usually presumes the individual's driving ability to be impaired. But that, in many cases, is the legal limit—not necessarily the safe limit for you.

Because no two people are alike, the limits vary widely among individuals. The safest policy, says the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States (DISCUS) is don't drive after you drink. But, if you do drink and then drive, you should know and stay safely within your own personal limits.

Body weight is one criterion, as the chart printed above indicates. If your weight is between two of the weights shown on the chart, it's safer to use the lower weight.

Of course, no chart can tell you really how good a driver you will be after consuming any given amount of alcohol. Mood, fatigue, when you last ate—all these affect your driving capabilities.

DISCUS, which has supported many organizations specializing in reduction of alcohol abuse, has long encouraged individuals to use beverage alcohol—beer, wine or liquor—responsibly.

It cautions drivers: the legal limit is not necessarily your own safe limit. Know your limit, and stay within it.

Affirmative Action Dates Back To 1941

Thousands of employers throughout the country have signed contracts agreeing to equal employment opportunity (EEO) and affirmative action. Federal EEO requirements did not begin in the mid-1960's, but actually date back to 1941.

A new booklet, published by the department of labor, explains why businesses which do federal contract or subcontract work have special obligations to provide equal employment and affirmative action in all their employment practices.

The requirements cover minorities, women, persons of various religious and ethnic groups, handicapped workers, Vietnam-era veterans and disabled veterans of all wars.

Enforcement is carried out by the department's employment standards administration, office of federal contract compliance programs (OFCCP).

The new 16-page booklet, "OFCCP: Making EEO and Affirmative Action Work," describes in general terms what contract compliance is all about, the differences between EEO and affirmative action, how the requirements are enforced, how complaints may be filed, and how employers can comply with their contractual obligations.

In addition, the booklet describes how the federal government's EEO reorganization last year brought about a revitalized and more effective contract compliance program.

With more offices around the country, a new program structure, and improved policies and procedures, the new OFCCP is making EEO and affirmative action work for millions of Americans.

According to OFCCP director Weldon J. Rougeau, "The publication is both an introduction to EEO and affirmative action, and a quick refresher course on the basic philosophies of the contract compliance program."

Copies of "OFCCP: Making EEO and Affirmative Action Work" are available free of charge from the Employment Standards Administration, Office of Information and Consumer Affairs, Room C-4331, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Medical Ass'n. Gives Frostbite Aid Measures

Wind plays an important role in frostbite, advises the Minnesota medical association. Protection is the best prevention. Dress in warm clothing, good shoes, warm socks, and covering for the head and face appropriate to the occasion. Avoid overexertion and excessive perspiration. Avoid contact of bare flesh with cold metal. Keep heavy clothing and boots in the car, prepared for a possible breakdown that could require exposure to subfreezing temperatures with a stalled vehicle. Adopt the buddy system when participating in outdoor winter sports. Watch your partner for signs of frostbite.

A "Pins and needles" prickly feeling, then numbness are the usual symptoms of frostbite. The affected area will usually turn white or gray and later red.

Frostbite can be very painful for a long period. It can result in amputations and can leave the victim hypersensitive to cold for the rest of his life. First degree frostbite, like sunburn, is an injury to surface skin. It is likely to attack ears, toes, fingers, cheeks or nose. Second degree frostbite produces blisters as in second degree burns. In third degree frostbite the damage is deep and much of the frozen part may be lost.

The following frostbite first aid measures are suggested by the Minnesota medical association:

+ Cover the frostbitten part with a warm hand or woolen material.

+ Have the victim hold his hand in his armpit, next to his body, or between his thighs if the fingers or hand are frostbitten.

+ Bring the victim inside as soon as possible.

+ Place the frozen part in tepid — not hot — water (105 to 107 degrees Fahrenheit or 40.6 degrees Centigrade). If warm water is not available or impractical to use, gently wrap the frozen area or part in warm towels or blankets.

+ Allow the blood circulation in the affected part to reestablish itself naturally.

+ Encourage the victim to exercise the fingers and toes if they are involved.

+ Give the victim a warm, non-alcoholic drink.

DO NOT rub the frozen area with snow or ice. Frozen tissue is very fragile and easily damaged.

DO NOT expose the frozen part to hot water, hot water bottles, the direct heat or a hot stove or radiator, or a heat lamp.

+ Consult a doctor for aftercare. If the part appears to be deeply frozen, call the doctor immediately.

Cogeneration Proposed As Energy Aid

An old idea — one that has been working in Minnesota since the turn of the century — may be dressed up and put to work again as one solution to the energy crisis.

The old idea received a boost when Senator Dave Durenberger introduced an amendment to the windfall profits tax. The senator's proposal would permit cities to issue tax-exempt bonds to help non-municipal owned utilities and industries build cogeneration facilities. Cogeneration — the simultaneous production and use of heat and energy — can provide steam or hot water for heating or industrial uses at the same time electricity is being produced.

"District heating systems that use the steam or hot water that is produced in the generation of electricity are already at work in 14 Minnesota communities and the University of Minnesota campuses in the Twin Cities and Duluth," said Durenberger. "But, the United States lags far behind other countries. West Germany, for example, derives 29 per cent of its total energy from cogeneration. Seventy per cent of the demand for heat in Soviet Union cities is provided by district heating systems. In the United States, district heating systems serve no more than one per cent of the people."

Durenberger said that district heating systems have been abandoned in 15 Minnesota communities since the mid-60s (Alexandria, Benson, Buhl, Jackson, Keewatin, Litchfield, Luverne, Madison, Marshall, Mountain Iron, New Prague, Redwood Falls, Wadena, Windom and Winthrop).

"A major problem is that most of the old systems used the cogenerated steam instead of the more efficient hot water. There's been little incentive to build new hot water district heating systems during the era of cheap energy. We've been wasting up to 60 per cent of the fossil fuel it takes to produce electricity," said the senator.

Durenberger said that in addition to his amendment another provision that he helped work into the windfall profits tax as a member of the Senate finance committee will encourage cogeneration. That measure will give private utilities and industries a tax credit of up to 10 per cent of the cost of cogeneration facilities.

"Cogeneration is already serving the heating needs of 7,000 industrial, commercial and residential customers in Minnesota. These measures can help us increase that number dramatically and use our energy more wisely," said the senator.

Durenberger said cogeneration would be a great asset to the taconite and paper industries in Minnesota. "For example, the eight taconite companies in Minnesota (excluding Reserve which generates its own electricity) use one per cent of all the natural gas used in this country to dry taconite pellets and $130 million worth of electricity every year. Cogenerated steam or hot water could accomplish the same task at a huge savings — both in terms of dollars and energy."

The 14 operational district heating systems in Minnesota are in Austin, Blue Earth, Detroit Lakes, Duluth, Fairmont, Hibbing, New Ulm, Owatonna, Rochester, Sleepy Eye, Springfield, Virginia, Willmar and Worthington. Worthington is scheduled to be closed within two years.

Underpayments Restored To U.S. Workers

Secretary of labor Ray Marshall announced that a new record was set during the past fiscal year when employers restored $98.7 million to 551,603 employees who had been underpaid in violation of minimum wage, overtime, equal pay or age discrimination provisions of federal labor standards laws.

The amount recovered for workers is 26 per cent more than the $78.1 million restored to 538,197 workers the previous year.

"The enforcement figures this year speak for themselves," Marshall said. "They stem partly from the increased staff the Congress has given us to enforce this important law and partly from the administrative improvements that the department has brought about in this program."

The amount restored to workers during the fiscal year was 60.7 per cent of the amount found due during the same period, making the highest pay restoration level recorded by the department. The restoration percentages were 53.5 per cent of the amount disclosed in fiscal 1975, 56.4 per cent in 1977.

The secretary's year-end report also disclosed another record enforcement achievement by the wage and hour division. Its compliance officers during the year found a total of $162.5 million in wage underpayments owed to 699,840 employees. This also was 26 per cent more than in the previous year.

Violations of the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the fair labor standard act accounted for the bulk of underpayments disclosed — a record $124 million and an increase of 35 per cent over fiscal year 1978.

Another high was the $11.3 million total of back wages found due workers, and the $7.7 million actually restored, under the Davis-Bacon and related acts, the service contract act, the contract work hours and safety standards act, and the Walsh-Healey public contracts act — all laws that set wage and hour standards that must be met for workers employed by government contractors.

A corresponding increase also was recorded in the number of workers who were underpaid under these laws — approximately 30,000.

Equal pay act and age discrimination in employment act violations accounted for another $10.3 million and $17 million respectively, of the total wage underpayments or damages found owed to workers. Administration and enforcement of these two laws was transferred July 1, 1979 to the equal employment opportunity commission.

Working out of area offices and field stations in all parts of the country, the more than 1,000 wage and hour compliance officers spent 1,388,004 hours on 84,467 compliance actions during the 1979 fiscal year. The number of hours spent on compliance actions was up 20 per cent, and the number of compliance actions undertaken was up 19 per cent over fiscal 1978.

The major reason for the differences between the amounts found due employees and those actually paid is the employer's failure to pay back wages in cases judged unsuitable for litigation by the labor department. In such cases any employee has the right to institute a private suit for the recovery of such back wages. Amounts so recovered are not reflected in the department's statistics.

Another reason for the differences is the statute of limitations which limits recovery of back wages to a two-year period prior to the department's filing a complaint against an employer.

The fair labor standards act and associated laws are administered and enforced by the wage and hour division, a part of the department's employment standards administration.

The American Heart Association is fighting to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke — this nation's number one killer.

Treatment Of Birthmarks Discussed

A baby is born with a strawberry birthmark. What can be done about it? Strawberry birthmark is another name for what physicians call hemangioma. This is a group of blood vessels which occur in the surface of the skin and form a little growth, explains the Minnesota medical association.

Generally, the appearance of a strawberry birthmark is that of an elevated soft lesion or abnormal change in the structure of the skin. Size may vary. Some strawberry birthmarks may be very large while others are the size of a dime or smaller. They are composed of superficial blood vessels. The color is red because the blood which is close to the surface of the skin shows through the skin. These lesions may occur almost anywhere on the body. However, they are most commonly seen on the arms and legs and the facial area. Occasionally they will appear on the trunk of the body.

On rare occasions a hemagioma may appear on the internal organs of the body and special diagnostic procedures may be necessary to locate these abnormal changes in the surface of the affected internal organs.

Normally there are no symptoms beyond appearance and potential cosmetic problem to hemangioma. A strawberry birthmark appears on the surface of the skin. These are seen in children soon after birth. Sometimes they may be present at birth but as the child approaches the second or third week of life they may begin to grow larger. Sometimes this growth may continue for three to six months. Usually, the strawberry birthmark will stablize in size or begin to regress at the end of that period.

Ordinarily, specific treatment for these lesions is not necessary because the affected blood vessels tend to return to normal size spontaneously after enlargement as the child grows older. This may occur at anytime during two four years. Strawberry birthmark may flatten and disappear leaving only a small scarlike mark.

Spontaneous disappearance of strawberry birthmarks occurs in an estimated 40 per cent of the cases, so physicians generally hesitate to interfere with nature in this process.

Strawberry birthmarks or hemangiomas do not become malignant. There is a type of hemangioma that occurs later in life which may become malignant, however, but this is seldom a cause for concern for those hemaglomas which occur in childhood.

Port-wine stain birthmarks are seen most commonly on the face. This type of birthmark is a flat reddish discoloration almost purplish in color. A port-wine stain birthmark does not disappear spontaneously. It is usually present during the entire lifetime of the individual who has it. Research is still underway for a satisfactory method to remove them. Usually the port-wine stain is too large for surgical removal. They do not respond to x-ray or radium treatments.

There have been attempts to tatoo a flesh colored pigment in the affected by a port-wine stain birthmark area. However, the results of the time consuming tedious technique have been less than satisfactory. Tatooed areas do not tan like the rest of the skin and the result may be an undesirable contrast in color.

The use of one of the especially designed masking creams has been found to be the most successful form of management for obscuring a port-wine stain birthmark.

FIRE SAFETY TIPS FROM SNUFFY*

A SAFE AND SPIRITED HOLIDAY

During this year's holiday excitement, your children can be a big help in keeping your home safe from fire.

"Make fire safety a part of your holiday plans," advises Snuffy*, the Burger King* Talking Fire Engine. "Ask your kids to keep a look out for 'hot spots' (fire hazards)." Watch for burning cigarettes left unattended by guests, or wrapping paper and flammable decorations placed too close to an open fire, candles or exposed light bulbs.

Trimming the tree can provide fun-filled hours for the family, but make sure that all decorations are fireproof and that artificial trees are fire retardant. Evergreens should be freshly cut—shedding needles are a sure sign of dryness.

Place your tree in a non-tip stand in an area away from drafty exists and sources of heat. Natural trees should be kept in water and discarded after a maximum of two weeks. Your kids can check the water level daily and replenish it when necessary.

Throw your tree out. Don't try to burn it in your fireplace. Trees are unseasoned green wood, difficult to burn, and produce a great deal of smoke. Also, don't build roaring fires with gift wrappings. This could ignite the soot in the chimney and cause an explosion.

Holiday lights, inside and outdoors, are a great way to brighten up the holidays. Have your children help check last year's lights for worn or frayed wires and loose or cracked sockets. When purchasing new sets, look for the Underwriters' Laboratories label to ensure that the lights have been checked for fire hazards.

Make sure the lights you plan to use outside are specifically labeled for outdoor use. Since outdoor lights are not designed for prolonged exposure, remove them as soon as the holiday season is over.

Don't use electric lights on metal trees. Sharp metal edges could cut the cord insulation. Use colored spot lights to illuminate the tree instead. Floodlights get quite hot, however, so keep them away from small children and fabrics.

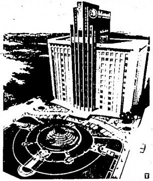
Don't overload extension cords or light strings, and never run the wires under rugs where they can become worn or frayed without your knowledge. Teach your kids to unplug the lights from the wall outlet (by grasping the plug, not by pulling on the cord) before you leave the house or go to bed.

Be careful cooking that big dinner too. Kids like to help, but keep them away from the stove. Close oven doors, turn pot handles in and wear tight fitting sleeves when working near lit burners.

Don't buy highly combustible toys or those that require flammable liquids. Look for the UL label on electric toys, and make sure that toys which might generate sparks are kept well away from the tree.

Don't let your family fall victim to a holiday fire. Following these suggestions from Snuffy can tip the scales in favor of holiday fun.

INGENIOUS IDEAS DEPT.



Something new that's not on the Omaha skyline: an underground office building.

One company has literally gone underground to fight the rising costs and diminishing supply of fuel.

Nearing completion in Omaha, Nebr., is one of the nation's most unique office buildings. But the only thing you'll see from ground level is a massive glass dome. The rest is underground.

It's the new addition to the headquarters of Mutual of Omaha, a company not only aware of the energy crunch but also determined to do something about it.

The three-level underground building, constructed at a cost of $5 million less than a similar above-ground addition, will be completed early next year. By building underground, Mutual will save about 75 percent in heating and cooling costs compared to an equal-sized, above-ground building.

Mutual of Omaha, a lender in the energy conservation field, feels its unique, new, below-ground structure is further proof that private enterprise can and is doing something to save precious fuel. But the underground building isn't its first effort in this direction.

Over the past six winters, the company has realized approximately a 50 percent savings in fuel costs in its home office building by making adjustments in its heating system.

Will working underground create an unnatural environment for employees? Mutual of Omaha doesn't think so. The dome eliminates underground conditions on the first level. Even in its above-gaound buildings, some offices are devoid of outside light. This has never posed a problem to employees.

All workers will be benefiting from the facilities under the dome during the day. A garden court area, lending library and cafeteria on the first level take care of that.

At night the dome can be lighted for special effects.

Savings Bonds Perfect Excuse For Saving

"Save? Who saves money at Christmastime?"

When you're looking for an excuse not to save, it's difficult to tuck money away for bad times or peace of mind. "If only I made more money," you say — as if big salaries made savers out of spenders.

But suppose there was some way to turn things around, a perfect excuse for systematic saving. What if you had a goal worth achieving?

A future Christmas trip might be your excuse to save. If so, you should decide how much money you'd need. And you wouldn't want to wait until all your bills were paid and your living costs were covered.

You'd want to take your saving right off the top and buy some kind of bond, or several bonds. Then right away, this money you paid yourself could begin to make more money.

Suppose you could hold these bonds for five years and get 6½ per cent annual interest and they were the safest things you could put money into.

What if the interest wasn't taxable until you cashed the bond? And even then, you could plan your investment so the tax bite would be reduced. Wouldn't that be perfect?

So there's really no excuse not to save. United States savings bonds are the perfect reason and Christmas can be the perfect season.

Cats Require Care Similar To Other Pets

by Robert L. Stear, DUM

According to popular opinion, cats are extremely self-reliant animals. They bathe themselves, often catch their own food and usually do land on their feet when dropped. Unfortunately, this independent image leads some people to wrongly assume that cats can also thrive when casually abandoned in urban or rural areas. As a result, many areas of the country have sizeable, but unnoticed, stray cat populations.

Realities for life for stray cats are harsh. Most are never properly fed or adequately housed. They live in empty lots, abandoned buildings and under cars. They're not vaccinated and have little resistance to disease.

Stray cats produce large numbers of unwanted kittens, since they are rarely, if ever, neutered. It's possible for the female to come into heat a short time after giving birth to a litter, and be ready to deliver the second batch of kittens three months later. Many of these kittens die of starvation or contagious disease. The adult females become thin and unkempt and have difficulty surviving through long, harsh winters.

Stray cats are a reservoir for feline infections. Distemper, rhinotracheitis and internal parasites are some of the problems transferred in the dingy quarters where abandoned cats huddle for the night. A cat weakened by one or more viral diseases often develops secondary bacterial infections.

If an animal manages to avoid infections, the city, and even more rural surroundings, are still dangerous places for a homeless animal. Pesticide baits can easily sicken or kill a cat scavenging for food, while empty cans cut paws and mouths. Automobiles kill and injure thousands of cats each year. Fractures, dislocations and head injuries resulting from car or motorcycle collisions with cats are common among strays.

The abandoned cat rapidly becomes wary of strangers, and may even reject well-meant offerings of food. It will run and hide, perhaps returning later to sample a few mouthfuls of food.

An individual or family that wishes to keep a cat should realize that a cat's needs are similar to those of a dog.

The cat's primary line of defense against disease is good nutrition. A cat owner should feed a balanced cat food every day to help the pet resist infection. Some consideration should be given to the special needs of individual pets. Pregnant or nursing cats need additional food to keep their kittens supplied with nourishment. Adult male cats that develop the bladder condition known as cystitis should receive a special diet.

All cats should be immunized against feline distemper, rabies and respiratory disease once a year. Fleas, ticks, ear mites and other parasites should be treated as soon as you notice them. Neutering your cat, is also recommended, unless you have a planned breeding program.

A cat, like any other pet, deserves some shelter when bad weather strikes. If a cat must be outdoors, provide an appropriate shelter.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

Why can't they develop a vaccine against cancer?

Linda

Dear Linda:

That simple question is a difficult one to answer! First, an explanation of how our immune system works may be helpful.

Our immune system can be likened to any army defending a territory, with several different kinds of soldiers and weapons to seek out and destroy enemy invaders. The body recognizes these invaders as foreign because they give out chemical signals, called antigens, which identify them as strangers. The presence of these antigens in the body causes several different reactions from the immune system.

Imagine that disease-causing bacteria have entered your system. Certain white blood cells rush to attack the invaders. This is you body's first line of defense, but it also mounts another, more subtle counter-attack. Other white blood cells stimulate the production of antibodies in the blood plasma, the fluid part of the blood. These antibodies circulate through the bloodstream and attack the bacteria. Each antibody is made to fit a specific antigen, the way a key fits a lock. During your life, you acquire a lot of antibodies. Once your body has formed antibodies to an antigen, it will always recognize that invader and respond to it. That's why once you have had certain infectious diseases, for example chicken pox, you won't get them again. Vaccination uses weak antigens to stimulate the production of antibodies, so that you don't actually have to get the disease to become immune to it.

Researchers have long been intrigued by the relationship between cancer and the immune system. The immune system clearly does not react as vigorously to the presence of a tumor as it does to an infection. However, animal tests have shown that, under certain circumstances, the immune system can be stimulated to fight cancer. And researchers are trying various techniques to apply these principles to human immunotherapy.

One type of immunotherapy under investigation does involve a vaccination of sorts. Cancer cells are collected from the patient and grown in a laboratory culture. While they are growing, they are treated with special chemicals which uncover their antigens. (Antigens, remember, are the chemical markers which the white blood cells recognize as foreign). The treated cancer cells are then injected into the patient where they sometimes produce an immune response to the whole tumor. As you can see, this type of immunotherapy is very much like a regular vaccination because it uses a little antigen to stimulate the production of lots of antibodies. Tumor-specific antigens have been used to treat lung cancers and other solid tumors, and lymphomas, with some limited but promising results.

(Excerpts from Fox Chase Cancer Center's "Background Information on Immunity and Cancer.")

Dear Cancer Answers:

My husband is a laryngectomee and like all laryngectomees he needs a special kind of first aid if he becomes ill or is in an accident. I think you should tell your readers about this.

Rose

Dear Rose:

A laryngectomee is a person whose voice box has been removed, in many cases because of cancer, and who has a special opening in his or her throat for breathing. The American Cancer Society urges that anyone giving first aid to restore breathing should first check the stricken person's neck. If he or she is a laryngectomee: 1) expose the neck, 2) give mouth to neck breathing only, 3) keep the person's head straight, chin up, 4) keep the neck opening clear with cloth — don't use tissue.

Many laryngectomees wear special medic-alert identification bracelets or carry emergency instruction cards. It is advised that the families and friends of laryngectomees learn this special kind of first aid. The American Cancer Society has films and literature for firemen, police, ambulance crews, civil defense, Red Cross and medical workers. As in any emergency first aid, speed is critical to giving effective help.

FUELED UP FOR FITNESS

SOUP SHAPES UP AS WINNING MEAL

In the cool weather, there is no greeting like the smell of homemade soup bubbling away on the stove, to stir up one's appetite after an active day. Soup and sandwiches have long been a lunchtime favorite and that soup has medicinal properties is well known as an Old Wives' Tale.

Old-Fashioned Tomato Bisque may not prevent the sniffles, but it is a source of two important nutrients, Vitamin C and calcium. Food consumption surveys indicate that Vitamin C intake is low, especially in the diets of children. Among the older, non-milk drinking set, calcium nutrition is poor. Muscle contraction depends on calcium for smooth, quick and efficient functioning, so requirements do not cease when bone growth stops. In heavy exercise, muscle cramping may occur due to a temporary calcium imbalance. Vitamin C helps to protect against infection, and may play a role in decreasing the duration of colds once they have blossomed. Made with skim milk and Fleischmann's Corn Oil Margarine, Tomato Bisque is low in saturated fat, an important health consideration at any age, with reference to heart disease.

Do not wait until the first colds of winter strike to start the soup simmering. When it comes to keeping fit, an ounce of prevention is no Old Wives' Tale.

OLD-FASHIONED TOMATO BISQUE

2 cans (1 pound each) tomatoes
2 beef bouillon cubes
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon onion powder
1/4 teaspoon basil leaves
1/4 teaspoon white pepper
1 bay leaf
1/2 cup Fleischmann's Margarine
1/2 cup unsifted flour
4 cups skim milk
Chopped parsley

Measure 1 cup drained tomatoes; cut into large pieces and set aside. In a saucepan combine remaining tomatoes and liquid, bouillon cubes, sugar, salt, onion powder, basil leaves, pepper and bay leaf. Simmer 30 minutes. Remove bay leaf. Force mixture through food mill or sieve.

In a large saucepan melt margarine over low heat. Blend in flour until smooth. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Gradually blend in tomato mixture, stirring briskly. Add tomato pieces. Return to heat. Stir constantly until hot.

Serve garnished with parsley. Makes 9 servings.

SCIENCE in our LIVES

Infrared Thermography: Conserves Energy

Is your home adequately insulated? A new kind of camera could help you tell.

In one experiment, a three-story building was insulated with foam between the outside brick wall and the inner concrete wall. An identical building was not insulated.

Then the two buildings were "photographed" with a special heat-sensitive camera utilizing the process known as infrared thermography. Result: infrared photographs clearly showed that the insulated building had a cooler outside wall temperature than the uninsulated building and that temperature distribution was more uniform.

What this experiment by the Gulf Science and Technology Co. (GS&T) demonstrated was that the insulation was effective and had been applied uniformly within the walls. Also, the analysis confirmed that conservation of heat would pay for the cost of the insulation in a relatively short time.

One way that the heat-sensitive camera utilized by GS&T is saving energy is by detecting heat loss. It has also been used to determine the operating efficiency of process heaters and to forecast equipment maintenance problems at refineries and chemical plants.

Another application for thermography techniques is predicting electrical failures in switches, motor starters and high energy substations. This could prevent power failures that have immobilized major American cities in years past.

Coast Guard Officers To Wear Sidearms

Recreational boaters should expect Coast Guard personnel boarding their boat to be armed.

This fact in no way changes or detracts from the Coast Guard's friendly mission of offering advice and assistance to recreational boaters.

Because of the Coast Guard's increasing involvement in combatting illegal drug traffic in U.S. waters and the potential for danger when boarding privately-owned vessels, Commandant John B. Hayes has ordered all boarding officers to wear sidearms.

Rear Admiral Bernie Thompson, Chief of the office of boating safety, said that "the use of recreational craft in drug smuggling has become commonplace.

"Unfortunately," Thompson said, "a boat engaged in illegal activity usually looks exactly the same as one operating legally.

"When our personnel discover illegal activity aboard a recreational vessel they must be equipped to protect themselves," Thompson points out.

Thompson compared the new Coast Guard policy policy to those which require police officers to carry sidearms.

"The Coast Guard is the major federal maritime law enforcement agency," he said. "Like other law enforcement officers, Coast Guard Personnel, although not anticipating trouble, must be equipped and ready to take the action necessary to enforce the law."

While the U.S. Labor Department concentrated much of its effort on putting people to work during the 1978 fiscal year, it also improved the performance of its programs to improve the quality of worklife for all Americans, according to the department's annual report.

Give Grant To Area To Aid In Tourism

Governor Al Quie, commissioner and state cochairman of the Upper Great Lakes regional commission (UGLRC), recently announced a $103,000 technical assistance grant to the Minnesota department of economic development to promote tourism in the 38 UGLRC counties in northern Minnesota. The grant is part of a $215,500 project. State and private funding will provide an additional $112,500.

UGLRC funds will assist in promoting tourism through efforts of staff, brochures, slide presentations and package and group tours to encourage creation of jobs in the 38 counties of northern Minnesota.

Project would stimulate the creation of almost 300 jobs in the food and lodging industry.

"The major goals of this program are to create new jobs, increase median income, reduce unemployment and reduce the seasonality of employment," Governor Quie said recently. "These goals are consistent with the goals of the UGLRC," he added. "The program will tie in with existing efforts to enhance tourism in northern Minnesota."

Meeting held recently in Rhinelander, Wisconsin was hosted by Wisconsin Governor Lee S. Dreyfus for Governor Quie, Michigan Governor William Milliken and President Carter's federal cochairman William R. Bechtel. Commission is made up of the governors from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan and a Federal cochairman.

UGLRC is a local-state-federal partnership for the economic development of 119 counties in northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Commission works aggressively toward the goals of increasing incomes of the region's citizens, diversifying the region's economic base, encouraging the sound use of the region's natural resources and improving the quality of life for the region's citizens.

Commission works toward these goals through its technical assistance grant program which funds research and demonstration projects of regional impact, and its supplemental grant program which helps meet local matching share requirements for public works projects.

UGLRC has helped facilitate multi-state planning and development and has coordinated local, state, federal and private investments.

U of M Unlikely To Act On Zubay Letter

University of Minnesota is unlikely to make a direct response to Rep. Ken Zubay's letter opposing the present required student fee for the Minnesota Daily.

"I can't speak for the individual regents but my guess is that there won't be any formal response," University President C. Peter Magrath said of the letter. "We receive many communications from legislators that we don't formally convene to discuss."

Letter to the Board of Regents arrived Friday, Dec. 14. It was the final product of a Nov. 14 hearing on the Daily fee, a hearing that featured defenders of Christian decency, academic freedom, University autonomy and freedom of the press.

Zubay (IR-Rochester), who chaired the meeting of the House higher education division, said in his letter that the "vast majority" of the 16 division members "strongly recommends that the regents allow students a means to withdraw their individual financial support from the Daily."

Magrath said he doesn't expect the Board of Regents to take any action on the Daily fee until after the board gets the annual recommendations of the Student fees committee this April. "The question of fees at the University is, in my view, an internal issue," he said.

The required $1.75 per quarter student fee that provides the student-run Daily with 15 per cent of its revenue came under heavy attack after a June humor issue many people thought offensive. It included a mock interview with Jesus Christ.

Student Ad Hoc Anti-Defamation Committee, one of the groups that was organized to oppose the required Daily fee, was largely responsible for bringing the controversy to the state legislature.

"We're satisfied in the sense that we feel the letter was a strong attempt to get a message across to the Board of Regents," said Kathy Sackett, co-chairman of the committee. "Now it depends on what the regents do with the letter — whether they take it seriously or throw it in the wastebasket."

Sackett said that unless the regents take action against the required fee her group will continue to work through the legislature's appropriations committee to "press for anything we can."

Fee controversy escalated when the legislature became involved. Shortly before the Zubay hearing, 16 senior University faculty members placed an ad in the Daily opposing the hearing as an "interference in academic freedom." F. Gerald Kline, head of the University's journalism school, sent a letter to 350 newspaper editors opposing the hearing as a threat to press freedom.

At the hearing Magrath warned against "legislative proposals that might be legally questionable." State law gives the University autonomy: the regents govern the University.

Result of the hearing — the Zubay letter — was not as bad as some faculty had feared. "The letter is unfortunate — it could be interpreted as a not very subtle form of intimidation — but I don't see anything illegal about sending a letter of this sort," said Paul Murphy, a history professor who signed the ad in the Daily.

Murphy, who is an authority on the First Amendment, said a change in the required fee probably could not be successfully challenged on the basis of the letter. "Some might argue that any change in the fee at this point would be an interference in freedom of the press, but I don't think that could stand up in a courtroom."

Not all of the legislators in the division thought the letter was appropriate. Dee Long (DFL-Minneapolis) voted to take no action and said she may write her own letter to the regents opposing Zubay's letter.

"I don't think it's appropriate for a legislative division to make suggestions to the Board of Regents," she said in an interview. "As an individual, as a taxpayer, I feel perfectly within my right to make a suggestion to the regents — but not as a legislative division. I think that's entering into a very gray area of legislative power versus university autonomy."

Throughout the controversy, those who oppose a change in the required fee have stressed that University channels to change fees already exist. They say that the majority of students seem to support the required fee for the Daily.

"It's an issue of majority rule," said Kate Stanley, who became editor of the Daily after the humor issue appeared. "The required fee should be changed if the students think it should be changed. It's an issue that should be addressed by students and no one else.

"It disturbs me that the legislature thought it was appropriate to consider the issue. I'd be very puzzled if the regents thought it was appropriate to take action. It would be purely a response to political pressure to make a change in the student fee because of this letter."

Make Sure Your Wood Stove Burns Safely

A wood burning stove can be a charming addition to your living room decor.

However, Royal-Globe Insurance Companies and their independent agents remind you to consider these suggestions before you glow with the anticipated energy savings and added warmth from your new investment.

Fire hazard is a leading drawback to providing heat as in the "good old days." Most fires are caused by improper installation of the stove or its use.

Some Do's and Don'ts to keep in mind:

- When installing the stove, allow enough clearance, generally 36 inches, between the stove and combustible walls and ceilings.
- Place a non-combustible base under the stove. A quarter-inch asbestos millboard covered with sheet metal is most commonly used. The base should extend at least 18 inches beyond the ash removal door and six inches on all other sides.
- Hire a trained person, perhaps a mason, to inspect the chimney. Ask your local building inspector to check the stove once it is installed.
- Burn only dry, well-seasoned wood. Never use "green" wood.
- If your house is tightly insulated, consider opening a window a crack to allow ventilation.
- Dispose of ashes in a closed metal container and place it outside, away from the house.
- Seal off the fireplace before connecting a wood stove to its chimney. If you do not have a suitable chimney, a factory-built one listed by Underwriters Laboratories (UL) or other recognized testing laboratories, is a good solution. Be sure to follow manufacturer's recommendations regarding clearance to combustible materials.
- Never use flammable liquids to start a stove fire or burn trash in it, which can start a chimney fire.
- Never let a wood fire burn unattended or overnight.

Your stove should be made of sturdy material, such as cast iron or steel. It is a good idea to purchase a stove listed by UL or other recognized testing laboratories. If you buy a used stove, inspect carefully for cracks or other defects. The hinges, grates and draft louvers should be checked also to see that they work properly.

Your best types of wood for stove fires are apple, red oak, sugar maple, beech and ironwood, according to the University of Maine Extension Service. If the wood is split before storing, it dries in less time and burns more evenly.

When building a fire, use a shallow bed of ashes and a small amount of crumpled paper covered with a few small sticks of wood fuel. When the draft is started up the chimney flue, larger pieces of wood may be added.

Never throw gasoline, kerosene or other flammable fluid on the wood to get a quick fire. If in spite of all your precautions, you have a chimney fire, call the fire department first and then take steps to fight the blaze while waiting for help. Close the stove's draft louvers and the solid damper in the stovepipe and throw a liberal amount of coarse salt into the fire chamber.

Your chimney and stovepipe should be checked annually and needed repairs made before the heating season. You may want to hire a professional to clean the chimney to prevent a possible fire hazard.

Royal-Globe and its independent agents want you to be both safe and warm this winter season.

EASY COFFEE CAKE FOR BRUNCH

This elegant coffee cake can be prepared in minutes and uses ingredients easy to keep on hand. Serve it for brunch or with coffee to unexpected guests. The crunchy topping highlights the "treasure" hidden in easy rich, flaky biscuit.

TREASURE-FILLED COFFEE RING

3/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon orange peel
1/4 cup chopped pecans
2 (10-oz.) cans Hungry Jack refrigerated big flaky biscuits
1/2 cup margarine or butter, melted

Heat oven to 350°F. Using shortening, grease 12-cup fluted tube pan (nonstick finish pan, too.) Combine sugar, orange peel and pecans; set aside. Cut each package cream cheese in half lengthwise, then crosswise into 10 equal pieces. Separate each can of dough into 10 biscuits. Separate each biscuit into 2 layers. Place 1 piece cream cheese between layers; seal edges. Dip each filled biscuit in melted margarine, then in sugar mixture. Stand biscuits on edge, slightly overlapping, around prepared pan. Sprinkle with any remaining sugar mixture; drizzle with any remaining margarine.

Bake at 350°F. for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Cool in pan one minute; turn onto serving plate. Cool slightly. 10 servings.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Here's Something New—Turn the Tables on Uncle Sam... And Sue!

The Department of Energy is charged with illegally using taxpayers' funds to pay for consumer groups who testify against business in agency proceedings.

The Environmental Protection Agency is challenged after issuing regulations on solid waste which may force firms nationwide to immediately close their waste facilities without any prior notice or hearing.

The State Attorney General in Oklahoma is accused of illegally forbidding non-American corporations from owning land in his state — a decision that could significantly jeopardize foreign investment, jobs and economic growth in other states.

What's going on here: On the surface, you might answer, "Nothing much, because nothing changes." True, big government's juggernaut rolls on, gradually eliminating the remaining freedoms and opportunities in the private economy. And true, there seems to be no limit to its increases in spending, taxes and regulations. Still, something fundamental really is changing — a subtle shift in momentum has begun. As more and more Americans become angry enough to fight back, big government is finally being thrown on the defensive. Victory is not yet in sight, but the potential to achieve it is.

Consider: Thanks to growing pressure from the grass roots, it is now the initiatives to reduce spending and taxes that are proliferating in Congress. The spenders can still prevail, but they are weary and embarrassed at constantly having to explain why they refuse to give taxpayers a break. The activities of the regulatory agencies are also being more closely scrutinized, even reined-in. One of the most important weapons in this entire counteroffensive is that of litigation; and as evidenced by the legal challenges listed earlier, the cutting edge of the litigation effort is developing right here in the U.S. Chamber.

The National Chamber Litigation Center, Inc. was established in February 1977, to represent the business community before the courts and regulatory agencies. Rather than simply roll over and play dead every time a government bureaucrat or no-growth group threatens lengthy, expensive legal action, NCLC provides the possibility for any business, no matter how small, to fight back and win. Among its goals, the Center has pledged to challenge unconstitutional and irresponsible laws and regulations that harm the business community and our national economy; to counter restrictive anti-business forces affecting labor relations, business' constitutional rights and federal rule-making activities, and to act as a national legal advocate for business on major public policy issues — environmental matters, consumer affairs and trade negotiations.

The Center employs its own staff of attorneys to initiate or join legal actions and the staff does not accept fees for its services. The sole source of financial support for its litigation program comes from membership dues and special contributions. Any U.S. business firm, corporation, trade association or individual can become a member.

Obviously, the Center's resources are not unlimited, so its participation in a case is normally based on certain major criteria:

—The case must involve an issue of direct importance to a broad cross-section of the business community.

—The case should have substantial regional or national significance.

— No other party is presenting the broad business perspective before the court or agency.

—The business community has a need for the expertise and assistance NCLC can provide.

—The issue fits within NCLC's overall priorities and resources.

That said, the Center has already established an impressive record — 14 victories in the past two years.

For too long, extremists within regulatory agencies and certain self-designated consumer and environmental groups have used, and abused, the courts to by-pass Congress and create public policy. The mountains of resulting regulations, requiring inordinate amounts of time, money and paperwork, have drastically curtailed business operations at home and harmed our ability to compete abroad.

In seeking a more balanced approach to the establishment of national priorities, the National Chamber Litigation Center is making an important contribution to those who believe in individual opportunity and economic growth for all Americans. For that reason, I believe the Center is worthy of support.

Manufacture of Cheese Grows In Minnesota

Minnesota's dairy products manufacturers processed over 481 million pounds of cheese and butter during the first ten months of 1979, Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week.

Cheese production continues to increase, while the manufacture of butter continues to decline. But Minnesota still ranks second in the nation for both dairy products.

January through October American cheese production in Minnesota this year totaled 346.65 million pounds. That was higher than for the same period in 1978 by more than 33 million pounds or nearly 11 per cent.

Butter production through October this year totaled 134.58 million pounds which was down by over 13 million pounds or 9 per cent compared to a year ago.

Minnesota's 1979 production during the first ten months represented almost 19 per cent of the total American cheese and over 15 per cent of the total butter manufactured in the entire nation.

October dairy products manufacture marked the seasonal increase in production which normally follows the annual June through September decline in milk production. This October butter production in Minnesota was almost 6 per cent higher and cheese output was more than 9 per cent higher than in September. Nationally October dairy products manufacture was higher than in September by only three per cent for cheese and by 25 per cent for butter.

According to the March of Dimes, birth defects caused by rubella (German measles) can be prevented if women of childbearing age are vaccinated against the disease before they become pregnant.

Tips Given To Reduce Motor Vehicle Theft

According to the Minnesota department of public safety bureau of criminal apprehension (BCA), 8,577 motor vehicles were stolen during the first nine months of 1979. This is a five per cent increase over the first nine months of 1978. Sixty-eight per cent, or 5,818 were automobiles. Trucks and buses accounted for 1,122 of the total and the remaining 1,637 were other vehicles such as snowmobiles and motorcycles.

There is less than a 50 per cent chance of a stolen vehicle being recovered. The 1979 recovery rate is 47 per cent compared to 49 per cent recovery in 1978.

Sgt. Jim Jerylo with the auto theft unit of the St. Paul police department offered these tips to help the owners reduce the increase in motor vehicle theft. "Lock up and take the keys with you when leaving your vehicle," said Jerylo. "A determined thief will find keys hidden under the hood or front seat. Also keep valuables or packages out of sight and park in a well-lighted place."

Public safety commissioner John Sopsic continued by reminding owners never to leave keys in an unattended car with the motor running. "Besides inviting theft, this practice wastes energy," he pointed out.

Acting BCA superintendent Floyd Roman suggested installing theft-resistant door locking stems and a hidden cut-off switch in the ignition line that must be closed before the car can be started.

"Also join operation identification and mark your permanent identification number on car tape decks, engine parts and mag wheels," urged Sopsic. "This helps police identify and return recovered stolen property. Contact your police or sheriff's office to join operation identification."

"Crime on Wheels," a crime watch publication, contains additional tips to reduce motor vehicle theft. Close all vehicle windows. Thieves can insert a hooked wire through open windows to help them break in. Don't mark your keychain with your name or license number because lost keys can help a thief find your vehicle. Whenever possible park your car in a lot where you don't have to leave your keys. If you must leave a key, only leave the ignition key and never the trunk or house key.

Whenever you leave your motorcycle or snowmobile, secure it to an immovable object with a case hardened chain and padlock. Any vehicle carried on a trailer should be chained securely.

SCENIC VIEW was available to sight-seers almost anywhere Friday as the sun broke through the overcast to put a floodlight on nature's handiwork. Several days and nights of fog have left everything stationary outdoors covered with a heavy layer of frost. Below the dam on the Red Lake river the water was flowing between shelves of ice extending from both banks. This view was from a high bank overlooking a part of that stretch of open water. Photography fans were out in force attempting to capture some of nature's spectacle on film.

Seminar On Business At NCC Feb. 16

Northland community college is offering another in its series of business seminars designed to improve skills and update knowledge for those involved in various phases of business.

The "How to Improve Your Hiring Techniques" workshop will be conducted Saturday, Februry 16, at Northland community college in Thief River Falls.

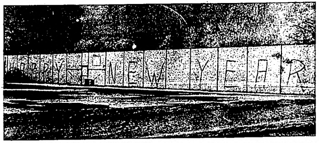
Dr. Allen Nichols, an area business and management consultant and a business instructor at Northland community college, will conduct the workshop on the college campus beginning at 8:30 a.m. with registration and coffee. Cost of the workshop will be $12.75 which covers the tuition for one college credit, coffee and workshop materials.

"Because hundreds of dollars are wasted each year when the wrong person is hired or when poor management techniques are used in the development of employees, this workshop is designed to aid in the elimination of such wasteful management practices," said Dr. Nichols.

Workshop topics include: "How to Prepare Job Descriptions", "How to Prepare Effective 'Help Wanted Ads' ", "How to Conduct the Employment Interview", and "How to Comply With Equal Opportunity Requirements".

Due to the great interest of past seminars, enrollment will be limited to the first 40 registrants. Because of this demand, officials at Northland suggest early registration for those interested.

For additional information write Dr. Allen Nichols, business department, Northland Community College, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or telephone (218) 681-21818.



SOME ENTERPRISING SOUL with a bit of the holiday spirit in mind made a billboard out of the frost-covered fence surrounding the Northland community college tennis courts Friday. The wish for a Happy New Year was created by simply brushing the heavy accumulation of frost from the fence.

Bob Bergland Immersed In Ag Secretary's Role

ANSWERING QUESTIONS and giving comments about his role as U.S. secretary of agriculture is Bob Bergland of Roseau. Bergland rates his performance in the controversial post as "about a B" and says he has improved from a C minus start. He feels that he and his office have established credibility with Congress and the administration and that things are running quite smoothly under a restructured department system. He views inflated land values as a major agricultural problem.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Bob Bergland is alive and well and enjoying himself in the role of U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

That assessment could be made without dispute during a visit with northwestern Minnesota's most notable agricultural figure Thursday at his farm home just a couple of furrows and a headland southeast of Roseau.

It was a well-meaning intention to talk with Bergland about some of his more personal thoughts and experiences, leaving the weighty stuff to the daily press and the agricultural analysts and critics. But it soon became evident that one does not talk to a member of the President's cabinet and separate his work from the rest of his life.

For Bob Bergland, it seems, his work is his life.

"I still enjoy going to work," he said with enthusiasm. "I don't necessarily like the 13-mile ride to the office, but I have a phone and a reading light in the car that picks me up at 7:30 in the morning and when I get in the car I'm at work."

By 8:10 a.m., Bergland is in his office. Demands on his time are such that by and large his schedule is prepared for him. He insists on time for a staff meeting, a generally unstructured period with about 25 people, when the internal operation of the department parades before him for an hour of give and take. He thinks it is often the most important part of his day.

He typically will spend an hour a day in the Congress or meeting with congressmen in his office, another hour with agency administrators and assistant secretaries on agricultural programs, a couple of more hours with delegations of one sort or another, additional time with telephone calls and the mail.

He receives about 3,000 letters a day in his mail room, many of them beginning "Dear Bob", and most of which he will never see himself. If the letters have questions about programs, they are referred to the appropriate agency. But Bergland insists that all mail be acknowledged and every effort be made to treat questions and requests with courtesy and efficiency.

"If a letter is logged in on a certain day and an answer hasn't been sent in a week's time, I want to know why," he said. "Often we won't be able to obtain information that quickly, of course, but we should let the writer know that the request has been received, that it is receiving attention and that a more complete answer will be forthcoming as soon as possible."

The attention to the public is possibly a carry-over to Bergland's several terms in the U.S. Congress before President Carter tapped him for the cabinet post. Or it may just be his apparent liking for people.

"I have standing instructions with my staff that when someone from the country comes into what we call 'the cage' (an outer office) and I am in my office, I want to know about it. I want to come out, say hello and shake hands, have a picture taken with the people if they want one. If they have the desire to make the effort to come and see me, I feel I owe them the courtesy of saying hello."

Most days when he is in Washington he wraps up his office work and is home by 7 p.m. The thing he dislikes most about his job are the interminable evening gatherings, the Washington parties which he refers to as "ghastly". "I hate them with a passion!" he exclaimed. "If I can at all avoid going I will not go. If I must go, you can be assured I'll arrive late and leave early."

When invited by the President to such a function, however, attendance is expected. And Presidential parties could be worse. "I put them at the low end of the objectionable range," the agriculture secretary said. "They are the [illegible] worst."

Bergland said his office receives about 300 requests a week for his attention, about 100 asking him to travel somewhere for something and about 200 seeking an audience with him in his office. The requests come from individuals, farm groups, trade groups, various delegations, agency administrators and by Babson's Reports Inc.

Babson's Report Reveals Recession Threat Grows

Wellesley Hills, Mass.

Just a year ago we envisioned in our forecast for 1979 a slowing in the economic tempo of sufficient scope to create a technical state of recession, stemming from the effects of anti-inflation monetary measures. We did point out, however, that the intrinsic strength of the economy would forestall a deep, prolonged business dislocation. Instead, we looked for "real" gross national product to show only enough softening in the second and third quarters of the year to constitute a recession. Visualized was a mild and brief setback, more in the nature of a spell of no growth, with the economy again on the mend by the fourth quarter of 1979.

The statistical evidence now shows that there was enough resilience to produce a sharp rebound in the third quarter, negating the spring slump. So, even though 1979's final quarter was adversely impacted by the broader, more aggressive anti-inflation program instituted by the Federal Reserve, the year as a whole did not suffer an economic recession. This was an impressive achievement in view of the heights to which interest rates and inflation had soared.

Recession Threat Heightened For 1980

Developments of the past three months have raised the odds that 1980 will experience the economic recession which 1979 escaped. The Fed's credit-tightening move took an increasing tool on business as the final 1979 quarter progressed. When the results for that period are made public, "real" gross national product (GNP ex inflation) will probably show some loss. Since we now expect this business barometer to move off further in the initial quarter of 1980, the required two consecutive quarters of lower "real" GNP readings will have been recorded to constitute a recession.

Steeper, Longer Recession Than Previously Expected

The staff of Babson's Reports looks, in fact, for the downward slide of "real" gross national product to extend through the second quarter of 1980. The recession, therefore, will very likely last a bit longer than we had previously anticipated. Also, the depth of the down-trend is currently expected to approximate four per cent from the high of the third quarter of 1979. The scope of the recession we now foresee is not unrealistic since we have experienced only the early effects of the anti-inflation program started last fall. In addition, the fight has been made all the more difficult by the further climb in prices for petroleum products. And the implications of conditions in Iran and of U.S.-Iran relations are anything but reassuring for the petroleum picture, in terms of both prices and supplies. This does not augur well for the domestic automobile industry which has been in a beleaguered state for many months, and the tightening of credit compounds its troubles. Extremely high borrowing costs and scarcer mortgage money are hurting residential building. Therefore, neither of these key industries will be of much help in 1980.

Fortunately, there are no

Minn. Senior Federation To Organize Here

Officers and staff of the Minnesota senior federation will be in Thief River Falls on January 10 to assist in organizing a regional senior federation in Northwestern Minnesota. The meeting will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. at the city auditorium.

A similar meeting held last month was only partially successful due to blizzard conditions at the time.

Because of the storm, plans for establishing the federation in this area were delayed and it is therefore doubly important that all seniors in the region attend this meeting, according to federation organizers.

L. B. Hartz foundation, believing in the concept of seniors helping seniors, has given a grant to the state federation services to help cover the costs of organizing in this area and has stated interest in the development of the proposed federation.

'79 News Events Review

As we once again near the end of December and remove that final page from our calendars, we are forced to acknowledge the last clue informing us that another year has come and gone. We can look back upon the 365 days and all that has happened during that time — some things good, others not so good — and we can remember them all, or at least those things we wish to recall.

Following is a monthly chronology of items that occurred during the first four months of 1979 to help readers remember the past before we progress into the new year — 1980. Memories of other months will be recalled through summaries printed in succeeding issues of the Times.

Trontvet-Christopherson Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at an afternoon ceremony at the Evangelical Free church in this city by Debra Trontvet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Trontvet of this city, and Jon C. Christopherson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Christopherson of Evergreen, Colo.

Rev. Curtis Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 150 relatives and friends. Mrs. Eunice Carlson was the organist and Becki Roen, the pianist. A taped orchestration of "Thank You, Father," was played as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Prior to the processional, the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Trontvet, sang "Shepherd of Love" and "He Looked Beyond My Fault." After they read the Scripture, I John 4: 7-11 and Eph. 5:21-24, Carolyn and Ron Trontvet sang "Teach Us Thy Ways." They, together with the bride's sister, Renae Grams, accompanied the bride as she sang "I Am Loved," to the groom. The bride and groom sang "That's The Way," and as they knelt at the altar, the bride sang "My Tribute."

Candelabras with greenery and white bows graced the chancel. On the organ and piano were two small candle arrangements. The pews along the center aisle were marked with brown and peach ribbon bows.

The bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white qiana jersey with silk floss Venise lace motifs enhancing the bodice and yoke. An overlay of corresponding lace traced the Queen Anne neckline, formed the cap sleeves, and complimented the empire waistline. Lace also edged the A-line skirt, chapel-length train and a double tiered walking length veil, appliqued with lace floral motifs. She carried a bouquet of silk and fresh flowers, featuring peach roses, and white daisies interspersed with turquoise daisies.

The bride's personal attendant was Grace Hanson, a friend.

Mrs. Renae Grams of Lake Geneva, Wis., a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmatron was Mrs. Naomi Sorenson, Maple Plain, another sister of the bride. Their identical gowns of peach qiana were styled with blouson bodices with softly draped necklines and floor-length skirts gathered at the waistline by a drawstring which was tied in a bow at the side. In their hair they wore flower combs featuring blue daisies and miniature peach carnations. They carried silk bouquets with brown and peach roses, accented with miniature turquoise daisies.

Serving as flower girl was Amy Sorenson, Maple Plain, a niece of the bride. Her peach floor-length gown was styled with an empire waistline, Peter Pan collar, short puffy sleeves and a gathered skirt accented with a brown ribbon sash. Like the bride's attendants, she wore a small floral comb in her hair and carried a small basket filled with blue and white daisies and miniature peach roses.

The rings were carried by Jon Ruis, Milaca, a cousin of the groom. The wedding programs were distributed by Joel Christopherson, a brother of the groom.

Best man was Jeff Christopherson, Evergreen, Colo., a brother of the groom. Joe Francour, Hoyt Lakes, a friend of the couple, was groomsman. The ushers were John Grams, Lake Geneva, Wis., a brother-in-law of the bride, and Darrel Trontvet, Buffalo, a brother of the bride. The men of the wedding party wore brown tuxedos trimmed with brown suede, ruffled shirts edged in brown, and peach colored boutonnieres. A white rose, tipped in peach, accented the all-white attire worn by the groom.

The mother of the bride was attired in a shoulder-strap gown of qiana print in soft shades of tan, rust, brown and turquoise. Topping the gown was a waistlength, unlined jacket with raglan sleeves and a drawstring neckline. Her silk corsage was of white daisies. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a floor-length gown of blue polyester blend, fashioned with a pleated skirt and a blousy top.

A reception in the church parlors followed with the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Trontvet, as host and hostess. Robbin Raines, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book as Beth Christopherson, a sister of the groom, served the punch.

The serving table was highlighted by a four-tiered Lady Windemere wedding cake, iced in ivory and decorated with clusters of peach and blue miniature daisies. Topping the cake was a double bell ornament backed by a filigree heart. The cake was cut and served by Betty Christopherson, sister of the groom and Carolyn Johnson, a friend of the couple. Sandy Cameron and Carol Ammeson, friends of the couple, poured the coffee. Phyllis Trontvet, a cousin of the bride served the Norwegian wedding cake.

Rice packets were distributed by Lisa and Krista Trontvet, nieces of the bride. Waitresses were Laurie Peterson, Shana Pearson, Cindy Allen and Val Christianson, friends of the bride. The bride's nieces Shellie and Krista Trontvet arranged the wedding gifts.

For traveling on a wedding trip to Canada, the bride wore a two piece ensemble featuring a peach pleated skirt with a peach blousy top. In her hair, she wore a peach colored flower.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and Oak Hills Bible institute, Bemidji. She is currently attending Bemidji State University. The groom a graduate of Evergreen high school, Evergreen, Colo., is also a graduate of Oak Hills Bible Institute, where he is now employed with Campus Life and a part-time graduate student.

Svanjords Host Deer Park Club Christmas Party

Deer Park garden club Christmas party was held at the Bennie Svanjord home with Lois Swanson as cohostess. A potluck supper with the traditional roast turkey was served to 15 members and their guests.

Norma Hanson was in charge of special entertainment which included games, poetry and the singing of Christmas songs. The events were recorded by Ethel Wiseth, who served as photographer. Following the entertainment, progressive whist was played. High point winners were Orlando Chervestad and Selma Sanders, and low points, Ernest Swanson and Lois Swanson. Mrs. Jesse Anderson received the honor for holding two black jacks.

An exchange of gifts between members concluded the party.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wiseth, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Coan, Selma Sanders, Mary Kusmak, Mrs. Leo Ellingson, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Marquis, Mr. and Mrs. Mordy Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fiedler, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Stucy, Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Appleman, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad and Ed Geving.

The next meeting of the Deer Park garden club will be held January 8 at the Lynn Hanson home. The program will be "Propagation with small seeds." All members are encouraged to attend as the new program booklets will be distributed.

Transportation Building
St. Paul, Mn 55155

In a joint all-out effort to minimize automobile accidents caused by alcoholic beverages during this holiday season, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, the US Department of Transportation and National Highway Safety Administration have issued leaflets and brochures proclaiming "Friends don't let friends drive drunk." Included are recipes for tasty non-alcoholic drinks and snacks which slow down the rate at which the body absorbs alcohol (if alcoholic drinks are a must at your parties). Since the host and hostess are responsible to see to it that drunk guests do not drive, suggestions to prevent driving are listed. They are: that the host or hostess (providing they are sober) take the drunk home; that the drunk stays overnight, that the car keys are taken away if the drunk insists on driving, that physical restrain is used, that a taxi is called, and if all measures fail, that the police is called.

Moette Punch

(8 servings)
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup white grape juice
1 pint club soda
Sugar to taste
1 quart raspberry sherbet or ice

Add soda to fruit juices, sweeten to taste. Pour into punch bowl, add scoops of sherbet.

Wassail on the Wagon

(1½ gals. or 64 4-oz. servings)
1 gallon apple cider
1 quart hot water
½ cup instant tea
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ teaspoon powdered cloves
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sugar
1 cinnamon stick

Heat water, add tea, cider, lemon juice, sugar, cinnamon, cloves and cinnamon stick. Serve warm.

Cardinal Punch

(44 servings)
1 quart cranberry juice
1 pint orange juice
2 lemons squeezed or 2-ozs. lemon juice
4 quarts ginger ale

Combine juices with ice and chill. Pour into punch bowl over block of ice and add ginger ale. Garnish glasses with mint sprig. (May add orange sherbet scoops.)

Pickled Eggs

Hard boil the desired number of eggs. Shell eggs and cover in half pickle juice and half beet juice. Place in refrigerator 3-4 days. Drain and serve with garnish.

SAUSAGE BALLS

1 lb. sausage (uncooked)
3 cups Bisquick
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix the ingredients and roll into balls. The moisture in the sausage and cheese will hold the mixture together. Bake 15 minutes.

Quiche Lorraine

(cheese pie)
1½ cups grated Swiss cheese
8 slices fried bacon, crumbled
9-inch unbaked pie shell
3 eggs
1 cup heavy cream
½ cup milk
½ t. salt
¼ t. pepper
½ t. powdered mustard
dash Cayenne pepper

Sprinkle grated cheese and bacon into pie shell. Beat remaining ingredients together and pour over cheese. Bake in oven preheated to 375 degrees or until firm and browned. Let cool, slice like pie and serve.

Expect Decline Statewide In School Numbers

Projections for elementary and secondary enrollments and high school graduates in Minnesota are key factors in the Minnesota higher education coordinating board's (MHECB) projections for post-secondary institutions.

The board staff recently completed a report projecting these elementary and secondary school trends from 1979 to 1997. Following are several highlights from this report.

—Total public and private enrollments for Grades 1-12 are projected to fall from 899,100 students in 1978-79 to 714,490 students in 1989-90, a decline of about 20 per cent, and then increase to 782,890 by 1995.

—Elementary school enrollments (Grades 1-6) for public and private institutions are projected to decline from 404,581 in 1979 to a low point of 338,600 in 1985, a drop of about 18 per cent. Beginning in 1986, total elementary school enrollments are projected to increase and reach a high point of 425,700 by 1997, a jump of about 3 per cent over the current level.

—Total public and private secondary school enrollments are projected to decline from 468,800 in 1979 to a low of 327,200 in 1991, a drop of about 32 per cent. Between 1992 and 1997, secondary school enrollments are projected to increase to 381,700, which is about 21 per cent below the current level.

—In the spring of 1978, 72,520 students graduated from high school in Minnesota; about 72,375 were projected to graduate in spring of 1979. The projected number of high school graduates is expected to decline to a low of 55,276 by 1986, increase slightly between 1987 and 1989, and then decline again. By 1992, the number of high school graduates is projected to reach its lowest point, 44,147, or 39 per cent below the 1978 figure.

—First grade enrollments are projected to decline from 70,337 students in 1978-79 to 55,396 in 1981-82, a drop of about 21 per cent. After 1981-82, first grade enrollments are projected to increase to 73,590 in 1993-94, a gain of 4.62 per cent.

—Twelfth grade enrollments are projected to decline from 80,237 in 1978-79 to 48,849 in 1992-93, or 39 per cent.

—Planning Region 7E (Chisago, Isanti, Pine, Mille Lacs, Kanabec counties) is projected to experience an increase in the number of high school graduates, followed by a brief decline and another increase above present levels. The projected increase is expected to range from 6 to 14 per cent above the 1976 high school graduate total of 1,755. This increase is caused by the migration of families with school age children to the suburban and rural areas north and northwest of the Twin Cities.

—The number of high school graduates in Region 11, the Twin Cities area, was projected to increase from 33,363 in 1978 to 33,382 in 1979. By 1984, the number of high school graduates in this region is projected to decline by about 22 per cent from the 1978 figure; 26,111 students are expected to graduate that year. Region 11 is expected to graduate its smallest class in 1992 — about 19,213 students.

—The combined projections of high school graduates in Regions 1-10 (non-metropolitan areas) show a decline of about 38 per cent in 1995-96 below the number of 1978-79 graduates.

Data on public and private grade-level enrollments were obtained from the statistics division of the state department of education.

Bob Bergland Enjoys Life As Ag Secretary

in the world," he said, "but they all seem to headquarter in Washington, and they all have conferences at least once a year, and I always get invited to every one of them."

Bergland said he gets no thrill out of travel; he has done too much of it. Although he has no budget constraints or limitations on travel, he tries to restrict it to two or three days every other week. And he won't, except on extremely rare occasions, go out of the area to simply make a banquet speech.

"We log all our requests and keep them on file," he said, "and we try to arrange our travel so that we can get the most value out of it. If I have to make a speech in Denver some evening, I fly in the night before and have a number of meetings scheduled during the day before the evening event. Going somewhere just to make a speech is a terrific waste of time."

Although air force planes are available to him on a lease basis, he usually takes commercial flights. Eight passenger air force planes used for pilot training would cost his department $800 an hour for flying time, even if the pilots would log the air time in training anyway. By law the air force can't lease its planes for less than commercial rate, even to other government agencies.

"If we have a group of eight specialists, scientists or similar experts going to the same meeting we have taken the air force plane," he said. "But if we don't have a fair sized group I fly commercial. And I fly first class. The President has asked us to fly tourist but I fly first class. I take my briefcase along and I work while I travel. I don't waste the time."

When he does travel he is accompanied by one security man. Threats have been made against him and precautions are taken. "There are a few kooks out there," he said matter of factly, "and you never know what they're up to. The last couple of winters I even had an armed guard at our home for several months."

The Berglands live in a suburban town house which Bob calls "modest but comfortable." The close neighbors in such a complex afford his wife Helen an added bit of security when Bob is away, although Bergland discounts crime as a major concern.

An avid bird hunter, Bergland misses the freedom of neighborhood hunts at home. In the east the hunting is by invitation, and he has been invited and participated in dove hunts and waterfowl shoots, the latter in the famed Chesapeake bay area. Geese are the main objective and numbers are such that limits are usually filled.

We asked what major accomplishments this Roseau county transplant to the seat of the nation's government felt had been accomplished during his tenure as secretary of agriculture. He cited two, terming one subtle and the other more obvious.

Subtle change to the outsider was the restructuring of the department, creating a budget board consisting of seven assistant secretaries which controls the department through the management of money. Bergland said it has helped him have the best record among all the departments of staying within budget lines. Zero base budgeting is used and programs must prove their worth.

Among the more obvious accomplishments he lists establishment of the farmer owned grain reserve. He said the reserve helps to even out the market from year to year. Were it not for the reserve, he said, the excellent crops of the last couple of years would have caused severe market price reductions. Foreign buyers on the export market have a greater assurance of a steady supply because of the reserve and consequently are more willing to contract for grain.

"You know grain growers would rather have a crop shortage — as long as the shortage is someplace else," Bergland said. "Livestock producers, on the other hand, would rather have crop surpluses to reduce feed costs. And I have to be the referee."

Bergland said he is convinced of the importance of exports of agricultural products, and he compliments former agriculture secretary Earl Butz for his foresight in emphasizing the need for farm exports. He said he has become a close friend of Butz, now a lecturer, and that he tries to cross paths with other former secretaries from time to time.

Ezra Taft Benson now heads the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormons) with headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah, and Bergland has stopped to see him several times. Charles Brannan is in law practice, Orville Freeman is president of an international business organization working in market development in New York City, and Clifford Hardin is an executive with Ralston-Purina company.

There are employment opportunities for former secretaries of agriculture, Bergland said when we asked him about thoughts for the future. He expects President Carter to be reelected, he said, and if so he will resign as is traditionally done and hope the President sees fit to reappoint him. They are on good terms, he said, and he has tried to fulfill a responsible role on the President's team.

This has not always been easy. Early in his term he was forced to carry to the Congress proposed farm legislation that he did not believe in but which had been formed within the cabinet. He believed it hurt his own credibility and that of the President, and he told Carter as much. But things worked out, as they have a way of doing, the President signed the farm legislation the Congress gave him and farm programs have continued.

The much publicized tractorcades and so-called farm strike caused a low point in his job experience. Farmers who came to Washington were generally young, usually large farm operators, who had just experienced their first crop failure, Bergland said.

"They weren't poor folks," Bergland recalls with some bitterness. "They had a cash flow problem, but they weren't poor. Most of them had over extended themselves by purchasing expensive equipment and paying too much money for land, and when the crop didn't come in they were in a real bind. But I refused to bail them out of a situation caused by their poor management and they didn't like it. They came after me. I had to get away through a basement window.

"But I've been back in their part of the country now and I think we are on pretty good terms. I don't know of one person who threatened a farm strike who wasn't in the field full scale in the spring. I can remember telling reporters who asked me about the farm strike that if they believed that they would believe anything."

Bergland foresees land inflation as one of agriculture's biggest problems on an international basis. No way has been found in spite of exhaustive searching to remedy the escalation of land prices far beyond the land's ability to produce. The department is now looking very carefully at tax laws which would make land speculation less attractive, he said.

He pointed to his own 600 acre farm which is being operated through a blind trust by his daughter and son-in-law. The young couple would like to buy the place, he said, but if he was to sell at the going rate land is selling for in the area, they would never be able to make the payments. And Bergland considers the farm his "security blanket", a place where he could again make a living when his career in public life ends.

We asked Bergland to put modesty and bias aside and assess the job he is doing as secretary of agriculture.

"About a B," he quickly responded, then added thoughtfully, "I started out as a C minus, but I've improved."

He says he is thrilled by association with the office of the Presidency and the houses of Congress. He holds an admiration and respect for elected officials, he said, and he expected more frustration in the job than he has found in it.

"It is easier to move the system than I thought it would be," he said.

One gets the feeling that Bergland is quite comfortable in his national role, but that he wouldn't feel at all uncomfortable back on the farm raising grass seed and hunting grouse and visiting with the neighbors. He's the kind of person who would probably rate at least a B in that area, too.

SECRATARY OF AGRICULTURE Bob Bergland had no difficulty smiling Thursday morning. He was back home on his Roseau farm for the holidays, the scenery was coated with spectacular frost formations and he was among friends. "This is my security blanket," he said of the 600 acre farm operated by his son-in-law and daughter. "If nothing else comes along when my job as secretary is over, I can make a comfortable living here."

Agassiz Board Okays Karlstad Hospital Plan

Estimated $3 million hospital, nursing home and medical clinic project for the Karlstad community was approved recently by the board of the Agassiz health systems agency.

Proposed is the construction of a 19-bed hospital adjacent to the nursing home in Karlstad at a cost of $1,162,514, a 20-bed addition to the nursing center at a cost of $560,590 and a medical clinic at a cost of $486,429. Financing costs during construction, inflation and legal and accounting fees are expected to boost that $2,204,732 total near the $3 million mark.

The Agassiz agency approval is the first step in the project. Approval must also be received from the state of Minnesota and financing must be arranged, according to an article in the North Star News published at Karlstad.

Vote on the proposal among board members was reported to be 35 in favor and none opposed with two members abstaining. The Karlstad plan would provide for replacement of an existing 19 hospital beds in that community.

Workshop For Veterans Set By Stangeland

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has announced he will be sponsoring a veterans workshop on Saturday, January 12, at the vocational-technical school in Alexandria.

"I feel this is an excellent way to address the concerns of all veterans because of the tremendous response to last year's workshop. I hope each veteran in the seventh district will plan on attending this useful and worthwhile session. I also think it is important for spouses and other beneficiaries to attend since many benefits affect dependents," said Stangeland.

Personnel from the Veterans administration and the Minnesota department of veterans affairs will be available to answer questions about veterans' benefits including: compensation and pensions, hospitalization and educational benefits. The workshop will also focus on employment and social security as well as providing an up-date on pending veteran legislation. Group sessions to provide general information and individual booths for particular problems will be available.

Veterans workshop is scheduled from 1 to 4 p.m. at the vocational-technical school in Alexandria and it is open to any veteran of any period of service, their spouses, dependents, survivors and other interested persons.

For those people who live in the northern portion of the district and are unable to travel to Alexandria, a northern veterans workshop is being planned for the spring in Thief River Falls.

"The veterans workshop will be very informative for all veterans and I am looking forward to having the opportunity to discuss and listen to their problems and needs. I encourage every veteran to plan on attending," said Stangeland.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bakken, Robby, Ryan and Kevin were Christmas Eve dinner guests at the David Schwartz home at Goodridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Thompson and Rhiannon of Mound arrived Saturday to spend the Christmas holidays at her parental Charles Ellingson home. Also spending the holidays at home were Connie, Patty and Tara Ellingson of Thief River Falls. Sunday, they were all among a host of relatives and friends celebrating Christmas at the Art Ellingson home at Newfolden. The Thompsons returned home Wednesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Solem, Roy and Candi, together with Mr. and Mrs. Ted Koropatnicki, Kim, Kelly and Koni of Goodridge, and Mr. and Mrs. James Koropatnicki, Dean and Dale of Smiley were Christmas Day dinner guests at the home of Mrs. CeCelia Koropatnicki in Smiley.

Mr. and Mrs. Inar Mikkelson spent the weekend of December 16 at their lake home at Park Rapids.

Sigward B. Underdahl, 80, Dies At Home

Sigward B. Underdahl, 80, of Karlstad, father of Curt Underdahl of Thief River Falls, died unexpectedly Saturday afternoon, December 22, at his home.

Funeral services for Sig Underdahl were held Thursday at 2 p.m., at the Westaker Free Lutheran church in Newfolden. Rev. Merle Knutson officiated. Vocal selections were a solo by Harvey Dyrud and a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Waterworth. Mrs. Stan Holmass served as organist. Interment was in the Huntly cemetery, near Strathcona with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Norman Roppe, Glendon McKeever, James Hjeile, Art Kolden, Harvey Waller, Ray Westerlund and Obert Underdahl.

Serving as active pallbearers were nephews: Emil Syverson, Duane Underdahl and Marvin, Elwood, Palmer and Arne Berto.

Sigward Bernard Underdahl, a son of the late Lars and Christine Underdahl, was born June 3, 1899 at Ulen. At the age of six months, he moved with his family to a homestead in East Park township, Marshall county, northwest of Middle River. There he attended school and grew to manhood.

On Sept. 19, 1924, he was united in marriage to Cynthia May Kreeskern at Decorah, Iowa. The couple lived at Strathcona and later on a farm in Cedar township, east of Strathcona. They then moved to Thief River Falls and lived here for a time before moving to a farm in Spruce Valley township, west of Middle River. Following the death of his wife in January of 1972, Underdahl continued to live on the farm until 1976.

On Sept. 4, 1976, he was married to Anna Anderson near Newfolden. Since then, they have resided at Karlstad.

Underdahl was employed by Central Lumber company for 26 years. He was known throughout the area for his Christmas tree business. He was also engaged in house-moving and in the later years, he was employed by the Title Atlas company.

He was a member of the Haglund Lutheran church.

Surviving are his wife, six sons: Glen Underdahl, Bismarck, N.D.; Clifford, Hawkeye, Iowa; Levern, Middle River; Harvey, Newfolden; Alton, Viking; and Curt, Thief River Falls; a daughter, Mrs. Arvid (Shirley) Anderson, North Branch; 21 grandchildren; 27 great-grandchildren, and a brother, Ted Underdahl, Cando, N.D.

He was preceded in death by his first wife, three sisters, three brothers, and two grandsons.

Mrs. Stanley Bajdek, 79, Dies Dec. 25

Mrs. Stanley (Mary) Bajdek, 79, of Augsburg township, Marshall county, rural Stephen, died unexpectedly on Tuesday evening, December 25, at her home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Bajdek were held Saturday at 10 a.m., at the Assumption Catholic church in Florian with Rev. Frank Kulhawik offering the Mass. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Frank, Chester and John Szklarski, Leopold and Lambert Kuznia and Gary Pietruszewski.

Mrs. Bajdek, the former Mary Szklarski, was born Nov. 15, 1900 in Poland to Vincent and Julia Szklarski. In May of 1914, she immigrated to the United States with her parents, who settled on a farm in Augsburg township, Marshall county, near Stephen. There she attended school and grew to womanhood.

On Oct. 7, 1919, she was married at Florian to Stanley Bajdek. Since then they have lived and farmed in Augsburg township.

She was a member of the Assumption Catholic church of Florian.

Surviving are her husband, three sons: Stanley Bajdek, Jr., Otto and Ted, all of Stephen; two daughters: Mrs. Florent (Pauline) Kalis, Stephen, and Mrs. Felician (Olga) Pietruszewski, New Brighton; six grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Euphrozyna Sarzala, Chicago, Ill.

She was preceded in death by her parents, a brother and one sister.

Rites Held At Stephen For Mrs. Hamberg

Funeral services for Mrs. Gunda P. Hamberg, 83, of this city were held Thursday, December 27, at 10 a.m., at the Salem Lutheran church, rural Stephen. Mrs. Hamberg died Monday morning, December 24, at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Henry Moyer and Rev. Don Knutson officiated at the services. Mrs. Bruce Jensen and Ivar Anderson were the vocalists and Mrs. Casmir Troska, the organist. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were grandsons: Donald Merdink, William Hamberg, Mark Hamberg, Robert Jensen, Jerry Jensen and Michael Hvidsten.

Mrs. Hamberg, the former Gunda Pauline Nelson was born Feb. 26, 1896 at Chippewa Falls, Wis. to Anton and Kristine Nelson. In 1902, she moved with her family to Huss township, Roseau county, near Strathcona. There she attended school and grew to womanhood.

On April 2, 1913, she was married to Jons Emanual Hamberg at Roseau. The couple farmed in Nelson Park township, Marshall county, near Strandquist. After the death of her husband in August of 1959, Mrs. Hamberg continued to live on the farm until 1969, when she moved to Thief River Falls.

She was a member of the Salem Lutheran church, rural Stephen.

Surviving are three sons: Nels Hamberg, Horace, N.D., Roy, Staples; and Harry, Thief River Falls; five daughters: Nan Hamberg and Mrs. Orville (Verna) Hvidsten, both of Thief River Falls; Mrs. Donald (Ann) Merdink and Mrs. Norman (Ruby) Jensen, both of Stephen, and Mrs. Grace Johnson, Colorado Springs, Colo.; 30 grandchildren, 39 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

Also surviving are two brothers: William Remul, Chippewa Falls, Wis.; and Anneus Nelson, Middle River; a sister, Mrs. Arvid (Gladys) Erickson, Kennedy; a step-brother, Clarence Christianson, Burt, Mich.; and a step-sister, Gena Nelson, Calif.

One daughter, three brothers, two sisters and a step-brother preceded her in death.

Funeral services for Mrs. George Schimming were held Wednesday, December 26, at 2 p.m., at Our Savior's Lutheran church at Thief Lake with Rev. Robert Amundson officiating. Vocal selections were by Mrs. Cordell Wiskow with Mrs. Curtis Wiskow as accompanist. Mrs. Hjalmer Hanson served as organist. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Collins Funeral home, Middle River, in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were granddaughters: Julia Antikainen, Nancy Gilson, Sharon Ethun, Nola Wallace, Rena Wallace, JoAnn Wallace, Karla Wallace, Bonnie Wiskow and Becky Wiskow.

Serving as active pallbearers were Dayle Louise Gilson, David Leslie Gilson, Scott James Gilson, Steven Charles Mankenberg, Lewis George Wallace, Logan Lee Wallace, Dean Ethun, Thomas Harold Antikainen and Thomas Wallace.

Mrs. Schimming, the former Clara Eliza Hoeger, was born Sept. 26, 1905 at Maynard, Iowa to Fred and Anna Hoeger. She attended school and grew to womanhood in Iowa. On April 4, 1930, she was united in marriage to George Schimming at Maynard. Following their marriage, the couple moved to Minnesota where they farmed at Princeton until 1943, when they moved to Pine River. There they resided for 23 years. In June of 1966, they moved to a farm in Thief Lake Township, Marshall county, near Middle River, where they have since made their home.

Mrs. Schimming was a member of Our Savior's Lutheran Church of Thief Lake.

She is survived by her husband, four daughters: Mrs. Helen Mankenberg, Alexandria; Mrs. Doyle (Agnes) Gilson, Silver Bay, Mrs. Ray (Elsie) Wallace, Middle River; and Mrs. Cordell (Lucille) Wiskow, Strathcona, 15 grandchildren, one great-grandson; a sister, Mrs. George (Dora) Youmans, Westgate, Iowa; and two brothers: Herbert Hoeger, Maynard, Iowa, and Herman of Westgate, Iowa.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her stepmother, a son-in-law, one brother and two sisters.

Mrs. McGovern Dies Dec. 25 At Wahpeton

Mrs. Albert (Florence) McGovern, 78, a former resident of Thief River Falls, died Christmas Day at Wahpeton, N.D.

Funeral services for Mrs. McGovern were held Friday at Wahpeton with the Vertin's Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. McGovern, the former Florence Connolly, was born April 12, 1901 at Wahpeton, N.D. She was married to Albert McGovern in [illegible]. The couple moved to Thief River Falls where both were employed by Montgomery Ward. In [illegible], they were transferred to Sioux City, Iowa where Mrs. McGovern remained with Ward's until her retirement in 1966. Since then she had made her home at Wahpeton.

She is survived by one daughter Mrs. Glenn (Maxine) Lendobeja, Milwaukee, Wis.; six grandchildren, one great-grandchild, a sister, Muriel Connolly, Wahpeton, and two brothers, Tom and John Connolly.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in 1962, and a son, Jerry, who died in 1977.

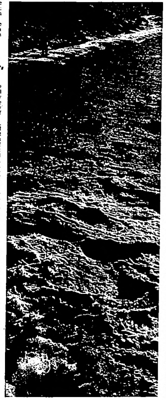
THIEF RIVER FALLS

UNABLE TO SUPPORT the weight of the frost when this photo was taken were these two small trees along highway one east in Thief River Falls. Frost created a picturesque scene throughout the city Friday afternoon which became more vivid as the fog lifted and the sun peeked through the frosty branches.



CHURNING WATER below the municipal power plant dam in Thief River didn't deter these fisherpeople from standing on a shelf of ice to try their luck Friday. The man and woman took advantage of warm weather to cast lures into the open water, but fish didn't seem to be cooperating. Across the river, two men and a dog perched on the brink of a similar ice ledge to try their luck — seemingly at both fishing and survival.

Services Held At Radium For Wm. Potucek

William J. Potucek, 69, of rural Warren, father of Mrs. Robert Horien of this city, died unexpectedly on Wednesday at his home in Comstock township, Marshall county.

Funeral services for William J. Potucek were held Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Immanuel Lutheran church at Radium with Rev. Paul Presinger officiating. Music included a solo by Earl McGregor and a duet by Jon Potucek and Beverly Potucek. Mrs. Gordon Summers served as organist. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery at Warren. The Quanrud Funeral home, Warren is in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Arthur Lall, Jim Olson, Sig Nygaard, Archie Anderson, Hugo Gehrls, Vic Mortenson and Joe McGregor.

Serving as active pallbearers were Vernon Potucek, Wallace Potucek, Jack Robertson, Wilbert McGregor, Paul Morken and John Potucek.

William J. Potucek was born Dec. 21, 1910 in Comstock township, Marshall county where he spent his lifetime farming near Radium. He was a longtime member of the Immanuel Lutheran church of Radium.

He was married on June 11, 1933 at Viking to Minnie Sorenson. She survives.

Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Robert (Barbara) Horien of this city, a son, Jimmie Potucek of Warren; two grandchildren, Ricky and Randy Horien, both of Thief River Falls, and two sisters: Mrs. Earl (Alice) Cox, Greeley, Colo., and Mrs. Adolph (Gladys) Stromback of Pine River.

He was preceded in death by his parents, a daughter, who died in infancy, two brothers: Albert and Art, a sister, Tillie Johnson; and a step-sister, Louise Vansek.

Services Held For Seymore T. Nelson, 68

Funeral services for Seymore Nelson, 67, a lifetime resident of Adger township, Marshall county, were held Friday at 10 a.m., at the Silver Creek Lutheran church. Nelson died unexpectedly on Monday, December 24. He was stricken at home and was dead on arrival at Northwestern hospital.

Officiating at the services were Pastors Richard and Nancy Lund. Vocal selections were two duets by Mrs. Carmen Gustafson and Mrs. Grace Jorde with Mrs. Gustafson serving as organist. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Ray Barth, Wallace Boman, Leslie Nelson, Roger Rupprecht, Roy Nelson and Glenn Knutson.

Seymore Tracey Nelson, a son of the late Christ and Josephine Bendickson Nelson, was born June 10, 1912 in Adger township, Marshall county. He was baptized in the Bethlehem Lutheran church, confirmed at Silver Creek Lutheran church and attended the Sunnyside school in Adger township.

On June 30, 1932, he was united in marriage to Ethel Kappedal in Thief River Falls. The couple have since lived and farmed in Adger township. Nelson was also employed for many years at the American Crystal plant in East Grand Forks. He retired in 1973.

He is survived by his wife, four daughters: Mrs. Albert (Gloria) Cleven, Grygla; Mrs. Robert (Beverly) Pietrowski, Shakopee; Mrs. Lyle (Shirley) Hegrenes, Auburn, Wash.; and Mrs. Ronald (Elaine) Abbott, Wabeno, Wis.; four sons: Howard, Vernon, Richard and Glenn Nelson, all of Thief River Falls; 22 grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and two sisters: Mrs. Ray (Sybil) Knutson and Mrs. Herman (Allie) Witt, both of Thief River Falls.

He was preceded in death by two granddaughters, five brothers: Neil, Harvey, Lloyd, Clifford and Veral; and a sister, Edith Miles.

Services Held Saturday For Clifford Myrin

Clifford N. Myrin, 68, a lifetime resident of Thief River Falls, died Thursday morning at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Clifford Myrin were held Saturday at 2 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church with Rev. Berton Hushagen officiating. Mrs. Walter M. Larson was the organist and Mrs. Gordon Peterson, soloist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Raymond Johnson, Millard Nelson, Norman Myrin, Kenneth Sanders, J. Richard Sanders and Emil Swanson.

Clifford Norman Myrin was born Oct. 13, 1911 in North township, Pennington county, to Nils and Anna Bjerke Myrin. He was baptized and confirmed at Trinity Lutheran church and attended school here, graduating from Lincoln high school with the class of 1930. He was employed at various places, including Rolland's Meat Market, Narverud Cleaners, the Soo Line Railroad, Erickson-Lund Funeral home, and the L. B. Hartz warehouse where he was employed for many years as billing clerk. He retired in 1975.

He was a member of Trinity Lutheran church and the Fraternal Order of Odd Fellows where he was the lodge's financial secretary.

He was a former member of the Eagles.

He was married Nov. 5, 1939 at Bemidji to Marguerite French. She survives.

Also surviving are a son, Norman Myrin, Minneapolis; three daughters: Jacquelyn Myrin-Maurstad, Minneapolis; Kathleen Zimmerman, Cloquet; and Carole Cleary, Perris, Calif.; six grandchildren, three sisters: Myrtle Myrin and Ethel Sanders, both of Thief River Falls, and Laurel Blasjo, Santa Barbara, Calif.; and a brother, Vernon Myrin, Roseburg, Ore.

He was preceded in death by his parents and four brothers: Millard, Arthur, Irwin and Errol.

Dear friends,

A public funeral allows the community to offer its support and share the sorrow of the bereaved family. A renowned pastoral psychologist suggests "the funeral and varied events that surround the ceremony are for those who live on." A private funeral arbitrarily shuts out many relatives, friends, and associates who sincerely wish to bring comfort to the bereaved.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

District Five Meeting To Be Held Jan. 10th

Elections, reports and an informative program will constitute the agenda for Wisconsin Feeder Pig marketing cooperative's District 5 meeting at Holiday Inn, Moorhead, Minn., Jan. 10th.

Co-op Board of Directors' District 5 representative Eugene Halama will conduct the Moorhead meeting.

In order to equalize membership in the co-op's seven districts, many changes were made at the recent districting committee meeting.

Wisconsin now has four districts... formerly five, and Minnesota's two districts have been increased to three. District 5 was formerly composed of Wisconsin members.

Counties included in the new District 5 are: Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Clay, Clearwater, Hubbard, Itasca, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Koochiching, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Roseau, Wadena, Wilkin, Minnesota and the States of North and South Dakota. The district has 279 cooperative members.

Co-op members may attend any convenient meeting but are only eligible to vote in the district in which they live.

District 5 meeting will open with a movie at 10 a.m. During the morning business session Mr. Halama will present the Director's report and Co-op General Manager Paul Schink will speak. Harold Smith, co-op Controller and Assistant to the General Manager, will summarize the organization's annual statement. Members Relations manager Bruce Kornely will speak on "What's New at the Farmacy?"

Seven members will be elected to the advisory board. These members will serve as delegates to the co-op's annual meeting at Stevens Point, Wis., February 16th. Additional delegates will also be named. District representatives to the Resolution and Districting committees will also be elected.

Following the noon dinner, co-op members will hear Dr. James Staryer of the Continental Animal Health co., Omaha, Neb., speak on "Management and Control of Atrophic Rhinitis." Continental is the only industry producing federally approved Atrophic Rhinitis bacterin.

Sixty-six District 5 members will be awarded achievement certificates in the co-op's "300 Plus club." These members will be honored for having produced and marketed 300 or more feeder pigs through the co-op during the past year.

District 5 members who will receive trophies for marketing over 1,000 pigs are: Lloyd Dahlberg of Hawley, who marketed 1,255 pigs; Dennis Simonson, Rt. 1, Fosston, 1,214 pigs; Walter Richtsmeier, Galesburg, N.D., 1,136 pigs; and Lloyd Sjostrom, Rt. 2, Jamestown, 1,411 pigs.

Members receiving "300 Plus Club" certificates include: Cecil Bergquist, Rt. 1, Detroit Lakes; Tony and Roy Beck Jr., Rt. 1, Menahga; Wallace Danielson, Rt. 1, Callaway; Dennis McKenzie, Rt. 2, Detroit Lakes; Dale Marvel, Rt. 1, Audubon; Lawrence Revier, Rt. 2, Waubun; Roger Winter Rt. 1, Callaway; Peter Davison, Rt. 1, Backus; Jim Hammann, Rt. 1, Pine River; Art Swanson, Rt. 1, Cass Lake; Bill Tulenchik and Gary Tulenchik, Rt. 78, Pine River; Ronald Butenhoff, Barnesville; Alden Hough and Merle Nelson, Rt. 2, Barnesville; and Stanley Miller, Rt. 1, Lake Park.

Also joining the "300 Plus club" will be: Edwin Merseth, Rt. 1, Clearbrook; Leo Hensel, Itasca Star Route, Park Rapids; Coralyn or Marvin Lempola, Rt. 2, Park Rapids; Rodney Sletten, LaPorte; James Choe, Rt. 1, Lengby; Albert Jirik, Rt. 1, Waubun; Daryl Johnson, Rt. 1, Mahnomen; Ronald Pavek, Rt. 1, Waubun; Arnold Donarski, Rt. 2, Argyle; Fred Berhow, Rt. 2, Fertile; Charles Ihrke, Rt. 1, Lengby; Roger Schmit, Rt. 1, Trail; D-K Farms, Inc. and Hlucny Bros., Greenbush; Marc Novacek, Rt. 2, Greenbush, Minn.

Concluding the list of members to be recognized are: Donald Campbell, Rt. 3, Verndale; Donald Quale, Rt. 3, Wadena; Alva Robinson and Peter Uselman, Rt. 1, Sebeka; Anthony Snyder, Rt. 2, Staples; E. Paul Wicht, Rt. 3, Verndale; Mike Albertson, Robert and Paul Ehlert and Ronald Ehlert, Foxhome; James Braton and Michael Kava, Rt. 2, Barnesville, Minn.; Ray Arbuckle & Sons, Valley City; Gordon Sonsthagen Litchville; David Burchill, Hunter; George Johnson, Fullerton; Tom Voller, Strasburg; Ira Peterson, Rt. 2, Thompson; Dennis Just, Berlin; Howard Lahlum, Marion; Allen Hammond, Napoleon; Allen Kleingartner, Gackle; Neil Schott, Alfred; Ronald Meidenger, Fredonia; Charles Weber, Michigan; Elijah Ranch, Lisbon; Kenneth Evanger, Kief; Makin Bacon Farm, Pork Chop Acres and Soupir Bros., Courtenay; and Radebaugh Farm, Grandin, N.D.

Wisconsin Feeder Pig Marketing Co-op markets feeder pigs nationally through private treaty procurement and various sales programs in Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota.

Main headquarters are at Francis Creek, Wis. and the Minnesota Division headquarters are at Sauk Centre.

Dairy Days At Winter Shows, Crookston

Dairy Day activities at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston, will include the open class dairy cattle judging, District Holstein show and finish with an Honored Dairymen's banquet in the evening, according to George Marx, chairman of the Dairy Day committee.

This year Dairy Day will be (Friday) Feb. 22, and will be a special day for dairymen in the Red River Valley. Judging will begin at 8:30 a.m. and will continue throughout the day. Loren Olson, dairy cattle breeder of Hutchinson, Minnesota, will be the official judge.

Blake Peterson, extension director from Roseau county, will serve as superintendent of the show and Howard Person, extension agent, Pennington county, will clerk the show. Northwest Dairy Princess, Tracy Foldesi, Greenbush, will award the ribbons and trophies during the show.

Honored Dairymen's Banquet will be held at 7 p.m. at the Eagles hall in Crookston. Each county in the Red River Valley will be represented by an outstanding dairy couple who will be honored at the banquet. Banquet is sponsored by the Red River Valley Dairymen's association. Past recipients of the Honored Dairymen's award are especially invited to attend, according to Marlan Augustine, president of the organization. Awards, plaques and trophies will be presented to the dairy show winners at this banquet. Tickets for the banquet will be available all day in the main Winter Shows arena or at the Eagles hall in Crookston, Feb. 22, until the time of the banquet that evening.

Dairy producers and those associated with the Dairy business are especially invited to attend these events (Friday) Feb. 22 at the Red River Valley winter shows.

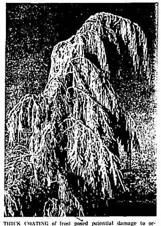
PINE TREES offer some of the most spectacular scenery when heavy frost comes to the north country. These beautiful boughs were on plantings along the roadway of highway 11 between Roseau and Greenbush.



THICK COATING of frost posed potential damage to ornamental trees such as this birch. Although the coating was spectacularly beautiful, the weight on frozen branches and slender trunks provided a heavy burden as indicated by the drooping tree above.

Publish Book On Making Toys From "Trash"

Egg cartons... milk cartons... tin cans. All this "junk" is being thrown away when it could be used for toys that are inexpensive, educational, safe, fun to make and fun to use.

A book has recently been released called "Teachables from Trashables," published by Toys 'n Things in St. Paul, a non-profit agency dedicated to supporting people who care for young children. The book gives 60 ideas to turn household "junk" into toys kids will love.

The book explains what junk to save, step-by-step directions on how to make a toy, how to make the toy safe, what age group the toy is best suited for, how to use the toy and what areas of growth are developed when the toy is used.

For more information about "Teachables from Trashables," contact Toys 'n Things (612-488-7284) at 906 Dale St. N., St. Paul, MN. 55103.

Dairy Day Earlier Than Usual This Year

This year Dairy Day is earlier than the usual late spring date. Annual Northwest Experiment Station Dairy Day will be held on Tuesday, January 15. Registration with refreshments will begin at 9:45 a.m. with the program starting at 10 a.m. Dairy refreshments are compliments of Minnesota ADA.

Program will highlight some of the new developments in dairying. E. C. Miller, Agricultural Engineer at the Northwest Experiment Station, will discuss "Utilizing Solar Energy in Dairying" and the future outlook of energy for agriculture. He will relate present studies with solar energy in the dairy confinement slatted-floor barn at the Northwest Experiment Station. Sheldon Erickson, a dairyman from Badger, MN, will speak on the "Breeding and Management of a Successful Dairy Herd". Sheldon is a University of Minnesota dairy graduate with a B.S. degree and is a leader in the dairy industry in northwestern Minnesota.

An international speaker will also be on the program this year, Dr. Ray Ingalls from the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, will discuss many of the new developments in dairy cattle nutrition. Most of his research work is conducted at the Glen Lea Station and much of this research is relevant to northern Minnesota because of the proximity of this Manitoba Station located just 140 miles north of Crookston.

Dr. Ralph Farnsworth, DVM and mastitis researcher at the University of Minnesota, will talk on "The Relationship of the Milking Machine to Mastitis". Incomplete milking due to a malfunctioning milking machine can result in mastitis. He will describe the effect of "slips" or air leakage between the teat and teat cup and how it influences the incidence of mastitis. Data will also be presented regarding the cause of teat erosions or damaged teat ends; rings on the end of teats appear to be associated more with inadequate milking procedure than with normal machine operation.

Dr. Robert Appleman will discuss the subject of how to "Analyze Your Own Milking System to Minimize Mastitis". He will illustrate how dairymen, with only an accurate vacuum gauge and a watch equipped with a second hand, can check (a) vacuum level, (b) vacuum system recovery capacity when sudden leaks occur, and (c) pulsator operation. Further, he will provide 10 tips on selection and care of liners or inflations.

1980 Minnesota dairy report will be given to all of those attending. This 40-page booklet includes dairy research from all the branch Experiment Stations and the St. Paul Coordinate Station. A noon luncheon is available. Tours of the dairy facilities will follow the program which will be concluded by 3 p.m.

A similar Dairy Day program will be held at Bagley, Minnesota on Monday, January 14.

Form Ass'n. For Former CCC Members

Persons who served in the civilian conservation corps (CCC) camps from 1933 to 1942 might be interested in an organization of former CCC members which has been established in California.

Jack Vincent of 1709 Michigan, West Sacramento, Calif. 95691 is trying to locate as many former CCC participants as possible. Last summer some 500 former members of the CCC from 39 states met in West Sacramento and organized the National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni (NACCCA). Further information is available from Vincent at the above address. His phone number is (916) 372-5858.

4-H News

Holt 4-H

Holt 4-H met on December 27 at the Holt village hall. President Tim Kjensrud called the meeting to order. Flag pledges were said and roll call was answered by singing a line of favorite Christmas carols. Secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved. Mr. and Mrs. John Haglund received their first year leadership certificates.

Items in the Newsletter were discussed. It was announced that the next federation meeting will be in Newfolden on January 28, with the radio speaking contest being held at that time. Yearly programs were handed out to each family. It was also announced that any member of our club that is interested in playing softball in the spring is required to attend at least three 4-H meetings.

James Moe gave a project talk on junior leadership, Daniel Haglund gave a project talk on entomology, and Joyce Haglund gave a demonstration on Arts and Crafts. There was a reading given by Karen Kjensrud entitled "I Love Christmas." Christmas carols were sung and games were played. Gifts were exchanged and lunch was served.

The next meeting will be on January 27 at 2 p.m. at the Holt village hall, with James Garthus as program chairman. Bill and Bob Castle will provide the music. Project talks and demonstrations will be presented by Eric Kjensrud, Tim Kjensrud, Barbara Garthus and Wayne Garthus. Twenty-one members, three visitors and eight parents were in attendance at the meeting.

City View

City View 4-H club was brought to order by president Nanci Kezar on December 17 at the city auditorium. Flag pledges were said and roll call was taken by answering "Who's your favorite Santa?" Secretary's and treasurer's reports were given with no additions or corrections.

There was no old business so we went right to the new business. We are giving the Rivera family a $50 check for Christmas because Roger, a member of our club, is in the hospital and has had five major brain surgeries.

We will be having a sledding party during Christmas vacation. There will be a workshop for all horse members January 16, 1980. This workshop is also for gardening members. There is a share-the-fun workshop set for January 23, 1980 in Crookston.

The 4-H club went Christmas caroling at the CNC unit at the hospital before the 4-H meeting on December 17.

Nanci Kezar gave slides on her eight-week trip to Alaska.

Social Security Men Here Tues.

Ted Hoversten and Neil Rowe, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office will be in Thief River Falls at the City Auditorium, Tuesday, January 8 from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

If you didn't enroll for the medical part of Medicare when you became eligible, you have another opportunity to sign up. There's an open enrollment period for 3 months starting January 1. You can also sign up for medical insurance at that time if you had coverage once and canceled it. Just get in touch with any social security office anytime during the first 3 months of the year. Someone there will be glad to help you.

Income Tax Help Available For TTY Users

Minnesota Department of Revenue offers a special tax service for persons with hearing or speech impairments. This TTY service is offered year round and answers tax questions, responds to inquiries about correspondence and takes orders for forms and publications. This service is the same as that provided for hearing tax payers.

Telephone number of the TTY tax service is (612) 297-2196. Because of a lack of equipment, there is no toll-free number and persons calling from outside the Twin Cities will have to pay the long distance charges.

Cost of special purpose communication equipment (such as TTY devices) may be deducted on federal and state income tax returns. To get more information on locating teletype equipment, persons with hearing impairments should contact First Call for Help of the United Way in Minneapolis, 340-7431, or the Know Phone of the Community Planning organization in St. Paul, 291-8393.

Airport Support

Expansion and improvement of the international airport at Baudette was attacked in a letter to the editor of the Baudette Region, causing the editor to come to the defense of the project. Much of what he said relates to airports and communities everywhere.

"While it is true that few can afford to own airplanes," the editorial states, "the maintenance of one of the most vital transportation links in this remote area is an issue that in the long run should benefit virtually everyone.

". . .While Baudette is served by an adequate highway system, the one railway into the area is Canadian. The one bus line is Canadian. There is no river transport, and virtually the only American-controlled method of transportation, other than roads, is the airport. The future of the airport could well determine the future of the area. The adequacy of the facility could determine whether or not a firm might locate in this area."

At Thief River Falls we have been fortunate that improvements — vast, far reaching improvements — have been made to our airport. New buildings, longer and stronger runways, surfaced apron and taxiways, better lighting — all are important to the community and to the area. Such changes have not happened by mere accident or good fortune. They came about as a result of interested, far-sighted people who wouldn't accept deferment or defeat and who took advantage of opportunity when it came to the door.

The Baudette editor points out that airport maintenance from the city and county amounts to only $5,000 a year — $2,500 from each government entity. He calls it a drop in the bucket compared with the cost of, for example, maintaining one rural county road. And he points out that federal funds coming to the community for airport work are produced largely by taxes that airport users pay themselves.

Having been "marooned" in Baudette some years ago when a car broke down during a vacation trip in the area, we can understand the need for public transportation facilities. Not only was it impossible for the non-motorist to get into that city, we would remind the editor, it was also impossible to get out.

Sample The Ingredients

Political pots are beginning to boil although the meal won't be served until the November 1980 elections. Now is the time before the stew gets too thick, to sample the ingredients for quality. Question the candidates.

A new group has been formed in the Twin Cities area called the Minnesota Gun Owners' Political Victory Fund". Active in the organization are some the same people who have carried on the active non-partisan program of the Committee for Effective Crime Control. The victory fund is being established as a political action group to secure election of candidates favoring the right to keep and bear arms and defeat of candidates favoring gun control.

In an open letter to sportsmen in Minnesota, the Minnesota Gun Owners' Political Victory Fund chairman, LaRue Tweedy, stated the following:

The politicians have played some pretty nasty tricks on Minnesota's gun owners in the last few years.

"They said they wanted a permit system to keep criminals from carrying guns. Result — You can't get a permit. Honest citizens are classified as the largest group of prohibited persons.

"They said they needed to check out questionable buyers of handguns from dealers. Result — You get hassled but they rarely discover a prohibited person, much less prosecute or convict him. Your tax dollars are wasted on a very marginal approach to crime in the forlorn hope that the 1 in each 25,670 handguns used in Minnesota murders, as of 1976, will be acquired according to the law and interdicted.

"They said the bad features of the laws were compensated for in the redeeming feature of mandatory sentences for criminals who used guns in crime. Result — The parts of the law which hurt you are tightly written and this part wasn't, leaving it unenforceable or unenforced. Have you ever heard of the mandatory sentencing section used in this state? Now that the bills are law, where are all those newspaper reports about socking it to the criminal?

"And the politicians want more and more. They think that the way to fight crime is to take away citizens' rights. Instead of learning from their mistakes they want to repeat them on a more massive scale. The attorney general has promised to come back for more. He'll keep coming back until he gets the 90 to 95 per cent handgun confiscation which he demanded on Jan. 12, 1970. (Documentation and sworn affidavits are available.)

"Do you want to fight the anti-gun politicians now or after they're elected?

"Instead of just talking a good fight, you can do something about future threats to your rights. Since anti-gun bills tended to pass in the last two legislative sessions by only single-vote margins over the prescribed majority necessary for passage, the change of a few votes can make a big difference. You can't change the past vote, but you can change the politicians who did this to YOU."

The Spending Frenzy

Following editorial is from the Daily Olympian in Olympia, Wash.:

On the final day of the 1977 fiscal year, the defense department's administrative support center ordered more than $119,000 worth of magazine subscriptions for the next year:

It was not that the defenders of our country were so interested in reading during the coming year, they were merely engaged in the old bureaucratic game of spending every available dollar before the close of the fiscal year.

The rationale behind this dumping of dollars is easy to understand, but hard to accept. Congress annually authorizes and appropriates a budget for each federal department and agency. In most cases, a money that remains unspent at the end of the fiscal year, Sept. 30, automatically reverts to the treasury department's general fund.

The government office that doesn't expend the maximum it is allowed risks having its budget cut for future fiscal years. The prospect of a budget cut scares every bureaucrat from the heat of the nation's largest agency right on down to your state, county, school or local district.

According to Rep. Herbert E. Harris II, D-Va., the department of housing and urban development last year obligated more than 40 per cent, $18 billion, of its entire annual appropriation in the fiscal month of the fiscal year.

The National Taxpayers union says the treasury department's own statistics show that in the 1978 fiscal year spending averaged $44.7 billion a month, but in the closing months, September, "spending skyrocketed to $86.2 billion, almost twice the monthly average."

Behind the incomprehensively large numbers are some individual cases of incredible waste and mismanagement.

At the end of the fiscal 1978, the department of health, education and welfare dumped $184,000 into a contract with a consulting firm to study waste in the administration of the welfare system.

The consultants' proposal was written in less than 24 hours and the award was made without competitive bidding.

Federal officials are not investigating complaints that four consulting firm employees collected $29,000 by billing the government for 83 days in which they did no work for the project.

In the closing months of fiscal 1978, HUD's Denver office spent more than $87,000 on furniture. Almost a year later, investigators found more than $65,000 worth of the furniture still sitting in warehouses.

Former Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal warns that if some way can't be found to stop the year-end dumping of dollars, it will continue to cost the taxpayers "literally a couple of billion dollars a year."

That doesn't include the year-end spending frenzy by state and local branches of government.

Perhaps Congress ought to reverse the field; give the same or increased budgets only to those agencies that were able to save during the preceding fiscal year.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Why don't you get a job?"

"Why?"

"You could save some money and put it in the bank."

"Why?"

"When you had saved enough, you wouldn't have to work."

"I'm not working now."

Some tasks have to be put off dozens of times before they'll slip the mind completely.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Recently a certain letter to the editor criticized Northland college. I fear that this may be spreading a one-sided view stressing Northland's faults. Since I transfered to the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, I found the teaching at the U of M no better than that at Northland.

There are certain reasons for this. First, there are the smaller classes at Northland. I found that I learn much more in small classes. There is greater eye-contact with the teacher, closer proximity to the teacher, a greater amount of homework the teacher can give and correct, and more individualized help. The results of this are striking. After three quarters of music theory at Northland, I took the first quarter of sophomore theory at the University of Minnesota. There were four pupils in my class at Northland and about 35 at the University of Minnesota. Most of the things we studied at the University of Minnesota I had had already at Northland. Moreover, at the end of the fall quarter at the U of M, we still had not advanced as far in ear-training as we had at Northland.

Second, at Northland there are no T.A.'s. T.A.'s are graduate students who teach undergraduates. Sometimes they are very good teachers, but oftentimes they seem inexperienced and think they have to know everything. Northland is fortunate not to have any.

Third, the teachers one get in his first two years at the university are not any better than at Northland. People who go to the university as a freshman or sophomore to get teachers who have PhD's will probably be disappointed. I have not had a class from a PhD yet. As for teaching ability, I have not had anyone who can surpass the clarity with which many of the Northland teachers explain their sugjects.

Northland does have its faults. I could write a letter about them too. But Northland also has its virtues. For many people it can provide a valuable education. I know this from experience, not from hearsay.

Sincerely,
Karl Dalager

December 23, 1979

Dear Mr. Lundin,

1979 has been designated as The Year of the Child. As the year draws to a close, have we been listening?

We know that our children give us reason for living and are our hope for the future. Yet, at this time of the year when we come again to worship the King who came so long ago in Bethlehem, as a child, we seem to have forgotten all about the PEACE, LOVE and JOY that can be ours in a community bound together by one common love — our children.

It makes me sad to know that so much time, patience, and money has been wasted "bickering" over what most of us feel is a reasonable pay raise for our teachers.

When we came to this town 23 years ago with three school age boys, we were delighted to find a fine school system staffed with good dedicated teachers who were paid an adequate salary. Parents, teachers and children lived in comparative peace. And the schools flourished!

We are thankful that the Thief River schools produced from our family (and from many other families, as well) three boys who went on to excell in scholarship and three prestigious colleges and graduate schools, and are now out on their own. As teachers!

Now we are faced with inflation, and all the problems that come with "tight" money.

I don't like to be "picky" but — where are our priorities? When I see the parking lots around our many "clubs" crowded night after night, I wonder what would happen if we all stayed home once in awhile and used our money for something lasting — a good education for our children?

Never before in my life, have I ever written a letter like this, but as we come to Christmas, the time for "peace on earth, good will to men" and there is neither peace nor good will in our town, I just can't be quiet!

Please, let's get together, support our schools and their teachers and give them the sense of worth they deserve!

Peace!
Mrs. Arnt (Adeline) Aune

Zoo Features Cross Country Skiing Program

Cross country skiing has gone wild at the Minnesota Zoo. This unique ski program, traversing six miles of track, offers visitors a variety of skiing terrain and the opportunity to see rare Northern Hemisphere animals displaying their winter behavior.

The see-and-ski events will begin at the Bear ski center and continue past musk oxen, Asiatic wild horses, Bactrian camels, moose, Siberian tigers, then through the zoo's natural hillsides, ponds and marshes and end circling the indigenous Minnesota exhibit animals.

Trails are marked with interpretive signs that will enlighten skiers about the various Minnesota animal tracks, trees and environmental highlights.

Volunteer and staff naturalists will give guided tours of the exhibited animals and natural wildlife on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

Ski rental, storage and accessories are available along with warm-up food at the ski center.

When the skiing tour is over, visitors can tour the zoo and the largest apres ski warming house in the world — the tropics building.

There is no extra charge for the use of the ski program. Admission rates are: 17 and over $3; 12-16 $1.50; 6-11 $1; 62 and over $1.50; and children under six are admitted free. Discount group rates are available.

Bring yyour skis and come to life at the Minnesota Zoo, just 20 miles south of the Twin Cities in Apple Valley.

STAYING IN TOUCH!

Happy Holidays:

Another year has come and gone and it is time once again to reflect on the year and what it has meant in our lives. I hope for you and your family 1979 has been joyous and will live happily in your memories forever.

Almost since the beginning of recorded history, nearly all of the world's great civilizations and their major religions have recognized the end of the calendar year as a time to seek a greater closeness to God and to reaffirm the role He plays in our lives. Personally, I view this time as one in which we should enjoy our friends and families and the love we have to offer each other by celebrating the birth of our Saviour.

This year, however, is a little different from most because of the sorrow we all feel in our hearts for the hostages in Iran and their families here at home. I hope during this holiday season you will remember them in your thoughts and prayers because, as Americans, we must remain unified in our efforts to secure their release.

I was surprised recently when the President decided not to light the National Christmas Tree as a sign of national unity and support for the hostages in Iran. This is the first time in 56 years that the tree has not displayed the Christmas spirit to the fullest and I applaud the President's decision to keep it dark until the hostages are returned safely to the United States. Americans in every corner of this great country are holding back their anger and frustration and rallying behind the President and his efforts and I believe we must remain unified, not only as a country, but also as a religious people.

I sincerely hope you enjoy a very happy holiday season and a healthy and joyous 1980. As you worship the birth of our Lord and Saviour this holiday season, please remember the hostages and their families in your prayers.

God bless you. Merry Christmas and the happiest of New Years.

Hog Inventory Highest Since 1944 In Minn.

Minnesota hog producers reported 4.9 million hogs and pigs on hand on December 1, the highest inventory for December 1 since 1944. Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service announced that inventories are 20 per cent above a year earlier and seven per cent above last quarter. The breeding inventory shows a 12 per cent increase from last year and a three per cent increase from last quarter.

Market hogs accounted for 84 per cent of the total. The 14 quarterly states with 56.8 million head on December 1 are up 11 per cent from a year earlier and 18 per cent above December 1, 1977. These 14 states account for approximately 85 per cent of the total U.S. hog and pig inventory.

The September-November pig crop is estimated at 2.0 million head, 11 per cent above a year ago but six per cent below last quarter. The pig crop and farrowings are the largest for the September-November quarter since records began in 1962.

Producers reported 270,000 sows farrowed with an average of 7.35 pigs per litter compared to 245,000 sows and 7.30 pigs per litter a year ago. In the 14 quarterly states, the September-November pig crop of 21.5 million head increased eight per cent from the same period during 1978.

Producers in the state reported they intend to farrow 270,000 and 325,000 sows in the next two quarters. These would be increases of eight and twelve per cent from the previous year. Expectations in the 13 quarterly states show farrowings during the December 1979-May 1980 period at about the same number as a year ago and 19 per cent above two years ago.

More Exhibits At Mpls. Farm Show In Jan.

Fourth Northern farm show January 18 and 19 at the Minneapolis auditorium will feature more manufacturer exhibitors, according to Bill Ryden, show manager. Ryden stated, "The expanded number of exhibitors is possible through a redesign of the exhibit space arrangement to facilitate larger crowds and make it easier for farmers to visit with factory representatives. There will also be some new display area utilized. Overall we anticipate hog, beef and dairy operators will find the latest equipment and technology to assist in the operation of their livestock and crop operations."

Ryden pointed out that over 142 exhibitors, with equipment representing many manufacturers would be on display each day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. With over 100,000 square feet of display space filled with farm equipment designed for farm operators in this area there will be new machinery for the 1980s for every type of operation and operator.

Northern farm show is sponsored by the retail farm equipment assn. of Minnesota and South Dakota. Association has just under 900 farm equipment dealer members. Ryden suggested farm families contact their local implement dealer member for free tickets to the show.

Another expansion of the Northern farm show appeal to farm families will be four, "designed especially for women" programs. These special women's programs will be presented each day at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Northern farm show has retained Matilda Rupp, communication counselor, to organize and produce these four programs. Each program will feature different speakers and topics. Afternoon programs will feature panels of women addressing the important topis YOUR MONEYMATTERS! Panelists are authorities in inheritance, insurance investments and taxes and will supply ideas and information to assist farm women in financial matters. Morning sessions will feature eye-witness reports on women in China and South America and marketing of Minnesota products around the world.

Ryden reported every effort will be made to make this years Northern farm show the best place to see and compare farm machinery, meet company officials and to learn more about farming and financial matters. He pointed out the easy accessibility of 4,000 parking spaces close to the Minneapolis Auditorium. Ryden concluded everything will be handy including food, which can be obtained from the auditorium cafeteria.

USDA Increases Aid For Meals To Elderly

During the current fiscal year the U.S. department of agriculture will give a 12 per cent cost-of-living increase in donated foods and cash assistance which it provides to federally-funded elderly nutrition programs, according to assistant secretary Carol Tucker Foreman.

Agriculture department estimates that it will supply nearly $65 million in donated foods and cash to elderly nutrition programs this year — an increase from 38.5 to 43 cents per meal. Adjustment reflects the rise in the consumer price index for food away from home last year. New level of assistance applies to all meals served from October 1, 1979, to September 30, 1980.

Nutrition programs for the elderly are run by the U.S. department of health, education and welfare with the agriculture department donating food or providing cash in lieu of food to states taking part in these programs.

Last year about 150 million meals were served to people over 65 at community centers, schools, churches, or other sites convenient for the elderly. In some states hot meals were delivered to the homes of elderly people unable to come to the centers to get them.

Notice of the change will appear in the December 18 issue of the Federal Register.

Overall Income Up 40 Per Cent In Four Years

Overall income in the United States increased five times faster than incomes of food stamp householders over the past four years, according to Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services. While overall incomes increased 40 per cent during this time, incomes of food stamp recipients went up only seven per cent, she said.

As a result, food stamp households are being especially hard hit by inflation. According to a recent survey, food stamp households have an average monthly income of about $320, compared to an average monthly household income of about $1,500 in the general population.

Moreover, the poor have little to fall back on. Sixty per cent of people on food stamps have no liquid assets, and 95 per cent have assets of under $1,500, Foreman said.

Cost of necessities has risen faster than the cost of other items — rising by 34 per cent over the past four years, according to a price index for necessities. During the first nine months of 1979, the cost of medical care went up 9 per cent, food by 9.6 per cent, housing by 15 per cent and energy by 45.5 per cent.

Needy spend 90 per cent of their income on necessities (food, shelter, medical care and household utilities), while other Americans spend only about 60 per cent of their income to buy necessities.

According to Donald West of Washington State university, food stamp shoppers buy less costly food, more economical cuts of meat, fewer bakery products, and about half as many snacks as other shoppers.

Despite automatic cost-of-living increases in food stamp benefits, food stamp users have suffered from inflation in recent years — and they have suffered more than the general population, Foreman said.

Northwestern Bell Receives Report Cards

Northwestern Bell reports that its "report cards" have been returned and that the "grades" for this area have been posted.

Manager Al Bacon explained that last fall the company enclosed "report cards" with its residence customers bills. Cards provided space for customers to grade Bell on quality of service, cost of service and the way employees treated customers. There was also space where customers could write in comments or state specific problems with their telephone service.

"We are particularly interested in uncovering any minor service irritations that customers might not report unless given a specific opportunity to do so," Bacon said.

"Some 60 of the 527 total report cards returned from this area contained those types of problems, which the company has taken steps to solve.

"We have been trying to reach everyone who checked the box indicating they wanted us to call them about a problem," Bacon said. "However, we would appreciate getting a call from anyone we haven't been able to reach. Just call the number for the business office given on the telephone bill and in the front of the telephone directory."

Phillippines Benefit From Council Plan

After eight months of negotiations and planning, the National grains authority of the Philippines and the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council have reached an agreement whereby the Wheat council will supply the Philippines government organization with a mobil demonstration bakery.

This announcement came from Terry Fladeland, wheat council producer-chairman, following the council's December meeting. "The Wheat council will continue to move ahead with market development activities in an effort to gain better wheat prices for Minnesota farmers," Fladeland asserted. "This mobil demonstration bakery is a move to service what is already a major market for Dark Northern Spring wheat. We want to preserve that market in the Philippines, which already amounts to a more than 90 per cent DNS wheat importer," Fladeland stated.

Wheat council officials noted that a mobil bakery, which has the capacity to present baking demonstrations in rural areas that might otherwise not be reached, could also lead to increased sales in the Philippines. "Anytime you can effectively promote the use of a product, the reflection will come in the form of increased sales," Fladeland explained. The Minnesota wheat executive added that "A mobil bakery will teach rural Philippine housewives how to use our wheat in their baking."

Fladeland said the Philippine government has shown great interest in this project from the beginning. The mobil bakery will be used as a model project for expanding a rural development program, which the National Grains authority is putting together.

Mobile bakery will be constructed by the Itasca division of Winnebago Mobil homes corporation in Forest City, Iowa, and Fladeland said construction would begin in January. Completion and delivery are planned for early March, 1980, according to Council members.

The mobil home-type vehicle will be specially equipped for bakery demonstration purposes. "We conferred with North Dakota State University's Cereal chemistry department, and they gave helpful recommendations on how to equip the vehicle," Fladeland said.

Minnesota Wheat council president Charles Rhoades noted that this project is an exclusive Wheat council project, and comes in addition to its regular contracts for overseas market development programs.

Feeder Pig Co-opMembers Given $93,562

Paul Schink, General manager of Wisconsin Feeder Pig marketing cooperative, has announced that returns of $93,562.00 have been allocated to co-op members and patrons for the fiscal year ending Sept. 29, 1979.

Co-op's Board of directors recently voted to pay 50 per cent of the allocations to members and 20 per cent to patrons in cash amounting to $32,186.00. The remaining $61,376.00 will be in membership equities. Checks will be distributed to members at the co-op's various district meetings in January.

Wisconsin Feeder Pig marketing co-op marketed 858,250 feeder pigs during its last fiscal year of operation. This was the highest volume of pigs in the co-op's 23-year history and 10,000 more pigs than marketed in 1978.

Total dollar volume of business for the period was $37,148,617.00, the highest in the co-op's history:

Wisconsin Feeder Pig marketing co-op markets feeder pigs nationwide through private treaty contract and Tel-O-Auction sales in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and North Dakota.

Co-op feeder pig sales programs are in operation at Boltonville, Lancaster and Blue Mounds, Wis.; Sauk Centre and Perham, Minn.; and Litchville, N.D.

Wisconsin Feeder Pig marketing co-op has its main headquarters at Francis Creek and Minnesota division headquarters at Sauk Centre.

Slightly Rising Unemployment Rate In Nov.

Minnesota's unemployment rate in November was 4.4 per cent, up .8 of one per cent from October and up .9 per cent from November a year ago, Commissioner Rolf Middleton of the Minnesota Department of Economic security reported today.

Comparable national unemployment rate for November was 5.6 per cent. The state civilian labor force in November was 2,069,900, employment was 1,979,800, and the number of unemployed was 90,100.

Civilian labor force in October was 2,054,200, employment was 1,979,600, and the number of unemployed was 74,600.

In November a year ago, the civilian labor force was 2,039,500, employment was 1,968,200, and the number of unemployed was 71,400.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $285.27 in November for working an average of 39.8 hours at $7.17 per hour. In November last year, production workers averaged 40.4 hours at $6.68 per hour for average weekly earnings of $269.87.

St. Paul Theatre Granted $2,100 In Scholarships

Ten Chimera theatre performers have received scholarships totaling over $2,100 for the Actors' scholarship fund. Announcement of the awards was made recently by the Saint Paul foundation, which owns and operates the fund.

Two musicians and eight actors will use the money to pursue professional training in their fields of expertise. Brian J. Krysinski and Dean Duncan will study with members of the Minnesota orchestra, and James Toensing, Kraig Swartz, Angela Monicken, Ben McLaughlin, Nancy Lillis, Kathy Karinen, Dean Hanus and Bob Beverage will hone their acting, singing, and dancing skills with instructors and organizations throughout the Twin Cities area.

Actors' Scholarship fund was established by Chimera in 1978 to assist its volunteer performers in securing training in the varied disciplines of theatre and is supported with money raised through donations and benefit performances of Chimera productions.

Saint Paul foundation will be accepting applications for another round of scholarship awards from January 1 through February 15, 1980. Fund is open to anyone who has performed or assisted backstage at Chimera in the past two years. Potential applicants should contact The Saint Paul foundation, 1120 Northwestern National Bank building or call 224-5463 for information and applications.

Inflation price you out of a new building? Take a look at Stran.

And reconsider.

As your Authorized Stran Builder, we're very much aware of how inflation has affected the cost of building new facilities.

Costs have risen dramatically for both materials, and construction labor. That's why it makes good building sense to take a look at Stran's building systems approach. Why?

- Most of the building is fabricated in a modern manufacturing plant to take advantage of automation and more productive man-hour utilization.
- The system is designed and produced to go together fast at your job site. Saving valuable man-hours in on-site construction costs.

So before calling off your plans for a new building, call us and let's see how we can help you deflate inflation. We may have you breaking ground after all.

Unbeaten status of the Lincoln high school hockey team ended after four games Friday when Thief River Falls dropped a 5-3 game at Fargo South. A win over the Bruins would have given the Prowlers a 5-0 record and their best start since the 1967-68 season when they went 9-0-2 en route to a 16-4-2 finish that included a 3-2 Region 8 championship game loss to Roseau and a 4-1 Region 3 playoff game loss to Greenway-Coleraine.

"I didn't expect to go 20-0," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after the unexpected loss to South. "You have to have some type of hockey team to go 20-0. You have to play consistently good hockey against everybody. We didn't play anywhere near as well against South as we did against Grand Forks Red River the week before."

That 1967-68 outfit, coached by George Schlieff and led by co-captains John Womack and Kent LeMoine, skated to a 1-1 tie against an alumni team and battled Roseau to a 2-2 draw during that 11-game season-opening unbeaten streak.

A busy eight-game January schedule will be a telling factor in the success of the Prowlers' 1979-80 season. Thief River Falls will be favored to pick up a win Friday at Baudette against Lake of the Woods, but then comes a stretch of top-notch competition that will include Section 8 challengers East Grand Forks, Roseau and Warroad, along with Section 7 power Greenway-Coleraine and perennial North Dakota titlist Grand Forks Central.

East Grand Forks will be here Tues., Jan. 8, to kick off a demanding two-week run that will find the Prowlers playing Sat., Jan. 12, in Coleraine; Tues., Jan. 15, at home against Grand Forks Central; Sat., Jan. 19, at Roseau; and Tues., Jan. 22, at home against Warroad.

The month will also include rematches Fri., Jan. 25, at home against Bemidji and Tues., Jan. 29, at East Grand Forks.

That game against Greenway in Coleraine should be interesting. The Raiders came to Thief River Falls a year ago highly publicized and went home a 4-3 loser. The Prowlers are improved over a year ago, but they haven't won a road game against an Iron Range Conference opponent since the 1971-72 season when they won at Eveleth 4-1 but lost at Virginia 9-3 the next night.

Since then Thief River Falls lost 4-1 at Virginia and fell 5-1 at Grand Rapids in 1972-73; dropped a 10-2 game at Virginia in 1974-75; and fell 8-1 at Aurora-Hoyt Lakes in 1975-76.

Region 8AA Girls Basketball

Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune says Little Falls has emerged as the Region 8AA favorite in girls high school basketball.

Detroit Lakes, a February 19 Thief River Falls opponent, is expected to be among the Region 8AA leaders, but the Lakers lost a rare home court decision to Wadena 44-31 recently, and Anderson says, "It will be interesting to see how the 1979-80 Detroit Lakes high school girls basketball team reacts to defeat."

But Detroit Lakes wasn't at full strength for the game. Starting guard Patti Weldon was not in the line-up because she was attending her grandfather's funeral, and starting forward Brenda Peterson played only sparingly after suffering a twisted ankle in practice two days before the game.

"The favorite, at least the way it looks right now," said Anderson about the Region 8AA race, "has to be Little Falls. In case you hadn't noticed, Brainerd earlier this season defeated Wadena and just the other night Little Falls delivered a 71-38 defeat to that same Brainerd team."

In that Little Falls-Brainerd game, the Flyers slapped a full-court press on at the start and scored five quick baskets to build a stunning 28-0 first quarter lead.

The 1980 North Half Region 8AA girls basketball tournament will be played March 7-8 at Detroit Lakes, with the winner hosting the Region 8AA finals March 14.

Moorhead might be the Lakers biggest challenge in the North Half event. Thief River Falls, 2-2 for the year, resumes its holiday-interrupted 1979-80 schedule Tues., Jan. 8, against the Spuds in Moorhead.

Miscellaneous

+ Bemidji Pioneer's Jim Carrington called Bemidji's 6-5 come-from-behind Section 8 high school hockey win over Roseau "one of the greatest upsets in Jacks hockey history." The Rams led that one 5-1 in the first period.

+ If it's any consolation to Thief River Falls basketball fans, Bemidji coach Mel Johnson told Whitey Anderson of the Bemidji Pioneer, "Overall, I have to believe that we played our best game of the year so far," following the Lumberjacks' recent 83-71 Northwest Athletic Conference victory here over the Prowlers.

+ Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer has been selected to succeed the late Cliff Morland as a member of the WCCO radio all-state team selection board covering this part of the state. Coaches with players warranting nominations to the weekly high school honor squads are asked to submit statistics to Carrington at the Pioneer by Monday of each week.

SCORING WITH JUST 2:49 remaining, Virginia center Steve Kiuela (top photograph) beat Thief River Falls goalie Doug Odegaard to bring his team to within 4-3 in the first round game of the seventh annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat Bantam A invitational hockey tournament Friday afternoon. But with only 27 seconds remaining, Virginia's Mike Rice (bottom photograph) missed the corner of the net with what would have been the tying goal, and Thief River Falls held on for the 4-3 win.

Arctic Cat Hockey Tournament . . .

TRF Bantams Win Twice Friday

Host Thief River Falls Bantams won twice Friday in the opening day of the seventh annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat Pee-Wee A and Bantam A youth hockey tournament.

Thief River Falls Bantams opened with a 4-3 win over Virginia and closed out the first day activity in the sports arena with a 6-4 decision over St. Paul Como Area.

Other opening day scores in the three-day, two-division Bantam A tournament featuring round-robin scheduling in the sports arena found East Grand Forks beating Fergus Falls 10-1, International Falls stopped St. Paul Como Area 10-2, East Grand Forks edged the Assiniboine Park Rangers 3-2 and Grand Rapids handled Fergus Falls 10-1.

Pee-Wee A portion of the 16-team tournament, scheduled to be played in the old arena, was canceled because of the condition of the natural ice sheet.

Bantam A Saturday schedule started at 9 a.m. with Grand Rapids vs. Assiniboine Park Rangers; 11 a.m. Virginia vs. International Falls; 1 p.m. Fergus Falls vs. Assiniboine Park Rangers; 3 p.m. Virginia vs. St. Paul Como Area; 5 p.m. East Grand Forks vs. Grand Rapids; and 7 p.m. Thief River Falls vs. International Falls.

Sunday's schedule had the third place game, matching the division runner-up teams, at 9 a.m. and the championship game, matching the division champions, at 1 p.m.

TRF — St. Paul Como

Tom Kenville scored two goals in the final five minutes of the game to lift Thief River Falls to a 6-4 victory over St. Paul Como Area Friday night.

A long slap shot by St. Paul's Jeff Vanelli tied things 4-4 at 3:47 of the third period, but Kenville scored on a goal mouth tip at 10:12 while Thief River Falls was skating short-handed and then made it 6-4 with a power play goal two minutes later.

Tim Bergland and Chris Jorde also scored two goals apiece for the winners who led 3-2 at the end of the first period on the strength of a power play goal by Jorde at 13:49.

Bergland jumped on a loose puck in front of the St. Paul net to make it 4-2 at 1:23 of the second period, but Dave Kratt tipped in a power play slap shot at 12:28 for his third goal and a 4-3 game.

TRF — Virginia

Thief River Falls spotted Virginia a 2-0 first period lead before coming up with a 4-3 first round win Friday afternoon.

Virginia center Steve Kiuela scored all three goals for the losers, including a point-blank goal at 12:11 of the third period when he came in all alone on Thief River Falls goalie Doug Odegaard to make it a one-goal hockey game. But with just 27 seconds left, Virginia's Mike Rice — like Kiuela alone in front of the net — missed the corner with a potential game-tying shot.

Kiuela opened with scoring at 5:16 of the first period and made it 2-0 four minutes later when he poked in an un-

WITH BEAUTIFUL weather and equally beautiful frost covered scenery, ice fishermen on the Red Lake and Thief rivers in Thief River Falls are having themselves an enjoyable — if not overly productive — winter pastime in northwestern Minnesota. However, the unseasonably warm temperatures have uncovered some open water and people are urged to use caution when venturing out on the ice.

Bruins Upset Prowlers 5-3

Sometimes you are your own worst enemy. Ask Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand who watched his team miss a seemingly endless supply of scoring opportunities Friday in losing a surprising 5-3 game to Fargo South in the Fargo Coliseum.

South jumped out to a 2-0 lead at the start of the first period, then broke a 2-2 tie with a three-goal third period to knock off the previously unbeaten Prowlers.

"We didn't capitalize on our opportunities — something we had been doing in our earlier games," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We weren't on top of our game. We weren't particularly sharp in the first place, but in spite of that we had enough excellent opportunities to win any hockey game."

South quickly led 2-0 just 1:40 into the game on a pair of Terry Pavek goals a mere 22 seconds apart.

But it was 2-2 before the first period ended as Wade Hoppe and Tom Bjorkman scored for the Prowlers who then took a 3-2 second period lead on Bjorkman's second goal of the night.

The third period should have belonged to the Prowlers, but their near-misses, combined with a hot night by South goalie Todd Gregory, frustrated the visitors who watched as Erick Hager and Mark Stensgard scored 30 seconds apart early in the period and Pavek got his hat trick at 13:44.

"We had numerous excellent scoring chances in the third period," pointed out Grand. "We just weren't sharp. We were really attacking at the end of the game. We played better that last seven-eight minutes than we had all night. We must have had enough chances to score eight or nine goals during that stretch. We had chance after chance, but the puck just wouldn't go in."

The loss was the first after four season-opening wins for the Prowlers. The Bruins improved their record to 5-4.

"We have a better club than Fargo South, and you never want to lose in that situation," mentioned Grand. "But if we're going to lose a game, we'd rather lose to somebody other than a Section 8 opponent because I think the standings and tournament pairings are going to really be important this year."

Thief River Falls returns to Section 8 competition Friday when the Prowlers play Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

Grant Anderson scored at 3:59 of the third period Friday to give the Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team a 2-2 tie at Fargo South.

Steve Olson scored for Thief River Falls in the first period that ended in a 1-1 tie. South went ahead 2-1 in the second period before the visitors came back for the tie that kept them unbeaten at 4-0-1 for the year.

Sportsmanship Program Will Be Expanded

Class A and Class AA sportsmanship contests for the 1980 state girls and boys basketball tournaments will be expanded to include three sportsmanship awards, it was announced in the December issue of the Minnesota State High School League Bulletin.

One award will be presented each day of the Thursday, Friday, Saturday tournaments.

On Thursday and Friday one of the participating schools will receive a sportsmanship award, evaluated on its activities before, during and after the game, including its halftime activities.

For the first time, the halftime programs on both Thursday and Friday will be available to the schools. Schools may feature their cheering sections, bands, cheerleaders, dancelines, drill teams, singing groups or other activities appropriate to the tournament. These groups may utilize the playing floor during the halftime. The schools will share the halftime of their game: each may plan a four-minute program.

These halftime activities, in conjunction with the overall sportsmanship displayed by the school, will determine the winner of each day's sportsmanship award.

Sportsmanship activities are encouraged during the game, such as a card section where cheering sections hold cards to spell out words or to form pictures. Signs and banners, however, may not be included.

On Saturday, the state sportsmanship trophy will be awarded to the school in each class which has best characterized and displayed the qualities of sportsmanship throughout the entire tournament, Thursday through Saturday. The league will select and conduct the halftime programs on Saturday, featuring other member schools from throughout the state.

It promises to be an exciting innovation to the sportsmanship program, according to Larry Larson, MSHSL director of information and publications, as students are provided with additional opportunities to become involved in their tournament as team members, student fans, band members and special support groups. Students bring creativity and a special brand of enthusiasm wherever they go. Let's open the door to their talents.

DNR Fish Hatchery To Add Pipeline

A 20-inch diameter steel pipe extending 1,600 feet into Lake Superior will be installed this summer to provide water for the Department of Natural Resources' French River hatchery near Duluth.

Total length of the pipe, including 150 feet that will be installed underground, will be 4,750 feet. Cost of the project is $500,000.

Fisheries specialists said the old pipe, which currently provides water for the hatchery, is only 12 inches in diameter and has had to be repaired several times in recent years. The hatchery was expended a few years ago and the old pipe has proved inadequate to meet the needs of the enlarged facility.

A sump will also be installed to remove excessive silt and air bubbles which cause problems for fish being raised in the hatchery.

The new pipe will be entrenched and buried in the lake bottom out to a depth of 30 feet — a distance of 200 to 300 feet. Then the pipe will be placed on the lake bottom for the remainder of its distance. The end of the pipe will be face of the water.

On shore, the pipe will be extended beneath Highway 61 into a sump, then pumped up to the hatchery. Rock and gravel will be used to cover the entrenched portion of the pipe in the lake and will be used to restore the shoreline to its natural appearance.

New pumps will be installed to pull water from the sump to the hatchery. In addition, a connection will be made to the existing pipe to provide water for the older part of the hatchery and to assure a source of water in case of a failure of either pumping system or pipeline.

Those who wish to comment on the plan or obtain additional information should contact the DNR Section of Fisheries, Box 12, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call 612-296-3325.

THIEF RIVER FALLS old arena $12,000 remodeling project, done by volunteer labor supplied by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), included the installation of an attractive plexiglass viewing window in the lobby area. TRFAHA president is Dennis Bakke (right) and vice president is Erling Olson (left). The work, started last spring, was completed earlier this month on the 44-year-old building.

Old Arena Gets New Face Lift

A major face lift given to the old arena has given the 44-year-old Thief River Falls structure a new lease on life.

The $12,000 remodeling project was done with volunteer labor supplied by members of the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA).

Work on the building, built in 1936 with WPA funds, was done during the spring, summer and fall of 1979 and included:

+ Remodeling of the lobby area, featuring a wider viewing area with new plexiglass and the removal of the unsightly screen.

+ Repaired, painted and redesigned spectator standing area inside the arena.

+ Enlarged and redesigned player and penalty boxes, which now include carpeting.

+ Enclosing the entire ice sheet with plexiglass.

+ Painting of the walls inside the arena and the bathrooms.

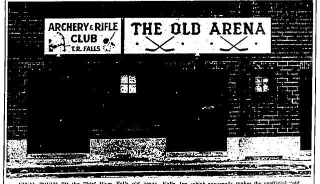
+ Rebuilt snow removal door at the rear of the building.

+ Arranged for a new exterior sign to be donated by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Thief River Falls, Inc.

Built in 1936 with WPA funds, the old arena houses hundreds of Thief River Falls youth hockey players during the winter months. City league teams also use the facility which includes an upstairs area that serves as Thief River Falls archery club indoor archery range.

The public is invited to stop in and take a look at the ambitious TRFAHA remodeling project that has turned the old arena into an attractive facility.

AN ENLARGED AND remodeled concession and kitchen area was one of the tasks undertaken by members of the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) who supplied volunteer labor in the $12,000 old arena remodeling project during the spring, summer and fall months of 1979. TRFAHA is headed by president Dennis Bakke (left) and vice president Erling Olson (center). Tim Engelstad (far right) will man the concession area during most of the 1979-80 skating season.



FINAL TOUCH TO the Thief River Falls old arena remodeling project was the addition of a new exterior sign donated by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Thief River Falls, Inc. which apparently makes the unofficial "old arena" title a permanent label. The building also houses the Thief River Falls archery club indoor archery range.

Hunters Took About 54,000 Deer In 1979

Department of Natural Resources has estimated that approximately 54,000 deer were taken by Minnesota firearms hunters during this year's season.

The figure is based on reports from deer registration stations and is corrected to allow for an estimated percentage of hunters who do not register their deer, as required by law.

Officials said the final figure for this season's bag may change later if a survey, currently being conducted, discloses that a greater percentage of hunters failed to register their deer this year than last year.

Last season's take was approximately 58,000. The tally from the checking stations was 47,372 last year and this was found to represent 82 per cent of the total take as determined by a mail survey of licensed hunters.

Northerns Are Being Traded For Catfish

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is in the process of acquiring 10,000 channel catfish from the state of Kansas in exchange for some 45,000 northern pike.

The northerns are some of the many thousands rescued each winter by DNR fisheries crews from shallow lakes to prevent the fish from dying through lack of oxygen.

Catfish are being stocked on an experimental basis in some southern Minnesota lakes in an effort to add another game fish to state waters and, hopefully, to control an excessive population of bullheads.

Channel catfish being obtained from Kansas average 12 inches in length and about 2.5 fish per pound. They will be stocked in Marion Lake near Brownton in McLeod county, in West Graham Lake in Nobles county and in Kandiyohi Lake in Kandiyohi county.

TRF Bantams Win Twice

covered puck in front of Odegaard.

Ryan Bakke tipped in Scott Johnston's slap shot from the point at 13:03 of the first period to put Thief River Falls on the scoreboard, with the hosts tying it at 2-2 when Tim Bottem whipped a long, rising wrist shot into the upper corner of the net at 1:46 of the second period.

Thief River Falls broke the tie by scoring twice in a 54-second span midway through the third period. Chris Jorde scored on a shot from the left wing at 6:17 and Tom Kenville used a nice bit of stickhandling to get open in front of the goal mouth at 7:11.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of columns on skiing as written by Dr. Hugh Patterson, a new member of the Delmore clinic at Roseau and a veteran of more than 30 years on the ski slopes.)

On Tuesday, October 13, I looked over the Winter Park ski area in the Turtle mountains north of Bottineau, N.D. The raods were snow covered and slick. It is a good area, with snow making soon in operation. My mind goes back to the good times I have had at Buck Hills, Powder Ridge and other ski areas. To begin our articles let's begin with the question, "Why should we ski?"

The answer is it's lots of fun, and this can be a key factor in keeping us alive and well longer.

If we are to maintain the best health and prevent heart attacks and strokes, which take the majority of American lives, we need to modify our lift styles in the interest of good health.

Stop smoking. Watch that blood pressure and keep it under control. Keep that weight down with a lower calorie but well-balanced diet. Adults avoid animal fats, dairy fats and egg yolk. Very important is a regular and adequate exercise program. Excellent basis for this is a 30 to 60 minute daily walk, or running if your condition permits.

I choose to run and skiing is important to my program. It takes lots of motivation to keep running 30 minutes in the dark on these cold mornings. If you get fun from your exercise program, it certainly helps. When you stand on the top of those beautiful mountains and ski down those runs, it provides motivation for another year of exercise and keeping in good condition.

The ski scene includes some of the loveliest places on earth. At the northwest corner of Yellowstone park we will ski Big Sky under majestic Lone Peak. At Sun Valley, from the top of Baldy, you gaze over the rugged beauty of Idaho's Sawtooth mountins. At Grand Targhee and Jackson Hole you see the cathedral-like Tetons. Alta is a scenic dream.

We plan to leave on our trip February 8 to ski 15 major ski areas in 15 days. We will write each area for their latest information. This and our previous experience will be the basis for these articles before late February. The next will be based on our personal experience.

Our first articles will be on ski equipment, the basics of skiing, and winter camping which has always been a part of our experience.

When we come back from that magnificent trip it is easier to keep running, to keep in condition for next year's trip.

Concordia Ski Clinic Slated Near Bemidji

Skiing, winter activities, clinics, and a 15 kilometer ski race are the highlights of Skogfjorden '80, a cross-country ski weekend, January 25-27 at Concordia language villages near Bemidji, sponsored by Concordia college, Moorhead.

Plans for the event, now in its third year, include having well qualified ski instructors as clinicians. In addition, local talent from the Concordia campus will conduct some of the clinics, which will deal with equipment, racing, wax, winter survival, and winter activities.

Race will begin Sunday, January 27, at 1 p.m. Race divisions are high school students, college students, faculty, and citizens (according to age groups). In addition, there is an overall men and women champion award.

Skogfjorden '80 committee wants to see the Language Village filled to its capacity of 144 people. 200 people are expected for the race on Sunday, as many people come for the race only.

Nordic Ski Weekend has been organized by the Skogfjorden '80 steering committee and is sponsored by the office of student activities. Al Cedergren and Kathy Stenso are student directors for the event, and Deb Staack is assistant to the directors and business manager.

Cost for the weekend is $33 which includes six meals, two night's lodging, race fees, and clinics.

For further information contact: Student Activities Office, Concordia College, Moorhead, Minnesota, 56560, (218) 299-3640.

Bid security in the amount of five per cent (5) of the total Bid price must accompany each bid.

The successful Bidder will be required to furnish a Performance Bond and Payment Bond, each for 100 per cent of contract amount, guaranteeing faithful performance and the payment of all bills and obligations arising from the performance of the Contract.

The proposed contracts are under and subject to Executive Order No. 11246 of September 24, 1965, as amended, and to the equal opportunity clause.

Contractors having 50 or more employees and his subcontractors having 50 or more employees and who may be awarded a subcontract of $50,000 or more will be required to maintain an affirmative action program.

The City of Thief River Falls, in accordance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 78 Stat. 252, 42 U.S.C. 2000d to 2000d-4 and Title 49, Code of Federal Regulations, Department of Transportation, Subtitle A, Office of the Secretary, Part 21, Nondiscrimination in Federally-assisted programs of the Department of Transportation issued pursuant to such Act, hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, or national origin in consideration for an award.

The City of Thief River Falls reserves the right to waive any irregularities and to reject any or all bids as they may deem to be in the best interest of the City or where it is determined that an award of contract would cause excessive inflationary impact.

No Bid may be withdrawn within a period of sixty (60) days after the date fixed for opening Bids.

Bidders must supply all information required by the Bid Form.

County Board Proceedings

December 31, 1979
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota.
December 11, 1979

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Court house in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., December 11, 1979.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

The minutes of the meeting of November 20th were read and approved as read.

Terry Courneya acting as coordinator of Lawcon, discussed the funding of the proposed next step of the development of Oakland Park located at the Oakland Park Home site. Changes in funding have taken place and after discussion it was agreed that planning could continue but that the funding request should be delayed to the next fiscal year to allow time for adjustment of funding problems.

Commissioner Tasa introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, that effective January 1, 1980 mileage for County travel shall be reimbursed at the rate of 19 cents per mile.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and declared unanimously adopted.

The Board then discussed a problem that has arisen because of the verbal notice on Nov. 29th from Ken Murphy in behalf of the Foundation that is operating the Dormitory in the old building at the Oakland Park Site, that told the Board that the Dormitory would be closed on the last day of December, 1979. The problems that arise by the building being vacant were discussed and it was determined that the building should be closed, secured and the basement heated to keep the building from deteriorating further. The Board will have to maintain some kind of supervision until a purpose can be found for the building. The possibility of having to destroy the building was mentioned but the Board would like to explore every avenue possible before that decision is made.

The Board received notice that the term of Erling Torgerson as Board member representing the County on the Red Lake Watershed Board was to terminate. Moved by Tasa seconded by Stenberg that Erling Torgerson be re-appointed to a 3 year term on the Red Lake Watershed Board for a term to expire January 10, 1983. Upon call for the approval of this appointment a roll call vote was requested and those voting in favor and against were: Hoffman — abstain, Grabanski — No, Koop — Yes, Stenberg — Yes and Tasa — Yes. The motion declared carried.

Elected and appointed Officers of the County — Auditor, Treasurer, Assessor, Welfare Director and Engineer made a presentation to the Board for a possible installation of a better and more flexible computer which could carry input from the Welfare Departments and the Highway Department with accessible screens for each department. Moved by Stenberg seconded by Grabanski that the Auditor be instructed to transmit a letter of intent to install an IBM, System 34 within approximately 9 months or less if the machine became available. Motion declared adopted unanimously.

The Board then discussed more fully the implications of the Block Grant Legislation that was passed during the last Legislative session.

Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the Pennington County Welfare Department has previously had the responsibilities and duties prescribed under the Hospitalization and Commitment Act, and

WHEREAS, the 1979 Minnesota Legislature, by passage of Chapter 324, requires that the County designate agencies to provide various services.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Welfare Department be the designated agency to implement the necessary responsibilities under the Hospitalization and Commitment Act, said appointment being made pursuant to Chapter 324, Laws 1979.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Tasa and declared unanimously adopted.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Grabanski that the fee for "On Sale" Non-Intoxicating Malt Liquor Licenses shall be $10.00 and the fee for "Off Sale" licenses shall be $5.00 per year. The fee for County On Sale Liquor Licenses shall be $1,200.00 per annum with the fee for a Special Sunday License to be $150.00 and the fee for Special Non-profit Club Licenses shall be the Statutory limit of $100.00 per annum. The following applications for licenses for the year 1980 were approved subject to approval of the Attorney and Sheriff: Gerald Sjulestad, Star Township, Off Sale only; Lorraine Groven, Highlanding Twp., Off Sale and On Sale; Kenneth Noreen, Rocksbury Twp., Off sale only; Helen L. Olson (Kites), Rocksbury Twp., Off Sale & On Sale and On Sale Liquor; Thief River Falls Golf Club, North Twp., On Sale and Club Liquor; Gertrude Carpenter, Numedal Twp., Off Sale and On Sale; Jacqueline F. Helms (Trapper & Trader), Goodridge Twp., Off Sale, County Liquor and Sunday License. Motion declared unanimously carried.

The Auditor was instructed to advise all License applicants that the rates may be adjusted next year.

Commissioner Tasa introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The County of Pennington has applied to the Commissioner of Transportation for a grant from the Minnesota State Transportation Fund for the reconstruction of County and Township Bridges, County L0246 over Judicial Ditch 13; County 92913 over Stream; TWP L5804 over County Ditch 16.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the County of Pennington does hereby affirm that any cost of the bridge in excess of the grant will be appropriated from funds available to the County of Pennington and that any grant monies appropriated for the bridge but not required, based on the final estimate, shall be returned to the Minnesota State Transportation Fund.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Grabanski and declared unanimously carried.

Commissioner Hoffman introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The County of Pennington has applied to the Commissioner of Transportation for a grant from the Minnesota State Transportation Fund for the reconstruction of Township Bridge No. 10744 over Judicial Ditch 18.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the County of Pennington does hereby affirm that any cost of the bridge in excess of the grant will be appropriated from funds available to the County of Pennington and that any grant monies appropriated for the bridge but not required, based on the final estimate, shall be returned to the Minnesota State Transportation Fund.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That whereas Federal monies are being used to participate in the cost of the bridge, grant monies as matching funds shall be transferred directly to the agency account and that the records of the County of Pennington shall so state.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and declared unanimously carried.

Commissioner Grabanski introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, that effective January 1, 1980 the charges for snowplowing for Townships and Individuals for the Motor Graders to be at the rate of $25.00 per hour with a minimum charge of $7.50.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Tasa and declared unanimously adopted.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Grabanski that meeting recess until 9:00 A.M., Thursday, Dec. 13, 1979. Motion carried.

The Board re-convened at 9:00 a.m., Dec. 13, 1979 with all Commissioners present.

Sheriff Richards discussed matters pertaining to his Office and to his personnel.

Asked for change in grade of the position held by Patty Bergh. Asked for consideration of wage adjustments and approval for establishing a Head Dispatcher, an Investigator and a Senior Deputy.

The balance of the meeting was taken up by discussion of the various Office positions and possible wage adjustments. The Auditor was instructed to extend possible wage adjustments to determine the impact on budget.

Moved by Grabanski seconded by Stenberg that meeting recess to 9:00 A.M., Dec. 17, 1979. Motion carried.

The Board re-convened at 9:00 A.M. Dec. 17, 1979 with Commissioners Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop and Stenberg present and Commissioner Tasa absent.

The Board discussed for a short time the CSSA (Block Grant) funding procedure suggested by various Agencies.

Commissioner Grabanski introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That the salary of the County Commissioners of Pennington County be the sum of $4,800.00 per annum, effective January 1, 1980 and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the 'per diem' rate paid Commissioners for Committee work be at the rate of $35.00, all pursuant to MS 375.055.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and declared unanimously adopted.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, Contract No. 79-04 (Graveling) has in all things been completed, and the County Board being fully advised in the premises'

NOW THEN BE IT RESOLVED, That we do hereby accept said completed project for and in behalf of the County of Pennington and authorize final payment to be made to Macey Construction Co. in the amount of $9,669.52. The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Granbanski and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Babson Report Holds Prospect Of Recession

massive imbalances to correct. Except for the excessive supplies of high-gasoline-consumption autos relative to retail demand, there are no appreciable inventory problems in the economy. Hence, this time around, the period of economic adjustment is not expected to be as vicious as the last recession. The first two 1980 quarters will see the business tempo on the wane, with the first three months likely to bear the brunt of the losses. By the time summer rolls around, the economy should stabilize and perhaps edge a bit upward. The final three 1980 months will make additional headway, with vitality somewhat more evident. But the upturn in the second half of 1980 will not be as power-packed as the rebound from the last recession because inflation will be difficult to defuse.

While the economic recession will not be unduly painful, neither will the ensuing recovery phase be initially vigorous.

A Great Many Uncertainties

Make no mistake, there are problems and uncertainties which are capable of inflicting greater damage to the economy than may now seem likely. The uncertain economic climate itself and the questions which are sure to arise in the quadrennial national elections, including those concerning anti-American violence, must be watched closely. Moreover, the course of the battle against inflation must be monitored, so it would be ill-advised to project a more optimistic outlook right now.

Slower Inflation Pace Possible

There can be little doubt that inflation has been one of the banes of 1979. While there seems little early prospect of any perceptible remission in the inflation rate, the Babson Staff is of the opinion that some headway can be made against inflation in the year ahead. As the winter progresses, recession-muted demand can help to damp its fires, and bring additional slowing in the inflationary pace further on in 1980. The task will not be easy and the problem will likely prove stubborn. From this vantage point, we feel that inflation can be wrung down to a rate of around 10 per cent for the year as a whole. This would still be a higher level than is good for the economy, but the decline would be welcomed.

Gross National Product

In current dollars, the nation's gross national product (dollar value of goods and services produced) will continue to trend upward. But this will be mainly due to the impact of inflation, and the rate of increase will not be as great as that of 1979. "Real" GNP (the constant-dollars GNP — i.e., in terms of the 1972 dollar) is now expected to fall about two per cent for the year as a whole versus the 1979 average. While the exigencies of a political year will likely bring some federal pump-priming moves by spring, nevertheless, as indicated earlier, we think "real" GNP will decline sharply in the first 1980 quarter and moderately in the following three months. A flat-to-uptilt pattern is expected in the third quarter, with an even better showing in the final quarter. Any substantive recovery signs prior to midyear seem unlikely because of tight credit, still onerously high levels of interest rates and inflation, and upward-moving fuel costs.

Industrial Production

We look for industrial production to trend lower through mid-1980. Since a good deal of the decline will be recouped over the second half of the year, we feel the annual rate of industrial activity will average only about one per cent below the 1979 average. Bear in mind that auto production and related businesses have already been working downward for the better part of 1979, as has home building. But these two sectors should lead the late-1980 recovery.

Business Inventories

One of the unusual aspects of the long period of economic rise since the spring of 1975 is the orderly manner in which business inventories have been expanded — mostly in step with the uptrend in sales. Disproportionate inventory positions were quickly brought back into line by price-markdown sales efforts. Thus, with the above-mentioned exception of hard-to-move gasoline guzzlers in the automobile field, there is no glut of inventories to liquidate. Despite the acceleration of inflation's pace, most inventory positions have been kept trim. This has been due to the agonizing experience of the last recession, the extremely costly rates of borrowed capital over the past two years, and the ability to monitor inventory positions closely with the help of computers. But while the economy is not expected to be unduly disrupted be inventory liquidations under duress on a widespread basis, neither will inventory accumulation be an important factor in helping to lift business activity in most of 1980.

Business Capital Expenditures

Business capital outlays for new plant and equipment will rise about 10 per cent in current dollars owing to the effects of inflation, but — as in the case of the GNP — there will be a slight year-to-year slippage in constant dollars. With the ease-off in industrial activity taking the pressure from high-level capacity utilization, incentive to expand will not come until late 1980.

Labor Front To Remain Active

1979 was a busy year on the labor front, and it will be very active again in 1980. However, with most of the major contract expirations coming around midyear — i.e., in construction, communications, steel, aluminum, and metal containers — the early-year recession and the rise in unemployment will temper the aggressiveness of labor leaders.

Building And Construction

One of the pivotal industries helping to determine the course of 1980's economic achievement will be the housing field. After peaking out in 1978, new housing starts slowed down in the past year. The high degree of inflation-hedge purchasing of both new and existing homes proved to be a substantial bolstering factor for 1979's economy. Nevertheless, high borrowing costs and scarce mortgage credit restrained new housing starts compared with 1978's superlative effort. The tightness in mortgage credit and the high rates for mortgage money may not relent significantly before mid-1980. Hence, we forecast a steep slide in new housing starts in the first quarter of the year, followed by a flat second quarter. After midyear, loosening of the mortgage credit situation and less oppressively high mortgage money rates will facilitate improvement in home building; but even then new housing starts will do well to better the 1½-million mark.

Compared to the housing field, heavy construction has fared quite well in 1979, and we expect this relative strength to repeat in 1980. Of help to this sector will be government efforts to bolster a troubled economy and provide employment opportunities for idled workers.

Corporate Profits—Dividends

Corporate profits will dip approximately 10 per cent below 1979 levels. The slow tempo of business will deter price markups large enough to offset cost increases. The profits pinch will ease in the second half of 1980. And with the less favorable profits picture, we do not expect a wave of dividend increases like that in 1979. However, widespread reductions in disbursements are not in the cards.

Government Spending—Taxes

Government spending will continue upward in 1980, owing partly to inflation. Economic exigencies will spur outlays at all levels of government to fend off more serious dislocations.

Recession troubles will undoubtedly bring pressure for tax-cut legislation. Chances are favorable for tax relief, but that probably will not take effect until 1981. Enactment of a value-added tax is not likely for 1980, and attempts to pare Social Security levies are not likely to bear fruit before midyear.

Foreign Affairs

From time to time, business and investment sentiment will be shaken by unrest abroad. The recent appalling anti-American sentiment in many parts of the Moslem world may give other nations cause to doubt U.S. assistance capabilities. Overall, this scenario, and priorities related to next year's election, do not promise well for worthwhile progress on important matters such as the Palestinian question and attempts to improve U.S.-Soviet relations. Brush fires in one or more of the world's many hot spots cannot be ruled out, but direct U.S. military involvement is not likely.

Wages and Prices

As indicated earlier, we believe the business decline will have a tempering effect upon the aggressiveness of labor in 1980, and yet bargaining for new labor pacts will produce many wage hikes approximating the Administration's non-inflationary guideline. This is unavoidable, in view of the drastic shrinkage of consumers' buying power during the life of the labor contracts about to expire.

The early-year softness in business will tend to inhibit the immediate flow-through of new wage increments in their entirety. Indeed, we would not be surprised to see occasional and spotty price downshadings. But fuel and energy costs are still heading higher, with an inevitable impact on transportation and distribution costs, and on operating costs in general. Therefore, there will be price rises at the wholesale and retail levels, though not of the magnitude of pervasiveness of recent years.

Employment and Joblessness

Because the recession we now foresee should not run dangerously deep, 1980 should not experience massive layoffs. Instead, we are confident that employment can hover in a peak range, constituting a very important source of support for consumer confidence.

We do not expect a frightening upsurge in unemployment. Still, a rise in the jobless rate is inevitable, as it will be difficult for the economy to absorb all of the new entries and re-entries into the labor force. For 1980, we expect unemployment to average around 7½ per cent of the available civilian labor force, with a high point of around 8 per cent.

Personal Income—Consumer Spending

A generally stable employment picture, wage hikes, heavy transfer payments, and interest and dividend incomes will all figure as favorable factors producing higher gross personal income in 1980. While the rise will not match the rate of increase established in 1979, our estimate is a jump of around 7 per cent. However, take-home pay (disposable personal income) will manage only to edge forward.

The sustained peak level of personal income we anticipate will translate into better-maintained consumer spending than seems possible at this time. Though much of the year will be flat, retail trade should end 1980 on a strong note.

Agricultural Prospects

1979 has been a good year for most farmers. Prices for farm products have been strong enough to improve financial positions, and this has been another fine crop year. The high level of farm exports should be expanded further in 1980. Shortages in Russia and certain Eastern European countries, plus lagging Canadian output, are favorable to domestic farm exports, with consequent benfits to income.

Domestic Political Scene

The campaign for the Presidency will command a good deal of attention in 1980, but it should not materially alter the course of business. The primaries and the election may be bruising, and events such as this nation has had to endure recently could have an effect on the final outcome at the polls. Charges, counter-charges, and campaign promises could influence business and consumer sentiment. At the congressional level, the battle for control of both houses will also be tough. However, the Republican party faces a hard uphill fight. It could make notable headway, but fall short of control.

Money Supplies—Interest Rates

The emphasis on anti-inflation credit tightening will restrain growth of the nation's money supply. However, the economic problems and election-year considerations will very likely force some easing of the throttle on restrictive monetary policy around mid-1980.

Oppresively high interest rates are already showing signs of easing, at least for short-term borrowing. Lower longer-term interest rates, on the other hand, may not come much before the year's midpoint. Overall, we look for distinct betterment in the interest-rates situation by late 1980, but only as compared with recent peak levels.

Stock and Bond Outlook

While the U.S. dollar will probably be subjected to buffeting from time to time in the year ahead, the reining in of galloping inflation and betterment in the interest-rates picture will be beneficial to the bond market. Therefore, investors who commence to tie down near-peak interest rates at this time could be well pleased by 1980's end. The strengthening of bond portfolios should initially emphasize issues with near or intermediate maturities before going further out on the maturity scale. Bonds with generous yields are in profusion, to the benefit of fixed-income investors. These include taxable issues and tax-exempts, medium- and conservative-grade bonds, short- and long-term maturities, and high-coupon and discount bonds.

1979 proved to be another year of frustration for most investors, with the stock market showing little progress. Although some stock groups and merger-bait issues did well at various times, the rest of the market was victimized by the unnerving effects of foreign political upheavals, waves of anti-American demonstrations, and the unyielding grip of inflation and high interest rates. But what was not accomplished in 1979 will benefit investors in 1980 — or at least those with the courage, patience, and foresight to go bargain hunting when attractive values abound. Babson's Reports feels the stock market held its own under a number of ordinarily panic-producing circumstances during much of this past year, and that the year ahead can bring a shift toward more optimism, and longer-term investment planning. There will be opportunities for all portfolio objectives.
